Mr. Sharp said the government will remove the sales tax on drugs as soon as a Commons committee can be assurance that the benefits will be passed on to consumers.

The tariff and excise tax resolutions both passed but the income tax resolution, with the

British Seamen Ask Dockers' Aid in Halting All Shipping

LONDON (CP)—Striking seamen, having already moved to tighten their clamp-down on Britain's trade, today consider a still-secret judicial report on the strike, now in its 24th day.

The national executive of the seamen's union has asked other unions to boycott all British ships, foreign tankers bringing in oil normally carried by British ships and all foreign vessels engaged in British coastal trade.

And dockside unions in foreign ports will be asked to boycott all British ships, tying them up wherever they happen to be.

Until now only British ships that returned to Britain have been affected by the strike, and those ships were allowed to unload their cargoes.

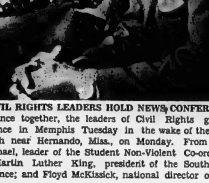
The executive, meeting for the first time since the strike began, partially resisted demands from militant members for a total blockade.

The union said the boycott was to counter strike-breaking. It claims shipping companies — especially oil companies — have been beating the strike by diverting British ships to foreign ports and bringing cargoes here in foreign-manned vessels.

The judicial report delivered to the government Tuesday, is believed to recommend a settlement more costly than the last offer by the shipping companies and considerably greater than the Labor government's 3½ per cent wage restraint policy.

The seamen went on strike over demands for an immediate reduction in the work week to 40 from 56 hours. Shipping companies offered the reduction to 48 hours spread over two years.

Ship owners estimate union demands are equivalent to a 17-per-cent increase in pay.



Several published reports said the judicial report recommends an immediate reduction to a 48-hour week and reduction to 40 hours next June.

The union said 725 ships now are tied up by the strike of more than 22,000 seamen.

Lloyd Foden, owner of Lake Agnew Lodge, 18 miles north of here, picked up Duncan Finch, 53., Orillia; E. J. Buckley, 40, Belleville, and S. W. Forster, 38, Peterborough. They were not injured.

Mr. Foden said he was flying over Acheson Lake, 20 miles east of Elliot Lake, when he saw the plane and then spotted the men.

The three were en route to Elliot Lake from Orillia when they were forced to land on the lake. Mr. Finch, the pilot, told his wife in a telephone call Tuesday night the Cessna 172 ran up on the shore and damaged its floats.

There was no radio aboard the plane rented from Orillia Air Services so the three spent

13-Grade System Going Out

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister William Davis Tuesday called for time in reorganizing Ontario's 13 - grade school system into a system of 12 grades.

Mr. Davis was presenting the department's estimates to the legislature. He said it will be extremely complex to re-organize the system without serious disruption in the schools and without sacrificing present standards.

In other business:

—Health Minister Matthew Dymond said the government is considering turning its mental hospitals over to local boards.

—Mr. Davis moved to bring up to date and streamline the province's public libraries system by establishing a provincial library council and strengthening regional library services.

"In any matter as important as this, where careful planning is necessary and where the support of the whole teaching profession is vital, considerable time is required both to organize and to see that it is properly implemented."

ANNOUNCES INCREASE

Mr. Davis also announced an increase in grants to school boards in territorial districts to enable Younger persons from outside the districts to attend territorial high schools.

Mr. Davis said outside the legislature that extension of the 13-a-day board and lodging allowances would help equalize

Canadian Armed Forces Cut To Lowest Strength Since 1953

OTTAWA (CP)—The armed forces suffered another net manpower loss in April which reduced their strength to 107,-

This is the lowest figure since 1953 when Canada's population was some 15,000,000. The population now is approaching 20,000,000.

A defence department spokesman said Tuesday that the strength of the armed forces at the end of April, latest date for which figures are available, was 361 fewer than at the end of March. The net manpower loss in March was 408.

Recruiting also fell off in April to 674 persons. Number recruits signed on in March was 927 and in February 1,022. March's recruiting was considerably higher than January's 617.

Strength of the services has continued to drop despite a re-engagement bonuses announced in February and the promise of a substantial pay increase of an unspecified percentage in October.

Defence Minister Hellyer has attributed the drop to good economic conditions in Canada. Douglas Harkness, former Conservative defence minister, has attributed it to poor morale as a result of integration begun in the summer of 1964.

The present manpower strength of 107,767 includes hundreds of men on retirement leave. One source said the effective strength is probably somewhere between 103,000 and 104,000.

Informants said 28 nine infantry battalions in Canada, there are four, abroad—are seriously under strength.

The army experienced a net loss of 190 men in April and its strength no wstands at 43,724 The RCAF has declined in strength by some 7,000 men in the last four years, the navy by about 3,500.

One source said the forces now are so hard up for recruits that they are enlisting youths of normally unacceptable educational standards and sending them to school.

Hope for Accord On French Army's Role in Germany

By HAROLD MORRISON

BRUSSELS (CP) — A brief private meeting between U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville today paved the way for a final NATO compromise on the crucial question of the future of French troops in West Germany.

After the French foreign minister rejected all other proposals, leading to announcement by a NATO press spokesman that the negotiations had failed, Rusk and Couve met privately and agreed to an amended statement of principles which will be submitted to the full council in the afternoon.

An American spokesman said there now is full hope of a successful outcome. The Rusk-Couve proposals, dealing with the method in which NATO can negotiate on the future role of the French troops, was reported to have won the support of West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder who agreed.

During the morning session of the 15 ministers it was reported the other ministers had virtually rejected the French plan as a compromise solution on the issue.

PLAYED TOP ROLE

Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph Luns played the role of emissary for the U.S. moving back and forth from the two camps with various suggestions and with de Murville's rejections.

Canada's External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, who believes a compromise is essential, played a quiet, background role. Some of the Allies, principally Britain and the United States, maintain Canada is too ready to appease President de Gaulle whose sudden withdrawal from NATO's military command has caused the present NATO nature.

Originally the 14 ministers proposed that negotiations on the future role of the 70,000 French troops be negotiated by a committee of five—Britain, the U.S., Italy, West Germany and The Netherlands. Couve de Murville rejected this, maintaining the French government doesn't get his way, a variety of compromises have been suggested. Martin is known to favor an approach is that the negotiations be conducted by NATO Secretary-General Manlio Brosio, the representative of one of the NATO countries along with NATO's permanent representative and the chairman of the French chiefs of staff.

Martin, attending at the two day session, disclosed this idea Tuesday night after a hard day in which he was forced to take the troops debate and shift NATO attention elsewhere to more heated and unproductive argument.

Five Negro Leaders Marching

By BOB GILBERT

HERNANDO, Miss. (AP)—Major civil rights leaders continue James H. Meredith's march through Mississippi today while Governor Paul Johnson considered the march but promised police protection for it.

Five Negro leaders combined forces to carry on the 225-mile walk to Jackson, Miss., started by Meredith and interrupted by three shotgun blasts.

Aubrey J. Norvell, 40, a Memphis white man accused of assault with intent to murder in the wounding of Meredith with buckshot, was held under $25,000 bond. His lawyers were drafting an appeal to have the bond reduced.

Three bus loads of sympathizers from Chicago will join the march today, said Floyd McKissick, head of the Congress of Racial Equality.

"We have made a national call for people to come," said Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. "The number will grow every day."

ISSUED PLEA

In Jackson, Governor Johnson issued a plea for residents to "ignore completely these extremist elements" and he would use any state power to keep the peace — presumably including the national guard.

Moderate Buddhist Urges End To Viet Nam Riots, Suicides

SAIGON (AP)—The moderate leader of the Buddhist institute called today for a halt to rising sad human sacrifices but said his followers will continue to struggle in a "non-violent spirit" to overthrow Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's regime in South Viet Nam.

The junta began reviewing the recommendations of its 23-man electoral commission. Speculation centred on whether the government would accept the most controversial of the proposals—a permit for the strongest assembly elected in September to become a governing body after it drafts a constitution.

The proposal would shorten the life of the military regime —the chief goal of the militant Buddhists, Ky however, said earlier he expected a second round of voting for a national legislature, which would be followed by a civilian rule would take about a year.

As expected, the commission proposed a 150-seat constituent assembly — roughly one representative for every 100,000 population. It proposed allocating 11 seats for two national minorities—Cambodians living in Viet Nam and the mountain tribesmen.

In keeping with the government's policy, the commission suggested a ban on Communists and neutralists. By the latter, the government means it's to be who espouse a politicsl deal with the Viet Cong. A target date of Aug. 22 was set for nomination of candidates with the campaign beginning six days later and ending a day before the vote.

A commission spokesman said Ky probably will announce a final draft to the nation within a week.

Living Costs Increase

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Are you spending more now and enjoying it less?

Then you won't be surprised to learn that the dollar has lost more than 20 cents in spending power since 1949.

Or that it takes a full dollar today to buy what you could get for 37½ cents before the Second World War.

The computations are the result of day latest price indexes reported Tuesday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The consumer price index based on 1949 consumer prices equalling 100 rose to 143.4 for April from 143.2 in April. That means last month it cost $14.34 to buy what $10 bought in 1949. The "buying" is the equivalent in purchasing power of 69 cents 17 years ago.

The price index of 30 most-used industrial raw materials, which dates from the prewar years 1935-39, takes an equaling 100, was 286.2 last month. That means it takes $36.62 to buy what $10 would buy in the years before the war.

MAKE MORE MONEY

Management says its prices have to go up because costs have gone up. Labor says its wages have to go up because prices have gone up. The Economic Council of Canada hopes to make public a report this autumn on the inter - relationship of prices, wages, costs, and such.

Tuesday's consumer price report said food prices rose last month by only a tenth of one per cent after jumping up sharply during the autumn and winter months. There were higher prices, too, for cigarettes and tobacco, heir cuts and hairdressing, electricity, household services, tickets, gasoline and motor oil.

The consumer price index last month was 1.4 per cent higher than it was a year earlier. Economists say that steadily, prices have risen for more than 1½ to two per cent a year. This amount of creeping price increase is normal, they say, to provide incentives for a private enterprise, economy.

SUBSIDIZE FEED

OTTAWA (CP) — Subsidized transport of feed grains from Ontario ports to Quebec farm feeders will be sought by the agriculture department Tuesday as an emergency measure to help counter shortages. The transportation subsidy would apply to grain from the ports of Prescott and Fort William, and those on Georgian Bay.

Planning Has to Be A Continuous Thing Kiwanians Are Told

Michael Rashotte, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Rashotte of 34 North Front Street, received his PhD degree in convocation ceremonies at the University of Toronto on June 6th. Dr. Rashotte attended St. Michael's High School in Belleville, received his B.A. from the University of Western Ontario in 1960 and his M.A. from the University of Toronto in 1962.

Dr. Rashotte's graduate studies have been in the field of experimental psychology. He has published a number of research articles which detail the factors producing persistence in behavior. He has been awarded a National Research Council Post-Doctoral Fellowship and will join the staff of the Department of Psychology at the University of Toronto for the coming academic year.

City Will Pay Larger Part of Justice Costs

Administration of justice costs for the city of Belleville are going up — in total that is, if not in proportion to population.

Subject to approval by the city solicitor, city council Monday evening approved of a new administration of justice agreement with the county of Hastings which sees the city's share of total costs increase from 34.85 percent to 37.44 percent.

The basis of the new agreement is similar to the former one, the main difference being that the city is tied in with the costs of the proposed new regional detention centre at Napanee.

The reason for the city's increased costs, of course, is Belleville's increasing population. The 37.44 percentage ratio applies to costs of maintaining the court house, registry office and jail.

Because their basic programs are not geared to 1966, a number established organizations in Canada are now confronted with problems, noted H. Jack Porter, speaking yesterday to members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

He warned that a "sit-back and relax" attitude developed once a club or organization is formed can be dangerous, observing that "planning has to be a continuous thing."

"Social planning is voluntary and democratic and most people are willing to give up the goals of their own associations — although empires may be threatened — in order that the community as a whole might benefit," he said.

Explaining that there was no attempt to bulldoze governing bodies of organizations in the matter of social planning, he said: "These people are capable of making up their own minds but their capabilities must be developed."

Commenting on day care services, a topic of local interest, Mr. stated: "No one has asked what day care services are but because no one wants to admit that he doesn't know the answer.

"Co-operation is required in Hastings because there has a different idea of what co-operation means. Some of those people say, 'planning is a good thing, just leave us out of it'.

"In order to have effective planning, there must be involvement — from the very beginning — by those concerned with the solution to the social problem. Generally, the problem must be studied before a solution is proposed but sometimes the exact opposite procedure is necessary.

"In planning we must first identify and study the problem, find out all the facts, plan the solution and eliminate the symptoms. As many people as possible must be involved in the study of decisions. Planning is not the recreation of the 'ideal' rich, it is an expression of democracy in the community."

Mr. Porter was introduced by past-president, O. F. Bradley and the thanks of the club was expressed by A. A. Kruetzch.

In the absence of president Fraternal Solicitor Hamilton John Trafford was chairman for the meeting. He announced that Mr. Neal has agreed to take over as temporary treasurer of the club, replacing Roy Dulmage, who is leaving west. G. B. Frayne will replace .V. A. Collis on the board of directors. It was reported that Dr. Ross will soon become a resident of Montreal.

COLLECTOR OF LAMPS — Dr. W. A. Paul, the man who collected the 350 lamps recently made the property of the Hastings County Historical Society, is seen showing Mrs. J. Sargent one of the collection pieces, an eighteenth-century "tinder pistol." The local society officially took receipt of Dr. Paul's collection this week after receiving a grant from the city of Belleville.

Recently-Purchased Lamp Collection Now at Museum

"Man has developed such bright lights that he has practically blinded himself to many things."

In Belleville Tuesday to assist the Hastings Historical Society in cataloguing the lamp collection purchased from him recently, Dr. W. A. Paul, of Napanee made some illuminating comments about mankind's struggle throughout history to escape darkness by means of lighting devices.

"Lighting devices are something that are so important to each family that, from a historic point of view, they should be preserved," said Dr. Paul. "But," he continued, "they are not only of interest to historians, but to anyone interested in the development of our way of life."

"If we can grasp how we got to where we are, then we can appreciate better what we have."

Dr. Paul said that he was doubly pleased that the Hastings County Museum would be the "resting place" for his collection — partly because he was a resident of this county when he and his wife assembled the collection, and also because a museum is "ideal" for displaying the lamps to the greatest possible number of interested persons.

Discussing the value of the collection from an educational standpoint, Dr. Paul remarked "If a student has sufficient curiosity, there are specimens in this collection that will demonstrate the use of lighting devices from the stone age right up until the introduction of the kerosene lamp."

Dr. Paul also noted that the historic branch of the federal department of Northern Affairs collection of lighting devices is in the process of amassing a collection of lighting devices similar to the one now the property of the local museum.

MADE POSSIBLE BY COUNCIL

Dr. Paul's collection, illustrative of the evolutionary aspect of lighting, was officially taken into receipt by the Hastings Historical Society this week. The city of Belleville made possible the purchase of the diverse 350-piece collection by a $2,000 grant to the society, in a lighter vein, Dr. Paul said that the "beginning of night life" could doubtless be associated with the discovery of crude lamps by cavemen, although he added, it is more often the lack of lighting that is the cause of questionable nighttime activity.

"Primitive man considered fire to be a divine gift", said Dr. Paul, explaining why primitive lamps were often so artistic and ornate, and fonts for lamps have ranged through everything from whey butter to fish oil.

Dr. Paul cited the World War I instances of troops in the trenches constructing makeshift lamps out of tins of "impalatable" sardines, demonstrating man's ingenuity when pressed by a need of light.

When asked to comment on the recent nationwide power "blackout", Dr. Paul doubted that many people were too upset. "You know," he said, "most homes still have a dozen or so candles — and in the rural areas, there are still many kerosene lamps".

Presbyterians Approve Ordination of Women Into Church Ministry

TORONTO (CP)—The 800,000-member Presbyterian Church in Canada again broke with 91 years' practice Sunday and authorized ordination of women into the ministry.

At Monday's sessions of the 92nd general assembly, the church approved ordination of women to its eldership.

Both moves were unprecedented since the church was founded in 1875 by the merger of four denominations.

The majority decision by 153 of the 205 official commissioners present overcame what was a surprise after the assembly earlier had been told that of the 99 presbyteries across Canada only 26 favored ordaining women to the ministry.

But on the question of equality, there was really no doubt. The assembly had been told that 31 presbyteries favored allowing women to seek election, and subsequent lifetime ordination, to the "cabinet" of local congregations.

Ministers are called teaching elders in the church while laymen elected from the congregation to join with ministers in establishing congregational policies in non - financial matters are called ruling elders. Both women and men now will have official voices in church affairs. A woman now also may be elected moderator.

United Appeal Agencies Hear Businessman

A Belleville businessman told a group of representatives from the agencies United Appeal agencies Saturday that the interests of management affect their dedication to charitable organizations.

Speaking at the United Community Services Public Relations Seminar at St. Andrew's Church, Fred B. Deacon said there are four reasons that give rise the thinking of management toward charitable organizations: effect on the community of their investments in the charity; the company policy; success of the charity in the past; and the interest of management in the organization.

He said there is a strong relationship between the attitude of management and the amount of money that is donated by the employees.

He called for year-round publicity from the organizations involved to let citizens know that their money is being used accountably to assist the development of the community.

"If you have a success story to tell," he said, "tell it to the world. Don't just publicize at campaign time."

Other speakers at the seminar were Noreen Park, Public Relations Director, Ottawa and District United Appeal, who spoke on the role of the agency in getting out the news, and Alan G. Nichol, National Public Relations's Officer, Canadian Welfare Council, who spoke about developing a news scene. He aided the speeches, the agency representatives took part in two small discussion groups.

Skyway Deck Tenders Sought

The Ontario Department of Highways is this week calling tenders for the decking and railing of the new Quinte Skyway spanning the Bay of Quinte west of Deseronto.

Arena Repairs Below Estimate

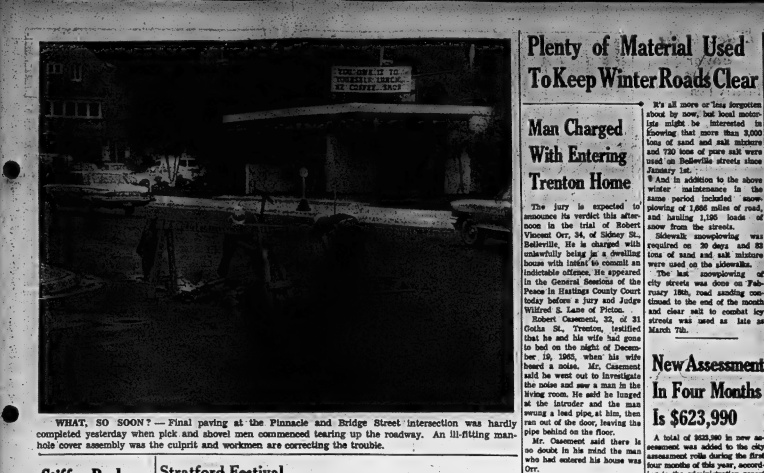
In these days of soaring construction costs, having tenders come in for less than the estimated costs for the job is something of a rarity.

But that is what the city had two pleasant surprises in connection with repairs for the Belleville Downtown Arena.

Tenders were called for replacement of the oil burner in the Arena boilers and also for replacement of the plumbing fixtures in the men's washrooms. Plumbing and Heating got the plumbing job, while the John Lewis Company Limited got the job of supplying and installation of oil burning equipment. Both tenders were for less than amounts estimated. Total cost will be $1,550.



Harry Smith Fuels won the contract for the supply of No. 2 fuel oil and stove oil, while Lynch Fuels will supply stoker coal for the next heating season at $17.38 per ton.

Stiffer By-law Covering Dogs Having Effect

Belleville's new dog by-law providing for stiffer penalties for breaches of the regulations is having the desired effect.

At least there has been a noticeable reduction in the number of complaints received from irate taxpayers. And city hall officials feel this is due at least partly to the new by-law provisions.

And the new by-law is also having its effect in encouraging dog owners to get current year dog tags.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds in his administration report to council this week notes that the dog licenses issued number about 300 more than for the same time last year.

Visiting dignitaries to the city are to be presented with a copy of the city's history, now just off the press.

Yesterday council authorized the purchase of 25 or more copies of N. Miki's "Memoirs of Belleville" to be presented to visiting VIP's.

New Democratic Party Leader Tommy Douglass will have the honor of receiving the first copy when he visits the city this Friday evening.

Stratford Festival

Henry VI Setting Colorful In Contrast to Drab Henry V

By ROBERT TANNER

STRATFORD — At though to redeem itself in some measure for the lack of color and imagination in Monday's Henry V the Stratford Festival, through the direction of John Hirsch, invested both on a striking production of its sequel, Henry VI. It was almost as if the great pageant of the first play had been deliberately toned down, to become more evenly with the obvious weaknesses of one of Shakespeare's early works. The result was an evening of exciting theatre, overlong it must be admitted, though this is a fault which appears to have become a standard feature of Stratford opening nights.

Henry VI is a complex play, almost completely devoid of the comic relief which the author used so effectively even in his great tragedies. For the purposes of the Stratford historical cycle, the original three parts have been rearranged into two plays, the second of which, renamed Edward IV, will be presented next year.

Henry VI traces the calamitous collapse of British fortunes, united to a peak by Henry VI's subjugation of France, from failing to disaster and civil war under the rule of the most moral and pacific king of his times.

In Tuesday's production, acting honors must be shared, Tony Van Bridge is admirably excellent as the Duke of Gloucester, the protector at England, who here early proves to stay, when the violent intrigues of the other nobles, but falls a prey to their resentment and the vaulting ambitions of his wife. Martha Henry, with very little help from Shakespeare, gives a fine portrayal of Joan of Arc, achieving up the bagging French to greater enthusiasm in their efforts to free their country. A somewhat unusual characterization this, as the author suggests (obviously from a British viewpoint) that the spirits from which she derives her power are in fact those of the underworld. Miss Henry seldom if ever disappoints her audience; last night she captivated it once again.

In the title role, Brian Petchey has the difficult task of making the weak, king a believable and sympathetic character, and this he succeeds in doing. Assuming that he will continue in the role next year, it will be interesting to see how he will develop it.

Frances Hyland runs the full gamut of emotions as his queen, who apparently gentle and loving towards her husband, yet all the while scheming with the Earl of Suffolk, played with his usual quiet authority by Leo Ciceri, in the comparatively short role of the Earl of Talbot, who is killed by the French halfway through the action. Mervyn Blake gives a very sympathetic and appealing performance.

The French-Canadian contingent has less to do in this play than in the preceding one, but does it with more authority. In particular Gaetan Labrecke as the Dauphin develops from the posturing popinjay of Henry V into a man and a soldier worthy of at least some of the Maid's devotion.

The color and imagination of John Hirsch's production have already been mentioned; some of the credit is of course due to the designer, Desmond Heeley whose costumes cover a great range from the sordid to the truly magnificent. The battle scenes have obviously given fencing master Patrick Crean plenty of scope for his ingenuity, and they are very effective. However, the director's passion for gore borders on the tasteless, and one wonders whether the Earl of Suffolk's severed head will survive many more performances.

The third opening tomorrow night is of Twelfth Night, when history will give place to comedy.

CNR Pensioners Assoc. Holds Banquet in City

Members of the CNR Pensioners' Association held their annual banquet at the Club Caesars Tuesday with approximately 300 members and their wives being welcomed to the city by Mayor J. R. Ellis.

Guests at the dinner included Mrs. Ellis, and Rev. H. C. McFarlane of Tabernacle Church and Mrs. McFarlane with their two daughters, Jane and Faye who entertained with violin and vocal solos.

The annual pensioners banquet held in Belleville because of its central location, is sponsored by the Female Pensioners' Club. Bob Ralph, president of the Toronto club, and Joe Hunter, head of the Belleville pensioners club, greeted the ex-railway employees and wished them an enjoyable day with old friends.

Mr. R. G. Messenger, Operations Manager for the CNR Eldess Area was present, with Mrs. Messenger, representing the executive branch of the railway. Mr. H. J. Fast, Area Manager, who had wired his regrets at being detained in Montreal, also appeared on the arrival of the afternoon train, and expressed his pleasure at meeting and talking with the many friends among the gathering with whom he had been associated while they were in service.

ACTIVE AT 84

Probably the eldest pensioner present was Pat Garvey, of Campbellford, retired conductor, who at 84 years of age is actively enjoying his extended retirement years. Mr. Garvey began his service at Lindsay in 1907, retiring in 1949 as conductor on the fast freight runs between Toronto and Montreal. He enjoys excellent health and his interests are many and varied. Mrs. Garvey was unable to be present on account of injuries received in a fall at her home. However, she is made a good recovery at the Campbellford hospital and there will be no ill-effects from the unfortunate incident.

Presentations were made by the performing artists, Mrs. McFarlane and daughters, and Mr. Newton Thompson, vice-president of the Belleville pensioners expressed regret that Mr. McFarlane is leaving this city to take up a pastorate in Ottawa. Presentations were also made to Mr. George McGee and Mrs. H. J. Boyd, whose birthdays coincided with this June 7th gathering.

Mr. Bob Ralph, president of the Toronto Pensioners, expressed the thanks of the pensioned veterans for the fine co-operation of the railway's executives in providing transportation for the many who came from distant points.

At the conclusion of the early afternoon's festivities the bowling enthusiasts among the visitors moved to the Bellevue Bowl for a couple of hours of friendly competition, scores of the ladies accompanying their husbands — and incident a lly rolling up better than average scores. Mrs. J. W. Ross exceeding the 200 mark.

Plenty of Material Used To Keep Winter Roads Clear

It's all more or less forgotten about by now, but local motorists might be interested in knowing that more than 3,000 tons of sand and salt mixture and 730 tons of pure salt were used on Belleville streets since January 1st.

And in addition to the above winter maintenance in the same period included snowplowing of 1,866 miles of road, and hauling 1,195 loads of snow from the streets.

Sidewalk snowplowing was required on 30 days and 83 tons of sand and salt mixture were used on the sidewalks.

The last snowplowing of city streets was done on February 18th, road sanding continued to the end of the month and clear salt to combat icy streets was used as late as March 7th.

Man Charged With Entering Trenton Home

The jury is expected to announce its verdict this afternoon in the trial of Robert Vincent Orr, 34, of Sidney St., Belleville. He is charged with unlawfully being in a dwelling house with intent to commit an indictable offence. He appeared in the General Sessions of the Peace in Hastings County Court today before a jury and Judge Wilfred E. Lane of Picton.

Robert Casement, 22, of 31 Gotha St., Trenton, testified that he and his wife had gone to bed on the night of December 19, 1965, when his wife heard a noise. Mr. Casement said he went out to investigate the noise and saw a man in the living room. He said he lunged at the intruder and the man swung a lead pipe, at him, then ran out of the door, leaving the pipe behind on the floor.

Mr. Casement said there is no doubt in his mind the man who had entered his house was Orr.

Cross examination of Mr. Casement by defence counsel Robert Temple revealed the man was in the Casement home one or two minutes. Mr. Casement said the only light was a table lamp in the bedroom. He said the intruder was wearing a khaki colored hydro jacket or pea jacket and dark pants. He said he had a good look at him.

Mr. Casement also said he had been "going around with Mrs. Orr for four years now."

"As a matter of fact," Mr. Temple said, "while Mr. Orr was in prison on another matter, you were going steadily with his wife weren't you?"

"Even before that." Mr. Casement replied.

Mr. Casement said that Mrs. Orr is now divorced from her husband, but at the time of the alleged incident she was not divorced. He admitted he had only seen Orr three times before the night of December 19.

Mr. Temple suggested during his argument that the Casement's relationship with Mrs. Orr gave him reason to believe that it was Orr who had entered his home. Mr. Temple said that another possibility was that Casement made the whole story up to get Orr out of the way.

Crown counsel Tom Lally said the relationship between Mrs. Orr and Mr. Casement is the crux of the case. He said it also gives Mr. Orr a reason to come after Mr. Casement.

Constable Ken Shoebridge, Trenton Police Department, said he arrived at Casement's home the night in question. "The living room was in shambles at that time," he said. "A pole lamp was broken and was lying across the floor and a pipe was lying beside the lamp. The west wall of the room had a three inch hole banged out of the gyprock.

Cst. Bradshaw said the pipe found on the floor was taken into custody and tested for fingerprints. He said no prints were found on it.

Says Management Puts Higher Value on Operating Than It Does on Planning

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian management was compared yesterday with a man standing at the wheel of a car trying to judge a number of bulls with one hand while using his other to try to protect himself.

The comparison was made by Lloyd Hemsworth, president of the president of Canadian Industries Ltd., at the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Mr. Hemsworth said Canada has been handicapped a short-sighted economy, with management putting a higher value on operating instead of planning.

He said that Canada not only lacks planning skill, but also seems to be making no serious effort to foster it.

"Branch plants don't need to do long - range planning," he said. This is done for them at head office, where most head office is in New York or Boston, London or Chicago.

DIVIDED BY 10

"Branch - plant planning can be done by sending a team to head office to sniff out their planning. The team takes the head office market forecasts for the next period and divides the forecast by 10.

"If one-tenth represents a viable enterprise, the branch has 'planned' a new business.

This so-called business has no relationship to the needs of the economy or area served by the branch, Mr. Hemsworth said.

"Actually, the area might have been better off to buy from head office and use its resources in other endeavors better tuned to the long-range trading needs of the area served by the branch."

The apparent differences between Canadian and United States management could be in the relatively little value placed on planning skills, rather than on formal education, as suggested in the second annual report of the Economic Council of Canada.

"The new developments and opportunities that lie ahead for the future are unlikely to be those planned elsewhere, tuned to the needs of another economy, he said.

"Canada's enterprises of the future must be tuned to Canada's needs, based on Canada's special strengths and resources. Not on a transplant of someone else's evaluation of what is good for them.

"Only in this way will we find a strong place in our own right as a trading nation."

New Assessment In Four Months Is $623,990

A total of $623,980 in new assessment was added to the city assessment rolls during the first four months of this year, according to the administration report of city manager J. R. Reynolds.

The report, received at this week's meeting of city council showed the total of new assessment was made up of $410,530 in residential assessment, and $213,460 non residential.

The total of $623,980 is down $168,980 as compared with the same four month period last year.

The resignations of two experienced assessment men has slowed down assessment field work this year. At the end of April only 17 polling sub-divisions of the total of 44 had been completed as compared with 32 at the same date last year.

Assessment Commissioner Leighton Thompson is confident, however, that despite new staff and bad weather, all assessment calls will be completed on time.

Quebec Election

When you have youth on your side it is generally regarded as an advantage — particularly in these challenging days, in the sphere of politics, the energy and enthusiasm of youth are more than ever necessary today.

Thus it is strange to hear it said that one of the main problems Union Nationale leader Daniel Johnson faces in Quebec is the youth of his followers. Johnson's party has emerged with a slim majority in the party standings in Quebec — 55 seats to the Liberals' 51.

The average age of the 108 Union Nationale candidates in the June 5 election was slightly over 40. Only 23 had served in the last legislature.

Clearly a Union Nationale government will be at some initial disadvantage from lack of experience. In politics, however experience comes swiftly and Mr. Johnson has a unique opportunity to weld a strong team.

The Union Nationale leader advocates a more independent inter-governmental role for Quebec than even autonomy-conscious Jean Lesage, the defeated Liberal premier. He believes Quebec should assume full jurisdiction over personal income, corporate profit and inheritance taxes.

In inter-provincial relations under Mr. Lesage, Quebec had enjoyed close ties with Ontario, and this defeat may result in some loosening of the bonds between the two.

Ontario Premier Robarts is quoted as saying a decision on whether to hold the federal-provincial education conference scheduled later this month in Victoria, B.C. is under consideration.

"We must decide if we can do any effective work under these circumstances . . ." said Mr. Robarts referring to the narrow margin of power in Quebec, as well as the political deadlock in Prince Edward Island and the Manitoba election later this month.

Under Union Nationale, Quebec may expect to travel further along the road of greater provincial autonomy, but Mr. Johnson should be careful not to take the politically disastrous course of separate statehood for the province.

Rising Above It

Cancer is no joking matter, for recovery from it depends on many factors. However, without knowing the precise statistics it seems that recovery from the disease — particularly when treated early — is not uncommon.

Some notable examples come to mind. There is Frances Chichester, a London map maker and hero of many solo flights in the late twenties and early thirties, including the first east-west crossing of the Tasman Sea to Australia in 1931. Years later, as a yachtsman, he crossed the Atlantic alone in 1960 and again two years later.

Chichester described these experiences and his recovery from a near-fatal bout of lung cancer in the interim years, in his book The Lonely Sea and the Sky.

Television personality Arthur Godfrey is another who has survived cancer. A pilot for 32 years, Godfrey and four other pilot friends are currently engaged in a round-the-world flight.

"The younger generation would never be able to do it," quipped Godfrey after landing at Teheran.

He has a point there. Mrs. Jerrie Mock, the Columbus, Ohio, housewife, who flew solo around the world three years ago, is 40 or so, and a British girl in her thirties set off on a similar mission recently.

The younger generation of North Americans may have a lot going for them, but it seldom runs to great feats of adventure such as those described above. Nothing like the four Britons — two journalists and two pilots — who are now engaged in separate attempts to row across the Atlantic from the United States to Britain.

Foolhardy? If they encounter the kind of seas Chichester, and more recently Cleveland newsman Robert Manly, experienced, their chances of survival may be slim indeed. Yet their exploits thus far, and those of other adventurers down the years, command more respect than the depressing capers of the younger set in places like Toronto's Yorkville.

Wise Choice

When a 13-year-old girl has a choice of taking a car or $2,500 in cash, the grand prize in a service club draw, she wisely takes the cash.

At least, that is the decision of Carol Unsac, a Grade 8 honors student in Stratford, and her parents.

Gail stakes each winter with the city's figure skating club, and her win will enable her to take further training at summer school in St. Thomas. Some will also be put aside for her general education.

A fine swimmer, the Stratford youngster has won the Red Cross Intermediate life-saving award.

Letters to the Editor

Nursery Plan Is Criticized

Editor,
The Intelligencer,
Would you please print this. It is what I and a great many others think of this crazy scheme to build a day nursery. And when I say crazy I mean just that.

Are not people taxed heavily enough now? And with the cost of living going up every day we will soon all be on welfare.

And speaking of welfare I think it does more harm than good the way it is handled.

It encourages broken homes; parents find it so easy to walk out and leave their children, knowing they will be cared for anyway and they are relieved of their responsibilities.

I know of two such families and no doubt there are many more. These children are kept on welfare and their parents, who are young and healthy and should be made to at least pay for their keep, are having a good time a few doors away. Not only these children are being kept on welfare for numerous grown-ups hang around the house too, and what is worse there would always keep a careful family.

In this fair to the taxpayers, many of whom are elderly and have raised their own family and now need a little support from care and to have to pay out in taxes what they need to live on themselves to keep up this sort of thing.

Not only old folks, but the young people who are honest and decent enough to keep their own children and who are paying on homes, have to shoulder the responsibility of those who have no sense of fair play or decency about them.

These places where welfare is handed out so freely should be investigated often to see what is going on and how this money is being spent.

There is not much encouragement for people to own their own homes when you have to pay all you have in taxes, while the people who get all the benefits without the expense or worry are the ones who are better off.

Let us by paying out all this money for a nursery for women who want to work, I think where parents are working they should be able to pay for their children's care. There are many women who are too old to get other work and too young for pension, who welcome this work of babysitting and this is all to the good.

In the case of widows who need help, I happen to know a few they can get enough welfare to stay at home and care for their own children. This is much better than putting them out like a herd of young animals out to pasture.

Why does the Children's Aid Society not look after those children in their care, rather than keeping them in a group?

Is it because they fear it is better for them to have a private home life and how much home life would children like that get?

They would be got up early in the morning and rushed off to the nursery, then picked up at night, taken home and fed and sent off to bed out of the way. They would not even have a chance to know their own parents.

They say if this does not work out it can always be dropped, but is it fair to rather costly mistake? We were presented with two tax bills a few years ago for just such mistake Is this to happen again?

If the council would work as hard at trying to make work for the people as they do trying to make over our money things would be much better. They need to bring in some industries to make work and then those who would not work would have no excuse to be on welfare.

A TAXPAYER.

Flowers, Girls, Distract Drivers

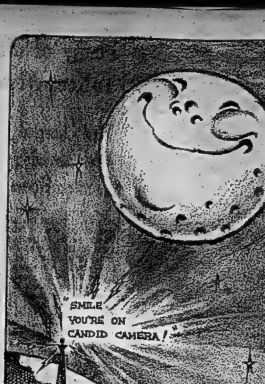
Editor,
The Intelligencer,
The tremendous number of traffic accidents at the four corners downtown is definitely the fault of our municipal administration.

Just when the drivers of automobiles have finally become used to the hazards of short short skirts on the females, our Municipal Fathers saw fit to let the women of our city waste time transforming the four corners into a thing of rare beauty by the addition of unbelievable and elaborate horticultural displays.



The shock of such a display of beauty on the main street of our city will no doubt result in some bemused citizen driving his car right through the front windows of the Bank of Montreal.

There is also much favorable comment downtown on the fine horticultural efforts of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in the vacant lot on the south side of Bridge Street.

Any day now we can expect to see Front Street festooned with small tables with red and white checkered table clothes and bon vivants happily sipping their favorite beverages and it will only be proper shortly to call the City Fathers to change the name of the street to Esplanade Quaite.

Congratulations to all responsible for this fine improvement.

KENNETH G. M. ROSS.

Wants to Water Lawn Saturdays

Editor,
The Intelligencer,
As a householder, I wonder if it ever occurred to the Belleville Utilities Commission to switch the lawn and garden watering hours each year.

I feel that in this democratic country, I should be allowed to water my lawn on Saturdays every second year.

This may not be a world-shattering problem, but since we do not have the right to republicanism it does look as though a more equal arrangement could be made.

DON CLEMENT.

Male Fashions In Spotlight

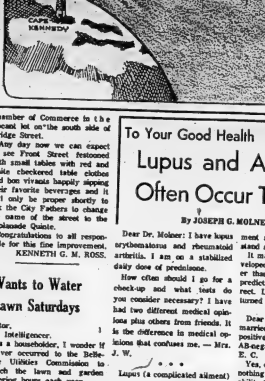
Christine Science Monitor

For a long time men have managed to dress as they please (within the limits of prevailing custom) by convincing their wives that women really don't know much about masculine attire. We figure that's how a man manages to keep wearing his favorite battered felt hat and his fuzzy tie long after it is ready for the rummage sale.



But modern woman can't be expected to find a way to change this situation, and it appears that now she has. It is a subtle approach but a simple one. She has put men's styles into her own women's magazines. Harpers Bazaar, for example, now has "His Bazaar" department with a man editor. And it is not unusual to see men's fashions in the women's pages of daily newspapers.

Why this innovation? Not to catch the eye of men readers, probably, but to tell women what their spouses should wear.

What will this lead to? Possibly to the wife-guided tour to the men's furnishing store. And what will the husband (or counselee) of the fitted pinstripe suit which appeared on the woman's page of the Friday's favorite newspaper. And to the somewhat perplexing next time she goes shopping for her husband's shorts and sox, of a style matching and colored shirt to go with the suit.

There's no denying the power of either the press or the woman-behind-the-scenes. History acknowledges it. Added to these forces is that of today's permissive advertising. It is a formidable combination.

But the force of a man whose comfortable and sensible habits are threatened is great, too. We have a feeling that very few men will be beguiled into wearing all the paper-thin clothes the fashion forecasts so hopefully predict for them. The rummage sale may not get the best-up hat in the end.

To Your Good Health

Lupus and Arthritis Often Occur Together

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have lupus erythematosus and rheumatoid arthritis. I am on a stabilized daily dose of prednisone.

How often should I go for a check-up and what tests do you consider necessary? I have had two different medical opinions plus others from friends. It is the difference in medical opinions that confuses me. — Mrs. J. W.

Lupus (a complicated ailment) and arthritis (a baffling one) are two of the group we call collagen diseases, or disorders of the connective tissues of the body. Arthritis not infrequently develops after lupus has appeared.

Since the cause of neither has been discovered, treatment consists of therapy which helps the patient even though we have no current means of offering a complete cure.

The steroid drugs (prednisone being one) are the accepted treatment for lupus and in many cases help arthritis. The side-effects must, however, be used with care. Diabetics can occur, so it is necessary to keep watch.

The doctor who is treating you is in the best position to judge how often you should see him. Only he knows your condition, knows your dosage, knows how long you have been getting steroids, knows your weight, knows changes in weight, urine and blood determination of sugar, chemical imbalances, if any. It would not be necessary to make out of these checks at each visit but they are representative of factors that bear observation in steroid use.

Dear Doctor: In 1953 my case was diagnosed as lupus and they did not give me long to live. I came home and am now being cared by a local doctor who says I have rheumatoid arthritis, which I control pretty well with aspirin and some cortisone. Were they wrong at the hospital? — Mrs. J. B.

I guess we'll have to admit that they weren't very good at predicting longevity, and after 13 years you seem to be doing very well, with more years still ahead of you.

I beg to point out that there are different types of lupus, some much more dangerous than others. Remember it is that we had so effective treatment for lupus until cortisone was discovered, and years were required to learn what it could do for the disease.

The hospital you mentioned is one of the best in the world. I would rather guess that they were right in the original diagnosis, but 13 years ago they did not know as much about treatment as now. Medicine doesn't stand still.

It may be that if you had developed lupus say 10 years sooner than you did, the hospital's prediction would have been correct. Let's just be glad things turned out the way they have.

Dear Dr. Molner: Could a married couple, the wife with B-positive blood and the husband AB-negative, have children? — E. C.

Yes, of course. Blood type has nothing to do with a couple's ability to have children.

Note to Mrs. H. J.: Your druggist will have no difficulty in finding tolnaftate (Tinactin antibiotics) listed in his current reference books. It still requires a physician's prescription, however.

"Don't Quit Because of Arthritis" is the title of my leaflet designed to help all who suffer the aches and pains of arthritis. For a copy, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Washington—a "Hick Town"

By SIDNEY J. HARRIS

Which Americans city has a more psychiatrists per capita than any other in the country? No, you're wrong — it's not New York. And which American city consumes more liquor per capita than any other in the country? Again you're wrong — it's not New York.

Our nation's capital, Washington, D.C., leads the field in both of these significant categories — and leads it in practically everything else. Few other "civilized" countries in the world have so little to be proud of in their capitals.

Except for its stately buildings, Washington has none of the adornments of a great city — no theatre to speak of, a mediocre symphony orchestra, dull and conventional museums, and practically no literary or intellectual ferment.

It is a one-industry town, and like all one-industry towns, it is essentially provincial. This is not true of the capitals of England, France, Italy, Russia or other European countries, for they have never submerged and subordinated their personalities to the drab industry of government and political politics.

Visitors to the United States want to see New York most of all; they travel to Washington only when business takes them there, or to make a dutiful pilgrimage at a period of respect. Nobody not in politics would dream of living there voluntarily. By — unlike London, Paris, Rome or many other capitals of the world.

This is a shocking commentary on our failure to integrate our political life with the other strands of society, to transform our capital into the intellectual and cultural nerve-centre of the nation, as it presently is not.

For all its pomp and power, Washington is simply a mannerless, provincial, moral black town, untouched with culture, and alcoholic without cheer.

For a time, in the brief regime of John F. Kennedy, it seemed as if an exciting transformation might be taking place: bright young people were being lured from the business and scientific and cultural communities were encouraged to share in status and decision - making. Now, under the heavy vulgarity of Johnson, that slight trend has been reversed, and Washington has reverted to its familiar role as a provincial backwater.

Much shock has been expressed at the shame of Washington and the need for urban renewal to remove the vast pockets of poverty and degradation among the deprived population. But, equally necessary is an urban renewal of the mind and spirit, that transforms the attendant of the capital into a city worthy of the world's respect and admiration.

Oil Policy in Canada

Hamilton Spectator

Demands for an oil pipeline to carry Canadian crude from Alberta to the lucrative market east of the Ottawa Valley are growing louder and more insistent.

This market, which includes Montreal and Quebec, is one of the richest in Canada and the industries that serve it are fed with crude from Venezuela, the Middle East and to a lesser extent, Trinidad.

To those unacquainted with the weird, subterranean world of oil politics this importation of foreign crude into a country so abundantly endowed with oil of its own does seem like bringing coal to Newcastle with a vengeance. And the obvious anomaly is emphasized by the fact that these importations have to be paid for out of Canada's foreign currency reserves.

The loudest demands for this new oil pipeline come from Canada's independent producers — the mostly smaller companies that live in the shadow of the giants. There are now 300 of them in Alberta, and discoveries of oil by one or two have added greatly to their resources. It is natural that they should look for an expanding market in the years ahead.

The present national oil policy was introduced by the former Conservative government in 1961. By agreement with Washington it provided, in broad terms, a market for Canadian crude in the north-central states of the U.S., and the ultimate development of a proposed pipeline to carry crude east of the Ottawa Valley, while the smaller companies had demanded.

In the five years since the introduction of Canada's national oil policy, sales of crude by the independents has increased a considerable extent.

Some of this increase has been due to growth of demand in the American market, but also to an increase in Canada west of the Ottawa Valley where, under the 1961 agreement, foreign crude has not been imported.

But sales to the United States have never been enough to have increased from 344,000 barrels a day last year. American independents and Canadian sales with hawk-like attention and have wide powerful lobbies in Washington. Indeed, Canadian exports of crude fell under the constant threat of interdict by the U.S. governmental.

Canada's imports of petroleum products increased by 40 per cent last year over 1964. Most of this was east of the Ottawa Valley. Imports of crude and products by Canada exceed exports by the U.S. by over 300,000 barrels a day.

With Canada's growing petroleum wealth in the ground there are signs that the national oil policy needs revamping. It will not be easy. Canada is in no position to thumb its nose at Middle East and Venezuelan oil interests and take the international consequences.

The national oil policy begins to look increasingly unrealistic. A pipeline to Montreal from Alberta is admittedly obvious logic. But Canada has the strength to take the consequences, to extricate itself from the tentacles which it has allowed to entwine it, it must speak softly but insistently for an honest share of crude exports to the U.S., without strings attached or hovering threats, while financing a giant share of its domestic market demands for less than an open and meaningful compensation.

I believe that all service clubs are doing a very important part in balancing the lopsided life the world today. Every service club is a cross section of its community; no barriers of creed, race, language or religion are found in service clubs," said C. # Crown Land Cottage Sites Are Available

TWEED — With the advent of warm summer weather the inquiries received for the availability of Crown Land in creases also.

Tweed district of the Department of Lands and Forests currently is offering approximately 375 lots which are surveyed and ready for disposition. These are located on lakes throughout the forest district and administered by Chief Ranger offices at Bancroft and Deer. Sales, however, are consummated at district office here.

During the summer of 1965 parcels were surveyed; these are not included in the above number of lots available. Only one of the new sub-divisions is currently available and this one is located on the narrows on Skootamatta Lake. The release of the remaining locations is expected within the next month.

Parcels are sold in lots of a minimum width of 100 feet and a maximum width of 200 feet. The average depth is approximately 250 feet. The purchase price is computed at $2.50 per foot frontage plus a survey fee of $150.00 for each lot. Prior to the issuance of patent the purchaser is required to erect within 24 months of the date of sale a cottage having a minimum floor area of 320 sq. ft. and a minimum value of $1000. Subsequent to the building requirements being met a patent is issued.

The disposition of such lands is of a recurring nature and each year new locations are chosen and surveyed into sub divisions. The number of new parcels created is subject to demand and moneys available in the department budget for survey work.

Inquiries for summer cottage sites for Tweed, Bancroft, Madawaska and Land O'Lakes area, should be directed to the District Forester, Department of Lands and Forests, Tweed, Ont.

EXPLAINS USE OF BLOOD PRODUCTS — J. B. H. Goodfellow, (left), a director of the Toronto Area Blood Donor Service of the Canadian Red Cross is shown explaining some of the various uses of blood by-products to two local blood donor service workers, Mrs. G. M. Miller, and Mr. A. S. Lewis. Mr. Goodfellow was in Belleville Tuesday evening to participate in a special seminar directed at volunteer workers in blood donor clinics.

Canadian Blood Donor Program Second to None, Seminar Told

Belleville volunteer blood clinic workers were told last night that one out of every 20 donations of blood is responsible for saving a human life.

Speaking to a Blood Donor Seminar organized by the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society and held in the Quinte Hotel's Pinnacle Room, Mr. J. B. H. Goodfellow outlined some of the features of the blood donor service program. Mr. Goodfellow, Director of Area "A" of the Ontario Division of the Blood Donor Service, issued his strong conviction that the Canadian blood donor program was second to none in the entire world.

He noted that, in addition to whole blood and plasma, fresh frozen plasma and the other by-products of blood are readily available for all in need of them with no obligation for payment or replacement. Stressing the manifold diverse purposes in which blood and its products are employed, Mr. Goodfellow cited the case of a Toronto boy, who was literally "kept alive" by infusions of fresh frozen blood plasma, a blood substance successfully used in the treatment of haemophiliacs, or "bleeders." Although the boy required some 350 units of the plasma last year, he, and anyone else in need of blood receives whatever amount called for by their condition free of charge, Mr. Goodfellow said.

Another important aspect of the donor program outlined by Mr. Goodfellow is the prenatal investigation service operated by the Red Cross to enable doctors to detect the possibility of "Rh" factors in the blood of expectant mothers. Last year transfusions were given to 372 new-born babies in Toronto.

Mr. Goodfellow attributed the low points of donor activity in blood clinics throughout the year to pleasant weather, inclement weather, and holidays, depending on the season. He said that special holiday clinics featuring big publicity campaigns and even entertainment were being employed by the blood donor service to overcome the reticence of prospective donors.

NEED PUBLICITY

Accompanying Mr. Goodfellow in leading the seminar were Mrs. B. Levey, chairman of the Public Relations Committee of the Metro Toronto Blood Donor Service, and Mrs. Bette Stanley, a Public Relations Coordinator from Metro Toronto.

Mrs. Levey stressed the importance of the public relations aspect of donor clinics to the volunteer workers in the audience, reminding them that it was their job to make blood donors feel welcome, comfortable, and appreciated. She said that a good "p.r." program helps avoid the spreading of fallacies of "4-inch-long needles" and of donors bleeding to death because of supposedly inattentive clinic workers. "Each and every clinic volunteer should be a public relations officer for the Blood Donor Service", she said.

Mrs. Stanley mentioned medical "breakthroughs" directly involving the blood donor service, including the recently developed leukemia treatment, requiring 100 bottles of blood per day at Toronto's St. Margaret's Hospital, and the development of a human anti-tetanus serum.

Discussing blood donor services abroad, Mrs. Stanley noted that blood donors in the Russian Army get 2-week passes, that the government of Sweden "foots the bill" for the entire donor service program, and that in New York State a recipient may pay as much as $250 for a single unit of blood. She added, however, that, in most areas of the United States, the blood donor program is very similar to ours.

The volunteer clinic workers were given literature "kits" to answer many queries about the donor program, and the Toronto guests were thanked on their behalf by A. S. Lewis, chairman of the blood donor service of the Belleville Red Cross branch.

Scots Send Trade Mission

PRESWICK, Scotia (CP) — A high-powered Scottish trade mission left Prestwick airport today for Toronto on the first leg of a 16-day coast-to-coast sales drive into the Canadian market.

The 16-member mission, selling a range of goods from bagpipes and Highland dress to engineering equipment, is sponsored by the Council of British Chambers of Commerce, which has a membership of 70,000 firms.

Matthew Neil, secretary of the Glasgow Chamber of Commerce and acting secretary of the mission, said the members represented Scottish industry from The Shetland Islands in the north to the English border in the south. Some of the firms in the mission were already selling in Canada, but for others it would be their first attempt to break into the "difficult Canadian market."

New Bridge Over Murray Canal Sought

PICTON (Staff) — Among the many topics dealt with at this week's meeting of Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, was that of taking action to have a new span across the Murray Canal. It is considered that, at present, bridges over the canal are inadequate for heavy loads.

Resolutions asking for action by the Federal Government will be presented to town and county councils for endorsement. It is possible that a delegation will follow this up with a visit to Ottawa, at which time the matter of "designated areas" will also be discussed. An acknowledgement from the Provincial Dept. of Travel and Publicity was received by the Chamber in reply to its request for an aquarium at Glenora Research station.

Will Proceed With Proposal To Annex

PICTON (Staff) — Picton is going ahead with its application to the Ontario Municipal Board to annex about 700 acres of Hallowell Township, despite the township objection that the town will be taking industrial assessment on Main Street West.

Councillor Robert Walmsley reported to Town Council that there is about $147,000 industrial assessment in the area, chiefly from Prince Edward County Fruit Growers Co-op Ltd. now in the township.

Picton's position is that the town cannot afford to annex without it; the township position is that it is not financially in a position to lose it.

PICTON (Staff): Mayor McFarland made three announcements this week in connect which ended many weeks of speculation.

The Mayor said that the town of Picton is going to retain the armouries, the town docks will be extended a little bit further than was asked and the harbor is going to be dredged to the satisfaction of all concerned.

The announcement that the town will have the armouries it was the one most people were concerned about and he said that the former home of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will be turned over as soon as legal arrangements can be completed. The Mayor at grandmother's, it's a good idea to let him (or her) try a couple of overnight visits during the last part of your waiting period. Comes the day of your departure, he will have become accustomed to the idea and will probably accept it more readily.

Another baby on the way? If you plan to have church fit spend your hospital time

Bassinet inlury. If your youngest child is still using the crib, you'll want to transfer him to a regular bed well before the arrival of the newcomer. By giving your child time to get used to the new bed, he'll be less likely to resent the newcomer taking over the crib.

* * *

Early weeds. As you know, one of the earliest additions to a new baby's all milk diet is a special baby juice to provide vitamin C (ascorbic acid). Gerber Orange Juice is a fine natural source of this vitamin, and an excellent starting juice for most babies. Because it is so popular, it now comes in handy six-packs for your shopping convenience. P.S. Your baby will enjoy Gerber Apple Juice, Apple Cherry Juice and three delicious combination juice drinks.

All have added vitamin C for your baby's well-being.

* * *

Tactful tactics. You can often diminish resistance to the new baby by suggesting that big brother or sister share in the care of the "intruder." Jealousy can also be held in abeyance by saving billing and cooing over the new baby for times when junior's out of sight.

* * *

Solid start. Almost before you know it, your baby will be ready for cereal. Good starting point for this important step: Gerber Rice Cereal. It's a wholesome single-grain cereal, well-tolerated by tiny ones. Later, your baby will like Gerber Oatmeal, Barley, Mixed Cereal and Protein Cereal Food. All are delicate in flavor, creamy-smooth in texture when mixed with milk or formula . . . the way they should be for babies. All have added iron and B-vitamins: thiamine (B1), riboflavin (B2) and niacin. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

U.C.W. Meetings

CANNIETON U.C.W.
(Evening Unit)

The regular monthly meeting of the Canniton U.C.W. Evening Unit was held in the church on the last Monday in May. The president, Mrs. D. Parks, gave the invocation.

A layette is to be sent to the Church Board.

It was agreed to make candy for a sale to raise funds to send girls to camp. Invitations were read to an open meeting of the Afternoon Unit on June 13 and one to the Shannonville U.C.W. Lilac Tea.

Mrs. M. Mitchell, Mrs. D. Parks and Mrs. H. Putman took the members on a make-believe air trip to Brazil for the worship service. They showed an interesting film strip which showed how some things have been changed and how they expect to change many more, such as growing different crops.

Mrs. Putman told a story about a 13-year-old girl who wanted to be a missionary, but had to move when she was in grade 7 where there were no schools. She taught the other children (about 20), their letters and brought them up to the grade 8 level.

Lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

Demand for Contraceptive Pills in India Exceeds Supply Says CUSO Nurse

By MARILYN ARGUE

That's about as close as they've been to Eastern splendor and riches.

Working with the Canadian University Service Overseas (CUSO), the young Vancouver couple live in a three-room house with no electricity. The people they mostly meet live in mud huts on farms of 10 to 15 acres.

The Wards now are on holiday in Canada and England. They'll return to India in July for another term of duty.

A graduate of the nursing school of the University of British Columbia, Sheila is a slim, 22-year-old blonde with blue eyes and gold-rimmed glasses.

Jim, 28, is brown-haired and bespectacled. He came to Canada from England about seven years ago and studied agriculture at UBC. They were married shortly before they left for India two years ago.

"Children there die in droves," says Sheila. "A lot of the cases our doctors get are shortly after the messy or incomplete ones."

Sheila, who works in family planning, began as a public health nurse. But when she went out on visits to families "so many women drew me aside and asked 'how can I stop having babies?'"

MANY CHILDREN DIE

Indian women are usually about 16 when they have their first child.

"With each child, a woman's health gets worse. She is usually breast - feeding the first baby while pregnant with the second, and her body just doesn't have the resources. The third child is as likely to die as live."

With the intra-uterine contraceptive in use now, Sheila has no problem with instruction.

"But the demand far outstrips the supply, and there are only two doctors for 200,000 women in the district. The women tell me 'if I walked the three miles in to the clinic, nobody would have time to see me.'"

Sheila travels by bicycle, "and that damaged my reputation with the women—an Indian married woman wouldn't ride one."

She always wears Indian clothes, a sari for work in the clinic or the Punjabi slacks and shirt for cycling.

Cooking is her biggest chore. "We just have a little kerosene stove, and it always acts up. We have no refrigeration, and we can't get tinned goods."

When she wants to make bread," Jim says, "she has to buy the wheat at the market, pick out the stones, take it down to the mill and wait while it's ground."

HELPFUL FARMERS

Jim, an agricultural extension worker, introduced Mexican wheat into the area, and now the state government uses it as a large - scale program for its adoption.

The farmers now use wooden plows and sow seed by hand. Threshing machines are almost unheard of—bullocks thresh the wheat by tramping on it.

Jim is encouraging "drastic change" by demonstrating bullock - drawn plows, seed and fertilizer drills and disc harrows. He says farmers can pay for better seed and machinery with the profit from one acre planted according to his method.

The Wards get $100 a month between them—$25 each from CUSO and the same from the state of Rajasthan. When their CUSO term is over, they'll get $500 each.

Their Indian counterparts are paid $50 monthly, most of which they save for dowries, if their children are girls, or for education, if they have boys.

"But we spend most of our salaries because we have extra expenses — travel, entertaining, setting up house," Sheila says. "We eat better than the Indian workers, and we spend a lot on postage."

Ann Landers Discovers Husband Is a Filthy Phoner

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am heartsick and frightened and I need your help before I go off the deep end. I awakened at about 2:00 a.m. for some mysterious reason and discovered that my husband was not in the bed beside me. I thought I heard him speaking to someone in the kitchen and could not imagine with whom he could be visiting at that hour. (I had checked our two young children who were asleep in the next room.)

As I approached the kitchen I heard him using indescribably filthy language and suddenly it dawned on me that he was talking on the telephone. I stood virtually paralyzed for ANN LANDERS fully five minutes as I listened to him telephone two of our friends (women). In a disguised voice he said some of the most disgusting things I have ever heard in all my life.

My husband does not know that I heard him and I don't know if I should tell him. I have never heard him use such language in the 15 years we have been married. I am scared to death that our friends may have recognized his voice and I can't face them. Please tell me what to do. — ILLINOIS WOMAN IN A PANIC.

DEAR WOMAN: Tell your husband — at once — that you heard the telephone conversations and that he should get professional help without a minute's delay.

In Illinois (and many other states) there is a law against obscene telephone calls. If your husband is caught, arrested, and found guilty he could be sent to jail for six months.

* * *

DEAR ANN: Twelve years ago I caught my wife with another man. I divorced her. I could have taken the three children but I thought they would be better off with their mother.

They moved to another city and I supported them for two years — until my wife remarried. I made no effort to see them because I felt it would be best not to confuse the kids or ask them to choose between their mother and two fathers.

Two weeks ago I got lonesome, hopped on a plane and popped in on my ex and the kids.

It was a cold reception. I'm sure my ex-wife has turned my children against me. How can I win their love? — SAD DAD.

DEAR SAD: You drop out of sight for 13 years and then expect the kids to throw themselves into your arms?

Sorry, Dad. You have lost 13 years ago and you weren't aboard. Don't blame your ex-wife. You did this to yourself.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am an 11-year-old girl who needs help. Please print this letter to my mother so she can read it in the paper. Thank you.

DEAR MOM: No matter what I do or say or how I might act at times, I love you. I am thankful that you are at my side. You are the best mother in the whole wide world. Without you I wouldn't even be born. Heaven knows where I would be. Maybe no place.

It is you who teaches me right from wrong and believe me, I sure do appreciate it. You are the greatest mom who ever lived. I love you. — THANKFUL DAUGHTER.

DEAR THANKFUL: What in the world did you do, anyway? Here is your letter and I sure wish you'd let me in on the whole story. It must be a doozy.

* * *

Confidential to WORRIED MOM OF R.N.C.: Don't blame your daughter's boy friend. She did not reject you for him. This girl has been out of control and unreachable for many years. You need outside help and I urge you to get it.

Two Young Canadians Successful Designers

Written for The Canadian Press
By MARGARET NESS

Young designers have appeared on the fashion scene, creating clothes for the young market. Their styles are beginning to make it obvious that young clothes are for fun.

Until recently mother chose and bought the clothes for their families, until the girls went to college or took jobs. Then the girls immediately started wearing adults clothes. The only fun clothes were those designed for casual wear or a sort of campus "uniform."

Designers also fell into two groups. A young designer spent years working at the trade before being permitted to assume the responsibility of designing a whole collection.

Now there's a new breed of designers, a direct outcome of the times. Some have formal designing education, others have none. A whole new concept of clothes for the young has appeared. Clothes are fun. Young people have money to spend and insist on buying what they, not their mothers, want.

LAUNCHED NEW TREND

Welsh-born Mary Quant of London is often referred to as the originator of the young mod look. At first, in her own shop in London's arty Chelsea district, she designed clothes that were as she put it, "simple but extreme." They weren't zany but they were too expensive for the really young to buy.

Her most important contribution was that she is young (she's only in her late 20s now) and "with it." She was designing for her own age group. And even more important, her clothes proved to be salable. Today Mary Quant clothes are found in many countries.

Other young designers followed. Some already are well-known, such as England's Caroline Charles. She learned her trade at a technical college, worked for a couturier and as a salesgirl for Mary Quant, even spent a year in fashion photography.

She started designing on the side and gradually built up a business. Now she has a large export trade that includes Canada and even Paris. Two well-known celebrities are entertainment stars Barbra Streisand and Hayley Mills.

CANADIANS IN FIELD

Canada has at least two successful young designers, Donald Campbell, in his late 20s, has made his success in London after graduating a few years ago from Ryerson Polytechnic institute in Toronto, he worked for John Cavanaugh, one of London's leading couture designers. He then opened his own salon which he operated for three years and has recently accepted an offer from Cavanaugh to do a collection of his own label in the Cavanaugh showings.

In Montreal, John Warden has already produced three collections under the Auckie Sauff label. Warden, born in Niagara Falls, Ont., 26 years ago, attended the Parsons School of Fashion Design in New York. Then Auckie Sauff invited him to design a boutique collection and Warden came back to Canada. Warden's clothes manage to be both young and sophisticated, a difficult combination.

This spring at the New York shows for the fashion press several young designers were introduced. Betsey Johnson, 26, came to her designing career via dancing when, as a dancing teacher during high school, she created the costumes for her stage productions. She spent a year studying art and dance, then majored in illustration.

'SHOULD BE FUN'

Now she is designing for the first of what she calls not for the smart boutique Parsphernalia on Madison Avenue.

"I feel that dressing should be a kick, should be fun," says Betsey. "I believe in movement, like excitement in clothes."

One of her customers was British actress Julie Christie star of the movie Dr. Zhivago. For her Betsey designed a "flipsie"—a pin - dotted navy-and-white double-knit cotton in a skimpy silhouette until it flips out at the hemline. Added interest was in the high white collar and flaring cuffs and the low-slung patent leather belt.

Other New York designers to watch for are Kiki Smith who does most of the theatre costumes and the personal wardrobe for actress Diahann Carroll, and Gayle Kilpatrick, now designer for Atelier. He likes wildly slashing colors such as neon purple combined with lemon yellow.

ARTIST IMPROVISES

VANCOUVER (CP)—One day in her native Holland, Ineke Leupen found she was a long way from home with a sketch pad but no pen or pencil. So she made a brush out of pieces of grass. She liked the effect and stuck with the "brush." She recently opened an exhibition of her work here.

Youthful Artists Heard in Recital

By S. ALEC GORDON

Upwards of 50 well scrubbed young boys and girls appeared last Saturday night at the Salvation Army Citadel to prove to a sizable audience that the musical life of young Bellevillians is not being forgotten. Most of the players were pupils of Mr. Jack Green, who organized the concert, and who is the leader of the local Salvation Army band. Several of the performers had won honors and prizes at the Stirling Music Festival and the Peterborough Music Festival, and it was a pleasure to hear these young Belleville hopefuls in the city.

Colonel W. Effer, who has just completed an evangelistic campaign in the west coast was the guest chairman at the evening. A musician himself, he had appropriate words of encouragement for the young artists.

The program got off to a good start with a rhythmically exciting number by the timbrelists with band accompaniment. This was followed by a sextette of piano-accordionists. Garry Mason, a young treble, sang a vocal solo. The brasses were next, represented by David Grainger playing the baritone and Brian Lee playing cornet. For variety from brass instruments Peter James, played a violin solo.

The next group on the program consisted of three duets and two solos as follows: cornet duet played by Marvin Brown and Rick Austin, cornet and baritone duet played by Lynda and Keith Peyton, cornet solo played by Robbie Cronk, vocal solo by Carolyn and Beverly Lewis, and trombone solo with band accompaniment by Ron Smith.

Mr. Green in announcing the offering stated that the proceeds from this annual event go to helping boys attend music camp.

The next group appearing on the program was as follows: cornet solo by Jim McKay, trombone and cornet duet by Mark and Alan Broadhurst, cornet solo by Robbie Mathews, accordion solo by Barry Vanscoven and a cornet duet by Paul Scott and Graham Brooks.

At this point in the program, Mrs. Gleenys Bell, who is one of the officials of the Peterborough Kiwanis Music Festival committee, spoke on behalf of the committee, expressing congratulations to those who performed and to those from this district who competed in the festival. She commended Mr. Green on his having so many of his young pupils enter the festival and hoped that even more young folk would enter next year's event. She presented a silver tray on behalf of the committee to one of Belleville's honor winners.

To complete the program, after a reading from the Bible, more brass players were heard as follows: cornet solo by Dennis Donman, cornet duet by the Cooks brothers, cornet solo by Wes Smith, and a cornet solo by Randy Johnson.

As an unusual climax to the program, all these young artists pooled their musical resources in playing an marchbear a-t March, led by their teacher Mr. Jack Green.

The young players are to be congratulated on their performance, many of whom were appearing before an audience for the first time. In spite of a few split notes, not one of the young artists stopped playing. Every one of them 'carried on' bravely to the end. Real wishes are extended in their continued studies with their excellent teacher, and next year's performance will be looked forward to with eager anticipation.

Council of Women Wants Broader Divorce Grounds

By LINDA CRAWFORD

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—The National Council of Women Tuesday approved a resolution asking the federal government to broaden the grounds for divorce to include insanity, cruelty and desertion.

The resolution, passed during the council's annual meeting here, called divorce laws under the matrimonial causes act "harsh and antiquated."

The resolution said the present laws caused many social problems such as common-law unions, emotionally upset children and lower moral standards.

But it suggested any amendments made by the federal government should be accepted by each province as its own option as "every province in Canada may not wish to widen the grounds for divorce within its own boundaries."

Also approved was a resolution recommending that the federal government enact a draft statute of domicile drawn up in 1961 at the conference of commissioners on uniformity of legislation in Canada.

Enactment of this statute would give the married woman a right to her own domicile. Her domicile now is automatically that of her husband, even if she is separated and her husband living in another city.

WANT DRUGS LABELLED

The 340 delegates, who represent some 1,200 organizations across Canada, also approved a resolution requesting legislation requiring effective and distinctive labelling of drugs and hazardous household chemicals and registration of the manufactures of hazardous substances.

An earlier resolution on firecrackers was amended to request the federal government to prohibit the import, manufacture and distribution of firecrackers.

Provincial governments will be urged to prohibit the sale and use of firecrackers within each province.

The federal government will also be asked to amend laws governing the redemption of Canada Saving Bonds so that the mother as well as the father of a minor can redeem the bonds when the minor, because of age, is unable to write.

Earlier Tuesday delegates approved resolutions calling for a halt to nuclear testing and proliferation of nuclear weapons, for uniform civics courses and a month to month resocialization instruction in schools across Canada and for inclusion of tuberculosis and mentally ill patients under the federal Hospital Insurance and Diagnostic Services Act.

SUAVE SWIMMER

Keep a comb handy with your towel or beach robe to use as soon as you come out of the water after swimming.

NEATLY NUMBERED

Dear Susanna: In the event that your area for storage is very limited — just an apartment locker like mine, or the crawl space in a two-level home — you may find my solution helpful.

I number all my boxes, wherever in the apartment they may be. In a stenographer's notebook I list the box number and opposite this I write the name of each item contained therein and where it is stored. Then, I number the box on two sides and on the top as I put it away so whichever way it is packed the number is exposed.

Strangely enough, it takes longer to explain all this than it does to do it.

To get one efficient step further, if many boxes are stored in one area, I draw a floor plan showing where the numbers are. In this way it takes no time to locate the carton you need even if your locker is piled two or more rows deep. — M. Robinson

SOFT'N'SMOOTH

Dear Susanna: Looking for a creamier butter icing for cakes?

Next time you mix up some icing, toss in an egg yolk.

This is especially good for angel food cakes, as it tends to keep the frosting from hardening and cracking. — Marlene Brooks

The Expert Say

All-Canadian Meal Can Still Be Served

By JEAN SHARP

Canadian Press Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — If you were challenged to serve an all-Canadian meal, you could do it. You might open with smoked sturgeon, go on to chicken and oyster pie, finish with cheese and apple butter or sugar pie.

"There are Canadian recipes but we've let them die out," says Una Abrahamson, editor and publicist at General Foods. Mrs. Abrahamson has written a history of domestic life in Canada to be published in September and called God Bless Our Home.

"You can't get a maple sugar pie except in one or two places in Montreal but the chicken pies were famous in Nova Scotia—anywhere there were German loyalists."

Oysters, which she says grew six inches across 100 years ago, were baked in the pies.

"Cheese-making was a first factory industry. Our old Ile in a class by itself. Our cheeses were always thought to be very good. Now most of them are almost unknown. Basic Canadian brick is hard to get these days.

"Apple butter was a pioneer delicacy. You ate it on bread, with cheese, or as a condiment with cold meat."

ATE TOO MUCH

Mrs. Abrahamson speculates that Canadians have lost sight of some foods because they were once so commonplace people professed others.

"Smoked fish was once so common it was the last thing you would eat, and of course fish was plentiful."

She says Canadian sturgeon now is smoked and sent to New York, but no use is made of it in Canada. She has eaten smoked, salted cod, rare from Canada in Europe, but has never seen it here.

"They were canning and exporting lobster in the Maritimes in the 1850s in two- and four-pound cans.

"Chowder is ours. The name comes from chaudiere, the name of the cooking pot the Norman French brought.

"The baked bean is ours. Settlers were given seed and food. Navy beans were famine rations and if molasses was not available, they were cooked with maple syrup."

Mrs. Abrahamson acknowledges that New England also claims the baked bean and that such things can't be decided exactly.

"But they have their traditions and hold onto it. We have ours and shrug our shoulders."

USED MAPLE SYRUP

Maple syrup was used more than it is now, sometimes in combination with learned from the Indians, who cooked meat in it. Ham can be glazed in maple syrup.

Mrs. Abrahamson says a variety of butter tart may delightfully have been the offspring of maple sugar pie, or may have been brought to Canada by Scots. It is one of several dishes once common in Canada and otherwise identified with the southern United States.

Made the modern way, butter tarts call for: 1 cup butter, 2 eggs, 2 cups brown sugar (or 1½ sugar), chopped nuts (optional).

Beat butter until soft and creamy. Add eggs and beat well. Gradually add sugar. Fold in nuts if wanted. Pour into uncooked tart shells. Bake at 375 degrees for about 15 minutes or until brown. Let stand several hours or better still overnight.

Apple butter was once made in a big black kettle and people took turns stirring and stirring. It is thick, spicy, deep amber-red.

An estimated recipe to make 12 medium glasses (six pounds) calls for: 5 cups prepared fruit (about 2¼ lbs. or 2 quarts of ripe, tart apples), 7½ cups (3¼ lbs.) sugar, 2 teaspoons lemon juice ½ teaspoon allspice, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ bottle liquid fruit pectin.

Remove blossom and stem ends from about 2¼ pounds of ripe tart apples and cut in quarters. Do not peel or core. Add 1½ cups water and the lemon juice. Bring to a boil and simmer, covered, 10 minutes. Put through a coarse sieve.

Measure 5 cups of fruit pulp into a large saucepan. Add sugar and spices to pulp in saucepan, and mix well. Place over high heat. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in pectin. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover butter at once with ¼-inch hot paraffin.

Calgary Girl Certified As Repair Expert

CALGARY (CP) — Sharron Holmes can fix everything from electric irons to refrigerators—and has a government certificate to prove it.

"I can't remember ever wanting to be anything but an appliance repair expert," commands the pretty auburn-haired woman. She works for her father's appliance parts and service company.

"I've always loved to take things apart and find out how they work and then put them back together again. I started helping Dad in the shop on weekends and holidays.

"He has been my instructor, although I'm taking a correspondence course in electrical appliance servicing from Chicago."

When she signed up for the electrical shop courses in high school, the teachers put her on a six-week probation. For the next three years she topped her class.

To acquire her journeymen certificate, she had to study such things as refrigeration theory, general mechanics, gas equipment and basic electricity.

When she's not fixing appliances, Miss Holmes is taking a BA part-time from the University of Calgary, majoring in psychology and minoring in economics.

She's also studying for the Royal Conservatory of Music examination, is on the board of directors of the North Hill Business association and is active in numerous clubs and belongs to the appliance servicemen's association.

FILLETS WITH WINE

Are you in a persuadable mood? I am directing this question to our readers who are not in the habit of using wine in their cooking.

There are new cookery fields to conquer once you break the barriers between you and the known pleasures of wine cookery.

One-half cup of dry white wine transformed an ordinary panful of stuffed fish fillets into a Sunday night dinner for guests. They raved about it. Take the word of your trusted cook-friend and try —

Arrange half of fillets slightly overlapping on oiled baking sheet (or better still, an ovenproof platter which may be carried directly to the table). Pare lemon deeply and cut into wafer thin slices. Cover fillets with them. Mix together bread dice, cheese, onion, salt, pepper, parsley and nutmeg. Pat gently but firmly onto top of fillets. Cover with remaining half of fillets. Brush top with melted butter. Slowly pour wine over all. Sprinkle generously with paprika. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 30 minutes or until when tested with tip of paring knife fish will flake and is opaque throughout.

My daughter-in-law Margaret made and served this with broccoli with

DRAWN BUTTER SAUCE:

Four tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, shake of white pepper, 1 cup boiling water, 1 or 2 teaspoons lemon juice.

Melt butter, blend in flour, salt and pepper, then stir in boiling water until thick. Add lemon juice and serve over hot green vegetable. A good substitute for Hollandaise Sauce.

An economical epicurean main course.

Women's Institutes

MELROSE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

A small attendance did not mar the friendly atmosphere of the fine calibre of the program presented at the May meeting of the Melrose Women's Institute, which was held at the home of Mrs. E. Pascoe.

The newly elected presidents conducted the opening exercises.

Mrs. J. Long gave the financial report and acknowledged several thank-you notes. A letter from a resident of Hastings Manor was discussed and a description of the displays for Belleville and Tweed Fairs was given.

Mrs. Kenneth McMechan introduced members of the program of the forthcoming swimming lessons being planned for the period between July 4 and July 22.

Each member who had attended the District Annual at Melrose gave a highlight of that program. It was noted that Melrose was the hostess for the East Hastings District Annual 20 years ago.

COMPLETE COURSE

Mrs. J. McFarlane reported that 12 girls have completed the 4-H Homemaking Club entitled "Being Well Dressed and Well Groomed"; also extended invitations to the ladies to attend Achievement Day at Nicholson College.

Mrs. E. Pascoe gave an enthusiastic outline of the officers' conference which she had attended at Guelph. She remarked on the power of the Women's Institutes and their projects. The Tweedsmuir History is being recognized by the Department of Education as an authority on historical research. Each branch should form its own by-laws since a motion is only effective for one year. Branch directors are most important members of an executive in planning and carrying on the work of the Institute. Ontario will be honored in Centennial Year as the A.C.W.W. will be held at Guelph.

PROGRAM ON RESOLUTIONS

The convener, Mrs. Grant McLaren, was in charge of a well prepared program on the topic "Resolutions". Mrs. Harold Buckley gave a humorous reading describing the new "Iron Switch" and told of the seeds that should be planted in "A Garden of Resolutions." Mrs. Jack English pointed out the fine qualities of "A Neighbor".

Mrs. McLaren led in a panel discussion and with her assistants, they proved the necessity of presenting resolutions. It is through resolutions that weighty appear on soap boxes and information is supplied on educational field labels in order to protect the buyer. Numerous points must be considered in framing a resolution, some examples being, the phrasing, the contributing material, and the proper signatures. Resolutions are often lost through the neglect of these points so if members want action, they must be sure that the presentation is sound.

ELECT LADY CHIEF

BURNT LAKE, B.C. (CP)— Mrs. Margaret Patrick became the first woman to be elected chief of the Lake Babine Indian band. She is also editor of the band's newspaper.

Argyll IODE Holds Closing Meeting

Wednesday evening the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. held a pot-luck supper in the home of Col. Angus Duffy and Mrs. Duffy. As this was the closing meeting for the summer a brief business meeting was held.

Mrs. W. E. Refausse gave a detailed account of the annual convention held in Hamilton. The public relations convener, Mrs. A. S. McConnell, read an item just published from the national convention being held in Montreal. The initials I.O.D.E. will be retained with the initials having the same meaning as before.

The Regent, Mrs. K. D. H. Willcocks, presented Mrs. N. Sayer with a silver dish as a token of appreciation for her co-operation during her stay in Belleville. On her husband's return from overseas service the family will be stationed in Ottawa. The chapter will miss Mrs. Sayer, as she has always been willing to do more than her share.

The remainder of the evening was spent in playing military whist.

On Friday evening the rummage sale under the sponsorship of the combined chapters was held in the Armories. The proceeds from the sale are being given to the Mental Health Association to help defray travel expenses.

Well Run Meetings Save Misunderstandings

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS:

(1) When the secretary writes the minutes of a ladies' club meeting is it wrong to mention matters that have deep discussion or should they be omitted and just write only the motions that are carried?

(2) Is it proper manners for a member to call the minutes sloppy when the secretary has mentioned a matter that was fully discussed but not carried?

(3) If a motion was passed in 1963, would it still hold the same in 1966 or could it be automatically forgotten or changed in some way?

* * *

DEAR SECRETARY:

(1) No, indeed. What are minutes for? To make it possible to recall official business later. A record which indicates how the discussion went may be priceless to a succeeding executive.

(2) Neither good manners nor accurate.

(3) Depends on the motion: If it changed procedures from then on, it would not be set aside without more ado. If it concerned a special event, it did not commit succeeding executives, and would have no further relevance.

I'm sending you then the name of a book on conducting meetings, which can help save hard feelings.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I know a man that pouts for days for the least argument or if he doesn't get all his own way. Do you think this is a sickness or is it just ugliness? — NON-POUTER.

* * *

DEAR NON-POUTER: If entertaining the delusion that pouting is the proper way to achieve things is a degree of mental unbalance, then he is sick. But it is ugly, too, isn't it?

Until he learns different, he'll keep right on. Why doesn't somebody show him a better way?

* * *

DEAR DORIS: This is the Indian proverb which Traveller enquired about:

"I had no boots to my feet and I fretted, until, on my way to Delhi, I met a man who had no feet."

How do I know it? It was my mother's favorite! She was born in India, went there with her parents to England, along with many stories, curios, and this wonderful philosophy. — BETH.

* * *

DEAR BETH: So the no-feet man travelled to India! Other readers have identified the saying as being, variously Persian, Syrian and Indian.

Historians tell me such sayings often travelled from one culture to another; and if the meaning were deep and appealing it would be passed down from father to son.

* * *

(Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let Doris help you see the light.)

Kennedy Visits Albert Lutuli

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (Reters)—Senator Robert F. Kennedy today paid a visit to Albert Lutuli, Nobel peace prize winner, and conferred with the former chief for 70 minutes.

Kennedy and his wife, Ethel, flew by helicopter from Durban to Stanger, the nearest town to the farm where Lutuli is restricted by the government. Kennedy, who later returned to Johannesburg, said Lutuli was "one of the most impressive men I have ever met. . . his compassion, understanding and integrity chef said he saw three men leave the area before the alarm was sounded.

Fire Destroys Peterborough Warehouse

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A $160,000 fire destroyed a Weldwood plywood warehouse in less than 90 minutes Tuesday night.

The fire started shortly after 10 p.m. and raced through the three-storey structure in the heart of the city.

The fire is believed to have been started by vagrants living under the rear of the building where the fire started. A rail-

May Turn Over Mental Hospitals to Local Boards

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Matthew Dymond told the legislature Tuesday the government is considering turning its mental hospitals over to local boards.

The mental hospitals would be financed by government funds but controlled by local boards of mental hospital now are.

Dr. Dymond said the C. K. Clarke Institute of Psychiatry, opened here, has been planned as an experiment to this approach.

James Potter (Lc—Parkdale) said the system of treating mental patients was in need of shock treatment. He said house members and reporters should visit the hospitals "to see how shoddily, how shockingly we've been treating the mentally ill."

BULLS NEED NOT DIE

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—About 100,000 fans paid $409,185 to watch bloodless bullfights during a three-day corrida here, involving 24 bulls and seven matadors. A district court judge turned down a request to ban the displays of "skill, grace and daring," conducted in the Portuguese manner, in which the bulls are not harmed.

Godfrey Back After Flight Around World

NEW YORK (AP)—A twin-jet private plane with entertainer Arthur Godfrey at the controls landed at La Geardia Airport Tuesday night, completing an around-the-world flight begun from La Guardia 87 hours earlier.

Godfrey and four fellow pilots brought their Commander aircraft down at 11:18 p.m. EDT, two minutes ahead of schedule. They had left at 9:09 a.m. Saturday and made 10 stops.

A spokesman for the Rockwell-Standard Corp. claimed the flight set 24 world records. The unofficial flying time was 51½ hours.

two expected amendments, continues today.

The finance minister told P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe East) the question of the effect of the Canada - U.S. auto agreement on some Canadian auto parts manufacturers has been under study for many months.

We had to recognize from the beginning that there might be some exemption," he said in reply to Dr. Rynard's remarks about ill effects on a Simcoe firm.

However, expansion of manufacturing was far greater than any decreases.

Mr. Nesbitt (PC — Oxford) said Canadian auto parts manufacturers are having difficulty competing with U.S. firms because of the difficulty in acquiring certain production machinery.

Canadian firms making such machinery often couldn't supply it without long delays and if a Canadian auto parts firm purchased the needed machinery from a foreign country it ran into a high tariff.

Mr. Sharp said the situation had been brought to his department's attention and the government is considering an amendment for some relief in cases where a Canadian firm couldn't readily supply the machinery.

ASKS ABOUT TARIFFS

Mr. Nesbitt asked why tariffs were removed on carnation cuttings only and not on other flowers.

Mr. Sharp said the change involved only deletion of the word "rooted."

This was done at the request of the Canadian Horticultural Association to allow unrooted as well as rooted clippings to be imported duty free.

Debate swung to amendments to the Excise Tax Act with Mr. Nesbitt seeking a reduction on the 10 per cent tax on jewelry. He wanted the tax lifted from inexpensive watches and wedding and engagement rings below a certain price. These were not "luxury" items.

SEEKS DROP

He also sought a drop in the excise tax on materials used for centennial projects and on certain agricultural equipment. Some items of this nature were tax free but others didn't qualify and the terms should be broadened.

Russell C. Honey (L—Durham) asked Mr. Sharp to allow an exemption for plastic netting used in baling farm produce and Christmas trees. Exemptions were in effect for binder twine and wire but plastic is replacing these in many instances, he said.

Mr. Sharp defended his decision to remove the 11-per-cent tax on certain machinery gradually. It had been done deliberately, "not whimsically" as some MPs suggested, if the tax had been removed immediately "other repressive" measures would have had to be imposed.

Hugh Faulkner (L—Peterborough) asked the minister to lift the tax on clocks and watches. A company he is president of is adversely affected by it and revenue from the measure was so small as to make its removal painless.

Meanwhile, civilian and military aircraft searched between Orillia and Sudbury Tuesday and the Canadian Coast Guard cutter Spindrift cruised the Georgian Bay shore looking for the missing plane.

The search was concentrated southeast of Sudbury because it was believed Mr. Finch had intended to land at that city to refuel. Espanola is 45 miles southwest of Sudbury.

The plane was due to attend a directors' meeting of Program Five in Elliot Lake. The program is a federal-provincial industrial worker retraining scheme.

Mr. Finch, program co-ordinator at Orillia, is also technical school director at Orillia. Mr. Fortner, Peterborough co-ordinator, is acting technical director at the Keelor collegiate and vocational school.

Mr. Buckley is chairman of the Belleville separate school board and program co-ordinator there.

School Year to Be Divided Into Three Terms in New Bill

TORONTO (CP)—A bill was presented in the legislature Tuesday that divides the Ontario school year into three fixed terms and replaces the present Easter vacation with a set week's holiday in March.

Presented by Education Minister Wishart Wilson, the legislation amends the Schools Administration Act and is applicable to the secondary schools in the province.

The first (fall) term begins on the day after Labor Day—the first Monday in September—and extends to Dec. 22. If that day is a Monday the term ends the previous Friday.

The second (winter) term begins Jan. 3 and ends on the Friday before March 21. But if Jan. 3 is a Friday, the second term begins the following Monday.

The third (spring) term begins on the second Monday following the end of the second term and ends June 30. When that date is a Monday or Tuesday, the third term ends on the previous Friday.

EXTEND WEEKEND

Although the Easter vacation as it now is undefinged is abolished, both Good Friday and Easter Monday still will be holidays.

Under the legislation the following are school holidays:

—Every day proclaimed a public holiday by authorities of the municipality in which the municipality is situated;

—Every day upon which the school is closed under the Emergency Measures Act, the Public Health Act or the Education Department Act or the regulations;

—A day approved by an inspector for a teachers' institute or conference;

—A day appointed by the Governor-General or the lieutenant-governor as a public holiday or for Thanksgiving;

—The birthday of the reigning sovereign or the day fixed by proclamation of the Governor-General to celebrate the birthday; and —Good Friday, Easter Monday, Victoria Day and Remembrance Day.

No Prospect Of Talk About Seaway Strike

OTTAWA (CP)—There is no immediate prospect of new negotiations to head off a strike of 1,200 Canadian workers on the St. Lawrence Seaway if latest informants said today.

Both sides, however, are believed to be preparing for the possibility of new talks later this week through a federal mediator.

Tuesday Labor Minister Nicholson and Transport Minister Pickeregill discussed possible federal action in the dispute between the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority and the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC).

A reliable source said the two ministers decided against immediate action. Further meetings are being held today with top labor department officers.

Ronald Reagan GOP Choice As Governor

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Ronald Reagan, his first bid for public office, won the Republican nomination for governor of California in a landslide today.

Democratic Governor Edmund G. Brown survived a surprising challenge in his bid for a third term in the November election.

Returns from Tuesday's primary election gave Reagan, 53, former host of the television series "Death Valley Days," an overwhelming victory over George Christopher, a dairy owner and former mayor of San Francisco.

Brown finally pulled comfortably ahead of Los Angeles Mayor Samuel W. Yorty. But Yorty's strong showing in populous southern California raised doubts in Brown's bid for another term.

educational opportunity for many young people in Northern Ontario.

Many parents of young persons living outside a territorial district must choose between the cost of room and board or face the accommodation-transportation problem if they wish their children to attend the nearest high school, he said.

Mr. Davis announced at the end of March that the Grade 13 departmental examinations will be eliminated by 1968.

Robert Nixon (L—Brant) said Mr. Davis announced the abolition of the examination system this year because of the high failure rate in Grade 13 English examinations last year.

Mr. Nixon said an examination and marking procedure should still be set by the education department of the province, with local marking under supervision of inspectors.

The Liberal education critic also said Ontario's education system is being run too much by a battery of thinkers.

Gather Facts On Criminals In Business

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Herbert Thurston, intelligence officer with the Ontario Police Commission, said Tuesday criminal intelligence services in Ontario soon will be able to ferret out criminal infiltration of legitimate businesses.

He told 175 delegates attending the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police conference in intelligence services, set up last September, will furnish individual police departments with information on criminal connections of persons in their jurisdictions.

He asked police departments to watch for financial interest in business by known criminals.

He said information already is flowing in so heavily the commission has asked the attorney-general's department for permission to hire a filing staff.

IN INFANCY

"The CISO is in its infancy in relations to building up information that would be beneficial to other police departments. But we hope within the next year the information gathered will be extremely useful to all police departments."

D. H. Clark, senior adviser of the police commission, told conference small police forces must be merged where geographically possible. He said 64 of the 288 municipal police forces in Ontario consist of one man each.

"The net result is that the province is being policed by small forces which because of their size and consequent limitations of budget cannot possibly hope to have efficient, well-trained police forces.

Hurricane Alma Hits Havana, Heads North

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Alma veered her fury toward the Cuban capital of Havana and then picked up speed on a north-northeast course that put gale-warning flags flying halfway up the Florida mainland.

Winds of 60 miles an hour and a deluge of rain hammered Havana as the hurricane, moving at 10 miles an hour, threatened close to the city early today.

Then Alma moves off the island of Cuba into the Florida straits, there will be a possibility of tornadoes over south Florida.

But, although Alma has left a trail of death in her angry wake—73 in Honduras and at least one in Cuba—forecasters and residents of the Florida keys there was no need of widespread evacuation or caution.

Alma, the weather bureau said, "does not approach" hurricane Betsy, history's most devastating tropical storm, which swept through Florida and across New Orleans last year.

Blame Changes in Upper Air Currents For Drier Climate in Northeast U.S.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP)—The eastern United States is becoming progressively drier and experts blame it on the baffling, prolonged shift of currents in the upper sky.

Since 1961, the northeast U.S. and adjoining areas of Canada have endured accumulating drought, as ailment now stretching farther south. The weathermen ascribe it, tentatively, to puzzling deviations of the "jet stream" high above.

And few signs yet appear of when, or if, the desiccating trend will end—despite the recent blizzard that left most of the East under a heavy blanket of white.

Already the drought has dried up wells, depleted reservoirs, pushed water tables slowly down, lowered rivers, stunted annual crops and, in towns and cities, stirred a gathering anxiety.

Like other recent eastern troubles — blackouts, frigid weather, strikes and transit strain—it says the country's most immensely populated ground. Nature, in this case, not men or apparatus, has caused it —so far as anyone knows.

But engineering countermeasures have begun in many places to develop extra sources of that prime essential—water.

FIVE-YEAR PROGRAM

The five - year problem reaches through New England, New York state, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and, increasingly, southward into Delaware, Virginia and the Carolinas. Recent blister southern cold spends another freakish note.

Normally, snow begins to spread into the northeast in late November and early December. But this year, for example, New York City didn't get its first measurable snowfall until Jan. 22.

New York City's acting water chiefsalt, Herman Forster, said "I can't see at this moment anything happy in the picture." Geological surveys, he added, indicate another drought this year—the sixth successively.

And still, mysteriously, that flowing band of high, thin air, blowing strongest 30,000 feet above the land, continues to behave abnormally, veering off its path across the East, making weathermen suspect it as the trouble's cause.

When will it resume its ordinary course?

"We just don't know," said Dr. Murray Mitchell Jr., of the Weather Bureau, Washington, D.C., and a noted specialist on long - range weather trends. "We keep expecting it to come back to normal, but it doesn't." Usually, the jet stream blows across the country, west to east, accompanied by storms which drop their rain and snow. But it has started dipping southward in the West, then sweeping north across the Middle West, and onward into Canada, missing much of the U.S. northeast.

WEST IS MOIST

Since it shifted, the Midwest has had more moisture than usual, and a rising crop production, Mitchell said. But, he says, "it's different in the northeast"—and the difference hurts.

What has caused the upper winds to stray?

"I just don't know," said Mitchell. "And I don't think anybody knows. That's the 864 question. If we knew the answer maybe we'd be better forecasters."

In any case, the cumulative impact has grown ever more distressing to easterners.

A drought emergency, declared six months ago by the Delaware River Basin Commission, embracing Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Delaware with the federal government as a partner, remains in effect.

PACK RESTRICTIONS

Reservoirs supplying metropolitan New York were around 40 per cent of capacity this month, about 180,000,000,000 gallons, compared with a normal 75 per cent of capacity at this time, or 359,000,000,000 gallons.

Forster said New Yorkers may face even greater restrictions than last year, when bans were clamped on lawn watering, fountains and swimming pools, and tight curbs on air conditioning systems. Restaurants withheld drinking water, unless asked, and people were urged to take quick showers instead of baths.

In Pennsylvania, after four straight summer-long droughts, weather bureau officials say the real danger is the sub-surface moisture—or the lack of it. And they say it will take a lot more snow or "we won't have any moisture to fall back on this spring."

Many Massachusetts communities have launched crash programs to boost water supply. In mid-January Springfield contracted to buy 5,000,000 gallons daily from the Metropolitan District Commission, which serves 31 other communities. In a section of West Wareham, several hundred families joined in a project to have water hauled to temporary storage tanks.

Salary Bonus for Bilingual Clerks, Secretaries Is Coming

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — A salary bonus for some bilingual clerks and secretaries in the civil service will be introduced in a few weeks, government informants say.

The move will be part of the program announced by Prime Minister Pearson April 6 to promote bilingualism in the public service.

The amount and conditions of the bonus are expected to be recommended to the government within a month by the Civil Service Commission, along with a general pay increase for 85,000 government employees in clerical, secretarial and administrative support jobs.

The bilingual bonus and the general pay boost will be announced after the commission's report has been reviewed by the treasury board and the cabinet.

Such a salary supplement was recommended in January by a committee of 16 deputy ministers after a two-year study of ways to increase bilingualism in the government.

WILL SET LIMIT

There have been suggestions that the bonus should go to all bilingual federal employees but the cabinet decided to limit it to certain clerks and secretaries.

Mr. Pearson listed some of the requirements in an April statement in the Commons.

"It has been agreed in principle," he said, "that a higher rate of pay will be paid in future in respect of clerical and secretarial positions in which there is the requirement for a knowledge of both languages and where both are used in the performance of duties, providing the incumbents of such positions meet standards of competence established by the Civil Service Commission."

A secretariat on bilingualism is expected to be set up within two weeks in the prime minister's office to supervise the implementation of the bilingual program.

A new bicultural program involving top-level officials will be launched in September. About 30 English-speaking officials and their families will be transferred to Montreal and other French-speaking cities for 12 months.

MOVE 10 OFFICIALS

About 10 French-speaking officials in this transfer program is running high. The main problem is finding French schools in the English-speaking centres and vice-versa.

Preliminary discussions have been held with Quebec and Ontario officials on Mr. Pearson's proposal for a French high school in Ottawa.

The government has had considerable difficulty in recent years persuading Quebec university graduates to take civil service posts in Ottawa. A common complaint among French Canadians is that the capital's educational and cultural institutions are overwhelmingly English, and that most French-Canadians in the government have to work in English.

QUESTION: Would you be kind enough to give me a list of coming events in Ontario, or inform me where I can obtain this information? — T. F. A., Belleville ANSWER: We have not the space to print all of the coming events, but if you wrote to the Department of Tourism and Information, Toronto, they would send you a booklet complete with events and dates. These lists are free of charge.

QUESTION: As we will be going to Alberta this summer, we would like to go when the Calgary Stampede is on. Would you please tell us the date, and, if possible, where we can order our tickets in advance — Mrs. L. F Belleville.

ANSWER: The Calgary Stampede runs from July 11 through July 16. Tickets may be obtained by writing the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede Ltd., Calgary, Alberta, and asking for a mail order form.

QUESTION: We are going to the Eastern Provinces this summer, and are most anxious to see the Reversing Falls. Is there any place that it is best to watch them and anywhere one can find out what time of day this reversal takes place? — G. S. S. Belleville.

ANSWER: The Reversing Falls Rapids are at the mouth of the St. John River. Here, in a 450-foot gorge, the river meets the sea, at low tide making a 15-foot descent. For a few minutes at high tide the waters are quiet; then, with the incoming tide the ocean waters rush upstream, rising 11 feet through the chasm in a whirling foaming torrent. The falls are spanned by rail and highway bridges; a Tourist Bureau with spacious lounge, restaurant and sun deck affords an excellent view. This phenomenon should be seen at both high and low tides to be fully appreciated. Tide-tables are available at the Maritime Automobile Association and at the Tourist Bureau offices.

Veteran Artist Wins Drive For Honoring of Centenarians

SOMETHING FOR CENTENNIAL CENTENARIANS — Walter Gower of Welland, Ont., has been invited to participate in the Centennial Commission's plans to honor Canadians who celebrate their 100th birthday during Canada's centennial next year. Mr. Gower, 64, started his campaign three years ago with a letter to Prime Minister Pearson suggesting the presentation of scrolls to centenarians. Here he shows one of the scrolls he designed for local presentation. (CP Photo)

WELLAND, Ont. (CP)—Success appears in sight for a three-year campaign by artist Walter Gower to gain recognition for senior citizens, more particularly centenarians.

As active, vital 64-year-old Mr. Gower has been invited to participate in Centennial Commission plans for honoring Canadians who reach 100 next year —the centenary of Confederation.

It's an outgrowth of his own activities of the last 20 years which began with collecting the names of persons 100 or over and progressed to the presentation of scrolls he designed.

In the last few years he has modified the scrolls and provided a French-language version. The senior citizens' club in nearby Port Colborne presents the scrolls.

Walter Gower is a self-taught artist, well-known in this area for his work in sculpturing, painting, styles, wood, plaster and stone. A large memorial plaque at the Welland Legion hall bears some 130 God-inscribed names, and bas-reliefs in Niagara Falls, Ottawa and Welland have a Gower version of the Jordan River.

WROTE TO OTTAWA

A baker after leaving school in England at 15, he turned to doodling and painting after becoming bored with the 16-hour-a-day routine. Subsequently he worked as a house painter and brick mason's helper.

It was after the family was grown up that he turned to creative art.

Two years ago he got to thinking about how senior citizens could be honored in centennial year. He wrote to Prime Minister Pearson and received a reply saying "the Centennial Administration has sent me a progress report concerning the proposal to issue certificates to Canadian citizens who will celebrate their hundredth birthday in 1967."

A few weeks ago State Secretary Le Marsh wrote to say "we desire to draw upon your experience and expert advice on such a scroll to be presented to centenarians in 1967."

During an April visit to Ottawa, Mr. Gower received further encouragement from Dr. D C. Evans, chief of the ceremonial division of the commission, who expressed the hope Mr. Gower would continue to assist with the work.

Tentative discussions have indicated that one responsibility might be to judge scrolls designed by expert engravers.

REACH AGREEMENT

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has reached agreement with a number of the eight countries with traditional or treaty fishing rights inside the new 12-mile fishing limit, Fisheries Minister Robichaud said Monday. But the minister wouldn't say which countries, except that the United States is not one of them. Other countries with traditional rights are France, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Norway, Denmark and the United Kingdom.

Ten Years Since Pipeline Debate Made Commons House Of Vengeance

Ten years ago, the House of Commons was torn by a debate of such bitterness that the day on which it reached its peak—June 3, 1956—has become known as Black Friday. The great pipeline debate is recalled in this story by a Canadian Press reporter.

By GRAHAM TROTTER

OTTAWA (CP) — "Time cannot heal these wounds."

So wrote Eugene Forsey of Ottawa, a recognized constitutional authority, a year after the dust had settled from the most disorderly and rebellious debate in the history of Canada's Parliament.

Stanley Knowles, New Democratic Party MP for Winnipeg North Centre who was one of the leading figures in the debate, says the Commons has been "a house of vengeance ever since" for the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties.

Less than a year after the debate, the Conservatives gained power in an election which ended 22 years of Liberal rule. In the decade since 1956 there have been five general elections, all but one producing minority governments.

Sessions of Parliament have been fractious; marking and backbiting have become commonplace; decorum and politeness have largely disappeared.

Many people trace these changes to the pipeline debate. It has been the standard against which contentious debates of subsequent years have been measured for excitement and bitterness. Coyne in 1961, nuclear in 1963, Gag and Rivard 1964, Spencer and Munsinger 1966.

DEADLINE SET

At issue in the acrimonious debate was the Northern Ontario Pipe Line Crown Corporation Bill to enable delivery of Alberta natural gas by a 2,200 - mile, $375,000,000 pipeline to Montreal.

The government proposed to lend Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. up to $80,000,000 to cover 90 per cent of the cost of building the 578-mile Prairie leg to Winnipeg.

The bill was to establish a federal-Ontario Crown corporation to build the 975-mile, $290,000,000 section through the rugged country between the Manitoba-Ontario border and Kapuskasing, Ont., and lease it to Trans-Canada.

The government said the bill must become law by June 7 if the company was to be held to its commitment to complete the Prairie leg by the end of 1956.

The Conservatives, who wanted the project to be an all-Canadian venture, and the CCF, who wanted a publicly-owned pipeline, were opposed to lending public money to a company they said was 65 per-cent American - owned. They called it a sell-out to "Texas buccaneers."

Social Credit, based in market-hungry Alberta, supported the government. The debate on the Crown section was roughly 185 to 75 in the government's favor.

Debate started May 14 with introduction of a preliminary resolution by Liberal C. D. Howe, Trade Minister C. D. Howe. Mr. Howe was the long-time (since 1935) MP for Liberals, a man of many portfolios and a get-it-done minister notably impatient about letting parliamentary niceties get interposed between himself and a desired objective. And at this time Trans-Canada was his special baby.

WINGS CLIPPED

Mr. Howe exercised uncommonly big ministerial powers when he did it, but a year earlier his wings had been slightly trimmed by Parliament. A government committee—and united to thwart a government bid to extend indefinitely extraordinary powers of the defence production minister, who also happened to be Mr. Howe. After 16 days of debate and 106 speeches, the government had yielded and agreed to a three-year limit on these powers.

In 1956, with this example of filibuster victory fresh in mind and convinced by several days of advance procedural skirmishing that the Opposition planned to use similar tactics against the pipeline bill, Mr. Howe reached immediately for the closure weapon.

It brought the pipeline bill home right on the government's self-proscribed June 7 deadline. It also hastened changing the atmosphere of Parliament—wrecked the polished career of Speaker Rene Beaudoin, regarded up to then as one of the greatest of Commons presiding officers, and served as the biggest single piece of ammunition in bringing down the Liberal administration the next year.

Mr. Howe himself, unbeatable at the polls since 1935, lost his Port Arthur seat in 1957 and never returned to politics. He died in 1960.

EMPLOYED RARELY

Up to the time he introduced closure with some special fanfare, this ancient device had been resorted to only seven times previously in Parliament's history. The Liberals did something that had never been done before, employing it at all four stages of the pipeline bill's passage.

Mr. Howe gave it a new twist of his own. In the past it had been used only to end protracted argument. At the end of his speech introducing the preliminary resbution, he said: "It is obvious that some members prefer to obstruct this motion rather than debate it." In the next breath he gave notice of closure—before a single Opposition MP had spoken in the debate.

Under the closure rule, a cabinet minister gives notice of closure one day and moves the motion the next. When approved, it cuts speeches to 20 minutes and forces a vote by 1 a.m. of the following morning.

In the 16-day pipeline debate there were an amazing 70 votes, an unprecedented 24 of them on appeals against rulings by the chair—either Mr. Beaudoin or one of his deputies.

By contrast, there previously had been only two appeals since 1853 against rulings by Mr. Beaudoin, an urbane Montreal CBC lawyer accepted in parliamentary lore that he had just about completed rewriting the Commons' rules of order when the pipeline trouble fell upon him. And there was only one from 1957 to 1962—a period that included some turmoil — when the Speaker's chair was occupied by Conservative Roland Michener. Such appeals have been abolished under current provisional rules.

OPPOSITION REBELS

Eighteen of the votes, including five Opposition appeals against rulings, were crammed into the sitting of June 1—Black Friday—a day that saw a shouting and fist-shaking Opposition rebellion against the authority of the chair.

No Canadian Speaker ever faced so many challenges to his judgment, so many attacks on his conduct, so much clamorous disorder.

The Opposition, fighting the pipeline bill mainly on procedural grounds, challenged the legality under House rules of nearly every government move. This brought numerous clashes with the chair, which regularly upheld the government; and the temporary-alive-CCF combination contended Mr. Beaudoin and his deputies, pressured by the government, manipulated the rules to its advantage.

They were particularly incensed over the chair's persistent overruling of their claims that they could talk on points of order and privilege. On some points the chair refused to hear any debate, although points of order and privilege usually take precedence over all other business.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent said no one was denied the opportunity to speak when he had the right to do so. The late Solon Low, Social Credit leader, accused the Conservatives of scraping the bottom of the barrel for an election issue.

BATTLE OVER RULE

There was irony in the 1956 position of the parties. The Conservatives were battling to establish a rule dejured by their own party to end the bitter naval debate of 1913. The late Arthur Meighen was its author.

But in the 1956 debate the Conservatives didn't hesitate to taunt the government with the bitter words of a former Liberal prime minister who had described closure as "handing a terror over our heads."

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier was prime minister in 1913 and a government bill had been blocked for six months by a tenacious Conservative opposition, he proposed to call an election—which he lost —rather than impose closure. The example from their past did not deter the Liberals in 1956.

Closure ended the resolution stage. After hurdling more procedural roadblocks, the government succeeded in introducing the bill itself in a sitting that ended at 4:41 a.m. on May 31. Closure cut off debate on second reading (approval in principle) on May 31. Then the Liberals ran amuck.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 5, 1968

Ottawa at A Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TUESDAY, June 7, 1966

Labor Minister Nicholson and Transport Minister Pickersgill met to discuss a strike vote—approved by 1,200 workers—along the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The workers approved a walkout for June 17 to back demands for higher pay.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux announced tighter security restrictions for the Commons in the wake of a bomb blast last month that killed the bomber.

The steps include an increased police and detective corps, closer control over visitors, including checking of packages, and tendering of identification cards to employees, members of the Press Gallery and ministerial staff.

Unconfirmed reports in Ottawa would represent two provinces in the wake of close provincial elections headed a contract to the conference, probably to this fall in Ottawa, he said.

The house of assembly reported that the consumer price index in May rose to a record 143.4, up one-fifth of a point.

The Commons studied and approved amendments to the Customs Tariff Act outlined by Finance Minister Sharp's budget.

Then it approved a resolution making amendments to the Excise Act and started study on one extending income tax provisions.

WEDNESDAY, June 8

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to continue study of the resolution on income tax amendments. The Senate meets at 3 p.m.

Closer Control Of Visitors to House Made

OTTAWA (CP) — Tightened security restrictions have been ordered for Parliament in the wake of a premature bomb explosion last month that killed the bomber.

Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux announced the new regulations and an increase in the protective staff in a release Tuesday. The steps include closer control of the visitors to Parliament and the checking of parcels.

The day after the May 18 explosion which shattered a washroom near the House of Commons and killed Paul Joseph Chartier, whose aim had been to throw the bomb up off in the Commons chamber, Mr. Lamoureux asked MPs for advice on how security could be improved.

He said the following steps have been undertaken following discussion with House leaders of all parties:

"1. The protective staff will be increased by one sergeant and 14 constables.

"2. There will be closer control of the visiting public, particularly in the area of the entrance to the ladies' gallery and to the general gallery. There will be increased control of traffic through the tunnel between the main building and the West Block. Generally speaking, persons entering the House is sitting, the floor patrols throughout the building will be increased.

"3. All visitors, upon entering the public galleries, will be required to check parcels, bundles, flight bags, etc. In the case of briefcases, these will be acceptable only from government officials so identified.

"4. All employees will be required to wear identification card, including a picture of the employee. This requirement will be extended to members of the press gallery and to the various staffs in the ministers' offices.

"5. All unaccompanied visitors to the building will be required to enter by the centre door of the building.

"6. Present and new security personnel will be given special-ized training in security methods."

Broker Head Of Find From N.Y. Friends

NEW YORK (CP) — A New York broker testified in federal court Tuesday that he had advised Texas Gulf Sulphur's mineral strike in Timmins, Ont., nearly an hour before the company announced it had made "a major discovery."

The strike was announced at a news conference which began at 10 a.m. April 16, 1964, but ended at 10:14 a.m.

The broker, Donald M. Kilik, manager of mutual fund business for Bache and Co., said he heard of the strike while friends in New York who had read an account of it in the April 16 issue of the Northern Miner, that they received in the mail that morning.

Kilik, a registered representative at the time of the strike, said he checked what he had been told in the article with a friend in a Canadian brokerage firm and was advised two cents to buy Texas Gulf stock.

Kilik appeared as a witness for Richard H. Lamont and Francis G. Coates, Texas Gulf directors who are among 13 officers, directors and employees of the firm the U.S. Securities Commission has charged with trading in shares of the stock and using others to do so on the basis of advance information that the company had made the strike.

The commission, in a civil suit that began in May 1965, charged Coates with having ordered 2,000 shares of stock for four family trusts at 18.25 on April 16, 1964.

Lamont, a retired vice-chairman of the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., is charged with having called 30 persons at 10:39 a.m. and telling its senior trust officer to watch the Dow Jones ticker for favorable news about Texas Gulf.

Lamont is also charged with having ordered purchases of Texas Gulf at about 12:30 p.m. April 16 for his own account and for trusts he controlled.

Both Lamont and Coates maintain that word of the strike became public information before their orders were executed.

In his testimony, Kilik said his two clients purchased a block of 1,000 shares at 10:28 a.m. and another block of 2,000 shares at 10:29 a.m. the clients said there had been a profit of about $10,000.

EXTEND REST

MONTREAL (CP)—The two-week rest honeymoon" on Paul Emile Cardinal Leger by doctors has been extended for another week, the archbishop's palace announced Tuesday.

During May, average occupancy of the Canadian west from Southern was 68.8 per cent of berths and 38.8 per cent of coach seats.

Referring to complaints about an alleged downgrading of the Canadian, the CPR president said:

"It should be strongly emphasized that Canadian Pacific has had no intention of permitting a deterioration of the Canadian. The policy of maintaining this train at a high standard will be continued. "

Norman Fawcett (NDP — Nickel Belt) suggested that there is a trend back to train travel because people are becoming concerned about the hazards of highway driving.

Mr. Sinclair said his railway has seen no evidence of such a trend.

Robert Andras (L—Port Arthur) asked what advance notice the railway would need if the board of transport commissioners ordered the abandonment operation of the Dominion in the 1967 centennial year.

Mr. Sinclair said it would be possible to have the train ready if the board's decision was given by next January or February.

Physically Impossible To Have Train Ready This Summer Says CPR Head

OTTAWA (CP) — The president of the CPR appeared to be headed off a Commons committee sitt at the past Tuesday when he contended that it would be physically impossible to restore the Dominion passenger train in time for this year's summer travel season.

Ian Sinclair said as things stand it would take between five and five months to prepare the Dominion for a fully acceptable service.

The Montreal-Vancouver train was taken out of service last January, touching off a torrent of protest, particularly in Western Canada. The uproar prompted Parliament in February to order the transport committee's study of the adequacy of CPR passenger service.

Last week, following a tour of the West, the committee voted 18 to 2 to prepare an interim report on its investigations. Several MPs said privately there was strong sentiment in the committee for a recommendation that the Dominion be restored as a summer operation.

Mr. Sinclair did not refer to the planned interim report when he told the committee that the 21,000-word brief at the opening of Tuesday's committee session. However, the first of the 32 pages were devoted to a history of the deficit-ridden Dominion line. In this way it should be kept off the rails.

He cited these specific problems:

—The CPR has only 28 diesel locomotives that are suitable for passenger service, all of them being fully utilized on passenger runs. It would need 25 extra locomotives to revive the Dominion schedule.

—Summer freight traffic will tax the diesel inventory, now 781 units, to capacity and any diversion of locomotives to passenger service would have to be made at the expense of freight movement, including grain.

—It would be "difficult, if not impossible" to secure skilled passenger train personnel in time for the summer schedule.

Mr. Sinclair said the Canadian, now the only CPR passenger train on the Montreal-to-Vancouver transcontinental run, has been able to handle practically all passenger reservations since the Dominion was cancelled.

Asked by Andras what advance notice the railway would need if the board of transport commissioners ordered the abandonment operation of the Dominion in the 1967 centennial year, Mr. Sinclair said it would be possible to have the train ready if the board's decision was given by next January or February.

12,000 Fashion Workers Seek Better Wages

MONTREAL (CP)—Demands calling for a 30-per-cent wage increase and introduction of the 35-hour week week were put forward Tuesday night by the union representing 12,000 fashion workers in the Montreal area.

Additional holiday and welfare benefits were also included in the demands by the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union (CLC) as contract negotiations opened with the Montreal Dress and Sportswear Manufacturers' Guild.

Similar negotiations, affecting an additional 3,000 workers, were in progress in Toronto.

The 30-per-cent increases demanded by the union are part of a new two-year contract would apply to all dress and sportswear workers at other than cutters. The union is seeking a $1.30 hourly increase for cutters.

Under the present agreement, which expires July 30, garment workers receive $1.70 hours a week, a standard that has been in effect for six years.

The union's basic wage scale ranges from 95¼ cents an hour for general hands to $2 an hour for skilled cutters.

Negroes Continue to Walk In Fear in Mississippi

By BORIS MISKEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United States has taken long strides toward enforcing civil rights in the last few years, but Negroes continue to walk in fear in Mississippi in pursuit of those rights.

The shotgun ambush of James Meredith, Negro civil rights crusader, illustrates that, despite federal legislation, the civil rights goal still is a distance away. For it takes only one white man to revive the terror in the hearts of the Negroes of the southern United States.

Protected by FBI agents and local police officers, Meredith, 34, continued his personal photographers along his march through Mississippi to encourage the state's Negroes to register to vote, failed to escape the shotgun blasts of a would-be assassin.

Meredith's example to show Negroes that their fears in registering to vote were exaggerated may have merely proved that their fears were justified.

WILL CARRY ON

Meredith, who desegregated the previously all-white University of Mississippi in 1962 at the expense of wild demonstrations that cost two lives, reiterated from hospital his determination to carry on his fight.

President Johnson reaffirmed his support of civil rights workers by ordering the "full resources of the federal government to bring to justice those involved in Meredith's shooting. It is possible that arrested suspect Aubrey James Norvell and any accomplices he may have had could be tried under The Federal Voting Rights Act of 1965 rather than in a state court where it is difficult to convict a white person of a crime against a Negro.

But even in a federal court the maximum penalty on conviction is only five years and a $5,000 fine.

Johnson has asked in his request that civil rights proposals to Congress that scrutinize acts of violence with racial motivation be made a federal crime. But these proposals still are pending before Congress and, therefore, would not apply in the Meredith shooting.

Civil rights leaders called immediately after the shooting for new federal legislation—to protect the lives of civil rights workers.

U.S. Attorney-General Nicholas Katzenbach underlined the difficulties of the racial situation in the southern U.S. when he stated: "That a man should have to be brave to walk a public highway, even with FBI agents and local police nearby, is the reflection of how far we still have to go.

Dentistry Act Amended to Include Fines

TORONTO (CP) — Dentists guilty of breaches of professional ethics will face fines of up to $1,000 under amendments to the dentistry act introduced in the legislature Tuesday.

In the past, governing bodies of the medical professions have had the power to reprimand or suspend errant members or to cancel their licences, but not to impose fines.

The new legislation gives this power to the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario.

The disciplina committee of the college will also be empowered to impose penalties of up to one year's suspension of licence.

Under the new legislation, suspension will be immediate upon the committee's ruling.

Dentists who are disciplined have the right to appeal from the disciplinary committee to the board of college and to the Ontario Court of Appeal.

The bill also provides that university students may apply for a licence to practise a month before writing the dental colleges qualifying examination. Articling with a practising dentist is no longer required.

McNaughton Against Selling Canadian Water

SHERBROOKE (CP) — Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton said today the United States has abundant water supplies for all its needs and Canada need not offer her water to U.S. interests at cheap prices.

"What is scarce in the United States is clean water, and this could be provided at less cost by proper administration and pollution control than by importation from Canada," he said.

Gen. McNaughton said it would be an unfriendly act for Canada to sell cheap water to the U.S. as this might help postpone American attempts to solve the pollution problem.

Gen. McNaughton, who was chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission from 1950 to 1962 and dealt with international water problems in that capacity, was addressing members of the Royal Society of Canada meeting at the University of Sherbrooke.

SHIP TIES UP

HAMILTON (CP)—The 3,000-ton John Ericsson, last of a unique class of Great Lakes built carriers, settled into a permanent berth at this city's new Confederation Park Tuesday to be used as a museum. The 465-foot ship, one of several cigar-shaped vessels built in an effort to find the best hull form to ride out Great Lakes storms, was donated to the city by J. D. Leitch, president of Upper Lakes Shipping Ltd.

CMA President Warns Of Potential Dangers To Canadian Industry

MONTREAL (CP)—The 86th annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association closed Tuesday with another warning against the potential damage that could be caused to Canadian industry by the increase of the Geneva trade talks.

Humphrey B. Style, association president during the last year, told the meeting that the association, aimed at freer trade, could result in Canadian industry losing advantages in tariff protection and manufacturing compensating benefits in other markets.

He said Canada had offered specific tariff reductions at the opening of the negotiations two years ago, on the assumption that other countries—including the United States and the European Common Market—would chop their tariffs by 50 per cent during the negotiations.

"There now is little prospect that this will be achieved and, as a consequence, the gloom which have to date effectively prevented Canadian exports of manufactured goods from expanding on a broad plateau are likely to remain closed," he told the 1,500 delegates.

"With imports of fully - manufactured goods pouring across our border in increasing volume from all over the world, it behooves our government to take another hard look at the offer list which we made in Geneva two years ago to make certain that we are not negotiating away our essential domestic market for largely-artificial promises from our trading partners."

Earlier, the association had been told in a report prepared by J. C. Whitelaw, general-manager of the CMA, that other countries will probably press at the Geneva talks for a weakening of Canada's anti-dumping regulations, and urged the government to examine such proposals carefully.

The association also heard a more optimistic assessment of the negotiations when Trade Minister Winters told delegates he feels tte-talks "have shifted into high gear" and a successful outcome will mean much for Canada.

Mr. Whitelaw said numerous examples of excessive labor militancy have represent a virtual crisis of confidence and called on responsible labor leaders to do something about it.

War Frigate Has Trouble Finding Home

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—The Inch Arran, a 300-foot Second World War frigate, has had trouble finding a home here.

The vessel, purchased by the Kingston Mariners Association for $14,000 from Crown Assets Disposal Corporation, a federal government agency, was to be used as a youth training centre and tourist attraction.

However, the association said Tuesday it has been unable to find docking space in Kingston Harbor.

The vessel, towed from Dartmouth, N.S., at a cost of $25,000, is in Toronto having the engine and boilers removed by a salvage firm which purchased them.

PLANT FRESH FORESTS

Mayors Approve Request Govt. Provide Incentives After the Centennial Year

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian political leaders must provide incentives for industrial economic recession before 1970, Mayor Stephen Juba of Winnipeg told a luncheon here.

Mayor Juba told the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities that federal government has provided economic incentives for centennial year celebrations and projects, but these are only temporary.

"Everything is geared up for 1967 but what happens a year or two after that?" Mayor Juba asked.

"As far as free enterprise goes, gentlemen, I want to warn you now. You're going to find recession in as severe a recession as we've ever had."

Delegates approved a resolving request that the federal government be asked to provide incentives after centennial year celebrations are over.

NO ACTION TAKEN

No action was then on a request by Port Alberni, Ont., that the federation endorse a recent recommendation to the federal government by the Senate committee on aging to institute a plan of guaranteed income for persons 65 years and over. The annuonka were as annual income of $1,200 for single persons and $2,220 for married couples.

The resolutions committee said the subject was beyond the scope of municipal government.

"I think all of us would support the thinking behind the resolution. . . ."

A request by Port Alberni, B.C., that the federation recognize the seriousness of air pollution was referred back to committee.

Ald. W. C. Riggs of Windsor, Ont., suggested income tax deduction for industries undertaking anti - air pollution projects, similar to those now granted industries conducting anti - water - pollution projects.

Ald. A. D. Burnsell of Brandon, Man., suggested international co - operation between Canada and the United States to combat air pollution.

"Our problem is under joint control and the same should apply to our air," Ald Burnsell said. He favored increased financial assistance to the provinces and income tax deductions to companies spending money on pollution programs.

Coalcollor R. E. Hicks of Hamilton, B.C., supported the proposed resolution include a recommendation against air pollution caused by motor vehicles.

Earlier, Federation President Mayor Victor K. Copps of Hamilton asked delegates to use the conference as an opportunity to promote unity and spirit by calling "Canada first."

Delegates were also told Canada urgently needs a community development act as the federal government has encouraged regional development and opportunity.

The advantages of a development act were discussed in speeches by professors N. Preston of the University of Waterloo and Eric Beecroft, University of Western Ontario, and G. Setting, Brown, Councillorslor, city of Vancouver.

Big Spread between Canadian And U.S. Export Wheat Prices Hurts Canadian Sales Abroad

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian wheat board is worried by the big spread between Canadian and United States export wheat prices will hurt Canada's sales abroad.

W. C. McNamara, the board's chief commissioner, told the commons agriculture committee Tuesday the question of maintaining Canada's traditional share of world grain markets is of major concern.

Canada has been shoving its export prices up in the last six years but the U.S. generally has not followed suit, he said.

The U.S. did, however, raise its export prices by major export grades five to six cents a bushel during the past week. And this "permits some optimism" for more realistic international prices.

Of the major wheat exporting countries, only Canada and the U.S. have marketable supplies available for export-apply by international situation.

Mr. McNamara said the Canadian prices is now back to where it was before the January, 1965 slide. Top-quality No. 1 Manitoba northern now sells for around $2.04 at the Lakehead.

INCREASE SHIPPING

Mr. McNamara said the Crown marketing agency has stepped up exports by three months to the U.S. that world demand justified increases in wheat prices. Argentina, one of the other exporters, has also received encouragement from the higher prices.

Despite record export totals, Canada is suffering and has been suffering, he said, six months "because our prices have been out of line with our competitors."

Some countries he said, have sold wheat below minimum prices established by the International Wheat Agreement. To remain competitive, Canada will drop its prices to keep its traditional shares of world markets.

The board foresees demand will tend to increase supply for the next five to 10 years, Mr. McNamara said. Any surpluses in this period would be temporary.

Canadian annoyance at the U.S. wheat deal was a recurrent of the session following the first big wheat sale by Canada to Russia in 1963.

The price was fixed at the time of sale. The sale was so big that it led to a short-supply situation and the U.S. accused Canada of breaking International prices by its "forward" pricing."

Earlier, Mr. McNamara said the longshoremen's strike at three St. Lawrence River ports is seriously curtailing Canada's wheat export flow.

"Unless the strike is settled immediately—and I don't mean tomorrow or the next day—we won't be able to meet our commitments this year," he said. Canada was heading for a 400,000-bushel export total for the current crop year until the strike occurred.

The strike, he said, may also foil the board's plan to give every producer access to grain delivery quota of 30 bushels a specified acre, some are expected over 30 miles out as grain backs up in country elevators throughout the Prairies.

After the U.S. and other board commissioners answered committee questions, the House commoner left for Russia with a Canadian trade delegation.

Mr. McNamara also made these points:

—There is no political interference from cabinet ministers or others in the setting of farm delivery quotas.

—The board's main function now is to increase demand production and move it to meet big demands.

—No policy changes are planned in the board's selling arrangements for western feed grain barley. It now looks as possible changes in eastern marketing arrangements arising from an inquiry into feed grains.

—Eastern farmers bit by high prices for western feed grain in the Maritimes and Ontario had to be compensated.

—Much of the criticism directed at the CPR for failing to move enough boxcars from Prairie elevators was misdirected. The railway was setting record boxcar distribution in some areas.

Western Union Strikes in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A strike by—an estimated 20,000 Western Union employees halted public telegraph message service across the U.S. today.

Members of the Commercial Telegraphers Union walked off their jobs at midnight Tuesday night in a dispute involving wages and other benefits. Supervisory personnel maintained communications facilities without reported interruption while union members marched outside company offices.

Mosque Stands on Temple Site, Model of Temple in Montreal

By DON JOHNSON

MONTREAL (CP) Back-track 2,000 years of human history in an instant. Jesus preached here, sat on that bench and talked with Joseph over there.

It all seems so real, yet it is only a large, colorful and impressive model of the Holy Temple of Jerusalem — rich in history, romance, plunder and religion.

Today the site of the original temple is occupied by the Mosque of Omar in the Jordanian side of the Holy City. The mosque was built in 687 AD.

However, the first temple on the site was built by King Solomon almost 1,000 years before Christ. The temple was to undergo destruction, reconstruction and modification during its history.

Finally, in 135 AD, the Romans plowed over the ruins and the temple disappeared.

The model, measuring 16 by 18 feet, is a painstaking reproduction of the temple as it stood after 20 BC when King Herod rebuilt and embellished it.

The model was built by Dr. Lazare Halberthal and Suzette Halberthal, estimate they have invested 15,000 hours in its construction. Numerous materials went into the task; copper, marble, stone powder and glue, plywood and cedar wood, and thin sheets of silver.

Its value in dollars is anyone's guess.

YEARS IN RESEARCH

Pre - construction research required consulting Talmudic scholars the world over; Rome, Paris, London and, of course Jerusalem. Dr. Halberthal, when a young lawyer in Bucharest, Romania, wrote hundreds of letters and read many books on his subject.

The Halberthals do not claim their work to be microscopically accurate. But it does answer, or provide logical solutions to 307 problems of historical detail which have been lost through the decades. Authentication is left to the world's experts, says Dr. Halberthal.

His interest in the temple dates back to 1937, when he lived in Bucharest. The hobby — as he describes it — grew daily, but was interrupted by the Second World War.

In 1950 the couple fled Europe to Israel, from which they came to Canada two years later. In Montreal, they began their construction program — a way of showing thanks for escaping the Nazis.

The model includes the temple proper, the high court of justice, various courtyards, the sacrificial altar, the money-changers' tables, and even miniature copies of the rings used to hold animals being sacrificed.

CARVED TINY FIGURES

Built in sections, the completed work is meant to be placed in the backdrop of the temple's surroundings, a model of Mount Morish.

Mrs. Halberthal carved all the 200 tiny and delicate figures, of wood and ceramic, which dot the model. She also painted it.

Dr. Halberthal built the remainder, in scale of 1 to 70, for which he had to teach himself, among other arts, hammering of copper bronze.

Briefly, here is the temple's history: After King Solomon built it in 966 it lasted intact until 586 BC, 400 years, when Nebuchadnezzar, King of the Babylonians, destroyed it after invading the country. He took the Jews into bondage.

Fifty years later, in 536, Cirus, King of the Persians, conquered Babylon, and liberated the Chosen People. The Jews led by Zerubabel rebuilt the temple.

Then in 165 BC, Antioch, king of part of the Greek empire, invaded but did not conquer the land. The Jews succeeded in driving him off, but the temple was damaged in the fight.

DESTROYED BY ROMANS

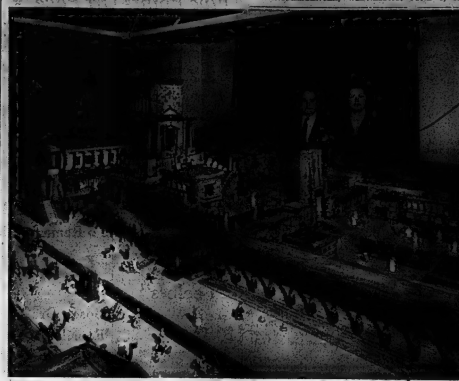
Herod the Great repaired and embellished the temple in 20 BC. The Halberthals' model is of this period, when the temple was in its greatest hour.



Jesus came and went, the Romans in 70 AD destroyed the temple again. Sixty years later they plowed it over.

Dr. Halberthal, who works currently at "a bread-and-butter job" as a salesman, says his work is not finished.

"You see, we can't say we have finished making the model, because as new findings come to light, we have to alter details," says Mrs. Halberthal.

Dr. Halberthal says he does not want to sell the model. His aim is to have it seen by as many persons through as many public exhibitions of it as possible.

He does not describe himself as deeply religious: "I believe in God and good morals."

INSTANT HISTORY ON DISPLAY — Dr. Lazare Halberthal and his wife Suzette estimate they have spent 15,000 hours building this scale model of the Holy Temple of Jerusalem. Dr. Halberthal began his research in 1937 when he lived in Budapest but construction did not begin until the couple moved to Montreal in 1952. They do not claim their work, on a scale of 1 to 70, is microscopically accurate but is an authentic as thorough research can make it. (CP Photo)

MEMO TO GOLFERS

If trench-coated, slouch-hattered characters looking, to some extent like 007, Sam Slade, Mr. Smart, Culp and Cuddy or Honey West want to examine your new golf gear don't be too alarmed.

It seems, especially down Montreal way, there's a good market for heavily-discounted, fairways equipment, thanks to the latest pilfering gimmick on the part of the light-fingered fraternity.

The upsurging popularity of the country club outdoor calisthenics has, it seems, opened a new door of activity to the guys who believe in making a "fast buck."

A story from the Quebec city says that more than $100,000 worth of top grade golf equipment has been on sale throughout the province this spring at bargain prices. Red, there's a gimmick. It's all stolen.

A tip to Bay of Quinte Country Club pro. Better cement down the four corners of the pro shop, George. Some morning you might find it in some farmer's backfifty located of all its gear.

Several pro shops in Quebec have been drubbed by the fraternity and, it is reported, took the fairways Raffles, firing of the middle man, west street to the G. P. Spalding office for their biggest haul of the season.

Prominent country clubs were fair game for the gear-lifting gangs. Alan Howard's Country Club was taking for $1,500 in loot; La Salle's Jack Arthur for $3,000 in gear; Westmount's Jack Archer was clipped for $5,000 and they took Stan Haring for some $2,500 in nice neat brand new equipment.

Quebec's prez are worried. Some have installed burglar alarms, watchdogs and are considering the last-loving Mafia of the courses are getting wise. They make up to dogs and cut alarm systems wires.

Golf authorities in Montreal believe that because small-time pilfering hasn't caused very golf clubs in their hip-pockets, the robbers are organized and shipping the loot out of Quebec. They said that in Toronto recently a dealer was offered golf balls that retail for $16 the dozen for a quarter that amount.

Stan Horne stated that he was offered 50 dozen balls at a price below cost but couldn't sab the fence because the offer was made to him.

And the possibility of thefts being the work of an organized gang is another worry to the Quebec pros. One said, "If it's a small timer you could trap him. But if it's the Mafia or some syndicate racket you're preferable to give up $2,000 of stock rather than your life."

And get this. Alex Howard of Montreal recently received a telephone offer of $60 Italian-made golf shoes at $18 the pair. They had been stolen some-where between the ship and the dock.

I understand that although golf clubs have numbers on them they are not registered individually but only by category. But the Quebec pros have a reminder for those who think they are getting a bargain in camelhaired equipment. Some of it can be traced and the fact that you're receiving stolen goods is still very much in force.

So be warned. If a stranger approaches you with "receiving" be sure and pick a non-golfer judge. You couldn't find a better judge for claiming you bought a $1.35 ball for twenty-five cents.

So if a well-meaning stranger approaches you with bargains in golf equipment, be sure you check his credentials before you reach for the wallet.

Soaring Orioles Close In On Tribe

Robinson Sparkplug ★★★★★

By MURRAY CHASE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Frank Robinson, plagued by a shoulder injury and a pulled muscle in his right leg for nearly a month already this season, is back on top of the American League batting again and has almost pulled Baltimore Orioles to the top of the league standings.

Picked up by the Orioles in a trade with Cincinnati Reds of the National League before the season started, Robinson rocketed to a .421 batting average by April 28. But with his injuries, he slid to a .308 average in his first month.

Now, in the last 12 at bats, he's had 5 hits including four home runs and has pulled back to a .321 average while the team has climbed from three games behind leading Cleveland Indians to within five percentage points as they've won five of their last seven games.

Tuesday night they edged Washington Senators 8-5 in innings while New York Yankees downed Cleveland 7-2, Detroit Tigers edged Boston Red Sox 2-1, California Angels zapped Chicago White Sox 5-2 and Minnesota Twins whipped Kansas City Athletics 6-1.

RALLY WON IT

The Orioles' latest victory came on a three - run rally in the 12th that wiped out a 5-3 lead Washington added in the top half of the inning on Ken McMullen's two - run single. Andy Etchebarren tripled in one run and scored another before Robinson singled in the winning run with the bases loaded.

Willie Horton tripled in the seventh inning and scored on Bill Freehan's sacrifice fly, brushing off a 3-run homer by Mickey Lolich and two Tiger relievers combined for a three-hitter, one of the hits being Tony Conigliaro's homer.

California scored two unanswered runs in the seventh with the help of Chicago miscues, then broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth to end the White Sox' five-game winning streak.

Jim Kaat allowed Kansas City only one hit in the last five innings before he zapped a two-run single in the fourth for Minnesota. Kansas City's lone run came on Ed Charles' homer in the third.

Behind Twice

Trudeau Nip Bobcats

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Trudeau Motors were outhit, made the most errors and were behind twice but managed to pull out a hard - fought 4-3 Belleville and District Softball League win over the Bobcats before another big crowd at Alemite Park last night.

The game had a little bit of everything. Bobcats led, 2-0 in the first and snapped a 2-2 tie with one in the fifth.

Trudeau grabbed the win with a pair in the sixth. Murder seemed to ignite the winning rally. Joe Barrons led off with a pair in the sixth. Murder seemed to ignite the winning rally. Soule also tried to score as Baker took second on the throw to the plate but Mickibbon held the ball in a stare - being play at the plate.

Mavety's first single, following two walks, drove in the tying run in the fourth. A walk, stolen base, Baker's ground out and Baldwin's fly ball—netted Trudeau's first in the third frame.

Bobcats took advantage of a hit batter, an error on a bunt sacrifice, Brennan's fly ball, a walk and Mowat's single for the quick 2-0 edge. After it was tied, Locke bunted for a base hit and scored later on McKibbon's single to regain the 'Cats' lead.

The losers hit 15 men stranded in all, loading the bases in both the eighth and ninth frames. A fly to short ended that fell in, only to be turned into a force at third, was a key defensive move in the ninth.

Bill Baldwin got the victory nod with relief aid from Pat Marsela in the seventh. They gave up seven hits, five off Baldwin who fanned four and walked five. Marsela struck out one and walked one, pitching out of two tough spots.

Bob Lott was the loser with Joe Barrons pitching the route. Lott gave up four of Trudeau's five hits, fanned six and walked five. Barrons fanned four.

Larry Mavety and Stu Mulhead, with two each, and playing coach "Shaker" Baker with one, looked after the Trudeau hits.

Lem Mowat, with a pair, Paul Meraw, John McKibbon, Rick Locke, Billy Mitts and Ray Soule got Bobcat singles. Soule injured a leg going into second base in the eighth and had to be helped from the field.

Charger Charges "Feelers"

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Paul Lowe of San Diego Chargers, the all - time rushing leaders of the American Football League, has disclosed feelers from the rival National Football League.

Lowe, who has not signed a 1958 contract with the Chargers, declined to identify the NFL team Monday.

"I was contacted by a couple of people some time ago," Lowe said. He said that it was about the time Pete Gogolak signed.

Both Maple Leafs last year's Governor's Cup champions, are servants in the eight-team International League.

Minor Softball Results

ANAF Vets edged the Hyde and Sons Giants 9-8.

The Travellers won an 11-9 decision over the Bravers.

They were the only games played in the B.M.S.A. last night.

PREDICTS CARNAGE

MONTREAL (CP) — Unless something is done before the 1967 Montreal world's fair, city next year will experience the worst traffic carnage in Canadian history, Keith H. Morrell, chairman of the Canadian Highway Safety Council, said Tuesday. He based his warning on the fact that Montreal already has a traffic casualty and injury rate twice that of the rest of the country.

To Remain With Detroit

Lost Sight Sidelines Barkley

DETROIT (AP) — Defenceman Doug Barkley has lost sight in his right eye as the result of an injury and is through as a player, but Detroit Red Wings said Tuesday he will continue a member of their National Hockey League organization.

A spokesman said, however, the possibility he will become a scout in reserve and that he more likely would stay in a scout or assistant to manager-coach Sid Abel or in a public relations capacity.

The Red Wings also said they have invite 30-year-old defenceman Bill Gadsby back as a player. Gadsby said at the end of the season he planned to retire.

Barkley, 29-year-old native of Lethbridge, Alta., was injured last Jan. 30 in Detroit while preparing for his match with Doug Mohns of Chicago Black Hawks. Mohns' stick flew up and struck his smuggle and struck Barkley in the eye.

Barkley since has undergone several operations for a detached retina.

Barkley played two seasons with Chicago, which traded him to Detroit in 1952. He led NHL defencemen in goals three years ago with 11.

The 'Scoop' That Failed

There is a possibility that senior hockey will return to Belleville next winter but it is not definite as some people seem to believe, it was learned here yesterday after-noon.

A Kingston news source claimed Tuesday noon that "Belleville would apply for senior hockey in the Ontario Hockey League on June 15," and that Floyd Crawford was in charge of the Belleville operation.

Crawford was approached about the matter minutes later and expressed surprise and resentment over the announcement.

"I am investigating the possibility of having a senior team. I asked him not to do it with-out to remain anonymous at this time," Crawford said.

Crawford stated Harold Jagger of the Kingston club to secure information about the cost of operating a team. Isabel Bird Park is to be the matter with anyone since we did not want to have any misunderstanding. All we have something definite to go on. He assured me that if would be kept confidential."

Crawford said that he would be attending the OHA meeting in Toronto on Wednesday, June 15 on "an investigation basis" only.

He said he could not release the names of possible financial backers here at this time. "As a matter of fact, my sock may be in the house now but I took the Kingston man's word that nothing would be said until we had a little more to go on.

"There is no point in causing a lot of rumors and excitement until we know for sure what is going to happen," he added.

He will have nothing definite right now and I will give you all the information as soon as we have it," Crawford said.

Parsons' Rally Ties Dutchmen

Parsons Cleaners ripped back from a four - goal deficit to grab a 6-6 tie with the Flying Dutchmen, of Kingston, before a rough play forced the referee to stop the game prior to its completion last night.

Parsons made their next start, against the German Sports Club, in Kingston, Saturday evening.

Referee Fred Jones stopped the game with ten minutes left in play when the teams became plate umpire Herb Pointer. He was ejected from the game. No other details were included on the game report.

Play was rough and dust from the start, with the visitors' Salvatore scoring two goals, one on a penalty kick, to open the early lead. Cairo headed home Parsons' third goal for a 3-0 score at half time.

Parsons fought back in the second period and several times referee Jones warned players for using dangerous tactics. The Dutchmen scored again on a solo effort by Harmson and it was 4-0.

Belleville came back quickly. Pete Zvenden put Ron Gale in for Gale's first goal. Gale scored again on Jim Boyce's centre pass a minute later.

At the 20 point referee Jones was having difficulty keeping control of the game and Bob Hutchinson scored on a low penalty shot to cut the margin to 4-3. Parsons tied it on a free kick with Rutherford heading Bob Main's centre into the net.

Then came the final big eruption and Jones called it off.

Pirates' 8-Run Blast Shatters Cards

Five In Row

BY DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Roberto Clemente and Willie Stargell combined for five hits as Pittsburgh Pirates blasted St. Louis Cardinals 9-4 with an eight - run eighth - inning explosion Tuesday night and extended their winning streak to six games.

Manny Mota and Matty Alou, half of the Pirates' outstanding outfield, complained before the game that their vision was impaired by eyedrops given them during an afternoon examination by a doctor.

Clemente triggered the eighth - inning rally with a single, capped it with a three-run homer and finished with three hits in five trips.

Stargell, whose string of consecutive hits was snapped at nine by Gibson in the first inning, picked up two hits afterward. Mota got into the game as a pinch runner and finished in centre field but did not bat.

Mota leads the National League in batting with a .355 average while Alou and Stargell are tied for third at .329 and Clemente shares the No. 5 spot with Houston Astros' Joe Morgan at .328.

Jim Bunning won his eighth straight as Philadelphia Phillies whipped Cincinnati Reds 5-1; Dave Nicholson, John Bateman and Sonny Jackson led Houston past San Francisco Giants 10-6; Los Angeles Dodgers topped Chicago Cubs 8-6 on 10th inning homers by Al Ferrara and Jim Lefebvre, and Atlanta Braves bombed New York Mets 16-6 in other baseball games.

Cardwell checked the Cards' nain on four hits for his second straight victory after five straight defeats and Gibson, who struck out four Pirates in the fourth inning — tying a league record — stopped Stargell's hit streak one short of the Major League record although elements honored.

Bunning, now 8-5, struck out 14 Cincinnati batters and allowed only three hits as the Phillies breezed to their eighth triumph in the last nine games.

Bill Wilk cracked a two-run homer and Cookie Rojas hit a bases-empty shot for the winners while Leo Cardenas, sixth homer in five games accounted for the Cincinnati run.

Three hits apiece by Jackson, Nicholson and Bateman helped Houston outlast the Giants, who scored three runs in the eighth, as Jim Ray Hart hit his 17th homer.

Lefebvre hit his 13th homer, breaking a 6-6 tie in the 10th inning and Cliff Carlton gained with his second of the game on a fly ball that dropped in left field after Lefebvre's shortstop Don Kessinger and left fielder Byron Brown collided.

Joe Torre's three - run blast capped a seven-run fifth inning that erased a 5-0 New York lead. Dick Stuart batted a two-run homer for the Mets.

U.S. Open
"Old Sam" Fails To Qualify

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ben Hogan didn't have to prove himself, but Sam Snead did and couldn't. And the world's famous Snead doesn't like it.

"If the United States Golf Association is going to give Hogan the berth, they ought to give one to Old Sam," Snead said Tuesday after failing to qualify for the U.S. Open championship.

Hogan didn't have to qualify. He was granted a special exemption by the USGA as the only active four-time winner of the championship.

Snead, winner of all of golf's major championships except the open finished with birdies on the last two holes and missed qualifying by one stroke with a seven - over - par 151. This compared with the 140 with which Jacky Cupit led 36 Detroit qualifiers.

Alex Sutton of Redwood City, Calif., posted a 72-hole total qualifying score at six sectional sites. He posted a five-under-par 137 at the San Francisco Golf Club course.

A total of 71 qualified Tuesday to make a total of 156 for the two day sectional competition. They will compete with 28 exempt players — including George Knudson of Toronto — next week over the Olympic course in San Francisco.

Knee May Sideline Parker

TORONTO (CP) — Jackie Parker of Toronto Argonauts has expressed doubts that his injured left knee would allow him to report to camp July 1 for the 1966 Eastern Football Conference season.

"I'm working hard trying to get the knee in shape, but time's running out on me," Parker said Monday.

Parker, who hasn't signed a contract, has had two operations on the knee which was first injured in a game last October.

"If my legs hold up, I figure I could play a couple more years. At of now, it's a big question."

Parker is a 13-year veteran backfielder of the Canadian Football League — four years with Argos and the remainder with Edmonton Eskimos of the western conference.

Woman Champion Quits Golf

TORONTO (CP) — Gail Harvey Moore of Toronto, two-time winner of the Canadian women's close golf championship, is moving to Vancouver in August and will compete for Ontario in interprovincial matches for the last time this summer.

Mrs. Moore, who as Gail Harvey won the close title last August in Kitchener, six months ago married Tim Moore of Victoria, a dentistry student at the University of Toronto, and will move west with her husband when he sets up a Vancouver practice.

The Tracks

The daily double of Dunman and Greek Tar paid $97.50. The fifth-race exactor of Roling Crown and All We Have paid $18.20.

Marlene Leads Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Marlene Stewart Streit of Foothill, Ont., holds the lead in the battle for places on Ontario's team in the Canadian interprovincial team golf matches later this summer.

Mrs. Streit Tuesday shot a two-under par 75 in the second match of a series of seven over-par 77 in the first test last Friday, has 22 points. Second is Shirley Woodley of Thornhill Ont., with 11 points after shooting an 80 on Thursday. Kay Hallen of Toronto also had an 80 and is third with nine points.

Competitors earn points for finishing within 13 strokes of course ratings.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method
by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

USE LONG STROKE ON LONG PUTTS

Many golfers use approximately the same length of putting stroke on all putts, regardless of their distance. I think this is a mistake.

If you use a short stroke on long putts, you will have to increase the force of your stroke to get the ball to the hole. When you increase the force or speed of your stroke, it often becomes rushed or jerky. Good timing is just as vital on putts as it is on the shots.

Try to stroke all of your putts with the same rhythm. When you have a long putt, merely make a longer stroke as I am doing in the illustration. If the rhythm of your putting stroke remains constant on all putts, your pattern of putting results also should become more consistent.

But Why Did Not Inflation Boost Value of Cattle?

By HAL BOYLE

Inflation has hiked the cost of wives in South Africa. . . . Bantu tribesmen now must pay from five to 200 cattle for a bashful bride, the price depending on whether she's a run-of-the-mill maiden or a chief's daughter. . . . About 80 per cent of the Bantu men have two wives, some as many as 20.

Sign in a shuttered Broadway novelty shop: "Now do you believe we understand everyone?"

Quip: Catholic Digest reports that a prison convict wrote a crime story and submitted it to a magazine with this note: "The facts in this story are true. Only the names have been changed to protect the guilty."

Uncommon facts about the common cold: More people catch colds in October than any other month. . . . Women catch more colds than do men. . . . Summer colds usually are harder to get rid of than winter colds. . . . The older you get, the fewer colds you are likely to get.

Worth remembering: "If at first you do succeed, it's too easy; try something else."

Up in the air: Racehorses seem to prefer to travel by plane rather than ship or rail over long distances. . . . Special padded planes now can carry 18 animals in first-class comfort (private, no grazing). . . . Like human passengers, the horses insist on facing in the direction the plane travels—or they make a kick.

What are the chances of your children graduating from college—even if you can get them into one? . . . Only about 40 per cent of U.S. freshmen earn their degrees within four years, and only 60 per cent ever get a sheepskin.

War may not be normal, but it sure is habitual. . . . It is estimated that only eight per cent of the time since the beginning of recorded history has the civilized world been entirely at peace.

It was Mark Twain who observed, "Good breeding consists in concealing how much we think of ourselves and how little we think of the other person."

Program Did Not Look At U.S. Image Aboard

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' news department special Tuesday night was called the Age of Americans, but it often appeared to be a clever bit of settings and few scenes and ends of interesting film that didn't seem to fit conveniently into any network niches.

There were excerpts from a television documentary shown in France that looked at the Vietnamese conflict in what, from an American viewpoint, was almost a hostile attitude toward us. There were excerpts from a British TV documentary featuring a professional gadfly that portrayed American life by focusing exclusively on used car lots, garish billboards and ugly architecture.

All were enlightening and some—such as the British documentary—were annoying. But the program did not MEET its promise to take a look at the U.S. image abroad.

There were some serious young Mexican university students complaining about U.S. imperialism. There were some man-on-the-street interviews in London during a protest march about Viet Nam. But it was not an impressive demonstration of anti-American feeling.

On the other hand, the demonstration of pro-American feeling was no more convincing.

It is called Dark Shadows and features the usual physical and emotional problems of soap operas, it will go in for the supernatural, however, for intrigue and downright scary effects.

Producers describe all this as "in the tradition of the gothic novel," and set it in a Maine fishing village dominated by a huge stone mansion.

Playing Clarinet for Masses No More for Artie Shaw

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Artie Shaw was always the maverick of the swing-music world — a rebel, an innovator, a restless talent who soon wearied of toting his clarinet for the masses.

Now, 56, with shaved head, Shaw was here to show Hollywood his latest release, Enough Rope, a French-made thriller starring Brett Yobs ("Goldfinger.") Shaw's offices are in New York and he has scant affection for Hollywood, which he knew intimately during his band - leading and marrying days.

Nor does he have the slightest sentiment for his heyday in the swing era.

"I look at some of my contemporaries who are still leading bands and I wonder how they do it," he said. "All that living out of a trunk and playing the same things night after night!

"They aren't even selling music any more; they're selling nostalgia to middle-aged people who want to relive their youth."

Shaw himself has put his back out of the band business several times. He managed it in 1950, only to regret it.

"I went back only to feed some cows," he said. "I had acquired a farm and 80 cows and they were eating their way through my money. I earned enough to keep the farm going and then I quit again.

"Now I'm getting back. You can believe that when I say that I recently turned down $25,000 to appear for four minutes on a TV special.

"In the first place, I would have to spend exactly four months before I could stand to hear my own playing. And in the second place, I'd rather not hear the clarinet that well."

Shaw finally quit the clarinet to see if he could write. He discovered he could, and he produced a novel, The Trouble With Cinderella. In 1956, he retired to Spain with his eighth wife, Evelyn Keyes, to whom he has been married nine years.

"I just wanted to write a little, look at the countryside, watch the sky," he said. "I found a place on the coast of Spain that would be a natural park if it were in this country. To my amazement, I found I could buy the land and build a house. And I did."

After five years, retirement began to pall on Shaw, who admitted he is an introvert, part activist. He decided to get active again, this time in the movie business.

"I discovered while in Spain that there were two kinds of movies being made now," he said. "One is in making Rock Hudson-Doris Day types of pictures strictly for commercial purposes. The other is in developing intelligently made films that have something to say and say it well."

He had success with his first release, Seance on a Wet Afternoon. He hopes to find more, as well as produce movies and television shows on his own.

Record Breaking Film Gets Record Breaking Awards

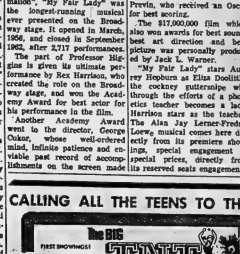
A near record of Academy Award winners was involved in the preparation and performance of Warner Bros. sumptuous musical "My Fair Lady", showing at the Belle Theatre all this week.

The year of painstaking effort and care went into the Technicolor and Panavision film, which sets a new dimension to its already fabulous success as a stage play. Based on George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion", "My Fair Lady" was the longest-running musical ever presented on the Broadway stage. It opened in March, 1956, and closed in September 1962, after 2,717 performances.

The part of Professor Higgins is given its ultimate performance by Rex Harrison, who created the role on the Broadway stage, and won the Academy Award for best actor for his performance in the film.

Another Academy Award went to the director, George Cukor, whose well-ordered mind, infinite patience and a viable past record of accomplishments on the screen made him the ideal man for the year's most important directorial undertaking.

Cecil Beaton, a famous man of plural distinctions, was production, scenery and costume designer. The assignment which covered almost everything visual, resulted in still another award for Beaton, already a much honored man.



Harry Stradling, one of the screen's most distinguished cinematographers, showed his wide-angle talents by winning the Oscar in 1963.

The task of taking an already perfect score and making it even better was given to Andre Previn, who received an Oscar for best scoring.

The $17,000,000 film which also won awards for best sound, best art direction and best costume design, was personally produced by Jack L. Warner.

"My Fair Lady" stars Audrey Hepburn as Eliza Doolittle, the cockney guttersnipe who through the efforts of a phonetics teacher becomes a lady, Harrison stars as the teacher. The Alan Jay Lerner-Frederic Loewe musical comes here directly from its premiere showings, special engagement at special prices, directly from its reserved seats engagements.

Discuss Repair To Bridge at Council Meet

NAPANEE — Napanee Town Council is concerned about the condition of the bridge on William St. which crosses over the Napanee River. Alan Street West is the boundary between Napanee and North Fredericksburg Township and any changes must be a joint project of both municipalities.

At Monday night's meeting it was decided to arrange a meeting of both councils to talk over the matter of repairs, or replacement of the bridge. Two tentative dates were set in the hope that one or the other would meet with the convenience of both Fredericksburg Councilors.

The bridge in question might have been adequate in the horse and buggy days, but it is not safe for today's traffic. It is a narrow wooden structure, in bad repair, and the approaches are much too steep. Several years ago it was raised by the raising of the steepness of the approach from both sides.

A by-law was passed authorizing expropriation of land, mostly from the John McFarland property, for the construction of a storm sewer, a sanitary sewer and a walkway, Council is looking forward to extending its services to the new Rollins subdivision, where approximately 80 houses will be constructed. The town boundary is just beyond the first railway track.

The Centennial committee was given an initial budget of $1,000 for its project. A request of $1,000 had been made.

Council took no action regarding a request of the Ratepayers' Association that at the next election voters be given the chance to indicate their preference for a one-year or a two-year term for the mayor and council.

A request will be made to the Police Commission to make a survey of the administration and operation of the Napanee Police Force.

Ideal Vendors Ltd. Will Expand Plant

DESERONTO — Ideal Vendors, Ltd. will shortly expand its plant 60 per cent, says general manager, Charles Gray, to Deseronto Town Councilors Monday night. When this expansion takes place, the plant will need an increase in its water supply for insurance requirements.

On recommendation of the police committee headed by Councillor Brooks, W. M. Foley was added to the force, to replace Constable Walker Turner, who had resigned to accept a position in the north.

Council authorized the expenditure of approximately $4,600 for re-capping of sidewalks, and will call for tenders for building or repairing several sections of streets totalling about one mile.

Reeve Donald Armitage advised the council that the town had $18,000 invested in government treasury bills, and that the surplus turned over to the town by the former Board of Education when it disbanded recently.

The dog catcher will be informed that his services are no longer required. During the six weeks that he was in the employ of the town, he only caught only two dogs, and one of those got away from him.

Hubert Howard was welcomed by the other councillors. He was attending his first meeting since being appointed to fill the place vacated by J. W. Webster, who had resigned because of residence in the Belleville area.

POPE MAKES APPEAL

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul, saying poverty is an "unbearable evil" for all mankind, appealed to members of the United Nations Tuesday to end the suffering of the needy. He made his appeal in a letter to Secretary-General U Thant.

Man in News

New Chief Electoral Officer Never Active in Politics

OTTAWA (CP) — Jean-Marc Hamel has an insider's knowledge of the world of politics and knows scores of politicians from all parties, yet he never has been active in politics.

His political acumen and impartiality will stand him in good stead as he succeeds Nelson Castonguay as chief electoral officer.

Apart from making the usual preparations for a federal election, he faces the task of shuffling 55,000 polling divisions to fit population shifts and the new electoral map.

Appointed by a unanimous resolution of the Commons Monday night, he cleared his civil service desk Monday and was to tour the electoral offices today with Mr. Castonguay, who retains the more senior post of representation commissioner.

"I don't know very much about organizing elections," he said in an interview.

HOLDS THREE DEGREES

A lanky, fair-haired native of Chandler, near Gaspe County, he has been in the civil service 16 years and is fluently bilingual. He holds three university degrees.

He came into contact with politics in 1960-61 when he was secretary to the Civil Service Commission.

From mid-half of 1964, he organized the government's language training program. From February, 1965, to last November he was on loan to Parliament as director of administration.

Mr. Hamel, 41, worked closely with MPs and was instrumental in revamping the lines of command, rates of pay and personnel management in the Liberal member parliamentary staff.

Youngest of a family of 10, he sang and worked his way through college and university, graduating from Laval in 1949 with a master's degree in commerce.

SANG AT WEDDINGS

"I used to sing in church choirs, at weddings, at funerals, in operas and operettas," he says.

During summers he worked as a waiter at the Chateau Frontenac Hotel in Quebec and as a surveyor's aide.

His father, Lorenzo, a blacksmith, died in 1936 when Jean-Marc was 13 and his older brothers and sisters took care of the family with his late mother.

In 1950 he wrote a civil service examination and was hired as the civil service commission's representative for eastern Quebec.

He attended Syracuse University on a scholarship in 1956 and obtained a master's degree in public administration. He was transferred to Ottawa in 1957. His next post pays $21,000 a year and carries deputy minister rank, although he is an officer of Parliament and independent of government control.

Mr. Hamel married the former Jacqueline Lapointe of Quebec in July, 1953, and they have two sons, Pierre, 11, and Denis, 7.

He retains his interest in music and serves on a committee seeking to revive the Ottawa Philharmonic Orchestra, which folded a few years ago because of financial and other problems. He also is vice-president of the School Music Festival in Hull, Que., where the Hamels live.

NAME IS AGES OLD

Barn Destroyed By Lightning

DESERONTO — "Five years of work gone in five minutes," was the comment of Morley Vandervoort of Tyendinaga Township as he serve whose barn was burned Monday night when struck by lightning. Before work this night a passerby saw the fire start, and said it was as though a bomb had hit the structure. The building was a mass of flames all at once.

Mrs. Marcelle estimates his loss at between $15,000 and $20,000. The building itself was partially covered by insurance, but there was no insurance on the contents. Hay valued at between 300 and 400 tons was burned, beside straw and grain. Also lost were Mr. Marcle's carpenter's tools and all records of his cattle.

Fortunately, the cattle were in the field, and the tractor and other machinery were also outside. Some were scorched, but are still usable. Neighbors rallied to do what they could, and dragged machinery away from the burning building.

Mrs. Maracle, who works at the Dupont plant in Kingston, was on her way home, and Mr. Maracle, a carpenter with the Department of National Defence in Barriefield, was asleep on the couch waiting for her return. The children, a boy of 15 and two younger daughters were in bed. Mr. Maracle was wakened by the clap of thunder, and said the lights went out and the room was filled with light from the barn.

The Deseronto Fire Department was able to save the house, only 300 feet from the barn, one of the best on the Reserve.

Salvation Army Officer Speaks To Rotarians

NAPANEE — Speaking to the Napanee Rotarians at their Tuesday luncheon meeting, Envoy Phelps told of his work with the Salvation Army. Faced with a decision either to accept a pastorate with the Oshawa Fire Department, or to do the Lord's work with the Salvation Army, he had chosen the latter, which had answered a real need in his own life and in that of his wife. In the years that he help they had received, they are now answering the need of others through the Salvation Army in the Napanee area.

Through his influence, the speaker stated, a number of boys had been sent to the Salvation Army House of Concord for help, instead of having been sentenced for punishment.

Milk Subsidy Discussed at F.U. Meeting

BONARLAW — Mr. and Mrs. George Williams opened their home for the May meeting of the Ontario Farmer's Union.

Mrs. Jeanne Williams spoke on the membership in Rawdon. She stated that they had signed up 86 members in one evening.

Much discussion centred on milk. It was stated that all farmers who have not received their milk subsidy for 1965 should apply again at once for it. The feeling of the group was the general concern over milk, due to the cost of production, the price seems quite adequate.

PRESENT BRIEF

The M.F.U. has presented a brief to Ottawa. Due to a non-confidence vote to be held that evening, the members felt that not enough time was given for the presentation of the brief.

A seminar was held at Madoc on Thursday. They will also be having study groups for their own education and to be on a university level. This will take place next fall and will carry on for five years.

Delegates will be appointed to go to Port Elgin in June. The summer conference will be held in Saskatchewan, July 17-19.

The next meeting is to be June 14th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morton Reid.

26 Union Men Convicted On Charges of Picketing

TORONTO (CP)—Chief Justice G. A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court convicted 26 union men Tuesday on contempt charges in what he termed a deliberate and open challenge to the authority of the courts.

The charges involved mass picketing last February at the Tilco Plastics plant in Peterborough while a court injunction was in force limiting pickets to 12. The men will be sentenced Friday. The strike continues.

In a 30-page judgment, the chief justice said "no one should be permitted to express his displeasure at the state of the law by deliberately flouting it."

"To follow any other rule would be to tread the road to anarchy and chaos. The illegal picketing was well planned and deliberate and an open challenge to the authority of the courts."

The judgment said there appears to be a misconception among certain leaders and members of labor unions about privileges of employers and employees.

Milk Subsidy Discussed at F.U. Meeting

BONARLAW — Mr. and Mrs. George Williams opened their home for the May meeting of the Ontario Farmer's Union.

Mrs. Jeanne Williams spoke on the membership in Rawdon. She stated that they had signed up 86 members in one evening.

Much discussion centred on milk. It was stated that all farmers who have not received their milk subsidy for 1965 should apply again at once for it. The feeling of the group was the general concern over milk, due to the cost of production, the price seems quite adequate.

PRESENT BRIEF

The M.F.U. has presented a brief to Ottawa. Due to a non-confidence vote to be held that evening, the members felt that not enough time was given for the presentation of the brief.

A seminar was held at Madoc on Thursday. They will also be having study groups for their own education and to be on a university level. This will take place next fall and will carry on for five years.

Delegates will be appointed to go to Port Elgin in June. The summer conference will be held in Saskatchewan, July 17-19.

The next meeting is to be June 14th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morton Reid.

DROVE AMBULANCE

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Ambulance driver Malcolm A. Ross, 27, of London, convicted Tuesday of dangerous driving in the March 7 traffic death of Linda Richter, 18, was fined $200 with costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail. The Arizona, Ont. girl was killed when the car in which she was a passenger collided with the ambulance.

"Students Should Keep Quiet"

"They seem to think that once a strike is called, the employer must close his doors to await the outcome. At present that is not the case.

"Employees have the right to strike, but by the same token employers have a right to continue their operations and protect their property."

Court was told that Feb. 23-24, at the height of the demonstrations, 400 persons assembled around the plant although there were only 35 Tilco employees on strike.

"The picket line was a forbidding and disgusting spectacle," the judgment said.

The chief justice said the injunction order issued by Mr. Justice J. M. King was agreed to by both union and company. Five demonstrators at Tilco formed a "long moving human belt occupying both edges of the five-foot sidewalk around the plant" and running across the plant's two driveways.

INCLUDES CHAIRMAN

Those convicted include Stanley House, chairman of the Peterborough Labor Council, Ernest Middlemiss, council president, Vice-President George Butterfield.

The others are Charles Clark, Merton Pearce, William Stevens, Victor Lapsley, Bruce Steele, Michael Gobeshi, Clarence Wilson, Harry Woodbeck, Alec Rice, James Welch, Victor Skuriet, Jack Urquhart, Carl Ainsworth, Robert Sargeant, Carl Jenson, John Peace, Leslie Longhurst, Roderick Mowbray, Robert Beaubiah, Edward Shore, Robert Kelly Jr., William Woodbeck and John McGeown.

Chief Justice Gale said the with the enhanced role of the trade unions there must be a increased social responsibility which includes the responsibility to recognize and promote support for law and order.

"Any organization that is worthy the ultimate post the prescribes whilst defiance of law, can only be regarded as an exercise in irresponsibility.

"If trade unions feel the present legislation is unfair or unrealistic and that they should have unbridled power to use picketing, then by all means let them seek proper channels for bringing about a change.

"In the event they have no higher right than any citizen of Canada and no one should be permitted to express his displeasure at the state of the law by deliberately flouting it."

BELL MAKES DEFENCE

WASHINGTON (AP)—American Telephone and Telegraph Co. defended its financial practices Tuesday as the U.S. Federal Communications Commission launched an investigation into whether the corporate giant is making too much money. Bell System lawyer F. Mark Hughosuns said that AT and T's earning rate should be increased to eight per cent from 7.8 if the firm is to keep pace with communications needs.

Premier Lesage Said Ready to Turn Over Govt.

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage is expected to announce the resignation of his government today, taking way for the Union Nationale party that scored an upset victory in Sunday's Quebec provincial election.

Speaking to reporters after a cabinet meeting Wednesday, the premier did not allow himself to be pinned down to a firm commitment, but there were strong indications that the cabinet had decided to bow out of office.

He said the cabinet had expressed unanimous support for his decision on whether to resign as premier, and the cabinet decision would be made known to a Liberal party caucus today.

He said he could call a new election immediately, even before a meeting of the legislature, but reiterated, "I intend to follow constitutional practice."

Daniel Johnson, Union Nationale party leader, arrived in Quebec Wednesday night and indicated at a press conference that he is ready to take over.

AFFIRMS STAND

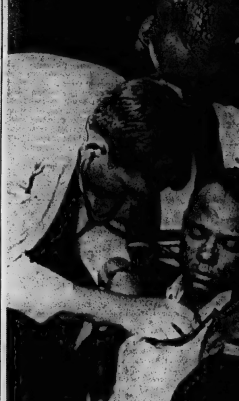
On the subject of tax-sharing, Mr. Johnson reaffirmed that he stands behind his campaign demand for 100 per cent of all direct tax revenues originating in Quebec for Quebecers.

But he was willing to let the federal government retain effective control of "100 per cent" of all indirect taxes.

He said Quebec would insist on getting the revenue from income taxes, corporation tax and succession duties levied in the province.

Mr. Johnson also planned to confer today with Ottawa. He said it will be held behind closed doors and there will be no announcement afterwards.

He reiterated that there will be no purge of civil servants, from top to bottom, at ministerial level, as "it would be stupid for a government to get rid of good men."



The Union Nationale won 55 seats in the provincial election, compared with 51 for the Liberals. Two independents were elected, one of whom has said he will support the Union Nationale.

Mr. Lesage stressed that he intends to continue as leader of the Quebec Liberal party.

He said he would re-turn to federal politics, where he held a cabinet post in the 1950s, but "I remain the leader of the Quebec provincial Liberals and I intend to fight."

Mr. Johnson told his press conference that a Union Nationale government would recognize the boundary between Quebec and Labrador, which he said "has never been recognized by anyone but the federal government."

As for negotiations with British Newfoundland Corp. on the hydro-electric development of Churchill Falls in Labrador, he would have to see how the talks had been progressing before making any decision.

'I Will Return--Armed,' Meredith Tells Press

SENATOBIA, Miss. (AP)—James H. Meredith's Mississippi march has led to a new protest in Memphis. And in New York, Meredith pledged to return—armed if necessary.

Footsore after adding six miles to his 27 Meredith walked before he was shot, many of the Negroes staged another three-mile walk Wednesday night from a Memphis church to the hospital where Meredith was a patient. They claimed the hospital mistreated the 30-year-old law student in the two - day stay there, coercing him to leave.

On returning home to New York, Meredith told reporters:

"I will be armed when I return unless I have positive assurance that arms are not needed.

"I believe in law and order, but if the white people want to kill Negroes, then the Negroes will have to join together to resist this slaughter."

Meredith said he has been ordered by his doctor to rest for a week before returning to the south.

The three civil rights leaders who headed the line of marchers down U.S. 51 were to be joined by a fourth today:

James Farmer, former director of the Congress of Racial Equality, says he will join Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Floyd McKissick and Stokely Carmichael. King is head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; McKissick is director of CORE and Carmichael heads the Student Non-violent Co-ordinating Committee.

Meredith, in 1962 the first Negro admitted to the University of Mississippi, had planned his march to coincide with Thursday that if he—a controversial figure—could walk safely in Mississippi, any Negro could register to vote. He was shot on the second day of his walk.

The white man charged with shooting Meredith Monday, Aubrey James Norvell, 40, of Memphis, will is jailed in Hernando, Miss., in lieu of $25,000 bond. He has pleaded not guilty.

Steelworkers Ask Ban on Strikebreakers

TORONTO (CP)—Officers of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) called Wednesday for legislation to prevent the use of strikebreakers in legal strikes.

William Mahoney, Canadian director of the union, and Larry Sefton, director of District 6, attending from Ontario to British Columbia, urged the Canadian Labor congress and the Ontario Federation of Labor to hold a conference of union leaders to exert pressure on the government for such legislation.

They said in a statement their conviction of 26 labor leaders for contempt of court in connection with mass picketing at Tilco Plastics Ltd., Peterborough, while members of the United Textile Workers of America (CLC) were on strike, weakens labor's power to make strikes effective.

Experimental Plane Is Hit By Chase Ship

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A 30-man board is beginning a minute investigation into the collision between the giant XB-70A research bomber and an F-104 chase plane which killed record-holding X-15 pilot Joseph A. Walker and the bomber's co-pilot.

The XB-70A's pilot, Al White, ejected in a capsule seat Wednesday, suffering only bruises and shock. He was at first thought to have suffered a broken arm and severe back injury.

Also killed was Maj. Carl Cross, White's co-pilot, whose body was recovered from his ejection capsule seat near the wreckage of the bomber.

The air force said it appeared Walker's chase plane hit the tail of the XB-70A at an altitude of 25,000 feet. Both planes crashed near Barstower, Calif., 45 miles east of the base.

Walker, 45, had been training for the XB-70A and was in one of several chase planes sent to observe the craft's performance. He set the world record of 4,104 miles an hour and 354,200 feet in 1962 and 1963 in the rocket-powered X-15.

Ottawa Attempts To Win Doctors' OK of Medicare

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — First detailed talks Wednesday between Health Minister MacEachen and doctors' representatives laid the groundwork for resolving differences about federal plans for medical care insurance.

Mr. MacEachen said following the talks with Canadian Medical Association officials that he's confident satisfactory solutions can be found to the main problems.

Dr. Robert Jones of Halifax, CMA president, said some differences were reconciled and he is optimistic of a complete solution.

Mr. MacEachen said he hopes federal medical care legislation will be introduced before Parliament by the end of this month.

It will embody the federal offer to the provinces to pay half the cost of any province's medical care insurance plan which meets certain conditions.

TWO KEY POINTS

The conditions were key points in the discussions with the CMA, which has objected to two of them—universality and public administration of plans.

The CMA has said universality will mean compelling everyone to buy medical care plans.

Mr. MacEachen said he told the doctors it means that 90 per cent of the population of a province must be covered under an acceptable provincial plan before federal payments start. There would be further discussion of this point.

Also up for further explanation was the federal requirement that provincial plans be publicly administered.

Mr. MacEachen said public administration is defined as insurance plan administered by an agency responsible to a provincial government, non-profit and open to public audit.

He said the federal government has no objection to a twotier principle under which tax-operated, non-profit medical care plans would be part of a provincial plan.

Further discussion centred on availability of medical personnel and the anticipated rise in the demand for medical services under a universal medical care program.

Dr. Jones said both parties agreed there would be a shortage of personnel if there was an immediate solution for this but he hoped a plan could be launched to bring more people into the medical profession and ensure they had sufficient teachers and training facilities.

Mr. MacEachen said the federal government's planned $500,000,000 to a $1 billion fund will help meet the need for expanded training facilities in the next 15 years. The question was related to the whole field of higher education, not just education, expected to be discussed at a federal-provincial conference next fall.

Pressure Continues To Mount

MONTREAL (CP) — Pressure for an immediate settlement of the strike of 4,350 longshoremen in three Quebec ports continued to mount Wednesday as the dispute moved into its second month.

The latest additions to the list of protests about the contract dispute, which has resulted in almost complete tie-ups in the ports of Montreal, Quebec and Trois-Rivieres, came from officials of the 1967 Montreal world's fair and the Quebec Council of Pulp and Paper Producers.

Further pressure for direct federal government intervention came in the Commons earlier today. Prime Minister Pearson said the government would not interfere pending further meetings which he said were to be held in Montreal.

However, a spokesman for the international Longshoremen's Association said Wednesday night that Pearson had told no one that an emergency cabinet meeting would be called later in the day to endorse action halting the strike.

Labor Minister Nicholson also made reference to Montreal meetings when asked by New Democratic Leader Douglas if he had sounded out both sides on the idea of appointing an administrator on a temporary basis to get the men back to work.

PURSUIT ACTIVE

Mr. Nicholson said "a number of these things" had been discussed with union and management and some of them were being actively pursued at the current meetings.

Meanwhile, officials of the 1967 Montreal world's fair said Wednesday they would "take action" today to obtain construction materials from shipping idle here due to the strike.

Jean Gourneyer, deputy director of labor relations for the fair, said, "I don't want to say that they will definitely go to Ottawa, but my recommendations will be to ask for federal legislation in the matter."

The longshoremen are seeking an hourly wage increase of 65 cents retroactive to last January 1 and a further increase of 40 cents starting in January 1, 1967. They have also demanded that there be no reduction in the size of their work gangs over the two-year contract period.

Picket lines, limited to token numbers by court injunctions, continue to be present on all three affected waterfronts. In Quebec, coal and grain handlers assisted in

Proposed Building Attacked

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's planned defence headquarters drew fire in the Commons Wednesday from Opposition Leader Diefenbaker who blasted the government for wastefulness.

In a further commentary on this, he said, was the $100,000,000 Pentagon which by the time it was completed would cost "from $125,000,000 to $150,000,000."

Finance Minister Sharp objected. The estimate for the defence complex—one tower will be 38 storeys making it the tallest structure in the capital—was something approximating $30,000,000."

Mr. Diefenbaker said there is no excuse for such expenditure. "This government has had all sorts of proportion." Someone had suggested the complex will be built of white stone. This would earn it "the appellation of Canada's new elephant."

'HIGHEST IN HISTORY'

He could not conceive "with taxes being raised as they are now being raised by this government to become the highest taxes in peacetime history . . . that a government would engage in this type of self-glorification."

Mr. Diefenbaker added "an example of this attitude of mind" was Prime Minister Judy LaMarsh "when she flew the kite to ascertain whether or not Canadians were sufficiently artistically attracted to having a $6,000,000 picture placed in the National Gallery."

The Opposition leader's attack came during debate on proposed amendments to the Income Tax Act. Mr. Sharp announced changes in his budget of last March with approval for these measures:

—Extension of low taxes on deferred profit - sharing and stock option plans.

—Exemption of some types of investment companies and charitable trust from the refundable three-per-cent corporation tax which went into effect May 1.

Seamen Will Fight To Finish

By JIM ANDERSON

LONDON (CP) — Britain's striking seamen, spurning compromise and a government appeal, dug in today for "a fight to the end" in their refusal to sail again under anything but a 40-hour work week.

Failure of a government-appointed court of inquiry to produce a basis for new negotiations in the 36-day-old strike focused attention on the Trades Union Council, central body of British unions.

After the seamen's abrupt rejection of the inquiry formula—a 40-hour week next year instead of two years from now as shipping companies had offered —the TUC summoned the union executive to a meeting later today.

The council has not yet declared itself on an appeal from the seamen for a boycott of foreign tankers which would cut the country's vital oil imports by half.

Labor Minister Ray Gunter, after making a personal appeal in William Hogarth, general secretary of the union, called in TUC leaders, presumably to seek support in curbing the seamen. The inquiry report said the seamen were not justified in striking without further attempts at settlement.

Shipping company representatives, who also met with the labor minister, said they would accept the inquiry formula.

The union's executive said the judicial inquiry, headed by Lord Pearson, had failed to consider the shipping companies' "hidden penalty" and the "abnormal" working conditions of British sailors.

Hogarth said the rejection meant "a fight to the end." A strong strike which could cause damage to the already shaky British economy now appears almost certain.

Tides in Wake of Hurricane May Cause Greatest Damage

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — With the death toll climbing in her wake, Hurricane Alma clawed the length of Florida's west coast today and roared on toward the capital city of Tallahassee in the panhandle.

At each west coast city as the storm passed, heavy tides swept ashore. At St. Petersburg Beach, roads were inundated and several bridges closed by the rising water.

The storm in Florida was blamed for two deaths. And in Cuba the communist party reported 12 were killed, 78 injured and great crop and property damage inflicted by the hurricane.

The National Hurricane Center at Miami predicted that the hurricane would sweep into Apalachee Bay later today, bringing with it tides ranging from seven to 10 feet above normal. Tallahassee, city of 69,000, lies 25 miles north of the bayshore.

Alma left a 250-mile trail of debris scattered behind her from Key West to Tampa Bay, but forecasters figured the greatest damage would come when tides were blown ashore by winds in the back side of the hurricane.

Hurricane emergency warnings were displayed along the Florida panhandle coast and from Jacksonville northward to Savannah, Ga.

The hurricane was centered near latitude 29.0 north, longitude 83.80 west, about 100 miles south of Tallahassee. It was moving to the north-northwest at 16 miles an hour, with top winds of 90 miles an hour and gales sweeping out 275 miles to the northeast and 170 miles southwest of the center.

But no major damage was reported and communications failures were kept at a minimum. Scattered minor injuries were reported as wate gre ing in the center.

Death of Man Hit by Train On Bridge Here Accidental

A coroner's jury last night ruled as accidental the death of 76-year-old Albert Joseph Bongard of 74 Bay St., Trenton, on May 1.

The jury concluded that Mr. Bongard came to his death "by being struck by engine number 6700 of the CNR while trespassing on the CNR bridge at East Moira and Coniston St."

The CNR was completely absolved of any blame in the accident. Mr. Bongard was killed as he crossed the bridge at 3:35 a.m. He was knocked into the river and his body was recovered four hours later south of the lower bridge.

Coroner J. Russell Scott commended the co-operation shown between the city police and O.P.P. at the time of the accident and during the search for the body.

Dr. Scott said, "I don't think anything can be done to prevent a like accident happening again. People do know the hazards they take when they go onto railroad tracks. They are trespassing."

Evidence showed the crossing was duly marked with warning signs at both ends.

Mr. Potts testified he was engineer of the passenger train when the accident occurred. He said he was going about 35 miles per hour when he saw something on the bridge and put the emergency brake on.

"I didn't see exactly what happened, but I felt a bump," he said. Mr. Potts said he blew the whistle of the train well before the accident.

Harvey Bronson, 289 Bleecker Avenue, was also on the 1:30 a.m. train at the time of the accident. He said, "I had been in the engine room. When I entered the cabin, the whistle was blowing and the emergency brake was on.

"I saw an object on the south rail. I couldn't make out whether it was a man or not."

Mr. Bronson said he was on his way to the engine station to notify officials when he met police cruiser on Canniton Rd. and told the constable he thought a man had been hit.

Const. G. E. Jaques said he went immediately to the scene when told of the accident by Mr. Bronson. He said it was very dark and he found spots of fresh blood and a ski cap on the bridge.

He said the front of the engine was stopped 41 feet from the point of impact.

Const. George Cole said he was searching the river along with other police officers when he spotted a body, lying face up, about 25 feet from shore, at the rear of Quinte Rent-rite, south of the lower bridge.

He said the body was removed from the water by the fire department, then taken to the Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Ann Pearl Squires, 74 Bay St., Trenton, at whose home Mr. Bongard lived, said his health was not good the past two or three years. She said he had two light strokes and "just stopped eating. He didn't feel like getting up in the morning."

She said she was downtown in Trenton with him the day before his death and the last time she saw him he said he was going to the show.

Mrs. Squires said, "he'd been out all night several times. Two weeks before the accident he didn't get home until 9:30 in the morning. He used to go to some friends of his in Belleville."

Job Evaluation Is Ordered For 125 Employees of County

Hastings county council will have a job evaluation done for the 125 persons employed permanently by the county.

The decision to have the evaluation was reached this morning at the June session of council, which got underway today.

Cost of the survey to be done by Warnock Hersey Management Consultants Ltd. will be $8,500, with the evaluation to be maintained free of charge for two years.

Council at its last session passed a special salary committee to bring in a wage-salary scheduled and the clerk-treasurer was instructed to obtain salary comparisons from other counties.

However, today Thurlow Deputy Reeve Carl Thompson told council that his committee was not completely satisfied that this was the proper or most equitable basis for a report and instead tasks had been held with the management consultants firm.

Mr. Donald E. Brown, representing the consultants, explained in detail the basis of job evaluation, following which councillors was the opportunity to have the evaluation carried out.

Rawdon Reeve Fred Beckett and Tudor Reeve Verne McMurtry said a job evaluation by a management firm would likely take a big load off the shoulders of future salary committees.

The salary committee report was made without recommendations, Reeve Mr. Brown's talk. Deputy Reeve Thompson said his committee felt that "there is no substitute for open door" (meaning-fall employees) demanding salary adjustment, but that independent analysis of professional management consultants inconsistencies and general dissatisfaction should be eliminated.

The initial report of the job evaluation consultants will be completed by October 15th and any salary changes can be made retroactive to July 1st of this year.

Council Against Single Design For Schools

Belleville city council doesn't agree that standard school designs should be adopted for all of Ontario.

And as an indication of members feelings, council turned down a resolution from the city of Kingston stock taking that the Ontario school design was not conducive to study of school designs and specifications and then have standard basic plans and specifications prepared which can aid in providing more efficient and economical construction of buildings."

The resolution states that under the present system school designs are determined largely by the architect and end up as monuments to the taxpayers' ability to pay their bills.

CUT DOWN FEES

It was claimed that one basic school design would cut down on architects' fees and construction costs which could be utilized if one design would be needed to suit the locality and that manufacturers could supply lower cost materials for standardized plans because supplies would be mass produced.

Alderman Dr. J. Russell Scott a former member of the Belleville Public School Board, said the board at one time had decided against concurrence in a similar proposal.

"It just doesn't work out in practise," he said.

Will Attend Formal Dinner At Toronto

The fund which was founded at the O.A.R.E.B. annual conference only three months ago has already exceeded $250,000. The goal is one million dollars.

"I am proud that our Board has helped this project to such a fine start through a donation of $1,000" said Mr. McKinney President of the Belleville Real Estate Board.

County in Need of Site To House CAS, Health Unit, Other Societies

Hastings County ill is need of a new location to house the Children's Aid Society, the county health units and other such organizations.

This was learned today by county councillors in a letter from Bernard Shirley, president of the county CAS who said that the Society was badly in need of additional office space.

Mr. Hurley suggested that a single building housing all the above organizations would be more satisfactory and more economical than separate quarters.

He suggested that the site of the present county jail on Church Street would be an ideal location for any new central quarters.

Generally speaking council were in agreement but it was pointed out the jail site would only become available until the lowering the completion of the new central detention unit at Napanee which might not be until early in 1968.

COMMITTEE NAMED

Tudor Reeve Verne McMurray appointed a committee of a site be given full consideration noting that parking might become a problem in the jail site were chosen.

In the end a special committee composed of the finance committee chairman and representatives from the CAS and county health unit, was appointed to study which district county offices idea.

As the session got underway, Warden Clayton Hall noted that several important matters would be up for discussion, included would be a report on the new regional detention centre, the Hastings Manor report which details the sensitives from the CAS and county health unit, was appointed to study which district county offices idea.

At the morning session resignations from the Hastings County Public Schools Consultative Committee were tendered from councillors Thomas Burnside of Madoc village and Don Armitage of Deseronto.

TOOK CRITICAL VIEW

At the last session council took a rather critical view of the schools consultative committees report and today after the resignations were tendered Reeve Reeve Fred Beckett apologized for having one of the council members use the term "been a bit rough" on the committee.

But Mr. Armitage said council reception of the committee report had nothing to do with his resignation. He said that the committee work was taking up too much of his time. His resignation would allow other council members to become better acquainted with educational problems, he said.

Reeve Don Rodgers, chairman of the consultative committee said the experience of Mr. Burnside and Mr. Armitage was valuable to the committee and said he would like to see them reconsider their decision to resign.

LAID ON TABLE

Accordingly the resignations were laid on the table until the afternoon session.

Hungerford township is appealing its equalized assessment for this year, claiming the assessment on which it will pay county rates is approximately $50,000 too high.

Several other municipalities are also considering appeals, council was told.

However, as the assessment question will be deferred until the county assessment commissioner's report is heard.

Siamese Twins Have Common Liver, Report

TORONTO (CP) — Preliminary studies of the Siamese twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard McGee indicates they have separate hearts, lungs and circulatory systems, the Hospital for Sick Children reported Wednesday.

A spokesman said the babies, joined from the chest to the navel, were given x-ray dye tests which indicated their livers are joined by a common bridge of tissue. But the vital organs appear to function separately.

The babies were delivered by caesarean section at St. Joseph's Hospital in Guelph June 2 and brought here for intensive care. They weighed seven pounds.

Doctors said earlier that if the twins are joined only by a band of skin and tissue they have a relatively easy to separate them.

About 75 per cent of all Siamese twins are joined like the McGee twins. Most have been found to share a common liver but doctors say it is sometimes possible to separate the liver, the portion of the liver to each.

FIRST FOR HOSPITAL

Only 22 cases are known where surgical separation was attempted. Most were unsuccessful. Only one of those twins were born in Canada in the last 15 years. They lived for period of a few hours to six months. In three cases, surgical teams have successfully separate them. This is the first case for the hospital here.

Says Firm Aim To Get Union Decertified

TORONTO (CP) — A union official said today an officer of Video Plastics Ltd. of Peterborough, where employees have been on strike since Dec. 14, said the union he would use a picket - limiting court injunction to "ride through" the strike and get the union decertified.

Victor Skurjat, manager of the Greater Toronto Textile Joint Board, was testifying before the Ontario Labor Relations Board in an application by the Textile Workers' Union of America (CLC) for permission to prosecute the company for failing to bargain in good faith.

He quoted Harold Pammett, personnel and production manager of the Tilco company, as saying to a group of union officers last January: "Now that I have the court behind me, I can ride this through."

Earlier in the strike, a Supreme Court of Ontario order had been issued limiting pickets to 12 at the Tilco plant employing 38 persons. On Tuesday the court here convicted 26 union leaders of contempt of court in connection with mass demonstrations at the plant in February. They are to be sentenced Friday.

The labor relations board begins hearings on the union's prosecution application today and Mr. Skurjat — one of those convicted — was the first witness. He was to be cross-examined in the afternoon.

VISITED BY PAMMETT

Mr. Skurjat testified that Mr. Pammett walked into strike headquarters in Peterborough and told union agents that "we had got ourselves in a position that no settlement could take place." There were some people he would never take back and he knew this would not be accepted by the union. Mr. Skurjat said he mentioned about six names.

"I was trying hard to be conciliatory," Mr. Skurjat said, "and thought the best thing to do would be to sit down and negotiate. . . He was not interested."

Tornadoes Hit Kansas, Death Toll Is 13

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—Tornadoes battered widely scattered sections of eastern Kansas Wednesday night leaving the state's capital city where 11 gouged a 13-mile path of destruction. Dozens left at least 16 dead, nearly 600 injured, and damage in the millions.

Topeka, the state capital, was hardest hit, with 10 dead and the estimated 400 persons treated for various injuries. About 4,500 were left homeless.

Manhattan, home of Kansas State University 60 miles west of Topeka, suffered heavy property damage, tornadoes also caused damage at Wolcott, Jarbalo, Basehor and Lansing.

Maj.-Gen. Joe Nickell, adjutant-general of the Kansas National Guard, said the funnel spotted to loosen off Burnett's Mound, a landmark in the southwest section of Topeka, then drop into a heavily-populated residential area before whirling through the city.

Governor William Avery, on the scene of some of the worst damage soon after the tornado struck, called out the national guard and requested assistance from personnel at nearby Forbes Air Force Base.

Mayor Charles W. Wright Jr. estimated damage in the multi-million dollars. Two thousand homes were extensively damaged or destroyed, he said.

Spaceship Got Dirty During Week

The hatch was open, and a space agency engineer said on recovery the interior looked somewhat like a ordinary room on earth the way dust and dirt accumulated.

Cernan reported, meanwhile, that he could feel the heat of the sun through the protective layers of his space suit when the daylight portions of his stroll around the world.

Gemini experts made these disclosures as the space capsule arrived back on U.S. soil Wednesday aboard the aircraft carrier William B. Wood. National Aeronautics and Space Administration recovery officials said the contamination must have occurred in orbit because the space craft was in a sterile room before launch.

Cernan told the NASA experts he felt actual discomfort as the sun's heat penetrated his space suit but quick arrival of the orbital night cooled the suit, although the cold did not penetrate.

Wooden Dock at Yacht Club To Be Extended 100 Feet

PICTON (Staff) — The Department of Transport has begun work to extend the present wooden dock at the Prince Edward Yacht Club for another 100 feet. The credit goes to Picton Mayor H. J. McFarland, who was highly instrumental in obtaining the authority for the new dock. Almost single handed he battled to get the extension and personally led negotiations in Ottawa, were it not for this the realization of the new docking space would not be possible.

The first work crews arrived last week and work has now already begun on the structure.

The new dock extension will be ready to accommodate the great influx of boats expected for the forthcoming Maple Leaf Gold Cup International Races to be held here July 1 to 4th.

The Prince Edward Yacht Club officials are going full out to make it a successful event and make final arrangements to make Prince Edward County the world capital of powerboat racing and drivers are being contacted.

The amphitheatre overlooking the one-and-one-half mile course on Hayward Reach can accommodate up to 25,000 spectators — and it is hoped that this many will be in attendance for the event. If rumours are there is room for some 8,000 cars. RCMP, RCAF and Ontario Provincial Police will have boats on the scene to direct water traffic and to see that there is no overloading of pleasure craft. There have been twelve boats entered to date, however this is no indication of the final number as many of the drivers do not enter until a few days before the race. Boats are expected from all over North America and hopefully from Belgium and Italy as well.

RACES SANCTIONED

The Prince Edward Yacht Club has the sole responsibility for the championship honlships and the Canadian Boating Federation has sanctioned these C.B.F. radio has world rights to broadcasting a description of the races.

PEYC Director Donald King says that there is to be a race every half hour during the three day championship. If one day is washed out the races will be re-scheduled for the 6th of July.

Classes of the races are as follows: 220 cubic inch (up to 120 mph.); 289 cubic inch (up to 145 mph.); 150 cubic inch (up to 110 mph.).

There will be a new "Sweepsixteen" class for any kind of hydroplane under 16 feet, powered by any form of engine. With speeds such as these onlookers are almost guaranteed of lots of action packed races with chills and spills to excite the most ardent racing fans.

Admission bought now at the Yacht Club will be $3.00 for the three days. On the day of the races they will cost $1.25 a day. Parking will be free and cars will be insured against liability.

10 Building Permits Passed By Council

PICTON (Staff) — Town council this week passed and approved 10 building permits with a total value of $21,800 including a $12,000 permit for a steak house, subject to approval by the police chief. Mrs. Hilda M. Kingsley plans to renovate her property at the corner of Main and Bridge Streets in order to open the new steak house. Council also agreed to let Mrs. Kingsley hang a sign in front of her Main Street craft shop. As the permits were being approved Mayor McFarland suggested that a two foot sidewalk be placed and it has been possible to obtain a building permit and then not to build on the land for two months, if at all. The time limit will ensure that someone else will be built on the land if the original applicant isn't going to, said the Mayor.

Shakespeare's Twelfth Night Gets Sparkling Presentation

By ROBERT TANNER

STRATFORD — After an average performance of a fine play, and a fine presentation of a poor one, the Stratford Festival last night put on a sparkling version of Twelfth Night which seems certain to be this year's most memorable production. Using the delightful setting of the National anthem (which received its own round of applause) as Feste's final song, the cast had the audience in their hands all the way. Shakespeare's favorite comedy is seldom as well served.

It is interesting to note that this success was accomplished not by Stratford's first team as many of whom were recognizable in the audience, but by a company of comparative young stars, reinforced by a mere quartet of seasoned players. Even one of the leading roles, that of Olivia, has been entrusted to Roberta Maxwell, who in 1957 was the Company's first apprentice. It is most encouraging to find so fine a crop of actors and actresses keeping the Company young and virile, and ensuring its continued strength.

FINE PERFORMANCES

On Monday night, many reviewers were hard put to fine players sufficiently outstanding to be worthy of mention. On that night, it was difficult to know who to omit. The quartet already mentioned is splendid. As Henry, Douglas Rain, Leo Ciceregani Eric Christmas, all gave sterling performances as Viola, Sir Toby Belch, Malvolio and Feste. It was not clear why Alan Henry, who has a wide vocal range, tended to pitch her voice rather high, thus accentuating her masculine as a boy but otherwise her interpretation of the play's principal role was both charming and convincing. Douglas Rain was a more than usually gentlemanly Sir Toby, a reading of the part which added considerably to its stature: all too often it is hard to believe in the kinship between Sir Toby and the dignified Olivia. This is not to say that Mr. Rain did not appear well in the part, but the roistering was not unrestrained. Mavis Scully was always a less part, really the only unsympathetic one in the play, and Leo Ciceri made the most of it. His reading of the famous letter stirring on a garden swing was a touch both of theatrical genius and of superb acting. Eric Christmas as Festa never lost touch with reality, and left the definite impression that the art of clowning involves much more than a ready wit.

PERCEPT STARS

And so to the newcomers: among them Britain Fotchey's absurdly enthusiastic Sir Andrew Aguecheek should have pride of place. Tossing aside the touching diffidence of Tuesday night's bewildered Xing, he threw himself into this role with an ardour which kept the comedy flowing merrily whenever he was on the stage. Miss Maxwell's Olivia was young and appealing, but vocally rather squeaky, as was the Maria of Barbara Byrne. Altogether on the distaff side, this was a somewhat high pitched production. Two other young men, Christopher Newton as Orsino and Richard Monette as Sebastian, distinguished themselves as competent, professional performers, the latter, if he will forgive me saying so, bore a much more convincing likeness to his stage sister than do most Sebastians.

The direction was by a newcomer to Canada, Jonathan David William, who acquitted himself nobly at his first attempt to master the intricacies of the Stratford thrust sage. In this, he was ably abetted by Brian Jackson's designs, which proclaimed 37 and in town deaths 94.

Labor Unrest

Seldom has there been a time of such unrest on the labor scene.

There's a paradox in this situation. Despite the inroads of automation, there are more people working than ever before and unemployment is at its lowest for many years. Yet there is this sense of dissatisfaction among the work force.

The economy is moving as never before, and in its train is the bogey of inflation. For the time being, however, there are no signs that the cost-wage spiral has reached dangerous proportions. At the same time it is moving continually upward.

It is this constant escalation of the economy which is causing the unrest. Or perhaps "restlessness" is a better word. While there is inflation there is also movement of goods, acquisition of a host of consumer products (most of it on credit) and creation of equity. All in all the economy itself is healthy.

Observing this galloping trend, Canadians want to keep up with it. They want to enjoy the fruits of their own labors — and their's some. In some cases they want to live still more grandly beyond their means (as former Bank of Canada Governor James Coyne might have put it) and are seeking American-scale wages. The airline clerks are a case in point.

So far most of the wide-ranging labor-management negotiations in process have led to serious stoppages. But two are pending which could cause gravely impair the country's current boom. One is the threatened June 17 strike of St. Lawrence Seaway workers, who are also seeking parity in wages with their United States counterparts, and the other is a possible walkout by non-operating employees of the Canadian National Railways which would shut down the railroad possibly by the end of this month or mid-July at the latest.

From the point of view of the national good, a strike of both Seaway workers and the CNR would be, an unfortunate combination which should be averted if possible.

Meanwhile, the general rush to keep up with the country's prosperity is reflected by negotiations which are going on at every turn. And while there is alarm at the continuing rise in the cost of living, it cannot be said that the inflationary spiral has reached dangerous proportions.

Respect For Law

An example is the longshoremen's strike in Montreal where there have been beatings and other symptoms of irresponsibility such as the burning of cars and trucks on the dockside.

More serious again are deliberate provocation and contempt of due legal processes where the strike weapon is concerned. A timely warning in this context has been given by Ontario Supreme Court Chief Justice G. A. Gale.

In a judgment dealing with the mass picketing outside Tilco Plastics Ltd. plant in Peterborough in February, the chief justice said that "no one should be permitted to express his displeasure at the state of the law by deliberately flouting it."

Chief justice Gale found guilty all but one of 27 men charged with criminal contempt for picketing the plant in defiance of a court order. He said that although the large numbers of people involved and the public nature of the defiance of the court order, "patently there was a public depreciation of the authority of the court and of the administration of justice."

"There appears to be a misconception among certain leaders and members of trade unions concerning the respective privileges of employers and employees.

"They seem to think that once a strike is called, the employer must close his doors to await the outcome. At present, that is not the case. Employees have the right to strike, but by the same token, employers have a right to continue their operations with the use of non-striking labor."

Chief Justice Gale noted it was more than a mere coincidence that the demonstrations in Peterborough followed closely the illegal mass picketing at the strikebound Oshawa Timex plant.

In another significant passage, the chief justice suggested the opportunity existed for anyone to challenge existing legislation if they so desired but by legal means only:

"... If trade unions feel that present legislation is unfair or unrealistic and that they should have unbridled power to use mass picketing, then they should seek proper channels for bringing about a change."

Meanwhile unions should note that the law is the law, and as Chief Justice Gale noted, it cannot be flouted with impunity.

It won't make much difference in Legion revenues and will have no discernible effect on the attendance at meetings — but by what it's worth Horton rejoined the Legion last week.

When Canada officially adopted a new banner and the Legion refused to fly it these columns contained a statement that the editor would not pay his dues until the Maple Leaf flag flew from its pole.

Strictly Personal

The Pain of Dispraise

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

Why is it that the good things people say about us never give us as much permanent pleasure as the bad things they say about us give us enduring pain; and that the glow of praise quickly dims and must be continually replenished, while the barbs of dispraise rankle for an unconscionably long time?

A striking demonstration of the irrational power of words is the fact that almost everyone wants to be "normal," while no one wants to be considered "mediocre" — but mediocrity is simply a middling quality between the high and the low, which is all that normal is supposed to stand for, too.

Perhaps the most unrewarding form of public communication is reading aloud the minutes of the last meeting.

People who are proud of their "energy" usually use it in being irritable and disagreeable; they seem unaware that as much energy (and more might be required to be involved in exercising self-restraint.

There is a law of diminishing returns in pleasure as well as in profits - the rich who may gamble for shockingly high stakes eventually don't find as much pleasure in winning a thousand dollars as their chauffeurs do in winning five dollars.

It's a fallacy to believe that professional comedians necessarily have an acute sense of humor; at least three outstanding comics I've known have had a bit of it personally — they would complain that their scripts weren't funny, and then wonder later why the audience laughed.

People who protest that this so-called backward countries aren't ready for self-government should be reminded of Macaulay's shrewd statement a century ago: "The only way in which to fit a people for self-government is to distrust them with self-government."

Every system has a natural tendency to convert its means into ends: the business system, for instance, is a means to enable man to devote more of himself to higher attainments, but it has become largely an end in itself; whereas, at the other end of the spectrum, scholarship is a means to achieve more relevant knowledge, but it has become almost merely lore as academic nit-picking as an end in itself.

The current "God is dead" controversy is the healthiest thing that's happened to theology in the last 50 years, for whether or not God is dead, the word "God" has been drained of content by popularizers, preachers and politicians, and requires serious re-examination at the deepest level of meaning.

To Your Good Health

Low Blood Pressure Not Cause of Fatigue

BY JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: In an otherwise healthy person in the middle 30's can low blood pressure cause extreme tiredness? Do Vitamin B 12 shots and exercise help? Can a troubled mind be the culprit? — Mrs. S. S.

* * *

A healthy person does not become extremely tired; hence, something is wrong, and it needs to be discovered.

It is true that low blood pressure (extremely low, not merely a bit below average, which doesn't mean much if anything) can be associated with abnormal fatigue. It is a finding, not a disease, and not a cause. Vitamins alone will not solve the situation. You have to find the basic, underlying factors.

Low-functioning thyroid, anemia, and chronic infection are among the frequent causes, along with a multitude of less common ones which, however, would be revealed by a physical examination.

A "troubled mind" can mean many things, but yes, emotional tensions most certainly can cause chronic fatigue. Plain, extreme boredom is one of the commonest, but there are others which wear you down emotionally and become major elements in physical feelings of tiredness. A sense of inferiority, or of insecurity, or habitual self-consciousness, lack of interest in things and people around you, a guilty conscience, unsolved problems which all perpetually tug at the back of your mind — all these and others can be involved.

However, attention to some very simple rules of good living habits can have tremendous effect. It's one thing to work hard, be tired, and then bounce back after a nap or a good night's sleep. But there are plenty of ambitious, intense young people who just try to do too much. The young woman with a job, and some night school classes, and a house to clean and a husband to feed, can cram too much into the time. Everybody needs at least a little time for recreation and relaxation, but it's hard to convince some who have managed to survive the blustering pace for months, and can't understand why they can't keep it up for ever without fatigue.

Eating habits don't always get the attention they deserve. The breakfast-skipper or lunch-skipper is asking for trouble, sooner or later. I have cured many a tired woman just by insisting that she start eating a breakfast with some protein, and it every morning. Juice and coffee may get you started, but it doesn't stay with you. An egg, and-or bacon or sausage, or any source of protein makes a difference.

Exercise is important for at least three or four reasons. It tones up both muscles and circulation; it stimulates appetite; it promotes healthy tiredness that leads to refreshing sleep; and it is an excellent means of breaking up the accumulated tensions of work.

Too much of "what tired feeling" demands attention. There are things to do about it.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have spent hundreds of dollars on medicines and doctors but still can't get rid of my face breaking out. It happens if I worry the least bit, get my feelings hurt, or become overexcited. You can't mention a cream or lotion I haven't used. Please help me.— L. S.

Manpower

Vancouver Sun

Through a number of federal aid schemes, the money of all Canadians is being poured into chronically depressed pockets around the country. If it is economically feasible to fly in itinerate workers from the Caribbean, it should be equally feasible to move unemployed Canadians to areas needing manpower. Mobility in manpower is greatly to be desired — but let it smooth out Canada's uneven apportionment of jobs and workers first

Tories Numerically Big But Not Where the Action Is

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — There are 96 Conservatives in the Commons. They got there with the biggest vote the Conservatives ever have won, excepting, of course, that astonishing 208-seat landslide of 1958 which was the greatest political victory won by any political party in the 27 elections since Confederation.

With their 96, they comprise the largest Conservative Opposition, save for the 1925 Mackenzie King - Arthur Meighen see-saw, ever to confront a minority Liberal Government.

Largest, that is, numerically.

But only numerically.

At first casual glance, the manpower looks to be there.

But appearances in Parliament seldom have been this deceiving.

For some of these 96, especially a certain clutch from the Prairies, are there so rarely, they seem, for all needful practical Parliamentary purposes to have opted out of the action.

They may be great, back there in the constituency, performing all kinds of valuable personal and community service for the voters, but here in the House, they're shadows, seldom seen.

Others are ciphers, at least in the Commons, never speaking, hardly ever even asking a question.

They could be fireballs in the Commons Committees, but on the floor of the House they couldn't so much as light a candle.

Most of the rest, even in the free-wheeling of the Daily Question Period, are backbenchers.

Except on such obvious show-window issues, such politically spectacular ones as Medicare and Munsinger messes, the life and times of Lucien Rivard, the Quebec bankrobber, Diefenbaker Cabinet's furniture affair and yes, of course, the flag, few in the Conservative ranks have taken a national position.

Perhaps it is because when something really big comes up over the Parliamentary horizon, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker not only takes charge, but he dominates the debate on these explosive issues to almost black-out everybody else in the Opposition.

So what happens?

Well, for one big and well-known-how-beneficial - or disastrous-depending - on - your - point-of-view

Volume was sluggish for the third consecutive session with a total of 2,289,000 shares changing hands compared with 2,153,000 Tuesday.

Analysts say some of the market's troubles is a result of investor concern about the possible effect on profits of labor negotiations under way or coming up shortly in several key sectors of the economy, including steels, rails, shipping and forest products.

Area Residents Protest Sale Of Equipment

TRENTON — Murray council chambers were in an uproar Monday night when 25 Wooler area residents appeared in protest council selling lighting equipment from the former town hall lands court to the Cole springs Parks' Board for $400. Members of the delegation claimed the equipment was worth ten times this sum.

What council can do about it now is a question. The Cole springs group has already installed the equipment.

In other council business, council was told the Keene Construction Co. is crushing gravel in the south section of the township and this will be spread on township roads.

The Cons Bridge Company of Toronto is pouring the deck of the suburban road railway overpass bridge. Construction work on the road between the bridge and Highway 33 has not yet started.

Henry T. Burton Will Celebrate 91st Birthday

TRENTON — Henry Thomas Burton of Germain's Landing will celebrate his 91st birthday on Saturday.

Mr. Burton is a native of Sussex, England, but came to Canada in 1905. He lived in Allisonville, Wellington and Trenton before moving to Germain's Landing.

In 1952, Mr. Burton's wife, Judiet, died of cancer. She had willed her body for cancer research and after her death, Mr. Burton erected a cairn in her memory on the grounds of Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Living alone, Mr. Burton maintains his interest in world affairs by listening to the radio, (Ted Sudder on CJBQ is his favorite), watching TV and reading the newspapers.

In the winter, he spends his time feeding the wild birds and making "mosaic" pictures by cutting pictures out of magazines and pasting them on sheets of paper, then framing the result. Recently, Murray Fabrica on Front Street featured Mr. Burton's pictures in a window display.

They were presented with badges which St. John's Ambulance official, Frank Insley advised them to sew on their bathing suits. The 750,000 gallon tank will be drained for contractors to examine the inside.

Suits Are Out This Year Says N. Y. Designer

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The legs may look a little middle and a lot of money is in this year as far as designer Paulina Trigere is concerned.

So are turtle pins, baby dresses, rhinestone bibs and bonnets, men's chevron tie materials, built-in lingerie, for dresses and fur formal gowns, and boots as supple and fitted as gloves.

"Suits are out this year," Miss Trigere said during her fall collection opening Wednesday. "Women want a freeness around the waist."

The models who stopped forward later wore slim coats, jaunty jackets or swingy capes over dresses with filled or belted middles. Chins disappear under bathing collars, huge ascots and yards of scarves. But no bulk went to waist.

In tweeds and suits the mannikins slopped long pleat leather boots that reached higher than their above-the-knee hemlines.

SCARVES MATCHED

A wardrobe of fitted dresses, long and short, some with swirling cape coats, and made of Russian broadtail, were among latest Trigere status symbol offerings. Excellent, really one - upmanship dinner gown was of broadtail, bordered, cuffed and collared in Russian sable.

Modesty bibs are what the dress - French designer calls those collars of twinkling rhinestones and which models tucked into their dinner necklines, or wore with bare - shouldered dresses.

There were glittering baby bonnets to match these.

For grand entrances there were gowns gleaming in silver and gold; and jewel embroidered see-through dresses, some with nude-boned slips.

And there were floating chiffons with bulk-in petticoats for cool comfort.

Family Reunion

(HARRY FAMILY)

About 130 descendants of James A. Harry gathered for a family reunion and potluck dinner at Stockdale Community Hall on Sunday. After the dinner Mr. Vernon Harry Foxboro called the gathering to order and J. B. Harder, Belleville, asked the oldest descendant present, Mr. W. S. Harry, for a few remarks. The first cousins of the three descendants of James A. Harry gave short accounts of their families' activities during the year.

The young adults enjoyed a ball game and the children a balloon and peanut scramble. Then all enjoyed a watermelon treat provided by Mr. W. S. Harry.

Relatives were present from Calgary; St. Louis, Missouri; Toronto, Port Colborne, Oakville, Blackwater, Cobalt, Burlington, Gananoque and Belleville and surrounding district.

Former Quinte Area Guide Commissioner Mrs. A. M. Haig said that Mrs. Stewart had been "a tower of strength" during her tenure with the local division.

A presentation of a leather purse was made to Mrs. Stewart by Mrs. R. Settle, on behalf of the Belleville Division of the Girl Guides.

Mrs. R. D. Arnott was hostess for the dinner and Mrs. A. Bannon acted as mistress of ceremonies.

ECONOMICAL DESSERT

My daughter-in-law Margaret selected this pudding for dessert when I visited them over last weekend.

I asked her if I could make it. She chortled and said, "I hoped you would ask!"

This is economical for mid-week meals but so pretty and different with its orange meringue that you can confidently serve it to guests.

THURSDAY'S DINNER

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

BREAD PUDDING WITH ORANGE MERINGUE

3 cups milk
3 cups half-inch bread cubes
¼ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 eggs, yolks and whites separated
1½ cups sultana raisins
grated rind from one large orange (for meringue)
3 tablespoons granulated sugar (for meringue)

In your mixing bowl soak the bread cubes in the milk while you measure and add the brown sugar, melted butter or margarine, salt, vanilla and beaten egg yolks. When all are added gently mix. Add raisins. Turn into unbuttered medium-sized baking dish. Stand in shallow pan containing ½ inch hot water and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 50 minutes.

Remove from oven and cover with

ORANGE MERINGUE

Beat until stiff the three leftover egg whites then add the sugar and beat until peaks form. Fold in grated orange rind. Cover top of hot bread pudding with meringue and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes longer.

I think this pudding is at its best served warm. The meringue takes the place of pouring cream or milk.

ALTERED PANTS — Bride Carol Chivers, a 22-year-old model, went to her wedding in fashionable St. Mary's-the-Bolton's Church in London Wednesday wearing ankle-length silk pants and a matching white silk high-buttoned coat slashed almost to the waist. Her sister Marilyn, 19, acted as bridesmaid wearing white lace shorts beneath a short purple tunic, with lace bonnet to match the shorts. Frank Sweeney, the bridegroom, was attired in a conventional dark suit. (AP-Wirephoto by cable from London)

Paintings Form Decor At Parish Guild Tea

Members of Christ Church Parish Guild turned the Parish Hall into a gallery Wednesday afternoon for a combined art exhibit and blossom-time tea and sale.

The smooth - running team-work of the Guild members was apparent in the professional picture hanging technique, done gallery - style against natural burlap. Canvases, all but a half dozen painted by Christ Church members, were hung around the tea room walls. The hall was divided in half by means of a burlap screen, with an arched doorway in the middle connecting the sales booth section and the tea room.

The paintings provided the theme for the decor, which featured multi-colored artists palettes, complete with brushes and ornamented with white and yellow 'mums. A large palette and a color wheel were mounted on the rear wall and miniature palettes were used as centrepieces on the individual tea tables. The central table featured an artist's still - life composition — a wooden bowl filled with fruit and flowers, surrounded with more fruit and flanked with crystal goblets holding floating candles. Large bouquets of spring blossoms placed around the room added more color to the already gaily decorated scene.

SALES SECTION

Jardinieres of lilacs, snowballs and spirea, and bouquets of 'mums and spring flowers decorated the sales booth section of the hall. In front of the platform was a table turned into a garden with flowering plants and blossoms, all for sale. On the platform, baked goods and delicacies from the home cooking table. Centring this table was another color wheel, this time made up of gaily decorated cookies and cakes suitable for a children's party.

An unusually large assortment of articles was on sale at both the white elephant and candy tables.

At the toy booth, intricately made stuffed animals and dolls clothes were featured, including a mother kangaroo with baby in pocket, and dresses for dolls ranging in size from Barbie to a giant model.

MANY ARTICLES

The sewing table stretched the length of the room and held an enormous variety of hand-crafted items — aprons, pot holders, pillow cases embellished with embroidery, and hand-made laces, baby clothes and children's pyjamas. Quilts, the special hobby of one group of church women, drew attention and comments from the guests. Five fine examples of the art were on display — a crib quilt, a multi-colored "60 patch," a mauve and white "Jacob's ladder," a yellow and mauve "Dresden plate" and a "tulip ring" in blues and beige.

Refreshments served during the afternoon were as attractive and artistically composed as the paintings and decorations in the background. The tea and exhibit demonstrated not just the talent of the painters in the congregation, but also that of the Guild members, who put true artistry into the planning and execution of their tea.

On return to camp, each made her own milelabre nature garden. Next they all thoroughly enjoyed a fascinating balloon game and peanut scramble.

Council of Women Launches Leadership Training Courses

By LINDA CRAWFORD

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—A lack of women able to assume office in community organizations has led the National Council of Women of Canada to launch leadership training courses.

The council, which represents some 1,500 organizations across Canada, believes an absence of active participation is the root of the problem.

"Often it's only the officers who are involved in meetings," says Mrs. D. F. Griffiths of Trail, B.C., chairman of the leadership committee.

She told the group's annual meeting: "The member feels left out and doesn't really know why she's there. But she must have had an interest in the first place or she wouldn't have joined the organization."

Mrs. Griffiths' committee is trying to correct this situation by promoting projects which will directly involve individual members.

COURSES PLANNED

Courses will be set up in public speaking and parliamentary procedure. Other projects will enable members to learn as they do voluntary work.

Mrs. Griffiths said women did not always get adequate training in their first organizations.

The leadership project was adopted at last year's annual meeting of the national council and some starts have been made.

"Fredericton, for instance, is planning to hold public speaking courses in co - operation with the department of adult education and the YMCA. London, Ont., set up a 'volunteer' bureau."

Volunteer consultants from within the council also will be called on to travel to different local councils where assistance is necessary.

The committee will have teams in the Maritimes, Quebec and Ontario, the Prairies, northern B.C. and the Pacific area. These teams will organize the programs for those areas and assign consultants.

Silver Ribbon
Cherry Supreme
DESSERT and PIE FILLING

Silver Ribbon Cherry Supreme is the newest idea in desserts. It's both a wonderful ready-to-serve, right-out-of-the-tin dessert of rich, plump Montmorency cherries or just about the best-tasting pie filling you'll ever eat.

Silver Ribbon cherries are separate and full round in a fine rich sauce that doesn't kill the cherry flavour. There's none of that gooey flavoured thickening or mashed up fruit.

Cherry Supreme is prepared to perfection by the Baxter people of Bloomfield, who know how to keep that fruit-fresh look and flavour that's sure to please the whole family.

It's extra good because it's "Baxter-Good" and it's so easy!

Politics More of Duty Than Pleasure for Wife Of New Quebec Leader

By ROSEMARY SPEIRS

MONTREAL (CP) — Politics? "After 20 years I've had my fill of it," says Reine Johnson, wife of the man whose Union Nationale party scored an upset victory in Quebec's June 5 election.

The Union Nationals, under Daniel Johnson's leadership, won 55 seats in the 108-seat legislative assembly. The Liberals, in office since 1960, won 51. Independents captured the remaining two seats.

Although happy with her husband's victory, Mrs. Johnson feels that for herself politics has often been more a duty then a pleasure.

"I feel my most important task is to make a comfortable home for my husband," she said in an interview in her home here.

"I enjoy some aspects of public life—I like to meet people for example. But on occasions which are not all that important, I'd just stick to home."

Mrs. Johnson, 45, says she expects to continue her quiet home life whatever the future holds.

When he first decided to enter active politics about two years after their marriage in 1943, Mr. Johnson asked his wife what she thought of his decision.

"And I said I wish you wouldn't as far as outside interest is concerned . . . but you won't be happy unless you go ahead.

"It was hard for me at first because he was away from home so much, but he has been happy."

MOTHER OF FOUR

Mrs. Johnson feels she has given her husband peace of mind—peace he would never have had if she had taken a large part in public affairs.

"He has always known I was home with the children and so he never had to worry about them."

The Johnsons have four children. Daniel Jr., 21, graduated in law this spring from the University of Montreal; Pierre-Marc, 19, is a political science student at Brebeuf College here; Diane, 16, studies Latin at Marguerite-Bourgeoys College in Montreal, and Marie, 12, attends the Ville Marie private school.

"My children are my whole life," Mrs. Johnson says. "Other concerns have always had to take second place to my life at home."

Yet when she felt she could, Reine Johnson has actively campaigned by her husband's side.

"I have never made much noise," she said with a laugh. "But I have always been there."

Until trouble with slipped discs slowed her down in 1953, she stumped for her husband, speaking to women's groups and political meetings.

"He wouldn't hear far away I was, I used to come home afterwards so I would be there for my children. Sometimes I drove home at five in the morning to give the first bottle."

Mrs. Johnson met Daniel when they were both students at the University of Montreal —he in law and she studying literature and journalism.

French-speaking by birth, though also fluent in English, Mrs. Johnson is keenly interested in English-French relations in Quebec.

"The English have always been a minority here, but often didn't seem aware of it," she said slowly.

"This problem is not one you can analyze in facts and figures. It is something you feel. And often I can't help but feel it odd that the English should have been leaders here so long—when the majority of people were French-speaking."

She said she sees no immediate reason why drastic measures—such as separating from Canada—need be taken by Quebec.

"I think we will be able to work these problems out on a calm basis. I believe in separatism only if it becomes absolutely necessary but that's a crisis we'll meet when we come to it."

When in Quebec City for sessions of the legislature, Mr. Johnson lives at a hotel and phones his family every night.

The Johnsons live during the children's school term in a comfortable home in Westmount, a Montreal suburb, and spend holidays in St. Pie de Bagot, Mr. Johnson's riding south of Montreal.

COLLECTS OLD BOOKS

"I'm a bit of a collector," she says. "As you can see if you look around, I love antique furniture, old books and many kinds of Canadian painting and handicrafts."

For two years before a recent bout with the recurrent spinal trouble, Mrs. Johnson owned and operated an art gallery in the old section of Montreal.

"I called it the Galerie Bon Secours and I worked there about seven days a week with only one assistant. Then when my health broke down I had to choose between my family and the gallery—and naturally my family came first."

Mrs. Johnson says she is mainly interested in Canadian figurative painting. Group of Seven paintings are favorites among those hanging in her Westmount home.

Although her main personal hobby in recent years has been combing Montreal antique and old-book shops, Mrs. Johnson has also been a member of several women's literary circles and has done much charitable work.

For all her outside work, she reaffirms that a woman's first job must be at home.

"I have never been one of those who take a militant interest in questions of female equality," she says. "I think women should have the same pay and job opportunities as men and yet I wonder sometimes if women who speak up so strongly for their rights will not regret it in the future.

"It will be a shame if women give up all the little attentions men now pay them for the sake of asserting a strict equality. I enjoy being a woman and having someone to lean on. It's good to feel a little helpless once in a while."

TOTS HAVE PREP SCHOOL

EDMONTON (CP) — A classroom designed to prepare five- and six-year-old children for school has been started in Edmonton. The pre-school, known as the Residences Centre, has among its objectives helping children develop vocabulary, understanding of relationships, self - expression and conversation, and health habits.

Susanna's Family Fare

SUNBURN AND SKIVERS

Dear Susanna: Fresh soothing medicated cream applied to hot sunburned areas can give tremendous relief.

However, when a large glob is taken right from the jar to the skin, this can also be quite a skivery, cold shock to the sufferer.

If this is the case, and you are applying a dose of cream to say, someone's sore back, hold the medicine in your hand to moisten it. You have taken out of the jar between your fingers or hands for a moment to warm it slightly, then apply. — Mrs. L. G.

I was a recent victim, and it's . . . I was a recent victim, and it's much better your way! — SUSANNA

—A NSANSU—SUSN-ESTHA

Dear Su: In a hurry while baking, I put a cup of nuts into a plastic bag and used the rolling pin on them. Instant chopped nuts. — Mrs. R. E. Armitage.

Dear Susanna: A small quantity of frozen shelf fish isn't always easy to extract from a large package, but there is a way. Drop the whole thing on a covered floor.

Successful Living

Writer Pleads Chance To Entertain at Home

DEAR DORIS: About visiting back and forth. We think that visiting should be a 50-50 proposition. We have come up against the problem of people, when I phone to ask them over, turning my invitation around and saying "Oh, why don't you people come over here?" even when it is clearly their turn to visit us.

I don't want to offend by seeming a slicker on such a trivial matter but when several of our acquaintances do this, it means that we are always at their house and never get a chance to entertain in our own home. This doesn't seem fair. We always return any visits made to us, feeling that it is our turn to do so but people do not seem to do the same to us.

DORIS CLARK

Doris, is this a common problem? I wish you would tell me how to counter it. We do have a nice home and would like to entertain in it just as they wish to entertain in theirs. Should we just drop them as friends or continue to give in, or what? — PEEVED.

* * *

DEAR PEEVED: It is a bit thick, isn't it?

I'd guess that such chit eiher:

(1) have tired husbands who won't budge after dinner; or

(2) don't know any baby sitters; or

(3) forget that other homes have to entertain too.

Drop them? No! Give in sometimes; but other times mention that you are serving something special for a surprise; or that you are having the Browns in too; and that it's your turn.

Giving a week's notice is a good way to make an invitation important. Have you tried that?

Jilted Girl Explains Why She Kept Diamond

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently a group of office girls wrote and asked the correct procedure when a girl has a broken engagement. They were referring to the ring. You said the ring should be returned when the girl breaks the engagement, but that she can keep the ring when the fellow breaks it. Then you added (a bit sarcastically, I thought) that you could never understand why a girl would want the ring of a fellow who didn't want her.

May I give you the answer? I did not return the ring because I had to sell it. My fiance informed me seven days before the wedding that he had decided to marry a woman he had met just a month before.

I needed money to pay for insuring and mailing of hundreds of wedding presents. The bridesmaid's gifts were charged to my account. Some floral pieces had been ordered special and I had to settle with the florist. My gown had been fitted and was hanging in the closet. The apartment we were planning to live in had been decorated and I advanced money for that — as well as two month's rent. So now you know. — DUMPED AND INSOLVENT.

DEAR DUMPED: Yup — you were justified. Under the circumstances, the diamond was a girl's best friend.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 13-year-old daughter could pass for 17. Jan has a crush on my husband's brother, who is 25. He is married and has two children. I'm afraid he has a crush on her, too.

Uncle Jud drops over here about four night a week. He pretends he comes to talk sports with my husband, but I know it's merely a lame excuse. He always starts with, "What did you think of the ball game yesterday?" — and that's the end of the sports talk.

Jan kisses her uncle and massages his neck to help him "relax." She sits on his lap and they watch TV together. Last night they danced the frug and the jerk and they did some "fun wrestling," on the floor. I told my husband that I don't like the way this relationship is shaping up. He says Jan is just a kid and it I am evil minded. Am I? — CONCERNED.

DEAR CONCERNED: You've got a great little group there. Your husband has some missing parts upstairs, Uncle Jud sounds like a case of arrested development, and that 13-year-old daughter needs to have her speedometer adjusted.

Tell your brother-in-law to stay at home with his wife and family or bring them along. Instruct Jan to stay off men's laps and save her hugs and kisses until she can offer them with real meaning. Her behavior is cheap — but it's also dangerous. If she continues to behave like a sex pot she could land into serious trouble. Like very.

How to Tell Your True Age

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — How young in heart are you?

Age is measured by many things — by changes in hair color, the acquisition of wrinkles, the slowing down of physical activity.

But one's true age is not told by the number of candles on a birthday cake but by the spirit, the real barometer of youth. And you are still pretty young in heart if—

You don't mind picking up a baby, even if it looks pretty sticky.

If one of your nephews decides to grow a beard, you don't necessarily think he's gone batty.

When you come to a flight of stairs, you have an impulse to go up them two at a time—even if you don't obey the impulse.

You're sure the next person to come through a revolving door will be a pretty girl, not a bill collector.

If someone offered you a free round trip on the second space capsule going to the moon, you'd take it.

CHILDREN UNCHANGED

Children today don't seem much different to you than when you were a child yourself.

You can talk to a teenager about his ambitions or his hobbies without feeling self-conscious or sounding patronizing.

If your name is James, your boss refers to you as "Jim"—and not "Old Jim."

You get a bigger thrill out of reading the sports page of your newspaper than the obituary page.

Now and then you hear a joke you haven't heard before.

At the office at least one of the girls remembers your birthday, and gives you a greeting card, a kiss, or the gift of a single red rose.

At least one day a week you whistle or hum while shaving.

Afrikaners Showing Concern Over Morality of Apartheid

By BRIAN BORROW
Canadian Press Correspondent

CAPE TOWN (CP)—At last, it seems, the Afrikaner is searching his conscience over the morality of many aspects of apartheid, the main one being the migrant labor system.

And this conscience-searching has been done by the Dutch Reformed Church, the most powerful and influential religious body in South Africa to which just about every Nationalist supporter of Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd belongs.

At the church's provincial synod held late in 1965 in Cape Town to mark the anniversary of the founding of the church 300 years ago, a report was placed before the delegates which contained one of the most potentially explosive criticisms of government policy ever heard in this country. The report has severely jolted the Verwoerd government.

In the strongest possible terms for a church commission, the report condemns the way in which the migrant labor system is breaking up African family life. It calls for a thorough investigation of the system which it describes as "a cancer raging in the life of the Bantu people."

In attacking the migrant labor system the church has by implication attacked the larger concept of apartheid or separate development of the races in South Africa, for it is on this system that the economics of apartheid stand or fall.

CUT OFF FROM FAMILY

In the eyes of the government the African male who works in a white urban area is a temporary sojourner whose eventual home will be a "Bantustan." He is not permitted to have freehold rights in the big towns and cities where he earns his livelihood.

His family must be left behind in the "Bantu homeland" and he is employed on a year-to-year contract basis. His wife and children are not allowed to visit him and often years go by before he sees them.

The church report says this is creating a most serious social and religious problem.

"To place together large numbers of men in compounds or single quarters and to cut them off from family life is to create serious problems."

The system had caused disintegration of family life, moral laxity, economic distress for the family where the husband associated with another woman in the town and an alarming increase in homosexuality and crime. The report deplores the "absolute impossibility" for the African to create a stable social and family life.

The system also had a paralyzing effect on the whites because of the availability of a large and cheap labor force.

The report says on the other hand that the migrant labor system made the whole economic structure of South Africa possible and without it the rapid economic development of the country would be impossible. A new system should be devised which would maintain the advantages and exclude the disadvantages.

Canada's Friendship With France Causes Friction at NATO Parley

Following is an assessment by the Associated Press correspondent at the significant role Canada has been playing in the current NATO discussions in Brussels.

By ARTHUR L. GAYSHON

BRUSSELS (AP) — Canada's old friendship with France is rising in an active new form amid the clash of controversy among Western statesmen over the future of their Atlantic Alliance binding Europe with North America.

The Franco-Canadian relationship emerged as a crucial factor that brought more than this week for the NATO council of foreign ministers.

Among the delegates grappling with the tangle of troubled besetting NATO, the role of the Canadians under External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, Sr., became a major factor.

There were those, including Americans and Britons, who criticized Martin fiercely. To them it seemed Canadian conciliation on France's position came near to taking the side of President de Gaulle. Some talked darkly of "the Quebec vote" as an explanation of Martin's activities, meaning that Canada is concerned more with pleasing its 6,000,000 or so French-speaking Canadians and less with the good of the alliance.

APPRECIATE MOTIVE

There were others, who included mainly the smaller allies, who saw Martin's actions as a bridge - building mission that fitted into a long-established Canadian pattern.

Whether inside the United Nations, the Commonwealth, NATO or even between the white and non-white races, the Canadians, according to these middle-readers, for years have chosen a leading role in the quest for accommodation and compromise.

Martin himself has stressed "the special ties and understandings" that bind Canada and France in culture, outlook and blood.

It was the forceful intervention of Martin which led France's partners to defer until October a decision on moving NATO's political directorate out of Paris to Belgium.

SEES DANGERS

Martin said if the decision had gone the American-British-West German way, a serious situation would have arisen.

His meaning seemed clear:

Transfer of the NATO council might well have incensed de Gaulle to the point of resigning France's political membership in the alliance.

—De Gaulle then would have pulled France's 72,000 troops from West Germany, so breaching the long-solid NATO defence wall across Europe.

—De Gaulle also probably would have conceded for good all NATO rights to overfly France.

—France's financial contributions would have been lost to NATO, the American fuel pipelines to West Germany that crosses France would probably have to shut down and a variety of other reprisals may have followed.

Martin noted that Canada disagrees with de Gaulle's withdrawal of France from NATO's combined military system but he emphasized:

"It is important that France be fully in the Western power group, a member of the alliance accepting the obligations of the treaty. . . ."

HOPES FOR STAY

When the issue of the NATO council comes up for discussion again in October, Canada hopes and expects the decision will be to keep it in Paris. Indirectly Martin acknowledged this will depend on the course of the pending series of negotiations flowing from France's military withdrawal. Among these talks will be Canadian - French exchanges on the closure of two RCAF bases in France.

Underlining the Canadian-French relationship, France's Foreign Minister Couve de Murville and Martin have had a long talk here not only on NATO matters but also on developing their co-operation.

At Martin's prompting, Couve de Murville made what seemed to be a positive offer to his colleagues to keep the NATO council in Paris when he said it would receive French hospitality as long as this is needed. And he sought also to reassure his colleagues that de Gaulle is unlikely to conclude any spectacular private arrangements with the Soviet Union during his Moscow trip June 20.

Beyond Canada's attempts to prevent the isolation of France lies one consideration which Canadian officials note with pride:

The concept of the Atlantic Alliance derived much of its inspiration from Canadians in the mould of prime ministers St. Laurent and Pearson and Canadians say they want that concept to flourish.

14 Years of Church-going Price for Baptizing Child

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Tired of preaching to empty churches, a Serian Danish Lutheran vicar has demanded that parents who have a child baptized in his church agree to attend services once a month for 14 years.

So far, six couples have pledged to obey the "mild church discipline" of Rev. Lud- wig Husum, 28, vicar of the twin parishes of Solsber and Store Alstrup, in central Jut- land.

But one couple refused to pay what they thought was a stiff price in churchgoing. They lodged a complaint with the bishop of the diocese. Trouble is brewing all over the place.

"I have decided to stay and fight," says the vicar. "I take my guidance from the New Testament rather than from church laws. I am a priest, not a lawyer."

The bishop has warned him, advising him to take six-months' sick leave to think it all over. The ministry of churches has told him, quite flatly, that it is against the law of the land to make people go to church by coercion.

The vicar faces possible trial by a coalistory court, but he says he won't budge, even if he ends up being kicked out of the Lutheran State Church.

"I don't want Jesus to disown me on judgment day because I was a coward," he says.

He wants the laws changed to make it compulsory for parents to be regular churchgoers from the day their child is baptized until the day of his confirma- tion at the age of 14.

Why just once a month?

"I figure the Lord will be satisfied with that," the vicar says.

He preaches in two churches every Sunday. In one the at- tendance never surpasses eight per cent of the parish popula- tion. In the other, attendance frequently is down to four per cent.

Most other Danish vicars are no better off. Though 98 per cent of all Danes are members of the Lutheran "people's church," fewer than seven per cent of them are regular churchgovers. They become automatically members of the church when baptized, but may quit anytime and escape church tax.

able tax to exclude depreciation allowances on short-lived items such as linen and uniforms from tax payment and stipulation that depreciation allowances must not ex- ceed 50 per cent of a com- pany's gross revenues for the taxation year.

Mr. Sharp proposed exempti- ng certain investment compan- ies for the refundal tax. These are:

—Investment or mutual fund companies used by those seek- ing to diversify their invest- ments. The companies would have to derive at least 95 per cent of their income from in- vestments and 65 per cent of their gross revenue from Cana- dian sources.

—Investment companies with little or no property in Canada and which do not invest in Can- ada.

Stock-taking, Sanitation Day, 'Remonts' Close Soviet Stores

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—The sign on the door said: "Closed for stock-taking."

Customers with their weekly bundle of soiled linen could only return home, vaguely trying to picture how a laundry office takes inventory.

Stores and service establish- ments in Moscow find all sorts of reasons for closing down for a few days.

One is stock-taking, which in most shops seems to occur at least twice a year.

Another is repairs. The Rus- sian word for repair work is "remont." It's so frequently used that it has become part of the working vocabulary of every foreigner living here.

If someone's apartment is be- ing repaired, the sophisticated way of rendering this in Eng- lish is "He is under remont" or "He is having a remont."

An excuse food stores find for shutting down is "sanitation day." It comes about once a month and is designed to allow time for the staff to wash shelves and generally make the establishment hygienic.

In the West such activities as stock-taking and shelf-cleaning would be done during the day- store's normal closed hours or during ordinary operations. The management wouldn't dream of closing for fear of losing busi- ness.

BACKWARD ON EARTH

In the Soviet Union such in- terruptions have become part of the way of life. Many is the foreigner who has mused that although the Russians may make it to the moon first they're way behind in the busi- ness of providing reliable or- dinary services for their people on earth.

The problem was touched upon in a reader's letter to the newspaper Vechernya Moskva (Evening Moscow). It told of a small stationery store that was closed eight days for stock-tak- ing.

The author of the letter was obviously perplexed as to how inventory in a store of 25 to 30 square metres could possibly take eight days — "nothing to measure or weigh there, just pencils, pens, copy - books to count."

The same kind of perplexity enveloped the customers who trooped to the laundry office and saw the familiar shingle out: "Closed for stock-taking."

At most there had been no advance warning of the shut- down, and the sign gave no in- dication how long it would last.

COUNTING BUNDLES

Overcome with curiosity as to the mechanics of inventory-tak- ing in an office that simply ac- cepts laundry to send else- where for cleaning—and has no visible equipment, other than a few pencils and a vast array of shelves—one of the custom- ers peered through a window in the door frame.

There, behind a counter, was a human lady assiduously ex- amining bundles of finished laundry. She may also have been checking to see whether any had remained on the shelves for a long time, thereby perhaps qualifying as "stock."

In a country where clothes are extremely expensive, how- ever, it's hard to imagine how anybody would fail to claim his from the laundry, especially since the bill has to be paid in advance.

The shop reopened next day. But the laundry itself — the place that does the actual cleaning — must have taken time out for stock-taking, too, for laundry that should have been ready the first day didn't come back until three days later.

ANOTHER RECORD — The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported June 7 that the Consumer Price Index rose one-fifth of one point during May to a new high of 143.4. However, the increase was the smallest in four months. Prices were up for fresh fruits, vegetables and dairy and bakery products. The index is based on 1949 consumer prices equalling 100. # Modern Air Reconnaissance Still Depends on Human Eye

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

MARVILLE, France (CP)— Even in the age of space, mis- siles and planes of fantastic speed, the "eyeball" is the most important factor in war games.

That is the word from Group Capt. A. F. Avant of Rosetown, Sask., commander of this RCAF base which recently concluded photo-reconnaissance air exer- cises — termed Royal Flush— along with other NATO coun- tries.

"Our planes are superb and our pilots are cameras!" said Avant in an interview. "But when our pilots pass at eight miles a min- ute at 500 feet, or so, it is only the eyeball that can tell us what we want to know.

"Most reconnaissance work, when it comes down to basics, is done by the eyeball."

Avant's new fly the needle- nosed CF-104, which can move at twice the speed of sound.

Pilots in the exercise are limited to tension—despite an elaborately casual air—during the three - day exercise in which Second World War ace- piloted their erstwhile enemies, West Germans, in sorties cover- ing Western Europe, including Britain.

REPORTS TENSION

"In something like this you do get a little keyed up—you smoke too many cigarettes, that sort of thing," said FO Bruce Arnott, 36, of Toronto, between two sorties which he made in one day.

While Arnott chatted with a reporter, a German pilot strolled by with a cheerful hello, wearing on his sleeve the the "Richthofen" insignia of the squadron once led by Baron Manfred von Richthofen of First World War fame.

If Arnott saw any irony in this, he didn't mention it except to recall that Richthofen, per- haps the greatest ace of his time with some 80 kills, was fi- nally brought down by Cana- dian Roy Brown.

Arnott also noted that Her- man Goering, who succeeded Richthofen before becoming Adolf Hitler's right - hand man in the Second World War, once commanded Marville base.

These smiling observations about an era that seems long ago—although it is only a gen- eration since the last world con- flict—underlined the staggering changes in strategy and concept that have occurred.

MAKES SIX TRIPS

Arnott, graduate of Royal Roads Academy, Victoria, and Royal Military College, King- ston, Ont., made six trips dur- ing the exercise. Between mis- sions he rested with his spurred boots on a reading table. The spurs, in this case, are part of his seat-ejection harness.

"Actually, it's been a fairly dull 200 hours," he said of his flying experience, explain- ing that no accidents have oc- curred.

Summoned as "Pilot 61," Ar- nott reported to Sqdn. Ldr. G. R. W. (Gerry) King of Powell River, B.C., who presided over as operation room where all flights were regulated. "Relax" was printed in large letters on King's door.

Arnott then went along to the "mission planning room" where Sgt. Gerard Amyot, 27, North Bay, Ont., indicated three "tar- gets" on a map, all in West Germany, a flight of 1½ hours from Marville.

Flt. Lt. R. M. Shortill, 27, Edmonton, briefing officer, con- ferred with Arnott as to how he should approach the targets.

"You'll want to go in toward the Rhine," he said, so the sun won't be in your eyes."

ROOM SILENT

The operations room had an atmosphere of controlled ten- sion, although some 30 men were working at top speed, the place was almost silent, the only sound being murmured conversation.

"We've been warned again about shouting in here," one pilot re- marked.

While Arnott worked at his maps—large scale for the main flight, small scale for the tar- gets themselves—Sqdn. Ldr. S. R. MacDonald, 36, Edmonton, breezed through on his third trip of the day. Arnott and MacDonald slashed unneeded parts from their maps in a way that would have shocked Sec- ond World War pilots who pre- served their maps from trip to trip.

"There isn't space in the CF-104 cockpit for yards and yards of maps," one officer ex- plained.

About an hour elapsed be- tween the time Arnott was called to the operations room until his plane went screaming into the skies, shattering the peace of the French country- side.

Every care is taken before takeoff to ensure the pilot will be able to reach his target. A turnaround because of weather would lose points in the exer- cise.

GIVEN TARGETS

"Once the wheels are up, the pilot is charged with three tar- gets whether he can get to them or not," said Wing Cmdr. R. M. Edwards, 37, Winnipeg, chief operations officer. "We try to simulate warfare as closely as possible—it is no good tak- ing off during a war unless you do what you intend to do."

Arriving back just before dusk, Arnott reported he found his three targets. Even before arrival he had given an in-flight report. The Royal Flush pic- tures — drawn from seven countries—would dock points if they found anything on Arnott's photos that he did not mention in the in-flight report.

Arnott, slightly built and easy - going, had a hearty laugh when asked whether he ever is tempted to report things that he hasn't seen — but may appear on his photos—just to be on the safe side.

"The umpires are far too clever for that sort of non- sense," he replied.

have been allowed to cross the picket lines to alleviate serious shortages in those commodities in the Quebec area.

Paul Lachance, president of the Quebec Council of Pulp and Paper Producers, said production will diminish appreciably within the next week if the strike is not settled.

He said some of the producers had been shutting through Port Alfred on the Saguenay River. Other had been shipping by rail to Saint John, N.B., and Hali- fax, for resh ipment to the United States.

Recreation Group Unable To Purchase Armouries

NAPANEE — At a meeting Tuesday evening, the Napanee Recreation Committee decided that it was almost hopeless to try to prevent the dismantling and razing of the local armouries, much as this building is needed for purposes of recreation. The structure can be purchased for $9,000, but canvassing of all other organizations for help in raising this amount has resulted in promises for only $2,000. The committee itself lacks the necessary money, and so is powerless to save the building.

Unless something is done to prevent it, the armouries will be razed to make room for a much-needed Federal building, to house a Post Office as well as all other Federal offices now scattered throughout the town.

Chairman Grant Clark reporting on the annual meeting of the Ontario Recreation Association in Chalk River, said that the name has been changed, and will now be The Ontario Municipal Recreation Association, since all committees must work through their municipalities.

Chairman Clark and Mayor Lorne A. Smart were appointed as delegates to the week-end workshop seminar to be held in Dorset July 8 through July 10.

There was a lengthy discussion regarding the summer playground, and tentative plans were made to have this at the Prince Charles School, as is not a few years. Beginning July 4, it will continue for a month. These plans must meet with the approval of the Public School Board. The secretary was instructed to write to Cecil Baker, chairman of the property committee to ask for that approval.

The secretary, Mrs. Dorothea Waddington, was authorized to make arrangements for the operation of the playground, and to purchase necessary equipment. No leaders were chosen, but the committee hopes to hire three. Several applications were received and considered, and the committee agreed to send three girls to camp Quin-Mo-Lac to take the Department of Education Training program.

Brenda Van Volkenburg of Union Street, Barbara Lowry of Simcoe Street, and Barbara Russell of Donald Street were selected for training but not necessarily as this year's leaders. Training expenses will be met by the committee.

U.C.W. Hear Talk on Life In Trinidad

NAPANEE — Grace Church U.C.W. June meeting was a departure from the usual afternoon meeting with devotional, business, a speaker, and a cup of tea.

The meeting this time began at 1.15, and had a Trinidad setting throughout. Decorations set the stage for the speaker, Dr. R. A. West, a native of Trinidad, and for the luncheon which followed, with all food prepared following genuine Trinidad recipes. It was all of special interest to the ladies, as all units are studying Trinidad this year.

Mrs. Reginald Chapman's unit made arrangements for the meeting, with Mrs. Madge Chambers leader of the unit. Mrs. Lorne Clark responsible for the decorations, and Mrs. F. B. Elliot furnishing many of the ideas, including the recipes, and arranging for the speaker. Mrs. Norman Hulsker son is the president of the organization.

Huge branches of lilacs filled the large room with their perfume. The pillars, wrapped with burlap and topped with huge fern leaves, looked not unlike palm trees. A tiny potted palm together with bowls of tulips, an abundance of pineapples, created the proper setting for the food on the buffet table.

Dr. West, introduced by Mrs. Hutchison, is a graduate of McGill, of Edinburgh, work at Queen's College, Port of Spain, and interned in Switzerland.

He outlined the political background of his country, and described its mixed population, made of native Carib Indians, Negroes, Spaniards, East Indians, Chinese and Anglo-Saxons. Most of the wealth is in the hands of the East Indians, who were brought in to settle the south. Later, the pitch lakes in that area were found to be valuable. The government is unstable, he said, and roads are few and bad. There are no local schools. Parents must send their children hundreds of miles to get them into a school.

Dr. West illustrated his address with slides. Speaking of the carnival costumes he showed on the screen, he said that some of them cost thousands of dollars. There is wealth, but there is as much poverty and ignorance.

L. and A. Assoc. For Retarded Gives Report

NAPANEE — As this is the first year it has canvassed for funds to build a school, the Lennox and Addington Association for the Mentally Retarded, did not set any objective for its "Flowers of Hope" campaign. At Tuesday night's meeting of the committee the treasurer's report showed a bank balance of $3,852.45 and returns are not yet all in. The members were pleased with the public response to their initial appeal.

Mrs. E. Elliott of Odessa who headed the campaign in that area, reported over $800 with Millhaven not yet canvassed. Fritz Juellensen, campaign chairman for part of Ernestown and for North and South Fredericksburg and Adolphustown, turned in $1,040 both these leaders have their own districts and their canvassers.

The meeting was held in the Strath Road School which the committee has leased and will use until the new school is finished. They hope this will be within three years.

Following the meeting, which stressed the success of the appeal, the canvassers were entertained to a turkey buffet supper. The over 30 canvassers were pleased that their efforts should be tangibly recognized in this way.

Hopeful New Talks Will End Strike

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Wednesday the government is hopeful that new discussions being held in Montreal will settle the strike by 4,200 Quebec longshoremen that has tied up the ports of Montreal, Trois-Rivieres and Quebec City.

He said there should be no federal interference pending the outcome of the scheduled afternoon and night meetings "which we hope will be successful."

In Montreal, a spokesman for the International Longshoremen's Association said no meetings were being held with the Shipping Federation of Canada and none was planned. He was surprised by the prime minister's statement.

Labor Minister Nicholson said he is keeping a close watch on the situation.

Michael Starr, former Conservative labor minister, asked whether Mr. Pearson will call both sides in the dispute to Ottawa and establish mediation under Immigration Minister Marchand, who is to head the proposed manpower department.

It was at this point that Mr. Pearson said the government was hoping for a successful outcome of the meetings in Montreal.

QUESTION STOPPED

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, who said the strike "has begun to assume proportions which raise the concept of eternity," tried to get Mr. Pearson whether the government is prepared to impose compulsory arbitration by Parliament.

"No," Mr. Mcllraith replied. Eugene Whelan (L — Essex South) asked whether Mr. Pearson had consulted Prime Minister Wilson of Britain for advice on settling the Quebec strike.

The prime minister did not reply but Mr. Starr interjected: "He should consult somebody."

Lady Seriously Injured in Car Accident

NAPANEE — A Newburgh woman, Mrs. Mabel Emery is in serious condition in the Kingston General Hospital as the result of a car accident about noon Wednesday. Her husband, Wilmot Embury, evidently lost control of the car, which rolled over at least once after going into the ditch.

Mr. Embury, a real estate agent, was injured, but not as seriously as his wife, who has internal and chest injuries.

Constable Moreland of the Napanee detachment of the OPP investigated the accident, which occurred on Highway 401 about one mile west of the Frontenac County boundary road.

Mail Running About 50-50 To Buy Picture

OTTAWA (CP)—Stale Secretary Judy LaMarsh said Wednesday she has received a variety of comment, "all of it hot," about her recent suggestion that the government purchase a $6,000,000 Leonardo da Vinci painting for the National Gallery of Canada.

Miss LaMarsh confided to the Commons broadcasting committee, which is examining her department's spending estimates, that mail coming into her office is running about 50-50 for and against buying the painting.

"The reaction is split both ways. The correspondence is running about half and half, but at least 90 per cent of the people who have spoken to me personally about the idea are for it."

The painting, a portrait of Ginevra da Benci, popularly known as portrait of a woman, is believed to be the work of Leonardo in private hands. It is owned by the Prince of Liechtenstein.

COST $6,000,000?

Miss LaMarsh sets the price of the painting at $6,000,000 or slightly more. Sources here say the prince might be more willing to sell it to the Canadian government than to another buyer.

Both Miss LaMarsh and the gallery's new director, Dr. Jean Sutherland Boggs, say the painting would be an international feature to the gallery, attract thousands of visitors, and give Canadians an art treasure of which they can be proud.

The subject came up in the committee during a wide-ranging discussion of the many departments and agencies which come under the secretary of state's aegis.

Miss LaMarsh said the long-awaited white paper on broadcasting should be presented to the Commons "before the end of the month."

The broadcasting committee expects to issue a full report on the hearings by June 27.

Ottawa at A Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

WEDNESDAY, June 8, 1966

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported seeding in virtually completed in the Prairie grain belt and crop prospects are good.

Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons he hopes a federal mediator will be appointed "without delay" in the wage dispute that could bring a strike of St. Lawrence Seaway workers June 17.

Mr. Sharp said he will seek amendments to extend low taxes on deferred profit-sharing plans and will exempt certain types of investment companies from a special refundable corporation tax.

THURSDAY, June 9

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to continue study of income tax changes. The Senate meets at 3 p.m.

30 Cents of Every Dollar Will be Spent on Health And Welfare Next Year

OTTAWA (CP)—The prospect of medical care insurance on a national basis next year will be a major factor in pushing federal government spending on health and welfare to nearly one-third of all federal outlays, officials estimated Wednesday.

Now existing every other form of federal spending, including defence, by a wide margin, health and welfare will account for more than 30 cents of every dollar spent by the federal government by the coming fiscal year.

Health Minister MacEachen reminded a Commons committee this week that his department now spends 28 cents out of every federal dollar disbursed.

This amounts to $2,300,000,000 a year compared with defence spending of $1,372,000,000—the next largest single spending item.

EXPECT BIG JUMP

Assuming that all or virtually all the provinces accept Ottawa's offer to pay half the cost of provincial medical care insurance premiums, health and welfare spending next year will jump to about $2,800,000,000.

Mr. MacEachen said he is confident that all provinces, except perhaps Alberta, will take up the federal medical care offer with payments from Ottawa starting July 1, 1967.

So federal officials are working on the expectation that another $300,000,000 will be added to their spending programs next year to cover this item.

Officials also anticipate another $20,000,000 will be spent in 1967 in the first year of a 15-year program to expand health facilities such as medical schools.

MORE PENSIONS

Old age pensions of $75 a month cost $1,033,000,000 this year. The bill will rise next year by $100,000,000 as greater numbers qualify. The qualifying age automatically drops to 68 at Jan. 1, 1967, and as growing proportion of the population is in the older age groups.

A re-arrangement of some existing assistance programs such as unemployment assistance, aid to those over 65 who don't yet qualify for old age pensions, allowances for blind and disabled persons, will add a further $85,000,000 next year to the welfare bill.

As the population rises, the cost of family allowances will increase. Next year they'll probably cost another $8,000,000. Youth allowances will go up $2,000,000.

Hospital insurance, a major item at a cost of $382,700,000 in the federal treasury, is expected to cost another $38,000,000.

Business Briefs

RETAIL SALES UP

Retail sales totalled $1,901,130,000 in March, an increase of nearly 4.5 per cent from March sales last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. The boost was largely attributed to the introduction of the higher Ontario retail sales tax starting April 1. Sales in the month before the tax jumped to five per cent from three per cent were up by 22.5 per cent.

WHOLESALE PRICES OFF

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics index of general wholesale prices, based on 1935-39 equalling 100, eased off to 257.9 in April from 258.1 in March, with lower prices for animal products, non-metallic minerals and chemicals. The lower prices for animal products offset prices for vegetable, wood and iron products. The sub-index for nonferrous metals remained unchanged.

Action Only As Last Resort Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — Compulsory legislation to end strikes must be taken only as a last resort to protect the national interest, Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday.

He said in a CBC free-time telecast the Quebec longshoremen's strike and threatened strikes elsewhere deeply concern the government, but the government should exercise collective bargaining.

"Only when the processes of collective bargaining have broken down and the national interest clearly requires it, then, but only then, should government, acting through Parliament, intervene to end a strike.

"But I emphasize this, that such compulsory action, compulsory legislation, must be taken only as a last resort.

"Otherwise, government could be under almost continuous pressure to intervene, to intervene so often that the right of employees and employers to bargain freely and collectively would cease very little."

Mr. Pearson said the government must show patience and wisdom in the face of labor unrest. "The government will not yield to clamor to take unwisely extreme action which would do more harm than good."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has pressed the government every day in the Commons to take action to end the dock strike in three Quebec ports. He often refers to emergency legislation passed in 1950 to stop a railway strike.

Four Aboard Light Plane Said Missing

ALPENA, Mich. (AP)—U.S. Coast Guard and private planes and boats searched Wednesday for a light plane reported missing over Lake Huron with four Fort Wayne, Ind. men aboard.

Coast guard spokesmen said the Piper Comanche was believed to be en route from Canada to Fort Wayne.

Reported aboard the craft were Gordon Banks Jr., Douglas Lawrence, Donald Irwin and Stanley Knapp, all Fort Wayne businessmen returning from a Canadian fishing trip.

Control tower operations at Phelps Collins field, six miles south of here, reported they had picked up a radio distress call from the plane Wednesday.

The coast guard said the plane was believed down in Lake Huron about five miles south of North Point, 18 miles southeast of here.

Famous Test Pilot Never Got to Fly Giant Bomber

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I want to go on flying as long as I live. My farmer boy feet just wouldn't fit well behind a desk."

That was Joseph A. Walker a few months ago, talking about his new assignment to learn to fly the giant XB-70A research bomber.

After pushing a stubby-winged black rocket plane called the X-15 to unprecedented marks of 4,104 miles an hour and 354,200 feet, Walker still was not ready to think of a less dangerous life.

The 45-year-old pilot was a two decades of the toughest kind of test flying behind him. Walker never got to fly the XB-70A.

He was killed Wednesday when his F-104 chase plane hit the 185-foot-long monster's triangular tail and crashed just a week before he was scheduled to go up as his test pilot.

Walker had "perfect chase" several times, zooming within a few feet to check anything suspicious in flight, watching for possible fuel leaks and observing the function of huge air-brake doors feeding the craft's six powerful jets.

Just what happened Wednesday may never be fully known.

Walker's body was found in the F-104. The body of Maj. Carl Cross, the co-pilot, was found in the bomber, which crashed nearby. Al White, the XB-70A pilot, parachuted but was severely hurt.

Police Chiefs Protest Legality Of Children Betting on Horses

TORONTO, Ont. (CP)—Ontario police chiefs covered the best from race tracks to highways Wednesday at the annual meeting of their professional association.

Chief F. W. Illingworth of Hanover told the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police he had seen a 12-year-old boy place a $2 bet at a pari-mutuel window and later collect $300 in winnings.

"We have races in our city Saturday night," he said, "and I have been struck by the sight of children placing bets at the track. It was ridiculous."

He said he consulted the Ontario Racing Commission and was told there is no age limit for betting. The commission agreed in principle that persons under 18 should not be allowed to bet on horses, he added, but it is not a regulation.

The police chief association will vote today on a resolution that the Criminal Code be amended to prohibit children under 18 from betting.

In an earlier session, Joseph L. Mennill, director of the Ontario Police College in Aylmer, urged the group to offer their own opportunities to further their education.

He said that unless such provisions are made, a prospective recruit might choose another profession where he can pursue his studies.

He warned, however, against relaxing too high the academic requirements for admission to the force, saying there is a need for varied abilities among the ranks.

"It is fallacy to maintain there is lack of room at the top," he said. "It would be too easy to get a department with all the potential chiefs and no Indians if you raised your recruiting standards high enough."

Gerald Reed, Hamilton's deputy police chief, asked for announcements to the Highway Traffic Act to require motor vehicle engine blocks to be stamped with serial numbers.

This question also will be voted on today.

He said the Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd., and Chrysler Canada Ltd., discontinued stamping the blocks on 1966 models and General Motors Corp. of Canada is considering the same thing.

"This seriously hampers identification of stolen cars and police investigations," he said. "There is nothing in the Highway Traffic Act at which makers of automobile manufacturers to stamp serial numbers on engine blocks."

About 175 delegates are attending the convention.

Picton Judge Favors Firemen In Decision

TORONTO (CP) — An arbitrator has ruled that Etobicoke Township must stack the Cassels Pension Plan on top of the old pension plan of the township's 252 firemen, despite orders from the provincial government that the two be integrated.

The decision of Judge Wilfrid Lange of Picton, Ont., was made public Wednesday. Judge Lange was appointed arbitrator after the Etobicoke Fire Fighters Association, Local 1337, filed a grievance over the integration of the pension plans.

Judge Lange ordered Etobicoke council to reinstate completely the firemen's pension plan. He said the township had altered the terms of its collective agreement with the firemen by changing their pension plan.

"Irrespective of the pressure the government may place upon it, failing legislation in that behalf, it cannot direct the municipality to change something that has been agreed upon between the municipality and its employees . . . ," the judge said.

CHANGED PLAN

The township, a part of Metropolitan Toronto, had changed the firemen's pension plan to comply with orders from the Ontario government.

The question of stacking versus integrating arose last fall before the introduction of the Canada Pension Plan on Jan. 1. Many municipal and provincial employees wanted to retain their existing pension plans in full and add the federal government plan on top of it. But the province ruled that the Canada Pension Plan must be integrated with existing plans. This meant that an employee who had contributed five per cent of his earnings to a pension fund would continue to do so, while a stacked arrangement would contribute 6.8 per cent and contributions of his employer would be similarly increased.

Western Exports Said Vital To Balanced National Economy

VANCOUVER (CP) — Western Canadian exports onto the world market places mainland the balance of the national economy, municipal leaders were told Wednesday.

And the West is sensitive about this market, Ray Willison, B.C. Hydro and forests minister, told the annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

British Columbia's abundant water, mineral and forest resources make the province geographically peculiar, but not separatist, he said.

"It makes us what we are. We are not 'anti' but we have to look outwards as far as trade is concerned.

"We have to seek out the marketplace of the world in keep the economy going."

British Columbia has little choice in handling her resources, he said.

"You can't take credit for having resources—but you can be damned for not developing them."

INVESTMENT FOREIGN

Germen, Japanese, Swedish, Finnish, American and British firms are investing heavily in the province, but so far only one Eastern Canadian firm had made a major investment in B.C., he said.

Mr. Willison identified the firm as Price Bros. Ltd., which signed an agreement Wednesday with Weldwood of Canada Ltd., to build a $60,000,000 pulp mill at Quesnel.

The forests industry produced products worth $980,000,000 last year, the mining industry $270,000,000, agriculture $150,000,000 and fishing $100,000,000," he said.

"We have only 1,800,000 people here, but we hope that by being rich to play our part in the Confederation of Canada. . . ."

"But Canada must recognize the fact, whether you like it or not, that the balance of the economy of Canada is maintained by the exports of the West."

Mr. Willison spoke in place of Premier W. A. C. Bennett, who had a previous engagement.

During elections, Mayor Stephen Juba of Winnipeg told the convention he would not attend the federation's future conferences.

He said Winnipeg had been slighted by the federation in a situation which started develop-ing years ago, but declined to give details.

The resolution was approved from the floor Wednesday when delegates voted to establish a standing committee on pollution to study, co-ordinate and disseminate material available on anti-pollution projects and devices, and to act as federation advisory to senior governments and related organizations concerned with pollution problems.

The conference concludes today.

Young Brother of JFK May Have Eye on White House

WASHINGTON (CP) — U.S. Senator Robert Kennedy's African safari illustrates how much political horsepower there remains in the family name, at home and abroad.

The assumption here is that the 32-day trip to South Africa and other countries is another step by the younger brother of the late president John F. Kennedy in his quest for the U.S. presidency by 1972, or even sooner.

The reactions of President Johnson and the South African government support that view.

"We will not permit human rights to be restricted in our country," said the president, referring to the 20,000,000 U.S. citizens of African descent. "And we will not support policies abroad which are based on the rule of minorities or the discredited idea that men are unequal before the law."

Some observers saw that American problems have American support for Britain in its dilemma about Rhodesia. Others saw it also as an example of Johnson's tendency to react quickly to what Kennedy says and does.

As for the South African government, it appeared to be torn between extreme reactions about admitting Kennedy at all and anxiety about barring a potential American president.

LECTURES HOME

Thus, while Kennedy has been assailed by the government-lined, and news coverage limited to reporters already in the country, he has been able to lecture South Africa, rather mildly, about its policy of strict racial segregation.

Kennedy has been allowed to see Student Leader Jan Hofmeyr and Chief Albert Luthuli, a 1960 Nobel peace prize winner, although both are in political quarantine. This has not dogs the senator any harm politically, inside or outside the U.S.

Kennedy apparently seems to have captured the leadership of the Liberal wing of the Democratic party, a position he once shared with his chief presidential rival, Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, has to stifle his own liberal background in loyalty to the existing president.

Western Culture Is Luring Soviet Youth

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — Anxiety about ideological shortcomings among young people was a recurring note at the Soviet Communist party's 23rd congress.

It tended to bear out observations frequently made by foreign visitors—that many young Russians seem greatly attracted by things Western and show an un-Communist receptiveness to Western ideas and culture.

"Like a mother who carefully nurtures her children, the party must educate the younger generation," Leonid Brezhnev, party general secretary, said in his opening speech to the congress.

But some of the things Brezhnev and other speakers said indicated mother was not happy with the way the party's educational program was going.

"We have to admit that there are shortcomings in the ideological and educational work among young people," the party chief declared.

"There are cases of certain party and komsomol (Communist youth league) organizations not taking account of the fact that the present generation of young people has not gone through the stern school of revolutionary struggle and hardening that fell to the lot of the older generation.

"Some young people want to remain aloof from a busy life, tend to remain the dependants of others, demand much more from the state but forget their duty to society, their duty to the people.

"Our enemies, the bourgeois ideologists, seek out and try to make use of these weaknings who are susceptible to any ideological infection. Luckily, there are only a few such people among the youth."

ASK FOR GUN

Some of "the few" referred to by Brezhnev are easily visible to foreigners living here, and visitors to any large Russian city.

They approach people from foreign countries, usually on the street and try to get from them clothes, Western records, ballpoint pens, chewing gum and a great number of other things unobtainable here.

One of the ways in which alien influences are introduced into Soviet society is through "foreign, artistic productions, Communist leaders say.

Culture Minister Yekaterina Furtseva hinted in a speech during the congress that these will be screened more closely in the future.

"Reactionary forces try to use cultural bonds for squeezing bourgeois ideology into our country via movies, art exhibitions and concert programs," she declared.

"That's why the remarks made by some delegates are correct—that we should approach more strictly suggestions (for cultural exports to the Soviet Union) that come from abroad."

The final congress resolution contained a strongly - worded statement on the need for special attention to the "Communist upbringing" of Soviet young people.

BORN AFTER REVOLUTION

In the population generally, "a consistent struggle must be waged against indifference to politics, survivals of private-ownership mentality and philistine sentimentia, against manifestations of a nihilist attitude to the ideals and gains of socialism."

The basic problem that preoccupies party leaders is one that several social and political revolution probably encounters sooner or later: How to keep up the revolutionary, most Russians seem to know that living standards here compare unfavorably with those in the West.

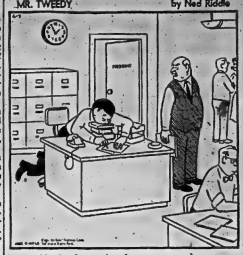
As Brezhnev noted, today's younger generation did not go through "the stern school of revolutionary struggle and hardening." It now is 49 years since the revolution.

Furthermore, the government itself keeps telling the people they have a right to expect—and will get—more of the good things of life after decades of enforced self-denial.

This campaign for better living conditions has caught the imagination of the Russian people. They eagerly await improvements as the regime has to offer them—and are impatient for more.

Somehow, despite years of being conditioned to think differently, most Russians seem to know that living standards here compare unfavorably with those in the West.

Many of those who come in contact with Westerners, and their number is growing with the gradual increase in Russia's tourist trade, have developed something akin to a mania for Western possessions, especially clothes.



Young men and women—and some older ones—consider it the height of fashion to wear an article of clothing from the West.

Rare is the Westerner living here who has not been asked by a Russian acquaintance to bring back some garment from a trip "out," or who has not been offered some outrageously large sum for clothes from his own wardrobe.

As for cultural influences, Russian young people show an obsessive attraction for Western movies, books and music.

"Oh, for heaven's sake—go somewhere and take a nap!"

A popular favor after the revolution itself has faded into the mists of history.

New Insurance For Motorists To Be Added

TORONTO (CP)—By the start of 1968 motorists in Ontario should be able to purchase insurance to compensate themselves and immediate family for bodily injury or death caused by an uninsured driver.

A bill to put the compensation without fault clause in standard insurance contracts was introduced in the legislature Wednesday by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart.

The legislation also proposes a form of deductible liability insurance and the inclusion of medical payment coverage schedules within the standard insurance policy.

Insurance offering compensation regardless of fault will be available only to a driver and his or her spouse and dependents living at home. Other passengers will not be covered.

The insurance companies will not be forced to sell the new form of liability insurance, just as they are not now compelled to sell collision insurance to drivers regarded as bad risks.

ROCKY PASSAGE EXPECTED

The legislation may have a rocky passage through the legislature. Opposition members have been pressing for broad compensation without fault insurance coverage, protecting everyone hurt in an accident.

However, under Mr. Wishart's proposal only the insured driver and his immediate family are protected when there is no right of action against the driver at fault—that is, where he is uninsured and has not paid into Ontario's motor vehicle accident claims fund as required by law.

Coverage will include damages such as medical expenses; loss of wages and other out-of-pocket expenses; general damages for pain, suffering and future disability and legal costs.

The new legislation makes provision for side agreements between the insurer and the insured whereby the person buying insurance can agree to reimburse the insurance company by an agreed amount for third-party liability claims.

CALLS FOR SETTLEMENT

BRUSSELS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Paul Martin of Canada called on Turkey and Greece Wednesday to make sure the new talks on Cyprus "do not fail this time." He asked them bluntly to seek an "accommodation," noting that Canada's 900 men make up the largest segment of the United Nations peacekeeping force on Cyprus.

Toronto Is Assured of Big-city Size So Now It Wonders About Character

By R. J. ANDERSON

TORONTO (CP) — To be great, a city should have size, a reason for being, character.

If sheer size will do, Toronto is determined to be one of the world's great cities. As a leading commercial centre and a major port, it has a reason for being. Now it's wondering, a little, about its character.

Not without a struggle the city that, in the beginning, was Teiaiagon, on the east bank of the Humber, has thrown away much of its past. It looks forward to a population of 4,500,000 by the year 2000 and is rebuilding for the 21st century.

Less than a generation ago it was said Toronto never tore anything down. But in 20 years, downtown Toronto has changed. In the march of progress, much of its historical architecture has gone down under the wrecker's hammer.

Antiquated 19th-century office buildings and town houses have been replaced by soaring towers and sweeping high-rise apartments. Street names cherished for a hundred years or more have disappeared. Old Fort York, going back to the beginnings of British settlement, was in the path of a proposed expressway. It barely survived.

SAVE CITY HALL

Now a determined group cries "halt!" A vocal minority, banded together as Friends of the Old City Hall, they include architects and town planners, ordinary citizens of the restless city and influential personages such as Vincent Massey, former governor-general.

Their objective is to save the old city hall, the bulking Gothic structure that for 67 years has brooded over the city at the top of downtown Bay Street. It stands in the way of the most ambitious expansion program any single organization has undertaken anywhere.

This is the Eaton Centre, a $260,000,000 six-building complex breathtaking in its aspirations: A 49 - storey office-apartment building; twin 57-storey office towers; an office building of 32 storeys; a doughnut - shaped 500-room convention hotel and a nine-floor department store with two underground levels of shopping space. Treed plazas and walkways and underground concourses will abound. It will take 25 years to complete.

The master plan envisages demolition of all but one building in the 20½ acres of old warehouses and stores bounded by Yonge, Queen, Bay and Dundas streets. The centre would front on Nathan Phillips Square, named after the mayor who pushed through the new, futuristic city hall against stiff opposition. The square itself is to be changed beyond recognition in the next decade at a cost estimated at $30,000,000.

CHURCH TO REMAIN

A little bit of Toronto's history would be retained. It is the 120-year-old Church of the Holy Trinity, now buried in a cul-de-sac off Yonge Street. Many who work downtown don't know it is there. The half-concealed towers of the church would be seen again against the city skyline and it would be surrounded by open space, trees and pleasant walkways.

Eaton's has offered $8,000,000 for the old city hall to permit erection of one of its 57-storey buildings. It would keep the 300-foot-high clock-tower, a downtown landmark, and the cenotaph that stands before it. Now its plans have been stalled, perhaps for months. Metropolitan Council voted overwhelmingly in April that the firm take a second look at the proposal. The Friends had won at least the first stage in the battle.

Proponents of the plan attack the old building as an architectural monstrosity, grotesque in the modern age, and say that its only important link with the past is that a member of the board of control once punched a mayor in the nose in its council chamber.

LAND VALUABLE

Opponents, apart from trying to preserve a piece of civic history, contend that $8,000,000 isn't enough for one of the most valuable pieces of real estate in Toronto. They also contend that the centre would dwarf the new city hall across the street and make it look insignificant.

The new city hall is the 25-storey, semi - circular twin-tower skyscraper, built at a cost of $30,000,000, that was opened last year. It's familiarly known to Torontonians as the "oyster shell" for that's what it resembles.

While the outcome of the Eaton Centre-vs.-city hall controversy remains in doubt, building goes on apace elsewhere in the metropolitan area, where in 1965 expenditure in new construction, both private and public, totalled $1,500,000,000. It's forecast to rise to $1,750,000,000 this year.

Private investment funds have been attracted to the city which many consider the financial capital of Canada. Including the Eaton Centre, an estimated $825,000,000 will be spent in the next decade in the downtown area alone, to be given a complete facelifting.

The most spectacular project under way is the Toronto-Dominion Bank Centre. This is a 56-storey office building, a 44-storey companion and a modest, one - storey banking hall on King Street between Bay and York streets. It will be — for a little while — the Commonwealth's tallest building. It will be opened in July, 1967.

The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce has plans to match the Toronto - Dominion Centre. It's said to be watching the real estate market closely and when it moves, will undertake something spectacular. A factor that real estate experts say the bank is keeping in mind is the availability of space on Bay Street that will be opened up next year when the Toronto-Dominion Centre takes in companies seeking "prestige" quarters in the centre.

Then there's the Marvo waterfront project, this is a huge apartment - hotel - office complex costing an estimated $85,000,000 that will rise over-looking Toronto Bay, on the city's waterfront between Yonge and Bay streets.

It envisages high-rise apartments, a hotel, an apartment hotel, a trade centre, recreational facilities and parking for 4,000 automobiles. As part of the deal the company agrees to build a $200,000 terminal for ferries to Toronto Islands across the bay.

SIMPSON'S TO BUILD

Construction got to the point where the first, tentative steps were taken to put in footings. Then the development company ran into financial difficulties and the Molson Development Co. of Montreal took it over. It has promised to push it to completion.

In being and almost ready for opening is the 30-storey Yorkdale Rotenberg building on Adelaide Street and under construction is the 25-storey Robert Simpson tower, across the street from Eaton's, that will cost $20,000,000.

There are many other projects, under way or planned, throughout Metropolitan Toronto which now has a population of just under 2,000,000. It is attracting an estimated 70,000 to 80,000 newcomers every year, from elsewhere in Canada and from Europe.

Why all the construction?

Allan T. Lambert, 55-year-old Regina-born president of the Toronto-Dominion bank, said investors are looking to the future and added in an interview: "We are prepared to take something more than a short-range view in looking for a rewarding investment."

David Owen, 38, Vancouver-born lawyer - turned - developer who as managing director of Eaton Centre is the dynamo behind that project, put it more succinctly:

"We're building Toronto for the 21st century."

PICTON: — Nostalgia sweeps over Art Asbury, holder of two world power-boat racing records, like a flood whenever he views the gently-rippled waters at Harwood Beach, Prince Edward county's internationally-famous nautical raceway.

Art, who hails from Dwight, Ont., holds the current world record of 253.7 mph. for seven-litre boats (427.161 cubic inches). He set a world mark of 184.5 for unlimited hydroplanes back in 1957.

ART ASBURY

He hopes to be at the throttle of one of the seven-litre lightweight hellions at the Picton Edward Yacht Club's July 1, 2 and 3rd limited world championship regatta when the start-gun explodes.

His targets are a new world record and the first winner of the beautiful Maple Leaf Trophy emblematic of the limited craft global title.

There is a deeply ironical touch to the story of Asbury's association with Harwood Beach.

Back in 1937 it was known as "The Long Reach" later to become famous as the setting for Canada's successful double defence of the Harmsworth Trophy.

At that time with but nine years racing experience, Art was climbing slowly but surely to the top ten of international power-boat drivers.

He was associated with Col. Gordon Thompson and his son Jim, of London, Ontario who later designed and built "Miss Supertest III" now in a museum as undefeated Harmsworth Trophy champion.

The Thompson racing team was here to test the racing capabilities of an older "sister" of the future Harmsworth champion which was destined to play a tragic role later on the Detroit river.

Art took "Miss Supertest II" down course for the start. On shore near the pits stood an apple-cheeked young man, eyes glistening with pride. He was also a driver later to become a world champion. His name was Bobby Hayward.

Neither of the two human actors in this raceway drama knew that over the distant horizon of time, Death lurked waiting the opportune moment to strike.

The Grim Reaper chose his victim in 1963. Bobby Hayward went to his death driving the best he had helped service to win a world title for Asbury. "Miss Supertest II" was the casket.

Success after success came to Asbury after his first world title. Nine times he has won the high-points crown. He set a Canadian record for .256 hydroplanes at a speed of 130 mph. Twice he has won the United States national title for seven-litre craft. He met and defeated the best the Americans had at San Diego, California winning the world title by, as was noted 157.3 mph.

He is the only Canadian to be presented with the World Medal of Honor for racing drivers.

And any resemblance racing driving has to rocking chair comfort is purely a figment of the imagination. Asbury has "crashed" not a few times. He was tossed out of the boat at Ford Memorial Regatta at Detroit suffering light injuries. He broke his back in another smash-up and was fast out of the cast when he won one of his U.S. national titles.

One of his worst spills came when his boat disintegrated at 120 mph. while racing in the Orange Bowl Regatta at Miami.

But he loves it. He feels more at home and a lot safer at the throttle of a racing boat than at the wheel of his automobile.

"A racing course" he said, "is not half as dangerous as a highway. In a boat you have only ten or eleven guys to watch. In your car there are 50,000 you have to steer clear of."

Nine entries for the World championship "Maple Leaf Trophy" event have been received thus far by Yacht Club Commodore John Harrodsett racing committee. Three comprise the best in Canada and the United States.

The three-days regatta also features other rated races and a special Grand Prix. Friday July 1st sees qualification heats and elimination races. The finals will be run off on Sunday on the same course that featured the Harmsworth events.

NFL - AFL Join ★★★★★ ★★★★★ Form Gigantic League

US Football Merger Ends Bonus Era

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The National and American Football leagues have joined in a merger plan that will produce a gigantic 26-team league and end an era that turned college glamour boys into instant millionaires.

The union of the 15-team NFL and the nine-team AFL took place at a hastily-called ceremony Wednesday that ended their bitter six - year battle.

"It looks like I graduated just in time," said Joe Namath, New York Jets' $400,000 quarterback and the original instant millionaire.

"I think large contracts will be harder to come by for everybody without the competition between the leagues."

"I guess you'd have to say I just got in under the wire," said Mike Garrett, the Heisman Trophy winner from Southern California who signed for a reported $300,000 with Kansas City Chiefs. "I'm sure lucky."

PLAYOFF THIS YEAR

A title game will take place at the end of this season and will mark the first time teams from the two leagues will meet on the playing field. The NFL and AFL will hold their separate title games before meeting in the world championship games.

That was one of the key items listed in the plans announced Wednesday that eventually will expand the new league to 28 teams in 35 cities by 1970, under the supervision of Pete Rozelle, now the NFL commissioner.

The major points, besides the champion game, on which the two leagues reached agreement were:

—All existing franchises will be retained and no franchises will be transferred from their present locations.

—Until 1970 when all existing contracts expire and a single schedule is drawn up, the two leagues will continue to operate separately.

—While the leagues still are operating individually, they will not be permitted to engage in inter-league trading of players.

—Two new franchises for a total of 26 will be added no later than 1968, one in each league, and two more teams will be added as soon as practical after that.

—The two leagues will conduct a common draft following the 1966 season.

—The leagues will begin playing inter - league exhibition games before the 1967 season.

There will be continued two network television coverage.

In addition, the plan calls for over a 30-year period, plus the money received from the addition of the two new franchises holders.

The peace plan was seen as a victory for both leagues.

The NFL will be paid a total that will reach in the neighborhood of $36,000,000,000 when the money from the new franchises is added.

The six-year-old AFL ends its long search for recognition and a claim to parity with the 44-year-old NFL.

And both leagues cut off the multi - million dollar war for player talent, ended the escalating raiding battle and insured themselves of additional revenue through the championship game meeting.

Rozelle, flanked by Tex Schramm, owner of the NFL's Dallas Cowboys and Lamar Hunt of the AFL's Kansas City Chiefs, appeared at a midtown hotel to answer questions about the merger.

Asked why the AFL had to pay the NFL, Rozelle said:

"A portion of it must go to the New York Giants and San Francisco 49ers for encroachment on their territorial agreements. We did the same for Washington when we moved a franchise into Baltimore."

Rozelle was making reference to the fact that the NFL Giants and AFL Jets and the 49ers and the AFL's Oakland Raiders share the same market.

In addition, Rozelle said, "Our owners felt that in recognizing and joining with AFL teams, we were adding value to their franchises."

Rozelle also left no doubt that any player contracts signed with rival leagues for 1967 would be voided under the terms of the agreement which stipulates that there can be no inter-league trades before 1970.

S. Warner Blanks Cheesemen

Scoring in each of the first four innings, Stewart Warner whitewashed Black Diamond Cheese 7-0 to tighten their grip on top spot in the Commercial Softball League standing last night.

Junior Day checked the Cheesemen on four hits over the route. He struck out five and issued one free ticket.

Ken Levack fanned five - hit ball in a losing cause, striking out a pair and walking the same number. Five errors proved costly.

Lyle Weissmasker sparheaded the Stewart Warner attack. He cracked a pair of doubles and a single, driving in two runs. Junior Day helped his own cause with a double and battery - mate Claude Carr contributed the other base hit.

Jack Douglas banged out a pair of Black Diamond hits while Jack Francis bit a double and Bob Jones a single.

The winners combined their five hits with untimely Cheesemen errors to build the score. Black Diamond 000 000 0 0-4-5
Stewart Warner 132 100 x 7-6-3

Batteries: K. Levack and R. Jones; J. Day and C. Carr.

Wrestling Friday Night

The "Cash" will be on the line tomorrow night at Memorial Arena.

Not the long green but a clever wrestler called Billy Cash who made a hit with fans at the opener last week.

Cash hails from Corinth C'lins and teams up with the Hollywood, California blonde, Golden Boy Dupree in a main bout tag team battle.

They're up against a couple of tough chunks of wrestling beef in Terry Gervin the 220-Boston beef baby and his corner buddy Harry Fox from Hamilton who tips the scales at 231.

This Monster, the hot grappler from Puerto Rico pilot mate is bit heavy for the semi-final tangling with a tough French - Canadian Rene Delue, 216, from Montreal.

New York's Bill Williams and Don Juan of Vancouver book up in what is expected to be a fast and furious preliminary.

The card gets under way at 8 p.m. instead of 8.30 as announced last week.

National Hockey League
New Clubs' Player Draft Big Problem

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League board of governors next week vote on the formula for the 1967-68 expansion draft, extended televised coverage of league and playoff games in the United States, and a proposal to make the annual all-star game a mid-season affair.

In addition, the governors at their meeting will also discuss current draft procedure and the rule book.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, said only governors of the current six clubs will vote on the 10-48 seat decisions, although owners of the six new U.S. clubs joining the league in 1967-68 will be in attendance.

Biggest question is how many players the new clubs will be able to draft from the six original clubs to get their operation under way.

In an interview Wednesday Campbell said: "If this can't be decided, then we'll have to hold a special meeting to settle the problem."

He said the formula for drafting players to the new clubs has been approved in principle, with only the number involved to be settled.

The new clubs — Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Los Angeles, San Francisco-Oakland and Minneapolis-St. Paul—paid a $2,000,000 entrance fee, which includes the rights to players to stock their teams.

SEEK U.S. PUBLICITY

To bring hockey to the U.S. public's attention before the actual expansion date, the NHL will prepare a proposal to the National Broadcasting Co. whereby the U.S. network will televise on a national scale about 10 of the regular season games plus the playoffs in the coming season.

Those likely to be televised are Sunday afternoon games," Campbell said.

The network picked up four playoff games this spring on Sunday afternoons.

No price had been set for the package. If an agreement was reached it would not interfere with the league's current contracts with Canadian TV networks.

The annual all - star game, which features the league's top players against the current Stanley Cup champions, will be moved from the mid-week spot just before the season opens to sometime in January, Campbell said. This shift is expected to fit in with other league television plans.

In the league draft this year, each club will be required to protect at least 18 players plus three goaltenders. Boston Bruins and New York Rangers, who finished fifth and sixth respectively in last season, will protect 19 and 20 plus their three netminders.

Campbell said the reason for protecting three goalies this year is that for the 1967 draft, each of the current clubs will lose two netminders to one of the new entrants.

PICK UP PLAYER

A club losing a man in the draft will be allowed to pick up the player dropped from the protected list by drafting him and place him on its reserve list at the regular $30,000 draft price.

However, the player placed on the reserve list would still be subject to the draft and would no longer be considered a protected player.

Campbell said the reason for this move is to create balance in the league before next season's drainage of talent to the six new clubs.

The league president said the rules committee will take a stern look at regulations governing penalties to a player who removed a broad skate he leg penalized and before play has resumed. He said it had been recommended that such an infraction might possibly be treated by a match misconduct penalty.

The meeting will also discuss the current — American agreement and a committee presentation of the Stanley Cup.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A free-for-all broke out Wednesday night during a professional soccer match between Bayern Munchen of Germany and Glasgow Celtics.

The match, which ended 2-2, was halted for seven minutes, more than 1,000 of the 13,000 spectators swarmed onto the field.

A pileup of players occurred late in the second half after Bobby Lennox of Celtics pounded a loose ball to score for the Scots' first goal. Players battled for several minutes, but no one was seriously hurt.

Hot Tigers Nudging Tribe, Orioles

Kaline Top Cat

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The pennant - hungry Detroit Tigers are making some noise in the American League race now that their big gun, Al Kaline, is taking a former toehold at the plate.

Kaline was in a Baltimore grade school in 1945 when Hank Greenberg, then Detroit's hot shot gunner, came out of the Army and homered the Tigers into the World Series. They haven't won a league title since.

Kaline, who underwent surgery for a foot malfunction last fall, hammered two homers and drove in three runs as Detroit edged Boston Red Sox 5-4 Wednesday night. The veteran outfielder kept his team in the game until Don Wert walked with the bases filled in the 11th, forcing in the winning run.

The other games were close, too. Cleveland Indians edged New York Yankees 2-1, Baltimore Orioles beat Washington Senators 8-5 in 14 innings, Kansas City Athletics defeated Minnesota Twins 5-4 and California Angels blanked Chicago White Sox, 1-0.

Kaline's performance lifted his totals to eight homers and 24 runs batted in and increased his batting average to .291. He hit .251 last season when the Tigers finished fourth.

The victory was the Tigers' seventh in their last eight games and enabled them to remain only one game back of Cleveland and Baltimore. The Indians lead by six percentage points.

Sam McDowell, making his first appearance in two weeks, enabled the Indians to maintain their slim league lead.

The Yanks scored their only run in the seventh when Roger Maris singled and scored on Joe Pepitone's double. The Indians picked up their first run in the second on doubles by Max Alvis and Joe Azcue. The second run came in the fourth when Fred Whitfield angled, stole second and later scored when Azcue grounded into a double play.

Baltimore's victory in the first game of a twi - night doubleheader was the result of 14th inning doubles by Luis Aparicio and pinch hitter Camilo Carreon. The second game was suspended because of Baltimore's city curfew with the Senators leading 5-4 after five innings. It will be continued before tonight's regularly scheduled game.

Pitcher Fred Talbot hit a two-run double in a four-run sixth inning that lifted Kansas City to its triumph over the Twins.

Lefty George Brunet pitched a two-hitter for the Angels, California snapped Jack Lamabe's scoreless streak at 25 innings in the seventh.

Lamabe had pitched a one-hitter and a three-hitter in recording shutouts in his two previous games.

No Word On Clay Appeal

FORT KNOX, Ky. (AP)—The director of Kentucky's selective service said Wednesday he has received no word that Cassius Clay's draft appeal was rejected.

"If the appeals board had acted on the heavyweight champion's case, I'm sure we would be notified," said Col. Everett Stephenson.

There had been reports that Clay's appeal as a conscientious objector had been rejected tentatively and his file sent to the U.S. Justice department in Washington.

"It's normal procedure for the department to review such cases," said Stephenson. "After reviewing the appeal, the justice department makes a recommendation then returns the file to the appeals board for final action. The board is not bound by the recommendation."

EX-BOXER DIES

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Eddie O'Dowd, a contender for the flyweight boxing title in the 1920s, died at his home Tuesday. He was 67. O'Dowd fought Johnny Buff for the flyweight title in Madison Square Garden in 1931 but lost by a decision.

Aaron Belts Pair; Marichal Loses 2nd

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

THEY'RE PULLING HIS LEG — Jackie Parker, veteran quarterback for Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League's eastern conference, says he's determined to play again next season despite a leg injury last year. He is working out with leg-weights regularly in an effort to bring the leg around. "If it keeps coming along as it has," he said Tuesday, "I see no reason why I won't be able to play this season." (CP Wirephoto)

Hank Aaron's appetite is improved—and so is his home run hitting.

The Milwaukee Braves star who says a minor internal operation in the off-season enabled him to gain weight, continued his homer assault Wednesday night by belting a pair, one with the bases loaded, as the Braves beat New York Mets 7-6.

Aaron now has a major league-leading 20 homers and 48 runs batted in. His highest homer (46) and rbi (128 totals were in 1957, the year he was named most valuable player.

Houston Astros beat San Francisco Giants 6-1 and next Juan Marichal to his second straight defeat, Chicago Cubs trounced Los Angeles Dodgers 8-1, St. Louis Cardinals walloped Pittsburgh Pirates 10-5 and Philadelphia Phillies outslugged Cincinnati Reds 10-8 in other action.

Aaron got his bases-empty homer in the first inning and put the Braves ahead 5-0 with his grand slam in the third. He also doubled home his sixth run of the game in the fifth and added a single, giving him a 4-for-5 night and raising his average to .296.

Mack Jones hit his sixth homer for the Braves in the seventh, and it proved to be the winner when Chuck Hiller belted a pinch-hit homer for the Mets in the ninth.

Trailing 1-0, Houston broke loose for four runs in the sixth against Marichal, the Giants' 10-game winner. John Bateman's two-run single climaxed the outburst.

Randy Hundley's first major league grand slam highlighted a five-run fourth inning against Los Angeles' Don Drysdale who almost tying to even his record at 5-5.

Julian Javier led the Cardinal attack with a homer, triple and single and three rbi. Willie Stargell hit his 10th homer for the Pirates and added a double and single.

Philadelphia got a three-run homer from Tony Gonzalez, a two-run homer from Richie Allen and a homer - empty blast by Clay Dalrymple in outslugging Cincinnati. The Reds got a two-run homer from Dick Simpson and homer - empty blasts by Deron Johnson and Jim Coker.

Spurs Blank Coast Stars

VANCOUVER (CP) — England's Tottenham Hotspur avenged a nine-year-old defeat against the British Columbia All-Stars by defeating them 3-0 in an exhibition soccer game before 8,919 fans here Wednesday night.

It was control throughout the game, Tottenham scored two first half goals and added the third midway through the second half.

The result avenged a defeat inflicted on the English squad on its last trip here in 1957 when the all-stars won 2-0.

Hurler Tosses Perfect Game

It was the first perfect game here since Ray Judd did the trick in 1959. Fife fanned 16 and didn't allow a ball to leave the infield as his club, Georgies, shut out Chilled Electrical Workers 2-0.

It was Fife's second no-hitter in three years. He had one in a 13-inning game in 1964.

N. Electric Club Holds Fish Derby

Ted Hurst, well-known umpire, had no complaints on a perfect strike he called near Madoc.

The "strike" yielded the largest fish, an eight-pound pickerel, caught in the annual fishing derby of the Northern Electric Club.

Dick Rossite looked at Hurst's catch with some envy. He took the prize for the smallest haul, a three-ounce walleye.

The award for the largest pickerel went to Max McGuire with a two, three-quarter pound catch.

Jan Durant took home a tackle box donated by Bob Haist of Bob's Sport Shop.

Fight Drums Rattle

NEW YORK (CP) — George Chuvalo of Toronto has arrived here to begin training for his 10-round heavyweight fight with

GEORGE CHUVALO

Argentine Oscar Bonavena at Madison Square Garden June 23.

The 29-year-old Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, who has knocked out 28 of his 35 opponents, says he will shortly enter a gym with the television cameras and begin training.

Chuvalo said, "If they don't enforce the rules, the referee is going to have one helluva night's work."

When told about Chuvalo's squawk, Bonavena said:

"Isn't this the guy who bit (Cassius) Clay under the belt at least 150 times? For the first time Chuvalo has a man in front of him who can knock him out. He knows that. That's why he's looking for help."

FINAL GAME ADJOURNED

MOSCOW (AP)—Tigran Petrosian and Boris Spassky adjourned the final game of their 24-game series for the world chess title on the 41st move Wednesday. Petrosian, the defending champion, already has clinched the crown. The final game was an exhibition.

Canadian Grid Officials

Hail US Merger As "Break"

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Merger of the National and American football leagues has hailed Wednesday as a "break for Canadian football teams bidding for United States college talent, but Hamilton Tiger-Cat manager J. G. (Jake) Gaudaur wasn't impressed.

"It's not going to get us players we couldn't get before," he said in Hamilton just after the two U.S. pro leagues announced plans for the formation of a single league by 1970.

Most other Canadian officials, however, predicted the merger will bring an end to the bidding war between the two U.S. leagues for college talent, making it possible for Canadian clubs to compete financially.

"Instead of getting caught between two bidders, we'll just be bidding against one group," said Lew Hayman, managing director of Toronto Argonauts. Hayman said the recent bonus war between the NFL and AFL left Canadian teams "caught in the squeeze" in the race for college prospects.

"Any player they (the NFL and AFL) want, they'll still be able to get," said Canadian. "I really don't see any great difference. The biggest benefit is the stabilization it brings to pro football."

WILL BE 28 TEAMS

The U.S. merger calls for 26 teams to operate in 25 cities with plans for additional clubs.

In Montreal, an unnamed spokesman for the Alouettes said the U.S. bonus battle "was getting ridiculous for awhile. We just couldn't compete with them. Now we should have more chances to draft good college prospects."

In Ottawa, Red O'Quinn, general manager of the Rough Riders, said the merger would end "a personal war threatening to seriously affect" the Canadian Football League.

He cited as the key feature of the merger a single draft of college players every year, ending competition between the U.S. leagues that has helped shoot contract prices sky-high. In addition, some U.S. players were reported prepared to play out their options to accept CFL offers from rival leagues.

"If there is no respect of one another's option clauses in the U.S.," said O'Quinn, "they will certainly have no respect for ours. At least there is some sanity showing in this crazy, mixed - up ballabaloo between the two leagues."

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

DOES YOUR DIVOT MARK LOOK LIKE THIS?

Please note the divot mark shown in illustration No. 1. (The ball has been driven in the area it occupied before the shot was made.) Does it look familiar?

This divot mark indicates that the clubhead was moving from outside to inside the target line during impact. If the clubface had been pointing to the left of the target when it struck the ball, a pull or a pull-hook to the left would have occurred. If the clubface was pointing at the target, a sliced shot would have resulted.

If you suffer from such bad shots, and if your divots resemble the one pictured, you probably have not lowered your right shoulder properly on your downswing. Note in No. 2 how my right elbow has returned to my right side and my right shoulder lowered. Such shoulder movement will help keep the clubhead inside the target line and preclude any outside-inside divot marks.

Reformed Rock 'n' Roller Makes Switch to Theatre

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Can a reformed rock 'n' roller turn his back on a half-million a year and be accepted as an actor? Tommy Sands is going to find out.

In the case of Tommy Sheik, the answer is a resounding yes.

In terms of pop music chronology, Tommy was a flop-haired song belter who was among the first to evoke screeches from teen-age types in Britain. Now at 23 he has left behind the rock 'n' roll business, and his first picture is a switch on the whole rock 'n' roll business.

"The audiences who caught my act understood the satire, but the record buyers thought I was playing it straight. All of a sudden I was a bloomin' second cross."

But screaming fans and annual earnings of $300,000 were not enough to please him. A chance to play in the future gave him the shudders, and he was determined not to become a rocking has-been.

"That was why I entered my wilderness period, when who knows what," Tommy explained. "I left the business behind and went off to Australia to attempt a whole new career. I did a half-hour show of songs as I wanted to sing them.

"I realized I would need more background if I was to succeed in the things I wanted to do. So I went back to London, joined the repertory at the Old Vic, and studied dancing. Then came another wilderness period, when I had trouble convincing producers I was not just a straight actor."

He finally succeeded and was cast as the ambitious Kipps in the London musical, Half A Sixpence. The ebullience of his personality, plus the skill of his singing and dancing, helped him get the show to hit ranks, and Tommy repeated his triumph in New York.

Disney sent for Tommy as a possibility for the Irish brother in The Happiest Millionaire. Flying to Hollywood on a Sunday with his wife, Tommy put on a four-hour show in the Disney living room. He explained exactly how his part could be improved.

"I went back to Hair & Sixpence and thought no more about it," he related Tommy. "Three months later I received a letter outlining the changes I had suggested and how they would be injected in the script."

Tommy also has a three-picture deal with Paramount, starting with HaM A Six-pence. He is out of the wilderness now.

AT THE PARK — "Mr. Soul" Ray Charles and his Band, Alan's newest Record artists, since its American International "The Big T.N.T. Show" opens for its first showings. On the same program is color "Bikini Beach" starring Frankie Avalon and Annette Funicello. Two big show starts at 7:30 with "Bikini" at 7:30 and "T.N.T. Show" at 9:55 p.m.

Moving Morality Tale Of Diamond Draws Tears

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Apprehensive little Cathy Brown came back to CBS Wednesday night in a moving parable of the diamond.

And there wasn't a dry eye in my house when his loyal teammates made for him a lovely baseball uniform from Linus' pale blue blanket.

Charlie, sensitive, loyal and unlikely hero, and his fellow friends were first introduced to the television audiences in a special last Christmas. But long before that, artist Charles Schulz had built a legion of friends for the characters in his cartoon strip.

They were all there—musical Schroeder, Pig-Pen, the aggressive Lucy, The story centred on Charlie's team — five boys, three girls and "a dog who can't throw"—which had lost 990 games and won none. Worse, the team's foes are discouraged and disgusted that the girls and even Snoopy the dog care about it to give up baseball for rope-skipping, skate-boarding, even surfing in a plastic pool.

At that point, a stave owner offered to put the all-stars into a league and even give them uniforms—but not if there were girls and a dog on the team. They were barred from league play.

Did Charlie abandon his faithful dog and the little girls who were so mean to him? No sir, he quietly spurned the offer, only to suffer a lot more abuse until his loyalty was uncovered. The tale was told again with charm, heightened by the use of real children's voices for the cartoon characters and a delightful musical score. It was a short program of gentle wit and infinite affection and sincerity.

Shipwrecked, on NBC's Bob Hope Theatre was an odd story about an emotionally disturbed soldier and a drunken sailor who found new lives and each other when stranded on a Pacific Island paradise.

Jason Robards Jr., who played the sailor in the one-character drama, had an actor's field day.

But the script, which at one point had Robards starting toward the sky and bargaining with his creator, seemed pretty far-fetched.

ACTOR INJURED

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Actor Edward G. Robinson, 72, was seriously injured Wednesday when his car jumped a curb and struck a tree. He suffered head, wrist and facial injuries. Police said Robinson told them he thinks he fell asleep while driving.

"The Big T.N.T. Show" Opens Today

A romping bash of boss music—"The Big T.N.T. Show", a hoedown, hootenanny, jam session and go go jump all wrapped into one opens here today as a theatrical special starring a dozen of the world's top recording artists at the Park Theatre.

A second hit is last year's T.A.M.I. Show which broke box office records throughout the country, "The Big T.N.T. Show" is a 90-minute festival of rock 'n roll, country-western, traditional blues, and folk-rock the most popular music styles of the day.

Larks Sign 8 Players

MONTREAL (CP) — Darrell Mudra, head coach of Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference, announced Wednesday that eight more players, including Tony Pajchrowski, had signed contracts for the 1966 season.

Pajchrowski, 30, was an offensive guard with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference before being obtained by Montreal last month in a seven-player trade involving four teams.

The other players who signed for the coming season were Bernie Faloney, George Bork, Larry Fairbairn, Larry Tomlinson, Jim Walker, Bill Ferguson and Jim Greenwood.

Greenwood, 22, a six-foot-four, 230-pound lineman, was Montreal's No. 1 college draft choice. He played for Queen's University, Kingston, the last three years.

TORONTO (CP) — Joe Cassan had an 18-hole score of 88 Wednesday in a company golf tournament.

He's 92.

"I don't play much any more," Cassan said, who had matched or bettered his age several times since first turning the trick when he was 77. And when he plays now, he breaks 90.

"I used to play steadily around 80," he said. "But my game is finesse, chipping and putting. If you don't play a lot, you can't keep the score down."

Seaver, who won his first three starts of the season, gave up five hits and four runs and committed two errors while losing his fourth straight.

He was taken out of the game after facing three batters in the fourth inning.

Elsewhere, Columbus Jets downed Rochester Red Wings 3-0 before losing the second game of the doubleheader 7-4, and Toledo Mud Hens accepted four double plays en route to a 2-0 victory over Syracuse Chiefs. A scheduled game between Richmond Braves and Buffalo Bisons was rained out after 4½ innings.

Misunderstandings 'Surely Besetting Danger Of World' Says Queen Elizabeth

LONDON (CP) — Misunderstandings are "surely the besetting danger of the world in which we live" Queen Elizabeth said today in her message for Commonwealth Day, Saturday.

Beginning this year, Commonwealth Day will be celebrated annually in Britain on the Queen's official birthday, which this year falls on June 11, instead of the May 24 birthday of Queen Victoria, formerly observed as Empire Day.

This is the second year that the Queen, as head of the Commonwealth, has issued a message for Commonwealth Day and she opened her statement by referring to her visit in 1963 that "we should seek every opportunity to get to know one another better."

"I am sure that this is the best way to avoid false impressions and misjudgements," she said. "When you know people well, you are unlikely to misunderstand them. Misunderstandings are surely the besetting danger of the world in which we live.

"In the Commonwealth we have a group of nations amounting to a fifth of the world's people. Each nation belongs in this group through its own choice. It chooses to belong, because it common factor. Each has passed through periods of test, seen in the Commonwealth a great co - operative effort for peaceful development, to which it wishes to contribute and from which it hopes to benefit. Because our association is voluntary and spontaneous, we all rejoice when we can find common ground and we are distressed when differences arise.

"When we look back into history at great causes that have triumphed, we always find one when doubt, fear and conflicting interests have threatened to bring its progress to a stop; and then, because those with clear eyes and steel hearts held fast to their vision, it survived, grew in intensity in men's hearts and flourished.

"Faith, loyalty and steadfastness of purpose are the essence of success. The ultimate ambitions which link us together are freedom and fullness of life and the realization of man's dignity and purpose. It is the constant pursuit of these common aims that today I commend to you all, as partners in an enterprise which will influence for good the future of the human race."

This year, for the first time, the Joint Commonwealth Societies Council, which is responsible for the central celebration of Commonwealth Day in London, has arranged for a multi-religious service at St. Martin-in-the-Fields, Trafalgar Square, Saturday. The Queen and Prince Philip will be present.

Premier To Meet Johnson

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage meets Daniel Johnson next Tuesday to set a date for the transfer of power to Mr. Johnson's Union Nationale party, which won a four-seat majority in Sunday's Quebec provincial election.

The Liberal party won 51 seats compared with 55 for the Union Nationale. The other two seats in Quebec's 108-seat legislative assembly went to independents, one of whom has said he will support the Union Nationale.

Mr. Lesage told a press conference Thursday:

"I have informed the lieutenant-governor of my intention to submit my resignation on a date which will be set during my meeting with Mr. Johnson next Tuesday."

As Opposition leader, he planned to hold the Union Nationale to its campaign promises and to make sure that patronage and favoritism never recur in Quebec.

The Liberals would never indulge in "systematic obstruction" or "sterile battles for nothing," but would introduce "a more modern and efficient concept of the role of the Opposition."

Mr. Johnson said he will announce the date of the next session after his meeting with Mr. Lesage and added that "the announcement" will take into account the tradition that vacations are always more agreeable when one can take them with the children."

START BY SEPTEMBER?

This was taken to mean that the sitting would not begin until summer vacations for school children end in early September.

Mr. Johnson did not comment on Mr. Lesage's reference to patronage. But Jean - Jacques Bertrand, welfare and youth minister when the Union Nationale was defeated in 1960,

National Arts Centre Control Sparks Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — A project that is still only a $4,000,000 hole in the ground sparked another bilingual-bicultural debate in the Commons Thursday.

A bill that would spell out just who would operate the National Arts Centre brought the issue to the fore.

Earlier Conservative Leader Diefenbaker attacked Liberal financial policies before the House approved income tax changes outlined by Finance Minister Sharp in his budget speech March 22.

Costs for the arts centre now are expected to reach about $36,000,000, up from $9,000,000 originally. But this wasn't the issue in the Commons debate, which centred on the personnel who would run the centre once in business.

State Secretary Judy LaMarsh was piloting the bill at second reading.

It spelled out that there would be a board of trustees consisting of a chairman, vice-chairman, the current mayors of Ottawa

U.S. Paratroopers Battle Northern Reds 4th Day

By Colin Gibson

HUE, South Viet Nam (Reuters) — More than 400 crack paramilitary combat police moved into this dissident northern city today in a bid to end a Buddhist-led campaign to topple the Saigon military government. Martial law was declared in the rebellious city of 105,000.

Hue has been almost paralysed by the latest form of anti - government demonstration—the moving of thousands of Buddhist family altars into the streets to block traffic.

The roads of the city were still blocked today by the altars, despite orders broadcast by loudspeaker from low-flying government planes that inhabitants must stop blocking essential supplies routes.

Similar orders were broadcast by a secret government radio station, another voice of Saigon heard in Hue for the first time in three weeks.

The radio said martial law would apply from 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. each night.

The northern leader of the militant Buddhist movement, Thich Tri Quang, who is on a protest hunger strike against American support for the junta, was taken to a city hospital today after 44 hours without food.

Tottering Ky Suddenly Back Firmly in Saddle

* * *

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky of South Viet Nam announced today he will fly to South Korea Monday to attend a conference of nine non - Communist Asian nations.

Ky's announcement coincided with a declaration by the junta that it had conferred broad new powers on him to deal with chronic economic and financial problems.

Both announcements buttressed the general impression that the ruling generals consolidated themselves firmly entrenched despite weeks of agitation by the country's militant Buddhist minority to oust them.

Ky's office said the premier would address the three-day foreign ministers' meeting in Seoul, which opens Tuesday. Known as the Asian - Pacific ministerial conference, it will discuss ways in which the participants can develop closer economic and cultural ties.

Teaching Standards Said Down

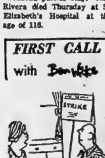
TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario legislature was told Thursday that the province is suffering from "serious inflation" and that teaching standards have been lowered to a deplorable degree.

Donald C. MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader, said higher professional standards for teachers should be set immediately.

In another debate Education Minister William Davis urged the federal government to give urgent consideration to Ontario's application for an educational television broadcasting licence.

In other business:



—Welfare Minister Louis Cecile said the province will pay over 90 per cent of the operating costs incurred by children's institutions in caring for both residential and non-residential children.

116-Year-Old Drank Whisky Smoked Cigars

UTICA, N.Y. AP — Mrs. Sinforina Rivera smoked five cigars a day. She drank whisky by the water glass, too, but cut that down to "weekend parties only." Mrs. Rivera died Thursday at St. Elizabeth's Hospital at the age of 116.

SAIGON (AP) — U. S. paratroops battled a stubborn dug-in North Vietnamese force for the fourth day in the Central Highlands today, while Premier Nguyen Cao Ky sent 400 Vietnamese riot policemen to assert control in the Buddhist stronghold of Hue.

Helicopters lifted at least two battalions of American and Vietnamese troops into the Stenos action 280 miles north of Saigon. Battlefield reports indicated the Americans may be fighting as many as two regiments—some 1,800 men—of North Vietnamese regulars, although the enemy force earlier was estimated at 900 men.

An American military spokesman in Saigon said 350 North Vietnamese had been killed in the fighting, which began before dawn Tuesday on a small U.S. encampment.

Associated Press photographer Al Chang reported from the battle area in the jungled hills of Kontum province that the Americans were having a tough time getting their casualties off the battlefield because of intense enemy fire on rescue helicopters.

Eight troopers have been reported light over-all, but one platoon was badly mauled.

U.S. planes were last reported to have hit enemy positions in support of the paratroops, units of the 101st Airborne Division's 1st Brigade. Artillery also boomed over the hills to support them. The paratroops encountered the North Vietnamese as they prowled infiltration routes near the Laotian border.

Heavy fighting was reported continuing late into the day.

The size and determination of the enemy indicated the North Vietnamese might be moving to the offensive again after waiting fidgety for the Buddhists to depose Ky.

Thousands Are Left Homeless By Tornado Barrage in Kansas

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) —The problems of caring for several thousand persons left homeless by a tornado which took 16 lives faced city officials today.

Most of the were lost or now-y ; nd in the disaster put up temporarily with friends, relatives and strangers. Four Red Cross shelters were opened in Topeka and the Municipal Auditorium.

About 70 persons had been taken to hospitals for treatment and at least 61 of them spent a second night in hospitals. Another 300 persons received outpatient treatment at hospitals.

Fifteen deaths occurred in Topeka — hardest hit of several towns struck by tornadoes in a brief span Wednesday night. One man was killed about 30 miles northeast of Topeka.

Many persons made offers of temporary housing for the homeless.

The Salvation Army and Red Cross operated field kitchens around the city to feed the homeless and the rescue-and-repair personnel rushed in from other cities.

Gov. William Avery and officials of the federal Office of Emergency Planning ordered damage estimates which could lead to federal disaster grants for stricken areas.

Storms Batter New York State

ALBANY, N.Y. AP—Severe thunderstorms battered most of New York State Thursday night and early today, injuring scores of persons, disrupting power and causing thousands of dollars damage.

In Buffalo Thursday night, John Walgate, 23, was killed when the automobile struck a stalled car during a heavy downpour.

Heavy damage to property was reported in Syracuse, where winds reached 50 miles an hour during the peak of the storm. Thirteen persons were reported injured when the winds swept through a trailer park and overturned several of the mobile homes.

Residents in the Onodaga County communities of Fayetteville and Manlius were without electricity for about three hours.

Mayor Charles W. Wright Jr. planned to ask nearby cities for equipment and personnel to help clear debris. Some had already sent aid; to others offered anything needed.

Heavy tree trunks, chunks of buildings and battered cars littered many parts of town, even after a full day of cleanup which succeeded in opening all streets to some degree. One city official said the cleanup is expected to take at least four weeks.

The tornado was the worst in the city's history. Ranging up to a half mile wide, it swept a 15-mile path of death and destruction through the city.

The Red Cross said about 2,000 dwelling units were destroyed," said Mayor Wright who figured damage at between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000.

Wright said the number of Topekans left homeless ranged from 2,000 to nearly 5,000 but probably is somewhere in between the two extremes. A factual count is not expected to be completed for several days.

Upwards of $4,000,000 in damage resulted in Manhattan, 30 miles away, where a tornado hit an hour before the Topeka storm. About 60 persons went to hospitals for treatment and 12 were admitted.

Don Messer and Islanders Delight Sell-Out Audience

Don Messer and his Islanders last night justified their long-standing reign of nation-wide popularity in a standing-room-only crowd in the Memorial Arena.

Playing the "down - east" brand of music that has been Messer's trademark for the past 20 years, the group presented a two-hour-long program of singing and dancing that was appreciated by the enthusiastic many of whom were obviously Messer fans of long standing.

The group is currently on a month-long tour of "one-nighters" that will carry them into many Eastern Canadian centres and into northern New York State. The format for this type of tour follows a tight schedule — the group's chartered bus pulls into a town about mid-afternoon, the performance is given that evening, and the bus usually leaves the following morning, taking the performers on to their next town and performance.

Besides Don and his Islanders band, the troupe consists of 55-year-old Charlie Chamberlain, the featured male vocalist with Don Messer for the past 33 years and a grandfather of nine; female vocalist Marg Osborne, with the group since 1946; and the Rachita Dancers, who have been stamping out to the Messer jigs and reels since the Islanders began their popular television program 10 years ago. Also travelling with Don Messer on this tour is Johnny Forrest, a capable accordionist and recorders vocals in a delightful Scottish "brogue."

Last night's Belleville reception accorded Don Messer and the Islanders was indicative of the way their music has achieved popular acclaim ever since its inception.

Broadcasting White Paper Expected Within a Month

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — The final version of a white paper on broadcasting, proposing important changes in CBC management and financing, will be presented to the Commons in about two weeks, informants said Thursday.

A draft, containing many of the recommendations in the Fowler committee report on the industry, was before the cabinet Wednesday night in a rare evening session.

Informants said a key committee proposal, to replace the Board of Broadcast Governors and the CBC board of directors with a single regulatory authority, is not being considered.

The draft is said to propose long-term financing to permit the publicly-owned CBC to plan capital and operating expenditures on a long-range basis.

The CBC now obtains its money—aside from advertising revenues — from Parliament through annual grants. It has asked for financing on 10-year periods. An informant said the periods are likely to be closer to five.

There is speculation that changes in management structure will return in a pre-1958 situation—with the head of the corporation on the board of directors and responsible for over-all policy and a chief officer not on the board responsible for day-to-day operations.

Now, both President J. Alphonse Ouimet and W. E. S. Briggs, senior vice - president, are board members.

Before 1958 the chairman of the CBC board of governors was a board member and the general manager was not.

The board of governors, whose chairman was A. Davidson Dunton, was abolished in 1958 when the BBG was established. Mr. Ouimet, who had been CBC general manager, became president when the position was created.

Informants say the draft proposes that the federal cabinet continue to appoint the CBC president. They discussed reports that future appointments would be made by the board of directors.

The CBC president was appointed to a second seven-year term last fall by Prime Minister Pearson's government.

Questioned about press accounts of the white paper contents in the Commons Thursday, Prime Minister Pearson told Opposition Leader Diefenbaker they amounted to "pure or immoral speculation."

Erhard Seeks Moscow Contact

BONN (Reuters)—West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard said today he was seeking direct personal contacts with Soviet leaders and was prepared to go to Moscow.

He told a press conference that the Soviet reply to West Germany's peace note to world governments last March had disclosed at least one point that could usefully be taken up. This concerned the formation of her of bilateral agreements with eastern European countries renouncing the use of force.

The chancellor said the German peace note containing a series of proposals for reducing tension in Europe was not a sham manoeuvre and more would be heard of it this year.

Form Administration Area For County Public Schools

Public schools educational problems and larger areas of schools administration were again the topic of discussion on Thursday afternoon at Hastings county council with members taking up where they left off last April.

When the all-afternoon talks were over, council had formed a public schools administration area taking in 13 North Hastings township, and in Centre Hastings had joined the Hungerford township area with that of Tweed village.

Actually the discussions were a carry-over from the April council session when a report of the county public schools consultative committee recommending larger school areas ran into a block and was tabled for later action.

A recent Department of Education regulation calling for all township school areas with less than 100 students to be joined to larger areas, was the basis for the study.

The ruling applied, to several North Hastings townships where school attendance had dropped below the 100 mark.

Many councillors from the northern townships were a bit skeptical of going into a county administration unit, preferring instead the enlarged area idea which would see the townships with small school attendance joined with their larger neighbors.

The feeling was that the Department of Education should come up with some specific answers with respect to debentures and transportation problems before the move was made.

Roy Linton, public schools inspector for North Hastings, said, however, that it was unlikely that any of the present schools would be closed.

WOULD SUPPORT IDEA

He said he would support the idea of children from kindergarten to Grade 6 continuing to attend present local schools, with Grades 7 and 8 attending a central school where more specialized education would be available.

Stirling Reeve Don Rodgers, chairman of the public schools consultative committee, pointed out that most of the schools in North Hastings were comparatively new and it would be only sensible economics to let them serve out their usefulness.

He said the situation was entirely different in Tweed and Hungerford where addition a l school accommodation was urgently needed.

Tweed Reeve Guy Hughes moved that the Hungerford township school area be joined with Tweed and after some discussion the motion was carried.

Mr. Rodgers said the move should be considered only as a "stop-gap" measure and urged that council keep formation of a Centre Hastings school area in mind.

The balance of the public schools consultative committee, recommending formation of a Centre Hastings public school area and a South Hastings area taking in the three bottom townships, was tabled until council receives the report of the secondary schools consultative committee headed up by Marmora Reeve William Shannon.

The townships included in the North Hastings public school area are those presently in the North Hastings High School area.

They are Wollaston, Tudor and Cashel and townships north of these municipalities.

In the new Tweed-Hungerford school area, it is expected that accommodation for an addition al 200 pupils will be built at the Tweed consolidated school and for possibly another 100 at the Tweed Separate School.

Plans would be to have the accommodation ready for September 1967.

Attending Thursday afternoon's council session were R. A. Dunsmore, Harry McGrimmon and Boyd Ketcheson, public school inspectors for South, Centre and North Hastings respectively, and J. G. McLeod, secondary schools inspector for the district which includes Hastings.

COMMITTEE COMMENDED

Mr. McLeod commended the public schools consultative committee for their "fine job" and expected the report of the secondary schools consultative committee when it received next year would be equally as informative.

He said the future demand in all probability would be for more composite secondary schools.

Yesterday morning letters of resignation from two of the three man public schools consultative committee were read to council but were laid on the table.

At the conclusion of the afternoon's discussions, Reeves Thomas Burnside of Madoc and Don Armitage of Deseronto, said they would withdraw their resignations and continue on as committee members.

Bancroft Reeve J. N. Brown, as chairman of the administration of justice committee, reported that a new agreement had been negotiated with the city of Belleville. He said that under the agreement the city was bound to participate in all costs with respect to the new regional detention centre at Napanee.

Since the last agreement with the city was negotiated in 1961, the city's population has increased by 3,787 with the county's population down by 1,801.

Congress Refuses To Aid Strike

By JIM ANDERSON

LONDON (CP)—The Trades Union Congress, central body of the British labor movement, refused Thursday to help the seamen's union and urged it to end its strike, now in its 25th day.

The TUC refusal, coupled with an appeal from Prime Minister Wilson and a spark of dissent within the union, failed to bolster the strikers.

William Hogarth, general secretary of the union, said the seamen will hold out "forever and a day" in their refusal to sail until they get a 40-hour work-week.

Hogarth said the strikers hope to bypass the TUC and be appealed directly to other unions for a boycott by dockside labor which would further cripple British imports.

The seamen also are counting on the support of foreign unions for their appeal to boycott all British ships abroad.

APPEALS TO UNION

Shortly before the TUC meeting, the prime minister issued a statement urging an end to the strike and calling the recommendations of a judicial inquiry which the seamen rejected Wednesday "a fair settlement."

The inquiry formula calls for a 40-hour week by next year, with a reduction of 46 from 56 hours in the meantime. The shipping companies have accepted the compromise proposal which brings the 40-hour week a year closer than their last previous offer.

Wilson's statement, approved by the cabinet, said the government welcomes the fact the TUC had called on the seamen's union nationale executive to a meeting.

TUC leaders told the seamen they are now "on their own."

The union has requested other unions to boycott British ships, but early bringing in oil normally carried by British ships, which would cut the seamen off from imports in half. They also asked that British ships docking here not be unloaded.

SOLIDITY BROKEN

Earlier Thursday, there was the first sign of a peace movement within the union. Last week in which militant strikers had been increasingly vocal and had carried the day with their demands for a tough stand.

But a breakaway from the union's small local at Harwich, north east of London, arrived to talk to the union leaders. They thought the inquiry formula was a basis for new negotiations.

The Harwich men's union membership develops it would probably pit deep-sea sailors against those working in the coastal trade and short ferry runs. The Harwich members mostly work on ferries.

Before meeting with the TUC the union executive decided to launch an appeal to other unions for financial support in the strike. It said it now is paying out £40,000 ($160,000) a week in strike pay.

More than 22,000 of the union's 63,000 members now are on strike. The union says more than 780 ships are tied up.

Building Total Over $400,000 In Thurlow

Fifteen building permits with a value of $420,000 were issued during May in the Township of Thurlow.

Included in this figure was $196,000 for a 7-room addition to Harmony Public School in Carnes.

During the month two industrial permits with a total value of $159,500, three residential permits worth $36,000, and three cottage permits totalling $9,300 were issued.

Another $16,200 in construction value was involved in the issue of four permits for residential addition, while two permits were obtained for $2,000 worth of garage building.

Construction "Inflation" Causing County Concern

The current "galloping inflation" as related to construction costs, is causing more than a little concern on the part of Hastings County councillors who are viewing with alarm cost estimates for planned new buildings.

Yesterday councillors learned that cost estimates for the new county home at Bancroft and for the addition at Hastings Manor at Belleville were considerably above the original figures.

This morning they received an even greater shock to learn that the cost of the new regional detention centre at Napanee is likely to be about double the original estimate.

And they are wondering if operational costs of the new four county regional jail might also be double the estimate.

Council was told by Rawdon Reeve Fred Beckett that it is now expected the regional jail would cost approximately $1,250,000 or approximately double the figure originally suggested.

Reeve Beckett said attempts would be made to reduce capital costs by cutting out some features that the committee was not too hopeful of accomplishing any great savings.

FORD NOT CADILLAC

Madoc village reeve Thomas Wright said that the county was not buying a Cadillac when possibly a Ford might do.

He said that the "galloping" construction costs seemed just a little too much.

Clerk-treasurer Carl Bateman said that if capital costs of the new regional jail were figured at $2,000,000, the Hastings county share would be about $460,000, which in turn would be shared by Trenton and Belleville leaving a net for the addition at Hastings Manor at Belleville were considerably above the original figures.

Fifty per cent of construction and equipment costs would be borne by the provincial government, the balance being shared by the four counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac.

Despite the sharply increased cost estimates council gave its approval to go ahead.

Prince Edward county is the only other county which has given formal approval.

During the morning session council heard the Grand Jury report regarding visits to Hastings Manor, the Children's Aid Society receiving home and the county jail.

The report quoted prisoners as indicating they would like more reading material and also more exercise.

The operation of the present county jail costs approximately $80,000 a year, while Clerk Treasurer Bateman said annual debenture costs for the new regional detention centre could be about half of this amount for capital costs alone.

Credit Buying

Credit, as Time Magazine has pointed out, is at the heart of capitalism. But has it reached the danger point? The question was posed in a recent issue of the magazine.

Though nobody really knows . . . there are some disturbing signs. "Private debt lately has been increasing at a somewhat faster rate than the United States' gross national product, personal income or personal savings. Personal bankruptcies have more than trebled in the past decade.

"The percentage of personal income that went for installment payings, which averaged just under 12 per cent in the 1950's, jumped in 1963 above 13 percent and pushed last year toward 15 percent. Mortgage foreclosures have doubled since 1960."

On the other hand, says Time, Americans have traditionally been sound risks, even during the Depression. "Today's rate of installment delinquency is small (1.58 percent).

"Besides, figures on failure can be misleading unless they also take account of the changes in the quality of American life. Consumer credit is expanding not only because people are borrowing more, but also because more people are borrowing — as an increasing number of Americans rise to the affluent middle and upper-middle classes.

"If Americans can be criticized for enjoying now and paying later, they can also be praised for building equity and acquiring assets. And the assets of ordinary Americans are much bigger and faster-growing than their liabilities.

What is the debt situation in Canada? At the beginning of this year, according to David Crane in an article in Maclean's, Canadians owed $7.1 billion in consumer credit. Most was owed to banks. Loan companies, credit unions and sales finance companies accounted for $1 billion.

More than $500 million is owed to department stores, $500 million to insurance companies for loans on policies, $400 million to jewelry and clothing stores and fuel dealers and $100 million on service station credit cards. The figure does not include mortgage debts and medical bills.

Debtors, it is interesting to note, include architects, truck drivers, engineers, chartered accountants, laborers, lawyers and salesmen. The higher the skilled classification of the person in the community, Crane points out, the higher the debt.

We can only conclude that to one degree or another we are all in the same boat.

Conflicting Advice

"Today, as 20, 30 and 40 years ago, it is the young who are getting cluttered in the matter of morality — and not only getting clobbered, but magnificently confused."

That is the word from Globe and Mail columnist Richard Needham. And if we consider some of the current observations on the subject of morality it can be seen his words have the ring of truth.

Rt. Rev. Frederick Wilkinson, retiring Anglican bishop of Toronto, told a diocesan synod audience in Toronto recently that trial on adultery "is indeed a grievous one but it is by no means the only sin committed within the marriage bond which saps and destroys a marriage."

The Rev. F. G. Ongley of Oshawa told the same gathering that the Anglican Church was "at least a decade behind the sexual revolution in America."

And in Hamilton, the Rev. Harvey Cox of Harvard divinity school told the North American conference on church and family that people frequently turn to sex to compensate for the complexities of modern life.

"Psychologists and psychiatrists, especially on college campuses, say people today frequently complain that sexuality has little or no meaning for them . . . The activity itself is shorn of its essential features. Sometimes they suggest that the other person does not seem to be there, is not present."

"As politics become more distant and more specialized, and as people feel increasingly alienated from their political communities, they tend to turn to sexuality as a way of expressing personhood and a type of miniscule community as a substitute for political community."

Meanwhile Billy Graham, while acknowledging that the "new morality" was a fact, advanced sound reasons for restraint and a responsible attitude toward sex.

Speaking of the "moral dangers of promiscuous sex," he said: "It can see no place in the Bible that allows for sex relations outside marriage without bringing difficulties and problems to those who engage in them."

With conflicting statements like these, it is no wonder young people in our communities are confused about the morality of the "new morality." Churchmen and sociologists all seem to be having their say, but there is no common denominator in their views.

As columnist Needham observes, "What one expert says is right, another says is wrong; even ministers of the same faith hand out conflicting directives. . ." It is indeed confusing but in the ultimate, it is a matter of individual conscience.

Turmoil on Labor Front

Montreal Gazette

Canada is a country with many problems. But the labor picture, disappointing, especially in this area, has become the biggest of them all.

Ontario's Minister of Labor, Mr. Nicholson, speaks of the need of considering new legislation, "of present matters from getting completely out of hand." But the trouble is that even the existing labor laws have been allowed to break down. And governments — both the Federal Government and provincial governments — have allowed themselves to become parties to breaking them down.

To take one example. The law clearly separates legal from illegal strikes. Yet governments themselves have blurred the distinction. They have been prepared to enter into situations where strikes are obviously illegal, and helped in bring about settlements (often settlements highly favorable to the strikers), quite as though these strikes were actually legal, and the governments were doing no more than lend their good offices under normal circumstances.

If the governments in Canada do not begin to uphold their own laws, and do not start soon, Canada will be trying to operate its complex economy, in a highly competitive world, not within a framework of law, but in a state of induced and invited chaos. In such a state it will be found (as has been found already) that services in the highest port in Canada can be suspended for more days by a strike that is not even legal, under a Government that seems to act as though it were.

Strictly Personal

Suicide and Its Causes

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Suppose I pointed out that the homicide rate in the capitalistic United States is far higher than that in socialistic Sweden; and, therefore, our appalling homicide rate is largely the result of the competitive economic system and a disregard for human values.

You would be quick to dismiss my conclusion as illogical, biased and biased — which indeed it would be. Yet we do precisely the same thing when we turn around, whenever we mention the high suicide in Sweden.

Sweden's suicide rate is three times higher than that most European countries, we tend to blame the "suicide - to - life - grave" social welfare system for these high rates. "There is no incentive, no challenge, everything is made too easy," the argument runs, "and so, out of boredom, people kill themselves."

Now, there are a number of telling arguments that can be made against socialism — as can be made against any social economic system — but this is not one of them. And using Rasmus Anderson's (a well-known Norwegian historian of the deep days) merely reveals the intellectual weakness and ignorance of the people who make this hasty inference.

What they forget to add — If they ever bothered to learn it — is that the Swedish (and Finnish) suicide rates have been higher than those of most European countries for about 100 years, and that Swedish socialism was established there.

Moreover, they fail to mention the embarrassing fact that while Norway also has much the same economic planning and social welfare measures as Sweden, yet the Norwegian suicide rate is remarkably low. It is, indeed, one-third lower than that of the U.S.

Actually, national suicide rates tend to go up when a country becomes industrialized and more affluent, regardless of the economic system. It is the poorest countries — such as Ireland, have the lowest suicide rates; Egypt, Italy and Spain — that and it is the poorest people in the affluent countries who have the lowest suicide rate.

American Negroes, who comprise the bottom one-fifth economically, have a suicide rate that is less than one-third of American whites. Most of our suicides are among the more educated and are professional classes — doctors, dentists, lawyers, retired army officers, and so on.

Contrary to general belief, it is not the youthful but the elderly who account for most suicides; and in affluent countries more people are kept alive to grow elderly. When we raise the standard of living, we also increase the chances of dying by our own hands.

To Your Good Health

Varicose Veins May Cause Ulcers in Legs

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am plagued with leg ulcers. They are at the left ankle, and I have been taking antibiotics and Prisco-line.

The ulcers responded to treatment after a long time. Must I keep taking prescription indefinitely, or could you suggest something else to minimize or prevent attacks? I am 67. — Harry B.

• • •

I have several suggestions. They are more than just a matter of switching medicines.

Leg ulcers can be stubborn. In fact, they are likely to be. The lower extremities of the body are where brisk circulation is hardest to maintain. Those areas are farthest from the heart. Good circulation promotes healing; sluggish circulation retards it.

So we now come to the question: What caused your ulcers? Varicose ulcers are quite common among people with varicose veins because venous circulation is impeded. In such a case, stripping or tying off the weak veins improves circulation, and that is the ultimate solution for varicose ulcers. Often a plaster boot is first applied to hasten treatment.

You will have to consult your doctor as to whether varicose veins are involved in your case, of course.

Meantime the principles have been used to stimulate circulation. The substance is a vasodilator, expanding small peripheral blood vessels for that purpose.

There is another possibility. Sometimes contact with chemicals (oil or other materials) irritates the skin and makes healing of ulcers difficult. I have in mind a man who worked in a sugar refinery and had considerable trouble because it (finally turned out) he was sensitive to materials which accumulated on his trousers legs.

In addition, fungus or other skin infections, which can be difficult to get rid of, can keep the skin in a more or less continued state of irritation, so that bacteria can readily invade and cause ulcers.

Recent new medications have been great help in certain types of fungus infections although some fungi continue to be resistant and troublesome.

I haven't answered your direct question, but I hope I've given you some insight into some of the questions which undoubtedly are troubling through your own doctor's mind.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter wants to start in a beauty school, but a neighbor said contact with hair spray eventually would give her cancer of the lungs or throat or some other respiratory ailment. What is your view? — Mrs. K. H.

There are thousands of beauty operators, but there is no evidence to support your neighbor's gloomy opinion. The principal problem of which I am aware is the possibility, occasionally, of someone being allergic to hair spray or other materials, as the only common sense not to inhale the spray, since it amounts to a local form of air pollution, but the person being sprayed probably gets more than the operator.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Do you advise removing 20 lbs of fat to 25 to take douches? All my girl friends say they do. My mother is against it. — E. S.

Your mother is right. Nature automatically cleanses the reproductive tract. Whether a woman is married or single, a douche would be indicated only as a medical need.

• • •

Note to Mrs. R. T. G.: whether or not a woman reaches a climax has no bearing on her becoming pregnant.

The Press and the Courts

Hamilton Spectator

Thanks to some untoward happenings during the judicial inquiry into the Munsinger affair, the old argument about restricting the right of the press to report public proceedings is being raised anew.

In the House of Commons MP Andrew Brewin of the NDP has concocted a private member's bill which would restrict the publication of "any defamatory matter disclosed at or during the course of an inquiry unless such evidence or matter is relevant to the matter under inquiry and would be admissible in a court of law."

This comes on the heels of recent suggestions that newspapers should be prevented from reporting preliminary hearings in magistrates' courts.

Mr. Brewin would allow the presiding officer conducting the inquiry to decide on the spur of the moment and at his convenience what should be published and what should not be published, even though members of the public were allowed to be present through the sessions.

This is the main reason why that is often applied to preliminary hearings. Let the public attend if it wishes but prevent the press from reaching a wider world. It is a pernicious doctrine and it should be stopped in its tracks.

Nothing could be more foolish, unfair and dangerous than trying to tell the press that it has fewer rights than the average citizen. The mistake this argument is said to have a way back at all those who oppose it most recognize that they have nothing to substantiate the right to say what shall be published and what shall not be published even if it is material technically in the public domain.

It is shallow thinking indeed which looks at reports of preliminary hearings and says there are undue to accused persons because they might prejudice a future jury. If an open, and covered preliminary hearing does indeed have any such effect, and this we doubt profoundly, then the hearing as a judicial mechanism ought to be clearly condemned. When it comes right down to it, are they good? Well, they ought to be expedited by taking the accused directly to trial! We do not presume to answer that question but that is the line the argument ought to take.

The same thing applies to judicial inquiries. It is a bedrock principle to allow the committee to decide what shall be published. If commissioners are prone to releasing bits of hearsay and irrelevancies, then the rules should be changed to prevent them from doing so. If he does not, then the national press will take the commissioner can kick press and public out and shut down completely and operations will be judged accordingly.

The same applies to a magistrate at a preliminary hearing. If he feels justice will thus be served.

In its reporting activities the press, whatever its faults, is an extension of the public. It is also no protections at being anything more but we must fight any suggestion that we are anything less.

Indians and Treaty Pledges

Ottawa Journal

Mr. Frank Howard, NDP, and Mr. R. A. Bell, Conservative, expressed the hope at a meeting of the Commons Indian Affairs Committee that Indians should, anyway be fully consulted on changes in legislation and regulations concerning them.

Departmental officials present thoroughly agreed and said Indians were informed as often as possible. But Mr. R. A. Cote, deputy minister of Indian affairs, made it plain that Indians are no more united in their views than anybody else.

He said there were 550 Indian bands, each with its own ideas. Some wanted self-government, and, at the other end of the scale, others wanted nothing to do with it. He pointed the continued security of the Indian reserve, the place they could go home to.

About 125 of the bands had partial or complete control of their funds and the department had been interested to note that bands given self-governm ent would sometimes be wasteful in their first year of handling their money but far less in the second.

"This is an encouraging process," said Mr. Cote.

The Law and Air Pollution

Hamilton Spectator

To bring penalties for air pollution into line with those in force for water pollution, a bill has been introduced in the Legislature that sharply increases fines.

At present, fines for polluting the air are modest, considering the seriousness of the offence— up to $100 the first time and up to $200 for succeeding offences.

Now, when a company is convicted they will pay up to $5,000 the first time and up to $10,000 the second. Individuals convicted will pay up to $500 for the first offence and up to $1,000 for the second.

This looks brave enough. The law has not been given teeth, it has only been given a sharper blade. The thing is to hook the offenders, and to hook them so firmly that they cannot escape the law designed to protect the public. And is the toughest part of it, for while it is easy to put laws in the statute book it is difficult to enforce them. In the act of polluting the air and mags a charge stick.

And without examples, all that is left is exhortation and good will, and they are not likely to succeed.

Getting a conviction is extremely difficult, except where fume-blocked offenders are concerned. It is all a matter of black smoke density and the length of time it is emitted.

Tests are by the Ringelmann Chart which defines five densities. No. 1, smoke light grey; No. 2, smoke dark grey; No. 3, smoke black with approx. 20 per cent ground white; No. 4, approx. 40 per cent black with approx. 60 per cent ground white; No. 5, approx. 100 per cent black.

Various brief periods of emission are permitted at half or quarter density. It is necessary the inspector has to be in the right place at the right time.

Both these tests have over reducing industrial smoke, but "blackness" the sole measure of wickedness in the eyes of lawyers — at least insofar as health is concerned — are dead against the law. Lawyers are by those with faulty exhaust systems, and they will be able in city streets foul with poisonous fumes.

The government's efforts to ensure clean air might be taken more seriously if it set to work in this fruitful field for reform.

Security Files

Montreal Star

Security files exist about many, thousands of Canadians. They are necessary documents in any security system but they are not evidence, much less proof. Above all the very nature of them makes it imperative that they are not handled in the due course of an election campaign, they are no one is safe.

New County Home at Bancroft, Manor Addition, to Cost More; Will Call Tenders This Summer

Soaring construction costs are expected to substantially boost the cost of the new Hastings Manor addition at Belleville and also for the new county home at Bancroft.

Hastings county councillors, at one of their rare evening meetings yesterday were told that the cost of the home addition at Belleville was now estimated at $607,326, and the new home at Bancroft at $1,304,427.

Hastings Manor committee chairman Reeve Calvin White said that despite the expected increase costs his committee was recommending that both projects be proceeded with. He said that construction costs have increased by at least 20 percent in the past 18 months.

Plans call for a 56 bed addition at the Hastings Manor, along with a chapel, auditorium, craft room and tuck shop.

Other minor renovations are also to be carried out at Hastings Manor, including railings along all the corridors and changes in the fire alarm system, called for by the fire marshal's department.

The new home at Bancroft will be constructed on 12.1 acres inside the village limits near Highway 28, with plans now calling for 100 beds instead of the 100 beds originally planned. Bed accommodation at the Hastings Manor addition at Belleville will be 56 instead of 50.

County clerk treasurer Carl Bateman compared two methods of financing the construction and suggested that in view of the present tight money market, the county could save money by temporary borrowing from the bank, then issuing debentures, when construction was completed.

$950,000 NET COST

Total estimated cost of the two projects is now set at $1,911,-825 with the net cost to the county after government subsidy estimated at $965,000.

The City of Belleville has agreed to assume up to $120,000 of the Belleville addition. Proceeds from the sale of the county farm at Belleville will be also applied against the home addition.

Council yesterday approved of the plans for the two projects and Reeve White said it was expected tenders for the Belleville addition would be called early in August and early in September for the Bancroft home.

Accountants Name Officers At Meeting

At the recent annual general meeting of the Belleville Chapter of the Certified General Accountants Association of Ontario the following officers were elected: Chairman, Percy W. Hitchcock, C.G.A., P.C.I.S. Albert College Commerce Director; vice-chairman, C. J. "Terry" Sender, Treasurer, Belleville; secretary-treasurer, Carl J. Casey, C.G.A., Belleville; program and chapter meetings, Nelson Patterson, Belleville; membership, Bernard Hoey, C.G.A., Belleville; Publicity, Stewart S. Heard, C.G.A., Belleville.

The meeting held at the Queen's Hotel was highlighted by an address by Douglas Wigmore, C.G.A., Executive Vice-President of the Certified General Accountants Association of Ontario.

Mr. Wigmore gave a very informative talk on the opportunities available to the many members of the association for employment in government departments and in the business world generally. Mr. Wigmore stated that at the present time the Association Placement Service was unable to fill the demands of employers seeking graduate certified general accountants.

The need for skilled accountants today has never been greater and the Certified General Accountants Association through its five-year national study course provided by the Faculty of Commerce and Business Administration of the University of British Columbia offers a course comparable to any other in the field of accounting, auditing and financial management.

Mr. Wigmore concluded his talk by commenting on the rapid growth the province and this in the association during the past five years and outlined future plans for further training and graduate courses that will be offered to meet the demands of modern management within the Canadian economy.

Doctors Claim Exposure Had Caused Ills

OTTAWA (CP) — Nancy J. was a neat switchboard operator. Every morning she wiped her switchboard off with a little cleaning fluid on a cloth.

After six years on the job, Nancy developed profound anemia. Two months later she died.

Doctors decided repeated exposure to the cleaner had caused the disease. The fluid contained 50 per cent benzene, commonly found in paint removers, spot cleaners and cement-type glue.

Sometimes called benzol, benzene is inflammable and toxic. Prolonged or repeated breathing of its fumes can be deadly, warns the department of national health and welfare.

Even small doses can cause fatigue, headache, dizziness and nausea. Prolonged exposure damages the blood-forming system and causes anemia.

In acute poisoning the victim bleeds under the skin, until he looks like a "human leopard." There may be internal bleeding as well.

Because many householders do not know of benzene's toxic properties, and so may not take proper precautions while using it, the department recommends that use of benzene in the home be avoided.

Successful Living

Will Power Best Way To Stop Smoking

DEAR DORIS: This is for "Worried Smoker."

After smoking for 37 years I just made up my mind I wasn't going to smoke anymore. Now I haven't had a cigarette for over a year,

DORIS : CLARK

I am very happy I did quit as you can breathe much better and feel better all the way round: no need of thinking you must have something to help you quit smoking. It's the same as anything else . . . use your will power and keep your mind on something all the time. You'll soon forget. In fact I even can't stand the smell of someone smoking now. But I have no hankering for it at all.

Sure hope this will help someone else who is trying to quit smoking. — PUFFED OUT.

DEAR PUFFED OUT: So do I. Thanks for the testimonial.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I have visited my grandchildren many times, but when people have dropped in, there's not a word of introduction from my daughter-in-law, until I ask, "Who may these people be?" . . . or, "Is this lady a neighbor of yours?"

Nothing to me is as embarrassing as to be with people you have not been introduced to! Oftentimes I have reprimanded myself for going back there, as I feel at times I'm not wanted, but I just can't keep away from those children. Am I right? — PASSED BY.

DEAR PASSED BY: Either she

(1) Sees you as part of the furniture,
(2) forgets the name of her visitor, or
(3) doesn't know it's manners to introduce one guest to another.

If she means to ignore you, there'll be other evidence. Give her the benefit of the doubt.

Try turning the tables. Have her drop in on you, then make a point of introducing her, graciously, to any social caller. Later, explain this is a courtesy most people expect.

By all means, keep seeing your grandchildren.

* * *

Confidential to MAD ABOUT HER: Crushes on persons of either sex, or of any age, are nothing new with teen-agers. Neither you nor "Worried and Sleepless" are in the slightest degree abnormal — as workers in the field agree.

Right now life bombards you with interesting things and people and your young heart goes overboard easily. Later you'll achieve some balance. Meanwhile, try to get to know Sweet Sixteen as a real, down-to-earth person.

* * *

To "WOULD LIKE TO KNOW" and "HELP PLEASE": With regard to your questions about falling hair and superfluous hair, please write in again, this time giving your proper names and enclosing a stamped envelope for private reply.

* * *

(Do you wonder why the people you care about act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. And remember that stamped envelope!)

Canon R. B. Wright of Christ Church officiated at the wedding ceremony on Saturday, June 4, 1966, at 3 p.m., when Amy Louise Fisher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Fisher, Belleville, was united in marriage to Lieut. J. J. B. Christopher, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Christopher, Burbanks, California.

Mr. J. Withers presided at the organ with traditional wedding music and accompanied the six choir boys in appropriate nuptial renditions.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length satin gown highlighted with an overlay lace bodice featuring a scalloped neckline and short length scalloped sleeves. A three-tier tulle veil was caught with a circular headdress of matching satin roses. She carried a solitaire white orchid encircled with lily-of-the-valley and white feathered carnations.

The little flower girl was Miss Ericka Burrowes dressed in a short yellow organza frock, and a small crown of white daisies. She carried a tiny basket of white daisies intermingled with green ivy.

Mr. David F. Fisher, brother of the bride, was groomsman, while cousins of the bride, Mr. Timothy Horpell of Kingston, and Mr. Kenneth Fisher of Oshawa were the ushers.

At the reception at the Belleville Shrine Club, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a pink crepe sheath dress with overlay of lace, white and pink accessories and a pink orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a white and green linen ensemble consisting of matching coat and dress, white and green accessories and a white orchid corsage.

For the wedding trip to Carmel, and Monterey, California, the bride chose a green flowered dress and coat ensemble, beige accessories and a corsage of white gardenias.

Following the ceremony the bridegroom took his bride for a horse-and-buggy drive through the village in true Netherlands fashion.

At the reception, held in the Batawa Community Centre, the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a Swiss rose crepe dress with egg-shell colored accessories, a gardenia corsage and pastel mink stole.

Susanna's Family Fare

HAIR CARE

Dear Susanna: How often I have found myself there in the bathroom of our house late at night with curlers and comb and net all set out in the desk ready to do up my hair, oily to realize something is missing!

The additional item required is a small vessel into which to put cosmetic cream. I lay fingers to wet the ends of my hair slightly so I don't have to let the water drip down the back for 15 or 20 minutes.

At last I have found one that is always right when on the ball about when I need it, for just the kind of light dampening I have described.

The large lid of my can of hair spray serves the purpose perfectly. —Airman's Wife

• • •

Dear Susanna: No sprinkler on hand to dampen those sweetsmelling clothes just off the line at the cottage?

Fill a large empty salt shaker with water to take care of them nicely. — Mrs. G. Zarwel

• • •

Hello Susanna: We do enjoy being elegant for our evening meal, but the large linen cloths required for the dining room table are quite bothersome to launder — and besides I hate using my good linens for everyday.

On the other hand, like so many of women friends, I have unpleasant pretty kitchen towels that I will probably never use. Two of these laid on the table so that they slightly overlap look lovely and cover it nicely.

What a breeze these little fellows are to wash and iron, and when the dishes are in place no one really can't notice that it isn't one large cloth.

In fact, if something gets spilled at one end, I simply find another reasonable match for the clean one at the next meal and only launder the single soiled cloth that time. — Mrs. S. A. L.

Anglican Women Change Name

VICTORIA (CP) — Constitutional changes offering women an all - embracing program of church work highlighted the four - day annual meeting of the Anglican Church of Women of Canada.

Biggest constitutional change was the new name. It had been known as the Woman's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church of Canada for the past 50 years.

Mrs. F. F. A. Goodwin of Victoria, diocesan president of British Columbia, said: "Before, all women's groups in the church were working in their own little corners. Now we will all participate in the total program of the church."

Mrs. H. H. Howden of Toronto, one of 200 delegates, said the name change:

"We are no longer an appendage—a group of shy little ladies trying to back up our menfolk. We are the whole of women, we are with them."

Another constitutional change permits women to work with men on the church's national board.

Baptism was eliminated as a pre - requisite for membership in the organization except for officers.

Installed as president Thursday was Mrs. Mildred Robertson of Kitchener, Ont., re - elected by acclamation earlier.

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves—If reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way ordered by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. Revel in the youthful appearing and active.

CORNED BEEF BURGERS

Standing in the centre of a busy aisle the meat manager and I were having a solemn conference on the high price of meat while the Saturday afternoon crowd steered their baskets around us. He told me that they were having a run on canned corned beef because it was solid boneless meat and with stretchers, one can could be made into a meal for a family of four.

To check on this statement we made a casserole consisting of corned beef burgers with corn. We have just been tasting it and kept coming back for more and now will have no appetite for our lunches! It was good.

If you have a family of four this recipe is fine. If your crowd is a hungry six or a moderate eight, double the recipe.

Dinner Menu by Mary Moore

TODAY'S MENU

CORNED BEEF BURGERS AND CORN CASSEROLE

Notes: Obviously this could be baked in four individual baking dishes instead of a casserole. This freezes perfectly.

One 12-ounce can corned beef, unchilled, one slice white bread crumbled, one cup slightly beaten, one medium onion, sliced into eight rings, four quarter-inch thick green pepper rings, one 12-ounce can kernel corn, undrained, one-quarter teaspoon salt, shake of pepper, one can tomato soup, undiluted.

Flake corned beef with two forks in a medium bowl. Add bread crumbs and slightly beaten egg and mix a little with a fork. Shape into four large patties. Gently sauté sliced onion and four green pepper rings in a little fat until limp but not brown. Butter a casserole. Cover corn with salt and pepper. Turn into casserole, place beef burgers on top, cover each with onion and pepper rings, pour tomato soup over evenly.

Bake at 350 degrees 20 minutes, or if frozen and being baked directly from freezer, bake at 350 degrees one hour.

Ann Landers Ann Still Says Normal Men Don't Shave Chests

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a recent column you said your medical consultants told you that the only males they have encountered who shave their chests are female impersonators.

ANN LANDERS

Either you need some new medical consultants or the ones you have should get around more.

Male Olympic swimmers shave their chests so they can shim through the water at a faster rate. Men who enter physique contests shave their bodies so each muscle stands out clearly under the spotlights. If you will examine the photographs of male models you will see that the man who is advertising sun lotion, bathing trunks, garters, sox, and other products is hairless.

Some men shave their chests just because they like the clean feeling, doesn't it stand to reason that if the face feels better — free of dirt and perspiration-catching hair — the chest will feel better, too?

To borrow a phrase of yours, Ann Landers, "if you haven't tried it, don't knock it." — LITTLE SHAVER.

· DEAR SHAVER: I'm not trying it and I'm not knocking it. I simply said most normal men (Olympic swimmers excepted) don't shave their chests and I'm sticking by my statement.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband has a maiden aunt to whom he is devoted. Aunt Jennie doesn't have much business of her own to mind so she spends most of her time minding ours. She has many good qualities and the children love her, but one thing about Aunt Jennie gets me so mad I could spit nails.

Our four sons are between 8 and 15 years of age. They are full of pep and little aggravation. It is impossible for me to watch these kids 24 hours a day. I always know where they are but I can't police them. Anyone who has raised children will tell you that growing boys fall down, cut themselves, break teeth, and occasionally arms and legs.

Whenever Aunt Jennie hears that one of the boys has had an accident she says my husband, "Where was their mother?" He turns to me and says, "That's a good question. Where were you?"

I resent the implication that I am derelict in my duty. How can I defend myself? — IRRITATED.

DEAR IRRITATED: You don't need to defend yourself. Thing happen to kids even when their mothers are there.

The next time Aunt Jennie asks "Where was their mother?" tell her you were dead drunk in a beer parlor — as usual. That should melt the icebergs in her bridgework.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 16-year-old girl who could pass for 19 physically and mentally. I am madly in love with a boy who is 17 and I'm not kidding. I'm positive he doesn't know what love is I will never buy your paper again as long as I live.

The trouble is Steve's mother. She hates me like poison. I don't know why she has such a grudge but I must have got the old bag out of the bathtub because she was in a rotten mood. She called me a cheap, pushy little nothing and ordered me to leave her son alone. I told her I wouldn't marry Steve, over her dead body if necessary, and then I hung up.

When I told Steve about the conversation he was mad at me not her. He said I was making trouble for him and maybe we had better stop seeing each other.

I hate Steve's mother but I'm afraid if I don't make friends with her it will be the end of Steve and me. What should I do? — SCARLET O'HARA.

DEAR SCARLET: A 16-year-old girl who tells the mother of a 17-year-old boy that she's going to marry him over her dead body is not apt to endear herself — especially if she hauls the woman out of the bathtub to deliver the message. You sound like bad news to me, Toots. You need to learn restraint and respect. You also need a fresh start with a new boy and a different mother.

Prizes donated for industrial arts by the Association were presented by Mr. Albert Kraetsch, president, to Peter Gray, grade 7A; Dell Lorimer, grade 7B; Carl Ward, grade 7C; Antonio Concalves, grade 7D; Mark Williams, grade 7E; Robert Fobert, grade 8A; Bertrim Bovelaas, grade 8B; Dominic Letalski, grade 8C, and Paul Penney, grade 8D.

After presentations of prizes Mr. Doyle introduced the guest speaker, Mr. R. Reed a member of St. John Ambulance, who gave a talk and demonstration in regard to "Water Safety".

Election of officers for next year resulted as follows: Mr. Albert Kraetsch, president; Mr. F. J. Becker, vice - president; Mrs. L. Smith, secretary; Mr. J. Thorne, treasurer.

A gift was presented to Mrs. T. Dawson, Miss M. Walsh, Miss P. Fahey and Miss C. Gorgas, teachers who are leaving St. Michael's teaching staff this year.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. J. Doyle and her committee.

Mrs. G. Gulliver, Mrs. A. Bean, Mrs. A. Bradford and Mrs. C. Meeks presented with life memberships in the Royal Canadian Legion Ladies' Auxiliary at a potluck dinner meeting held Tuesday evening to mark Belleville Legion Week. Absent from the picture are Mrs. D. Jeffs and Mrs. A. Newton who were also awarded life memberships.

Six Awarded Life Memberships At Legion Ladies' Aux. Dinner

The connection with Legion Week now being observed in Belleville, the Ladies' Auxiliary for their part in the week's activities held a potluck supper on Tuesday.

Members, their husbands and guests sat down to a tasty, well prepared supper. The tables were decorated with vases of lilacs and snowball blooms, while the head table was graced with a beautiful centrepiece of gold and blue blooms, the Legion colors.

President Dorothy Rashotte introduced the head table guests, President Jeanette McDonald of the Col. Phay Wills Branch, Past President Betty Hodge of Branch 99 Ladies' Auxiliary and her husband Comrade Fred Hodge, President Dick Kirby of Branch 99 and his wife Comrade "Billy" Kirby of Col. Phay Wills Branch; Zone Commander Hope Begley and her husband Mr. J. Begley, and Comrade Zone Commander Mrs. Edgecombe.

LIFE MEMBERSHIPS

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of life membership to six of the Auxiliary members. These ladies were seated at a special table with a red rosebud in a crystal vase in front of each one. The newly elected Zone Commander Hope Begley performed this ceremony. Unfortunately Comrade Jeffs and Comrade Newton were unable to attend.

The four present were Comrades Bradford, Bean, Meeks and Gulliver.

Each thanked the Auxiliary for the honor bestowed on them. Comrade Bradford related how during World War II a train pulled into Belleville station during the night and instead of the Canadian troops expected, the train was full of British P.O.W.'s from Japan. The boys were in pretty poor condition and wearing carpet slippers. While supplying them with milk, oranges and other commodities, one of the lads proved to be a next door neighbor of Mrs. Meek's mother in England.

Comrade Ray Madden spoke briefly of the well deserved recognition these women deserved for their hard work, especially in the early years of the Legion and during the war. The combined years of active service of all six members amounted to 226 years.

Comrade Everett Liddle echoed these sentiments.

President Dorothy Rashotte presented president Dick Kirby with a cheque for $300, on behalf of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Comrade Kirby expressed his sincere thanks and stated he knew the members of hours of hard work it took the Auxiliary to raise such a sum. He asked that the newer and younger members look to honored life members and take them as a good example of a Legion member.

The centrepiece was won by Cecil Cherry.

All Councils of Women To Hold Seminar in 67

By LINDA CRAWFORD

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—A seminar to attract all councils of women in the Western Hemisphere to Expo 67 will be held in Montreal by the National Council of Women of Canada in the centennial year, it was announced at the close of the council's annual meeting Thursday.

Mrs. H. H. Steen of Vancouver, president, said councils in all the countries have been invited to attend the 1967 annual meeting.

Looking at the Canadian country which represents 1,200 federated organizations across the country, Mrs. Steen said a new membership course approved during the meeting here is expected to diminish the shortage of younger women in organizations.

The courses will teach women to assume the responsibility of office and encourage active participation in all phases of community life.

"It is also to prepare women for public life," the president said.

WOMEN NEED TRAINING

"Women need training to compete with men in politics."

She said it now is more important for women to run in election and take positions in government - because volunteer organizations soon will be obsolete.

"Service work soon is going to be taken over by the government," she said, "and volunteers should seek positions as administrators on boards or else take their place and work for the government."

The 140 delegates attending the five-day meeting considered a variety of topics and approved a newsmagazine to replace the current newsletter.

Resolutions adopted included those urging the federal government to widen the grounds for divorce; implement the sections of the Bladen report on student aid and university financing; prevent the proliferation of nuclear weapons and to conclude a treaty banning all nuclear testing.

Talk on Newspaper Given At Teachers' Fed. Meeting

NAPANEE — The advance information that Sister Mary Fleurette of Belleville was to speak on the use of newspapers in the classroom, brought out a record number of women teachers of Lennox and of Tyendinaga Township for the annual meeting of the Federated Women Teachers' Association of Ontario recently in the Prince Charles School. Those teachers are all in the inspectorate of Mr. Paul Anderson.

Sister Fleurette is well qualified to deal with her subject. A teacher of English in Nicholson College in Belleville, she not only has the usual training for such a position, but also has had special training, sponsored by the Belleville Intelligencer. Sister Mary Fleurette attended a two-weeks' workshop at Waterloo University which dealt with using newspapers as instructional aids in teaching. Wednesday evening she did her best to pass on to her audience a digest of what she had learned in those two weeks.

The teachers were impressed by her intelligence and marvelled that she taught them so much in so short a time. They are agreed that it was due to careful, painstaking preparation. Sister Mary Fleurette had prepared 45 kits to distribute, each containing one copy of the three Toronto dailies, the Kingston Whig-Standard, also a daily, the weekly Napanee Beaver, and The Intelligencer. In addition there were various aids sent to her by these newspapers. Unfortunately, there were 15 disappointed teachers who did not receive one. The usual attendance averages 30 and she had prepared 45. The attendance Wednesday evening was 60. She had also brought along paper hats furnished by The Intelligencer, which the teachers wore throughout the evening.

Among the other aides which Sister handed out were nine lesson plans, and she herself taught one lesson to her audience, demonstrating how the plans are to be used. She believes them to be invaluable in teaching English, showing as they do the use of the pyramid method of writing, with the most important details in the first paragraph. Each succeeding paragraph furnishes further details. The busy person can thus skim a newspaper, absorbing the top of each pyramid, and can acquaint himself with the most vital part of the day's news.

She noted that President Kennedy had gone through 18 newspapers each day by using this method.

The speaker also pointed out the value of reading several newspapers in order to compare the method of treating the same story used by the different writers. Some are factual reports, she said, and others are biased. No two reporters are impressed to the same extent by any one detail of a story.

Sister Fleurette had prepared posters to illustrate the use that could be made of the same newspaper to teach a variety of subjects. She had taken clippings from The Intelligencer for two weeks, and the posters, or bulletins, were made up from those clippings according to subject, such as geography, science, history government, and mathematics in addition to English. She made up not only of news stories but also of editorials, and, of course, pictures. According to Sister Fleurette, every part of a newspaper is of use in teaching. So important to her are newspapers in her teaching that she devotes one 35-minute period a week to them in her grade 12 English classes.

One teacher made the observation that the evening gave her not only information with which to teach, but also it was an object lesson on how to teach.

The ten women teachers of the staff of the Deseronto Public School had turned out en masse, and served their refreshments.

Gore

THE GORE — The Institute meeting on Thursday evening was well attended at Centre Church Hall. Members of the girls' Home Making Club presented a variety program. For their accomplishments in the club work each girl was presented with a silver teaspoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Price of Selby were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Pulver.

The sympathy of the community goes out to Mrs. Hubert Townsend in the sudden passing of her brother, Mr. Allen Wallbridge, of Hutt's Island.

A large number of Centre-Victoria friends gathered at Victoria church on Saturday evening to honor Mr. and Mrs. Peter Morris with a shower. After a program of musical numbers and pictures shown by Mr. D. K. Redner, Mr. and Mrs. Moran were presented with a chrome set and several individual presents.

Mayors Want Right to Give Information on Birth Control

By TOM CARNEY

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Criminal Code should be amended to permit municipal agencies to give out birth control information, the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities agreed Thursday.

Delegates to the federation's 29th annual conference approved a request that the federal government amend the code.

They also asked senior governments to provide funds to compensate those who are victims of criminal acts.

During the conference which started Tuesday, more than 1,000 delegates heard guest speakers and took part in discussions of urban renewal sections of the National Housing Act, the need for a Canadian community development act, urban policy and municipal government, and solution of regional problems.

The conference called for a review of the whole municipal tax structure at the three levels of government and exploration of the possibility of a federal-provincial - municipal conference for such a review.

It also called for a broadening of the National Housing Act to give municipalities more financial assistance, and asked that senior governments increase assistance with the municipal burden of education and health service costs.

WEEDRITE® WAS HERE!

New weedkiller kills weeds and unwanted grasses where others cannot.

New 'Weedrite' is like no other weedkiller yet developed. Here's why: (1) it kills everything that's green — but cannot harm mature brown bark; and (2) it becomes completely inactive on contact with soil, so it can't damage planted seeds or run off onto adjacent ground.

This means that with 'Weedrite' you can safely spray, as recommended, around trees and shrubs, beneath hedges, along driveways and even close to desireable plants, flowers and vegetables. Available in 7oz. containers (to treat approximately 800 sq. ft.) 'Weedrite' is at your Chipman Dealer's now.

Debate served in on the nine. A. A. Mongrain (DCr.—Trois Rivieres) moved an amendment specifying that three of these should be French-speaking Canadians. Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste — Lapointe) seconded it.

It finally went down 88 to 8 in a standing committee vote. The mover and seconder were reported by three other Creditistes, and Georges Valade (PC — Montreal Ste. Marie), Jean Rochon (L—Montreal Laval) and Maurice Allard (Ind. PC—Sherbrooke).

Raynald Guay (L — Levis) then moved a second amendment that in appointments to the board the government recognize Canada's bilingual nature.

Discussion on this was to continue today.

ing to a question from Robert Nixon (L—Brant).

—Mr. Davis announced that tuition allowances for persons enrolled in federal-provincial job retraining courses will be increased effective July 1. The daily allowance for single persons will be raised to $7 from $5. A man with one dependent will receive an additional $4, two dependents $6, and three dependents $8.

NOT IN CONTEMPT

—Attorney - General Arthur Wishart said he doesn't believe two Toronto newspaper editorials on a Supreme Court judgment in favor of Dominion Co. picketing dispute are in contempt of court.

—A report from the Ontario Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation suggested the law could be a powerful instrument in preventing alcoholism if it were used to create atmospheres of recreation rather than drinking.

On the educational issues, Mr. MacDonald said the length of education has increased, its quality for many has deteriorated.

"Educational inflation is evident in high school entrants who haven't mastered spelling or the university entrants who can barely manage their mother tongue, much less claim efficiency in our second national language."

On the television issue, Mr. Davis said the province has asked for a license to transmit educational television programs over channel 19, an ultra-high frequency channel. No action on the application had been taken.

One Can Corrupt Nation

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Twice in the last 20 years, the world has seen what can happen when a thoroughly wicked man gets in control of a great nation. It saw Germany and Russia turned into vast concentration camps by Hitler and Stalin. Both men victimized the people. Both attacked the religion of the Bible. Hitler tried to substitute pagan gods for Christianity. Stalin tried to uproot religion altogether.

What Hitler was to Germany, and Stalin was to Russia, Manasseh was to Judah. Following the good reign of Hezekiah, Manasseh plunged the nation into the grossest kind of idolatry and wickedness. Ruling longer than any other king of Judah (55 years) he had plenty of time to impress his evil influence on the nation. Idolatry was re-established with all its accompanying evils. Murder was rampant. Even human sacrifice was revived. The reign of Manasseh was such a stench in the nostrils of the Lord, the sacred writer blames it for the judgments of God visited on the nation years later.

PEACE AT ANY PRICE

How much was due to outside pressure, and how much to Manasseh's own wicked nature, we do not know. Assyria was at the height of its power. Manasseh managed to maintain peace, but it was bought at the price of regular tribute paid to Assyria, and the acceptance of Assyrian and other foreign cults. Thus peace in Manasseh's time cost dearly. It was maintained at the cost of servility and tragic compromise.

No one would question that peace is one of the most desired goals of mankind. But free people would settle for peace at any price. Sometimes even peace can come too soon. This raises one of the most difficult problems a Christian is called on to face, and that is his attitude toward war.

War is a monstrous thing. It seems to deny everything for which the New Testament stands. "Blessed are the peacemakers," said Jesus, "for they shall be called sons of God." (Matthew 5:9 RSV) Almost everyone would agree with this. But peace with Hitler would have meant continued appeasement and the annihilation of every Jew in Germany. Someone had to call Hitler's bluff, and war seemed the only way to do it.

So it is with Communism.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for June 12: "Manasseh Leads Judah Into Sin." II Kings 21:1-18; II Chronicles 33:1-20.

Perhaps Manasseh is more to be pitied than hated. That he went further in encouraging idolatry the Assyria would have required is quite evident. But he was under pressure, and was too weak or corrupt to resist. Then he corrupted the nation, and led it down the tragic road to ultimate defeat.

PEOPLE TAKE EASY WAY

Why did the people permit it to happen? We can be sure that many remained true to their faith, and were silent only because it was dangerous to speak out against the king's wickedness. Perhaps some did speak out, and paid for their courage with their lives. This may explain why the streets of Jerusalem ran with blood during Manasseh's reign. (II Kings 21:16)

For many, however, the religion of Jehovah was too straightlaced. It demanded moral discipline and social justice. Most people would rather take the easy way of self-indulgence and social advantage. Moses might prefer to "share ill-treat ment with the people of God" rather than the "fleeting pleasures of sin" (Hebrews 11:25), but most people are not that dedicated. They want the pleasures that go along with pagan standards.

Some theologians today are saying God is dead. If they mean He is dead in the consciousness of millions of people, they are right. Whether they believe in Him or not, millions live as if God did not exist. They are like the people who complained to Moses, "Is that all what we said to you in Egypt, 'Let us alone, and let us serve the Egyptians'? For it would have been better for us to serve the Egyptians than to die in the wilderness." (Exodus 14:12 RSV)

Millions frankly say to Christ and His church, "Let us alone. It is better for us to die in our sins than that we should miss out on the pleasures of the world." They fail to see the feeling better of those pleasures, or that they lead to ultimate moral decadence. Thus they pull down around them the moral structure built up by men of faith who have learned the lesson of history that "righteousness exalts a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people." (Prov. 14:34)

Would Accept Verdict if Reds Won at Polls

DAR ES SALAAM (AP)—Senator Robert F Kennedy today defended U.S. Viet Nam policy before some of the top men of Tanzania's ruling party. He said the United States wants the people of South Viet Nam to decide their own destiny.

"The vast majority of the people of South Viet Nam, if left to themselves, would not choose Communism," he said. "The concern of the United States is to help people themselves determine their future.

"All we are asking is for some peace in the country so there can be an election. If the people decide to have Communism, the United States will abide by it, if they choose some other form of government, the United States will abide by that."

The New York Democrat, who flew here from South Africa on a four-day private visit, was given a cheering, friendly but big welcome when he arrived at the headquarters of the Tanganyika African National Union party for a meeting with some of its leaders.

said in an interview: "The movement leading to the complete disappearance of paternage must continue, and more quickly than before."

Paul Dozois, former municipal affairs minister who has acted as financial critic in opposition, said, the Liberals' alternate plans to set up a committee through which the Opposition would be able to examine government spending plans. As a supplementary guarantee, the legislature's public accounts committee would be able to review expenditures already made.

Mr. Lesage said the result of the election was not affected by the two separatist parties in the running, or by the fact that the election was held on a Sunday for the first time.

The three factors which had caused his defeat were the elimination of patronage, which had angered some persons; "apathy and overconfidence" on the part of others; "candidates and supporters; and independent Liberal candidates who drained off part of the Liberal vote.

Graham Talks With London Beatnik Group

LONDON (AP) — A dozen beatniks invited London beatniks and their mini - skirted girls went to Billy Graham's crusade at Earls Court Wednesday night and two of the youths were among the first making public commitments in Christ.

The U.S. evangelist chatted with the beatnik group before the meeting.

"He told me I had a fine beard and that Christ had a beard too," said Robert Wilson, a New Zealander.

Billy Graham's subject was God's delinquents and many of those he talked to were skin-tight jeans, loafers, sweat shirts and dark glasses. Graham estimated about 60 per cent of the 22,500 present were under 25 years old.

RAISIN ON OLD STORY

"There's nothing wrong with sex," the preacher said. "It's not sex that is wrong, but sex is a sin. Sex outside marriage is a sin."

When the time came for the battle ready to make a commitment to come to the front, two long-haired youths shambled out from the beatnik group. Next came two girls from a club in Soho (London's Bohemian area).

Soon whole families were behind them.

"This is harvest time in England," said Graham.

The night's number of commitments or decisions for Christ, as the evangelist calls them, beat all records for the London crusade to date at 1,284.

So far 155,300 have attended the London crusade meetings.

"I think the crusade is now gaining momentum," said Graham. "I think this shows a great hunger for God."

Alma Splashes Across Georgia

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP)—Hurricane Alma, her might diminished after hitting the Florida Panhandle, is splashing through Georgia today.

The national hurricane centre in Miami predicted rains up to eight inches along a wide path from Georgia to the Carolinas and warned of possible flooding.

But Alma no longer met hurricane standards of winds of 75 miles an hour or more. Her highest winds were 70 miles an hour, and reported ebbing.

The early - season hurricane from the tropics, charged with 47 deaths in three countries, was reported moving northeastward at about 12 miles an hour.

"Not only that, he spent a lot for some expensive men's cologné to impress her."

Charge India Gets 'Makings' For Atom Bomb

KARACHI (Reuters)—A Pakistani government official charged today that India is collecting fissionable material to make nuclear weapons.

Abdul Awal Bhuiyan, parliamentary secretary for foreign affairs, told the Pakistan National Assembly that India was using a Canadian-supplied research reactor to make the material.

Bhuiyan said that if India made nuclear weapons there would be serious repercussions in the whole Afro-Asian region. Work is expected to start soon on another Canadian reactor near Karachi, which would enable Pakistan to produce fissionable plutonium in the early 1970s. Both India and Pakistan have agreed to Canadian inspection of the reactors.

KEIGHLEY, England (AP)—Pierre Dandre, 27, French-born Montreal immigrant, Canada's amateur cycling team, suffered a broken collar bone today when 30 riders in the Tour of Britain race went over a steep slope near the top of a 2,000-foot Pennines peak.

Police Chiefs Seek Tighter Traffic Control

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Ontario police chiefs, seeking tighter control of pedestrian and traffic situations, tried again Thursday for more heavy penalties for offenders.

At the closing session of their four-day annual meeting, the chief constables passed a range of resolutions—some aimed at arrests without warrants.

Among the resolutions was a request for legislation which would require pedestrians to identify themselves when asked to by police. Another asked for permission to arrest non-residents on charges involving hazardous driving and a third for laws requiring drivers to produce driving licenses.

Under present legislation, these situations call only for issuing of a summons. The police chiefs want the right to intervene on the spot without a warrant, a step they said is necessary for proper law enforcement.

Two of the proposals — hazardous driving and failure to produce a license—were turned down several times during the last two years. The pedestrian control proposal was defeated last year.

In other resolutions, delegates rejected a bid to lower the liquor purchasing age to 18 from 21 and recommended reinstation of juvenile boating for persons over 18 and purchase of firearms to persons over 16.

Wednesday, Hanover Chief F. W. Illingsworth said children between ages and 16 were placing bets at racetracks. This led to a motion to bar children from racetracks altogether, but it was defeated.

"We don't feel we wanted to discriminate against children with a love for horses," said Chief Fred Minshall of Goderich. "We realize betting is just a sideline at the races."

Delegates earlier asked for an age limit of 18 for persons purchasing firearms, but later decided in favor of 16.

"Eighteen makes it pretty hard against ones who hunt rabbits and groundhogs," one delegate said.

Chief Finlay Carroll of London told the group that enforcement of the act was hampered by non-existent as far as some police departments are concerned. He spoke on a resolution urging revision of the lottery section of the Criminal Code.

Interracial Marriages Sanctioned

TORONTO (CP) — The 92nd general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada was told Thursday that labor unions don't use their privileges properly.

Speaking on a resolution supporting the right to work as respect of union security, Dr. Archibald Brown of Toronto told delegates that unions' conduct at the bargaining table "is socially abusive."

He said if the church supported unionism it would be giving sanctioning "to the already overprivileged labor unions" that they don't deserve.

Despite his address, the assembly passed the motion and also a resolution asking the federal government to raise old age pensions.

In another session, delegates passed a motion sanctioning interracial marriages. The issue was carried easily but the moderator, Dr. G. Dexter Johnston, told the assembly it did not mean the church encouraged such marriages.

"The individual must consider the society and culture in which he lives before he takes such a step," Dr. Johnson said.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

A surprisingly large number of readers assume that it is the tenant's obligation to pay the rent, and it is the landlord's responsibility to fix all repairs and maintain the property. Sometimes this is not true!

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I thought the landlord was obligated to make repairs. The agent who collects our rent says it is our responsibility. Who is right?

Last month we rented a house. A few days after moving in, a neighbor's child threw a stone through the kitchen window. We asked the agent but he says the tenants all make their own repairs. Is this practice common? — T. T.

ANSWER: In multi - family residential property, the landlord usually does all repairs and maintenance. In single family houses, however, the landlord usually is responsible for major repairs, but the tenant often is obligated to make normal repairs and undertake normal maintenance. This is common real estate management practice.

However, the above rule sometimes is altered by agreement (the lease). The lease may provide that the tenant is responsible for all repairs. Notwithstanding this, in some municipalities the landlord cannot put the responsibility for repair to the tenant because statutes specifically provide for the landlord to assume the responsibility of keeping the leased premises in reasonable repair.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: When I built my house, I was determined to have no leaks. I hired the best (?) architect in town, but only to prepare the plans but also to supervise the job. My problem is the architect.

The plumber has presented me a bill for $250 which I regard as outrageous. I also feel that the plans as prepared contained a principal blunder in the plumbing layout. Without telling me, the architect instructed the plumber to make the corrections. Since the architect made the mistake, I insist that he pay the bill. Do you agree? (He has agreed to abide by your decision.) — Mr. C. T. C.

ANSWER: Although the mistake is regrettable, in my opinion the architect is not responsible for payment of the bill. In architectural practice, the architect has sufficient authority to do what he reasonably necessary to complete the work to completion. Making changes to correct minor errors in the plans and specifications is within the architect's authority and responsibility.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: When anyone in our family is taking a shower, he or she does not step his feet and be prepared to jump without warning. If anyone in the house turns on a cold water faucet you are scalded. Or if a hot water faucet is turned on, you freeze. How does one correct this situation? It's a new house. —Mrs. B. D.

ANSWER: The trouble cannot be corrected without great expense. I am afraid you are going to have to train the family not to use any water when one is taking a shower.

The cause of the trouble is that both the hot and cold water lines are too small to carry an adequate volume of water. The builder saved about $30 or $75 by putting in undersized lines.

Correcting it requires a new line throughout the house, together with new valves and new connections to all fixtures. It might even require a new heater. We asked the agent but he says the tenants all make their own repairs. Is this practice common? — T. T.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: When we bought our new house, I had not yet sold the old one, so we obtained a $14,000 mortgage. Now that the old house has been sold, I have the $14,000. I would like to pay off the mortgage. However, I have been told that this cannot be done unless I give the bank $280 extra. Do I have to? — Confused

ANSWER: There is no stated and penalty for paying off a mortgage — it varies among banks, however, mortgages cannot be paid off during the first five years without penalty. During the next five percent penalty, some have larger penalties and some cannot be paid off at any time without a charge.

Apparently our correspondent obtained a mortgage that carries a 2 percent penalty. This is the cost, as per contract, for paying off the mortgage.

If one has any plans for paying off his mortgage before maturity, he should shop around among lenders to obtain a loan with a penalty clause that is satisfactory. Then you have the mortgage it is too late!

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I contracted for a concrete patio. The builder told me that on the evening before he poured the patio I wants me to thoroughly soak the soil. Was he kidding me? (The whole town thinks him a real great practical joker.) I'll do it if necessary, but I don't want to look foolish. — A. S. E.

ANSWER: This time the builder is not kidding! Dry earth will pull water from the concrete, causing it not only to crack, but also weak in of sub-standard strength. Another advantage of thoroughly soaking the soil is that it will minimize settlement.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

British eyebrows especially those who hail from the south coast of the tight little island, will fly up to the heavens when the Regatta at Cowes and the review of the Royal Navy off Spithead, you've missed two of the world's finest nautical spectacles.

The awesome strength of the ships of the line parading in solemn grey splendor with the warship guardian destroyers on starboard and port flanks puts a lump in the throat of every Englishman.

The Cowes Regatta is a spectacular of a different nature, England and the continent's fairest and best add brilliant shoreline color to royalty.

There is royalty afloat, too.

Tall-masted yachts, saggy sails matching the cloudy wisps drifting overhead, form a picture of breath-taking beauty to the thousands ashore. It is a scene that even the toughest landlubber will recall with pardonable pride.

There is something about the sight of a trim yacht, heeling "scuppers awash", so to speak, before a spanking breeze on a bright sunny day that would make a fiberfist mixer turn for a second look.

There is something of a mechanical beauty about the sight of powered craft on parade. Sleek, trim cabin cruisers and other craft move in more or less solemn impressionism, a very pleasing show, but my mind lacking something the heeling white wings provide.

In my sailing days down Halifax way, I was a crew member of the noble yawl-rigged "Vagrant" a thirty-five footer that slept two with ease if with its clothes on. The weekly junket from the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron to Bedford via the "Basin" was a thing of beauty and joy forever — or until the next one.

Some forty-five schooner-rigs, sloops, yawls and smaller craft usually cast off. It was racing combined with pleasure with the gals aiding cars to arrive ahead and form a welcoming committee.

Another memorable sailing experience came when the sports editor assigned me to cover a test run of the famous "Bluenose". All was well until we hit the heaving swells of the Atlantic on the first leg of a triangular thirty-mile course.

The order of the day was "everybody on their stomachs." When we hit the choppy swells I swallowed enough sea water to float the "Queen Mary." The editor told me the story on the test run was lousy, let the article on mal-de-mer had feature potential.

Back to the "white wings." If you have never seen a parade of yachts there will be an opportunity some Saturday afternoon.The Bay of Quinte Yacht Club is holding its annual sail-past and will parade on the bay starting four o'clock.

The club's demon public relations man Les Jourard tells me some forty or more handsomely-powered vessels led by Vice-Commodore Ernie Colebourne will parade in review order.

Yacht Club Commodore Dr. Harold Craig will take the salute from the official boat. The boats line up at 3.30.

The colorful flotilla will be headed by past commodores Rogers Riedel, Fleet Captain Ben Guyer will lead the "Skipealers" to be followed by the Centreboarders with Junior Sailing Chairman Cy Gardner in command. The motor craft will bring up the rear.

Many visiting dignitaries and officials will be viewing the sailpast on board the boats of yacht club members.

Sports Program Was Washout

Thursday night's local sports program was a complete "washout" thanks to the downpour of rain.

Included in the postponements were a Belleville and District Softball game at Bloomfield between Bloomfield and the Bobcats, a Commercial League tilt between Black Diamond Cheese and Lightfoot Construction, and the minor schedule.

There are now four postponed games in the B. and D. loop, three of them at Alemite Park and another in Bloomfield. The latter scheduled games have Ellis Jrs. visiting Trudeau Motors, at the Alemite, Saturday night at 8.30 while Bobcats go to Maddoc for an 8.15 game.

It was announced this morning that a Commercial game, between City Hotel and Black Diamond Cheese, washed out on May 31, will be played Sunday, at the CNRA Park, at 6.30.

FAMILY BENEFITS

TORONTO (CP)— The family of track marshal Gordon Harrison, 37, of Toronto, killed during the 200-mile sports car race at Mosport Saturday, will receive half the profits from the next major race to be staged at the track this season- Harry Clarke, president of the race club association, said Thursday.

Then The Scorekeeper Fainted

CLEARFIELD, Pa. (AP)— A little league team in Clearfield may be tough to match.

Maders of the Moshannon Valley little league scored 49 runs in a six-inning game to beat Jonesville 49-1.

The winners scored 36 runs in the last three innings, including 15 in the fourth. Maders had 23 hits.

Wanted; Hosts For 1969 Games

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Sport Federation has asked the premiers and sports directors of Canada's 10 provinces to indicate what municipalities within their jurisdiction are interested-in playing host to the 1969 summer games.

Six years ago the CASF proposed that Canadian summer and winter games be held every fourth year. Quebec City will host the first winter games Feb. 17-19, 1967.

The first summer games will be of seven to 10 days duration in either July or August, 1969.

Minnesota Twins trailed Kansas City Athletics 4-3 in the seventh inning when suddenly Rich Rollins homered. Then Zoilo Versalles homered, and Tony Oliva, and Don Mincher, and Harmon Killebrew.

That brought up Jimmie Hall, with a chance to set a major league record for most homers in one inning.

Hall settled for a double.

"I'm going to fine Hall $100 for breaking up a rally," quipped Minnesota manager Sam Mele.

Despite the 9-4 victory, Mele's defending American League championships still are in sixth place—three games under the .500 mark and nine games behind front running Baltimore Orioles.

But the Twins can claim the AL record for most homers in an inning. Three National League teams, however, have hit five homers in one inning.

The Orioles, meanwhile took over first place from Cleveland by beating Washington Senators twice while the Indians and New York Yankees were rained out.

Baltimore won a game that had been suspended Wednesday night, 5-4, and then came back for a 4-2 victory in the regularly scheduled game in the only other American League game, Detroit Tigers battered Boston Red Sox 9-1.

The Athletics pulled out to a 4-0 lead against the Twins with Larry Stahl's bases - loaded triple the key blow in the first inning sporting against starter Camilo Pascual. Bob Allison doubled in a run in the fifth and Killebrew brought two more across in the sixth with his first homer of the game.

Rollins, pinch hitting, started the homer barrage in the seventh with a two-run shot off Catfish Hunter that put the Twins ahead 5 - 4. Versalles' homer came next. Hunter and brought in Paul Lindblad. Lindblad got Sandy Valdespin but Oliva and Mincher followed with homers that brought on John Wyatt.

STOPPER IN THE RALLY

Wyatt was tagged for Killebrew's second homer, then stopped the rally by holding Hall to a double.

The Orioles finished off Wednesday night's suspended game against the senators with a four-run eighth - inning rally that wiped out a 6-4 Washington lead. The big blow was Boog Powell's two - run homer following a single by Jerry Adair, Camilo Carreon's double and a game - tying single by Sam Bowens.

Boog Powell's 10th home run of the year drove in two runs and lifted Baltimore to a 4-3 victory in the nightcap. Powell's shot snapped a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning.

Dave McNally, who struck out 11 batters in the first six innings, got credit for his fifth victory in seven decisions. Stu Miller finished up.

Norm Cash, Don Demeter and Bill Freehan crashed homers in support of Dave Wickersham's five - hit pitching as the Tigers crushed the Red Sox for their fifth straight victory. The Tigers were aided by 13 walks issued by five Boston pitchers.

"Great For Football"

CFL President Likes Merger

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Ted Workman of Montreal, president of the Canadian Football League, says merger of the National and American football leagues will put his league back in competition with big name college football players in the United States.

Workman, attending the southeastern conference of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes near Asheville, told a reporter Thursday.

"It has been impossible for the Canadian League to compete with the American and National leagues in the matter of bonuses. We've always competed in salary, never in bonuses.

"We do not intend to raid the U.S. for football players. We only have to get a couple of name players every once in a while to let them know we aren't second class. The merger, of course, will eliminate the paying of huge bonuses and we will be able to compete for personnel."

Workman called the merger "a great thing for pro football and for the young people who aspire to be professional football players."

Workman said a strong Canadian League would benefit American professional football.

ELORDE BEATEN

TOKYO (AP)—Yoshiaki Numata, 21-year-old Japanese, Thursday ended the 14-year reign of Flash Elorde of Manila as the lightweight boxing champion of the Orient by taking a unanimous 15-round decision. The new champion weighed 126½ pounds, Elorde 125.

Suspend Coach For Year

Lom Carson, a coach for Belvedere Hotel in the Belleville Commercial Softball League, has been suspended from all association with the league for a one-year period.

The suspension was set prior to Wednesday night's game at the Alemite, won by Belvedere Hotel, 6-5, over the City Hotel.

The league executive and coaches held a meeting following Carson's attack on plate umpire Herb Pointer in a game played on Tuesday night.

Carson is alleged to have yanked plate umpire Pointer's mask and to have struck the official. Belvedere Hotel lost that game to Stewart Warner 13-2.

"500" Pile-Up

No One Driver Blamed

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—The U.S. Auto Club reported Thursday that no one driver can be blamed for the 15-car pile-up at the start of the 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway May 30.

A Canadian driver, Billy Foster of Victoria, came under considerable criticism after the accident, but a statement by Henry Banks, USAC director of competition, absolved Foster of any real fault.

"The first-lap pile-up at the start of the 500 this year is not the fault of any one driver," Banks' statement said. "A careful study of several films of the race shortly indicates that no one driver is to blame and it is most unfortunate that one driver had to stand the brunt of unwarranted criticism.

"The pile-up that involved the 15 cars and eliminated 11 from the race can only be termed a racing accident."

Offered Franchise In A.F.L.

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Vancouver could have had a franchise in the American Football League in 1960 for $25,000.

The report, in a column by Dick Beddoes, says that businessman Harry Ornest and millionaire Peter Graham, both of Vancouver, were offered an AFL franchise if they could find a park.

However, the only suitable park was Empire Stadium, home of British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference, and the AFL bid was blocked. The league placed a team in Oakland, Calif., instead.

The report also says that Ted Workman, then a major shareholder of Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference, told AFL officials at a time that if Vancouver entered, he would consider joining the league.

Jay Five-Hits Phillies; Giants Win

Heat Was On

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Joey Jay flourished in Philadelphia's hot and humid Connie Mack Stadium and Jim Davenport didn't do so badly in the air conditioned comfort of Houston's Astrodome.

Operating in completely opposite climates Thursday night, Jay pitched a sharp five-hitter as Cincinnati Reds beat the Phillies 1-0 while Davenport's 14th inning double drove in two runs and lifted San Francisco Giants to a 3-1 victory over the Astros.

Jay perspired freely in the steambath atmosphere against the Phillies, but seemed to thrive on the heat.

"I guess I lost about 10 pounds," said the strong right-hander who won his sixth game in eight decisions.

PROVIDED THE RUN

Davenport, who broke a 17-inning game against New York with a homer earlier this season, delivered his big double to snap a tie that had existed since the fifth inning and beat Jim Owens, Houston's third pitcher.

Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta Braves stretched their winning streak to six games with an 8-4 victory over New York Mets and St. Louis Cardinals downed Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3.

Tony Perez started Cincinnati's winning rally with a single after two were out in the eighth. Tommy Helms' fourth hit of the game moved pinch runner Dick Simpson around to third.

The Cardenas' single broke the scoreless tie.

STARTS WINNING RALLY

Willie McCovey ignited the Giants' winning rally with a single. After Jim Hart sacrificed, Tom Haller was intentionally walked, setting the stage for Davenport's big hit.

Rico Carty smacked four hits including a home run and Mack Jones tagged a three - run homer in Atlanta's five-run first inning as the Braves ripped the Mets.

Ken Boyer homered for New York.

Jerry Buchek and Phil Gagliano accounted for all the Cardinal runs with a pair of two-run homers as Al Jackson scattered eight hits for his fifth victory.

Both the homers came against rookie Woody Fryman, who lost his first game after four straight victories.

Rozelle Calls The Shots

NFL Came Out of "War" The Top Dog

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—Who won the War—the National Football League or the American Football League?

Both of them, and again, neither.

Some wag commented that the AFL generals won the battle but its politicians lost the peace.

The NFL definitely came out of it the top dog. The macmoneth new circuit, joining in 1970, will be called the National League. The NFL's boss, Pete Rozelle, calls all the shots, effective at once.

The AFL won a victory in that it finally got the NFL to admit that the AFL existed.

"We were conscious of them all the time," Rozelle acknowledged, a little grudgingly.

The AFL no longer is from the other side of the tracks. It came out of the deal an equal party, but the price was dear. The AFL must pay a heavy indemnity for the right to existence.

In cold figures, this is $18,000,000 over a period of 20 years plus relinquishing the right to the money from the projected two new franchises which may add another $18,000,000 or $20,000,000 to NFL coffers.

Another costly price was sacrifice of the plucky fighters in the AFL who wanted to fight the NFL to the finish. These pickle Commissioner Al Davis, Peddy now looking for another job, and perhaps Sonny Werblin of the New York Jets and Bud Adams of Houston.

"We had them over the barrel and let them get away," growled one of the AFL dignitaries.

"Why should we pay them any money—they should pay us," another AFLer said.

The Hawks in the AFL were ready to start raiding NFL rosters, but NFL knew this, that the senior league was happy to reach a truce, even if it meant recognizing a rival.

Lamar Hunt of the AFL Kansas City Chiefs and Tex McGrievance of the NFL Dallas Cowboys, main instruments in the three - month negotiations, both insist that football and the fans profit from the merger.

They won't admit the players on Cowboys are the $400,000 or $450,000 bonus contract given to players such as Joe Namath and Donny Anderson.

Now it's between the clubs and the players. There's no outside competition forcing up the market.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Merger of the National and American Football Leagues will improve the import player situation for the Canadian Football League, Winnipeg Coach C. Sydney Halter said Thursday.

"The CFL will only have one club competing with it for the services of an American, the same situation that existed prior to the AFL being organized," Halter said.

But the improvement won't be overwhelming. "American clubs will still be able to outbid the Canadian clubs for the top draft choices."

Saturday Night's Field

If you hear something that sounds like a prayer, it will come from officials of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club and harness racing fans, in a special request to the weather man.

Last Saturday's opening night saw a rain-ruined card before a crowd of some 900 track buffs.

However there is hope. The "powder" call for fair sunny weather for tomorrow.

Thirty-eight horses go to the post tomorrow night in another outstanding racing card. There will be nine heats, the first a single dash.

It's been learned today that work has started on the addition to the pari-mutuels building and there is a strong possibility it will be ready for tomorrow night.

The addition will bring six more windows to the booth, ensuring that has been needed for some time.

A driving club spokesman said that strong efforts are being made to extend the number of seasonal racing nights.

Four-Run Rally Gives Leafs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jacksonville Suns, having problems keeping up with the International League leaders, did so once again Thursday night from seventh - place Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Suns, in third place, lost 5-2 decision to the Leafs as Toronto scored four runs in the eighth inning.

Buffalo Bisons defeated Richmond Braves 5-3 in the other game, while games between Columbus Jets and Rochester Red Wings and Toledo Mud Hens and Syracuse Chiefs were rained out.

It was the 10th victory for the Leafs in their last 14 games, three of them in the four-game series with Jacksonville. It was also the 12th loss for the Suns in the last 15 outings.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

BY GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

LEFT HAND IS KEY TO ACCURACY

The left hand plays a decisive role in determining the direction that shots will fly.

I suggest that you grip the club so that the back of your left hand points down the target line (No. 1).

Then during your swing concentrate on returning your left hand to this same position—pointing down the target line—when you strike the ball (2).

If your clubface is properly aligned at address, and if your grip does not loosen during your swing, returning your left hand to its original position should give you proper clubhead aiming during impact. Straighter shots will result.

"Wall Street" Special Will Be Trip Through Exchange

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The title of CBS' Tuesday night public affair special is Wall Street: Where the Money Is. But viewers looking for hot tips on a penny stock, an explanation of selling short or a prediction about the end of the current bear market should not bother to tune in.

The hour show, by an independent packager and produced by Mel Stuart, will be more of a sight-seeing trip through the strange world of stocks and bonds than a cram course in turning a quick buck.

Stuart, who produced both the Making of a President specials, said "nobody has ever been able to do anything about Wall Street on television—probably because so much of its activity is cerebral, without much apparent glamor."

From his viewpoint, he said, crystallized when he ran across an apt quotation from an 18th century, Gertrude Stein: "The money is always there: It's only the pockets that change."

Thus he will show money changing in the hectic-but-orderly confusion of the exchange floor, talk with some of the brokers and traders to follow the birth of a $50,000,000 bond issue.

AT THE BELLE — Stanley Holloway is seen in the role he created on the stage, Wilfrid Hyde White co-stars in the Warner Bros.-Technicolor Panavision musical "My Fair Lady". Audrey Hepburn and Rex Harrison star in the Best Picture of the year, continuing its record-breaking engagement at the Belle Theatre. "My Fair Lady" is shown twice daily at 2.00 and 8.00 p.m. at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Freckle Fighters Arise, Learn to Love Them

By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

Fellows seldom heckle girls with freckles; in fact, most fellows data them. That's the word from Chris Connelly, seen with Pat Morrow, his pixie-faced co-star from "Peyton Place." Pat's freckle philosophy seems to be: "Whether you loathe them or love them, you have to live with them. So, toss down sun spots, guard against their multiplication, and make them a part of your personality." As she discovered, wearing a light film of face lotion beneath foundation base creates a cosmetic screen against solar rays.

If you have a bumper crop of freckles, keep them from spreading with a sunbat that is wide enough to protect those first-to-freckle areas — forehead, nose and cheeks. Remember, it's easier to prevent sun dots than to fade them. If you do use a cosmetic bleach, even something as simple as lemon and glycerine, always check it with a dermatologist. Also, test preparation in the crook of the arm to determine skin's sensitivity.

Many outdoor beauties discreetly tone down freckles with suntan powder. Unfortunately, they forget to extend color to their neck and arms. A whisk of spray-on powder helps blend such neglected areas. Then, whether you fade or flaunt your freckles, you can wear them like delicate beauty spots, not sun splotches.

P.S.: Other flatter facts for complexion are supplied in our fact sheet on skin secrets. Tips for normal, oily, freckled or problem skin, plus seven cleanse 'n' care rules are included. ## Father Coughlin Said Decades Ahead of Times

The words of praise were written by Father Coughlin's old friend, Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Boston.

The cardinal was unable to attend because of illness, but his prepared speech was read at a mid-morning mass by Bi. Rev. Francis J. Lelly, editor of The Pilot, official weekly publication of the Boston archdiocese.

"Before clergy marched for disenfranchised and dispossessed, he marched," the prelate's message said. "Before priests and pastors lobbied openly for remedial social legislation, he besieged the Congress with the voice of the people.

"I submit that our jubilarian made his commitment to the poor of America long before 'anti-poverty' became the popular word of the social planners.

Born in Hamilton Oct. 25, 1891, Father Coughlin was the son of an Indiana-born Great Lakes sailor. Thomas Coughlin, whose mother was Amelia Mahoney of Strabane, Ont. He was educated at St. Michael's College, Toronto, and the University of Toronto, and after his 1916 ordination taught at Assumption College, Windsor, Ont.

REACHED MILLIONS

Assigned in 1923 to Royal Oak, Father Coughlin began broadcasting religious messages on the local radio in 1926 from his parish church. Contributions for his parish poured in from his radio audience, estimated at 30,000,000 when his fame reached its height.

The present church, adjacent elementary and high schools and other parish facilities are reported valued at upwards of $15,000,000.

Cardinal Cushing's speech contained no reference to the silencing of Father Coughlin by the late Edward Cardinal Mooney of Detroit in 1940, after the Radio Priest became a centre of political controversy.

Father Coughlin was always eloquent and occasionally bitterly critical of bankers, Jews, and the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Now 74, he announced his retirement last month.

Winters Aims for Broader Russia-Canada Trade Base On His Visit to Moscow

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Winters leaves Saturday for London and Moscow to discuss Anglo-Canadian and Common wealth trade and to try to lay a broader base for commercial relations with Russia

The detailed agenda for his talks is secret, but it appeared they would revolve around several main subjects:

—Whether and to what extent Commonwealth preferences in tariff treatment, the mainstay of Commonwealth trading relations since the 1930s, should be revised.

—The attitude and position of Commonwealth countries generally in the current Kennedy round of international tariff negotiations in Geneva.

— British's attitude towards membership in the European Common Market and what this might mean to Canada.

—Remaining thorns in Anglo-Canadian trade which the British say have not all been blunted on the Canadian side.

—How serious is Russia's recent diplomatic prickliness towards Canada and how the Russians can be reassured of Canada's commercial goodwill.

Mr. Winters said in an interview he will be his first visit to Russia and will serve as a prelude to a trip he plans this autumn to the Eastern European countries. All of these represent good opportunities for Canadian trade if they can be pointed out to Canadian businessmen and if the latter can be encouraged to try them.

The trade minister will attend a closed meeting of Commonwealth trade ministers in London June 13-16.

Mr. Winters then is to talk with British ministers and officials about Anglo - Canadian trade.

He is likely to hear again from British authorities that Canada's relaxation of regulations governing the pricing of British goods for Canadian duty purposes hasn't been put fully into effect.

His Russian trip will take Mr. Winters to Moscow and probably to Leningrad. Diplomatic sources said it comes at an important juncture in Russo-Canadian relations.

Russia formally protested to the Canadian government recently about complaints bordered in Canada about Russian spying activities. Prime Minister Pearson pointed out that public complaint is not government concluded or inspired in this country.

The main memorandum Mr. Winters is likely to discuss in Moscow is Canadian wheat and the current heap of export shipping facilities.

Douglas Calls Strike Really Fight Against 'Human Scrap-heap'

New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas told a Belleville audience last night that the point at issue in the current Quebec longshoremen's strike was not primarily increased wage demands by the stevedores.

Rather, he said, it is the fact that the Shipping Federation of Canada wants to reduce the workgangs by 15 percent, thereby throwing the older dock workers "on the human scrap-heap."

Speaking at the Club Canara before the Quinte riding NDP association on the cost of living and its effect on labor management problems, Mr. Douglas said that the younger stevedores were striking because of a moral obligation" towards their older comparriots, many of whom stand a good chance, he said, of being laid off their jobs without receiving any pension benefits.

He said that the NDP had given notice of a bill in the Commons calling for the parliamentary appointment of an administrator over the shipping and stevedore companies to ensure that work on the docks would not remain at a standstill, and that the shipping companies would not "starve the dock workers into submission."

The recommendation included a stipulation that negotiations about the laying off of 15 percent of the dockers would resume after the stevedores returned to work.

"In Canada today, we have labor strife, labor shortage, and labor discontent," he said, giving a spiralling cost of living and the adverse effects of automation as the principal causes behind the hard fact of "economic dislocation."

2,500 'Young Canadians' Ready to Jo in Company

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP)—The bill setting up the Company of Young Canadians received second reading in the Commons Friday. Clause-by-clause study of the measure has now begun.

Prime Minister Pearson, who introduced the bill, said 2,500 applications and inquiries from potential volunteers have been received. Forty per cent were from women.

Applications were from all age groups including the 50s and 60s, although 85 per cent were from the 18-25 bracket. Mr. Pearson hoped more older people would apply. There's a minimum age of 18 but no maximum.

The Commons is expected to complete its consideration of the bill next week, but the first order of business Monday is legislation to expand the student loan fund.

The company is to start work in earnest later this month with a six-week orientation course for its first 60 volunteers. They will get expenses in the field, a little spending money and, when they finish service, a small honorarium.

GIVES WARNING

Alvin Hamilton (PC—Qu'Appelle) although supporting the bill, warned of dangers.

"Horrible snafus" had occurred in the U.S. Peace Corps, "resulting in a tremendous amount of idealism and enthusiasm being turned into an unholy mess."

He said nothing in the bill gives a "clear-cut concept of what is to be done." Mr. Pearson had been vague.

The Commons turned in the Company of Young Canadians after side-stepping a ministerial dispute over a bill to set up a corporation to run the National Arts Centre.

All parties favored the centre — a $36,000,000 Ottawa complex now under construction—but the ethnic composition of its board of trustees proved the stumbling block.

Raynald Guay (L — Levis) proposed an amendment that would make the membership of the board reflect the bilingual nature of Canada.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said that it was dangerous and would divide Canadians on the basis of race. Immigra-

Seamen Relax Stand

By JIM ANDERSON

LONDON (CP) — The sea men's union Friday relaxed slightly in its tough stand, asked for new talks and said it saw a solution to the deadlock in its crippling strike.

There was no dramatic breakthrough to a compromise. Further talks were not expected until Monday.

While the seamen gave no public hint of the settlement they had in mind, several newspapers reported it would mean asking for a government subsidy to the shipping industry for one year of up to £5,000,000 ($15,000,000).

The government has already rejected that idea and such a settlement would sink forever its incomes policy—an attempt to hold back inflation by keeping pay increases to about 3½ per cent.

They was no sign the strikers were ready to abandon their chief battlecry—"the 40 - hour week now."

A HOPEFUL SIGN

But the seamen's willingness to talk—after a week in which they have grown increasingly militant, called for an extension of the strike and abruptly rejected a proposed compromise —seemed the most hopeful sign since the strike began four weeks ago.

Paratroops Prepare New Attack

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. paratroops regrouped today for fresh assaults of entrenched North Vietnamese regulars who have already lost nearly 400 men killed in the Central Highlands of South Viet Nam.

While ground fighting subsided to isolated skirmishes during the day, B-52 bombers pounded a Communist troop area only 10 miles north of the battle zone.

The B-52 strikes were made before dawn to support ground units of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division which has been locked with at least two battalions of North Vietnamese Army regulars since Tuesday.

Capt. Bill Carpenter, a hero of the ground fighting 30 miles northwest of Kontum City, was reported to have led survivors of his company to safety Friday.

Carpenter, the West Point football star who was the "lonesome end" of the 1958 West Point football team, had called in a napalm air strike on his own position Thursday when his company was being overrun by North Vietnamese.

Indians and Teachers Fed Up With Reserve Conditions

CALGARY (CP)—Indians and teachers on two southern Alberta reserves have asked the federal government for a royal commission inquiry into Indian affairs and education.

Rev. Maurice McMahon, principal of the Crowfoot school at the Blackfoot reserve 70 miles east of here, said Friday the Indians are living in "absolute squalor, worse than any white slum."

The government is "skimpy and penny pinching just because the facilities are for the Indians," Father McMahon said. "You look at an armed forces school and you'll see they haven't spared a penny for those children.

Built two years ago, the eight-room school has a coal furnace, no library space, insufficient classrooms and was built to a plan drawn up in 1947, he said. The Oblate fathers manage the school for the federal government.

The school had to use two rooms in a 30-year old building that was condemned by fire inspectors two years ago, he said. There is no ventillation system and the windows won't open.

The Central Alberta Indian Teachers Association and the Catholic Indian League have sent briefs to Northern Affairs Minister Laing on the subject.

Mr. Laing said in an interview from Ottawa there seemed to be "no great concern" over the problems and "no urgency in the matter."

Father McMahon said the reserve roads are so bad that sometimes the school buses cannot run. All the reserve homes have electricity but there is no running water and no dentist. The Oblates have asked for tenta, library shelves and another elementary teacher but have been told there is no school for the federal government.

"Yet Brodhead (Martin Brodhead, district superintendent of Indian schools) goes out and pays at least $100,000 for 100 places at a school in Strathmore for the Indians."

Father McMahon said Mr. Brodhead spent the money without consulting any Indian teachers or the reserve's Indian education committee. In a question, asize 47 per cent of Indian students said "the last place they wanted to go to school was Strathmore."

Air Force Plane Crash Kills Two

CHATHAM (CP) — Two men were killed Friday when a Canadian Armed Forces Otter aircraft crashed in a field near here.

The dead were identified as Capt. Robert Gordon Hall, 30, of Chatham, and Cpl. Ronald Joseph Lavoie, 24, of Sudbury.

Provide Father-figures For Delinquent Girls

TORONTO (CP) — Inadequate fathers are part of the background of many delinquent girls, a study in Ontario has shown.

Dr. Tadeusz Grygier, director of research for the department of reform institutions and a member of the staff of the University of Toronto School of Social Work, investigated the backgrounds of 105 girls at the Ontario Training School at Galt. He found that failure of the father, to fulfil his role is far more common than failure on the part of the mother.

Dr. Grygier, a criminologist, said appointment of a great number of men to the staffs of girl's training schools, to provide father figures, is in accord with the findings of the research project.

Since completion of the report Glenn Thompson has been appointed superintendent of Mercer Reformatory for women, Toronto, and Rev. Kenneth MacDonald has been named superintendent of the Ontario School at Guelph, succeeding Rev. H. E. Wilson.

Dr. Grygier said the study was important because previous investigations had concentrated on parental deprivations as applied to boys and their mothers.

He said another study of 163 boys in training schools in Cobourg, Bowmanville and Guelph, showed that a missing or inadequate father was a more frequent factor than missing or inadequate mother.

Site of New Heavy Water Plant Due to Be Announced Wed.

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's heavy water program is expected to get back on the rails next week after a series of delays and technical problems.

Wednesday is the deadline set by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. for Canadian General Electric to announce the site for its proposed 500-ton plant that will produce heavy water for an average price of $18.35 a pound over a 12½-year period.

Page 15 also was the deadline for Deuterium of Canada Ltd. to prove financial ability to expand its plant already under construction in Nova Scotia. A one - month extension was granted earlier this week.

While no contract has yet been signed for the General Electric plant, an AECL source said Friday that only minor details remain to be worked out and the final contract "should be signed shortly."

Deuterium of Canada already has a five-year contract to supply 200 tons a year at $20.20 a pound and has asked for an expanded pact to bring it up to the terms of the General Electric proposal.

But Deuterium has had trouble financing the extension, as well as getting its plant completed on schedule.

The Glace Bay plant are expected to cause a delay of about two months.

Sinatra Says He Was Attacked But Foe Needs Brain Surgery

BEVERLEY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Police say "investigation is proceeding" on a case in which singer Frank Sinatra's eye was discolored and a prominent businessman suffered head injuries requiring 24 hours of brain surgery.

Officers quoted Sinatra as saying the man hit him without provocation and that he did not strike back. Sinatra's friend, Dean Martin, backed him up.

A Beverly Hills businessman, Frederick R. Weisman, 54, former president of Hunt Foods Inc. and brother-in-law of financier Norton Simon, was unconscious in Mount Sinai Hospital. A hospital spokesman described Weisman's condition as "serious" today following brain surgery. He has been unconscious since the altercation early Wednesday morning in the posh Polo Lounge of the Beverly Hills Hotel.

Police Chief Clinton H. Anderson said he doesn't know whether someone struck Weisman or whether he was hurt in an accidental fak. Anderson said Weisman had been taking pills for an undetermined physical problem and also was drinking.

"We have a witness who saw Weisman hit Sinatra in the face. Everybody saw Sinatra hit him back," the chief said.

Martin, 46, told detectives: "As we were leaving some men struck Mr. Sinatra. Another man jumped between the two of them and our party walked out.

"As I looked back I saw a man lying on the floor. But I saw no one strike this man."

Police said Sinatra, 50, told them by telephone from Palm Springs that he, Martin and others, including Giuliano (Jilly) Rizzo, a New York restaurateur, were seated in a large booth.

Sinatra said he was about to leave when Weisman approached and said: "You and your friends are loud-mouthed. . . ."

"I thought he was kidding," the singer said, "and then I realized he wasn't." he told Weisman: "You're out of line, buddy."

Then, Sinatra related, the man hit him with either his fist or an ash tray below the right eye. The singer said he didn't strike back and that a hotel detective jumped between them.

Police have brought no charges.

"Group" Home Care Of Foster Children Now Proposed by CAS

The idea of the institution once known as the "Children's Shelter" is again being considered by the county Children's Aid Society.

Hastings county council Friday learned from the CAS report, read by Sidney township deputy reeve Jack Bush, that the society recognized the need for a "group" home and had purchased a residence in the city large enough to accommodate six teen-aged girls.

"For years, it has been difficult to secure satisfactory foster homes for teen-aged children," the report read.

"Then too, not all teen-age children can, or will, live in a foster home setting. The Society had tried unity the receiving home as a home for group living; it has tried subsidizing foster parents, but neither has been entirely successful."

BUT 'GROUP' HOME

Accordingly the Society has purchased a dwelling that is large enough to accommodate six teen-age girls and it was hoped the home would be in operation by the coming fall.

Based on the experience of the local society and that of others, the report said there is little doubt that this kind of "group" care offered the most satisfactory living for a high percentage of the older children of both sexes coming into care.

Within a few years it was expected that the Society may be compelled to consider the purchase and operation of up to five or six such "group" homes.

Years ago the county CAS had what was known as a "rubber-ren's shelter" on East Dundas Street near the Belleville hospital. The home was discontinued and now is being used as a nurses' residence.

NEW WORKER HIRED

A new social worker, Mr. William Coffey, joined the CAS staff in May and will work in the northern part of the county, where he will be responsible for all protection and prevention services in that area. In the south Mr. Dudley Doboo, who has returned after a leave of absence will offer a like kind of service.

"We are fortunate indeed in having men of such training and experience available to us," Mr. Bruce Kerr, CAS executive head said in his report. Attract ing and retaining competent staff is perhaps the greatest single problem facing welfare organizations today in rural Ontario."

Firemen Start 2-Year Home Inspection Job

The Belleville Fire Department's home inspection program will get under way in the city on Monday. Officials of the department estimate it will take two years to complete the inspection of homes for fire hazards and that the result will be a "reasonable reduction in home fires".

A department spokesman emphasizes that the inspection is on a voluntary basis. That is, inspection teams must first receive permission from the householder before making an inspection and the householder is within his rights to deny permission.

The city will be zoned and streets within each zone will be covered only after advance notice has been given by means of the news media. Inspection of each home is expected to take not more than five or ten minutes, depending on the size of the home.

The inspection will be carried out on homes between the hours of 9-11 a.m. and 1.30-3.30 p.m. Monday through Friday each week (holidays excluded). Inspections will not be done in inclement weather.

Council Wants Law Changed On Inquests

Hastings county council would like to see the authority for calling of inquests and ordering postmortems turned back to the Crown Attorney.

Councillors Friday consented to a detailed Counties resolution from Dundas, Stormont and Glengarry, asking that the provincial attorney general be petitioned to change the present legislation under which coroners may call inquests.

The resolution claimed that a number of inquests and autopsies being held as coroners lacked the legal experience in determining when postmortems should be called.

Council was told that formerly only Crown Attorneys had this authority but the act was changed.

Transport Policy Outlined

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Pickersgill said Friday he is confident Canada is heading toward an integrated transport policy directed by a single regulatory agency.

Introducing his department's 1966-67 spending estimates before the Commons transport committee, he said the idea would be to trim duplication and waste that add millions to the annual transportation bill and influences the cost of everything Canadians use or produce.

Separate federal bodies now handle rail, air and shipping.

Mr. Pickersgill said a national transport policy must deal with two basic questions:

—is a service worth maintaining?

—Who should pay for it, the users or the public purse?

"Redundant services should be discarded as quickly as can be done without disrupting people's lives or their communities," Mr. Pickersgill said.

SEES RESISTANCE

There was a natural resistance to the removal of any service.

"But I find it difficult to defend the retention of any services that remain wholly unduly," he told the committee.

Mr. Pickersgill said this did not mean that a service had to be profitable, as long as it was being used by the public.

The question of who should pay was an involved one.

The current issue was the tall levy on the St. Lawrence Seaway. "It's probably our greatest highway and in some ways the most expensive to maintain." But there was a genuine dispute over whether the users or the country should finance it.

SEAWAY NOT SETTLED

Mr. Pickersgill said the seaway issue still is before the government and stressed that he was not expressing an opinion either way.

Mr. Pickersgill said Air Canada, the public airline, has profited from the lessons learned in the days of railroading when so many lines were built that most of them lost money.

The government was going to ensure the continued protection that Canada's airlines had a money-making position. In the broad field of air policy, profits from Air Canada should balance off any subsidies needed to keep other services in operation.

There was, however, no question of attempting to extinguish Canadian Pacific Airlines as the private competitor. "We must allow limited competition as long as the taxpayer is not left holding the bag."

Name Origins Being Sought By Writer

The Hastings county history, now being compiled by Gerald Boyce as a centennial project, will start going to the printers by the end of July.

Drafts for 30 chapters dealing mostly with general topics have been prepared, and much of the work with respect to the municipalities has been completed.

But the writer is in need of information on how many of the communities received their names.

For instance how did such hamlets as Sargisson, Halston, Haverqal or Umfraville get their names? Possibly many county residents don't even know where these centres are located.

Friday a list of communities for which Mr. Boyce would appreciate name origins was given to county councillors, while there is still a need for a few good pictures of historic spots such as local celebrations of confederation in 1867.

WORKING BOTH SIDES

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) The city council received two letters from the fire department on the same day. Assistant Fire Chief Glen Daly urged council to ban public fireworks displays for safety reasons and Chief Jesse Hosier asked for a fireworks display permit for firemen's night at the ball park.

REV. J. W. FLATT holds Bible presented to him on the occasion of his ordination on June 3, 1906. Ninety-two years old, Mr. Flatt observed the 60th anniversary of his ordination recently.

Ordained 60 Years Ago Rev. J. W. Flatt Recalls Details of His Early Life

A 92-year-old resident of 284 Bridge St. E., ordained a Methodist minister 60 years ago, recalls vividly details of his early life and states without hesitation that, given the opportunity, he would again enter the ministry.

Rev. J. W. Flatt has seen many changes in two years of a life over the years and, he says, the church has changed, too. He recalls that when he entered the ministry in 1906, the Methodist Church was quite evangelistic and placed a great deal of emphasis on annual revival meetings, and weekly prayer and class meetings. Though things have changed now, he feels that some of those early practices may be on the way back.

Commenting on the early days of this century, he observes: they were days of the simple life. Communities were small and neighborly with rural life predominant. Money was scarce but people were content, for the most part. We lived in an atmosphere of peace and the future seemed well assured. It was a time of rugged individualism, hard labor and close living.

"The church was very much missionary minded. The Student Volunteer Movement had as its motto, 'The Evangelization of the World in This Generation' and was a time of great expectations. We thought there was much dramatic and believed the golden age was not too far away. We did not know that we were living in the calm before the storm, being unaware of the evil forces at work to set the world on fire in a war.

"Whether we think of those days as good old days or otherwise, we cannot isolate ourselves from them or ignore them. They are a part of history. We must retain a sense of continuity of history to give a full meaning to life."

Mr. Flatt has reached many goals during his lengthy career. He is justifiably proud of the part he played in the planning of Eastminster United Church on Herchimer Ave. An honorary elder of the church, he was retired when he began to work on the Eastminster project.

Convinced that there was a real need for a church in rapidly expanding east Belleville, he worked long and hard to put his idea across and was rewarded when he turned the first sod in July, 1956. The church opened February 1, 1957 and today, under Rev. A. McDowell, Eastminster United has a membership of more than 900. The church organ was dedicated in Mr. Flatt's name.

The ministry might never have been his chosen career but he had it not been for circumstances relating to his first chosen profession, teaching in Ontario in the late 1800's. At that time, there were more teachers than needed and he decided to head west.

"I responded to the call 'go west young man, and grow with the country'. That was in 1899. There were large numbers of people going west at that time as interest in pioneering in the Canadian West grew and the offer of 160 acres of free land was attractive."

Mr. Flatt was not one of those who took up homesteading. He stead, he worked on a farm and in his months after his arrival, he had made his first step toward the ministry, influenced by an appeal issued by the Methodist Church. The church was calling for men interested in becoming lay ministers and Mr. Flatt responded an interview.

Rev. J. S. Woodsworth, superintendent of missions, conducted the interview and he asked what Mr. Flatt describes as some interesting questions.

The applicant was asked: "Are you in debt? Are you engaged to marry? Do you use tobacco or intoxicating drink? And if the answer to the third question is no, will you continue to abstain?"

Mr. Flatt replied "No" to the first three questions and responded with a "Yes" to the fourth. He was accepted, on probation, and his ordination was followed with the period of probation ending in 1901. He studied theology at Wesley College in Winnipeg and received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Manitoba, in the Assiniboia Conference. His first charge was at Manor in the Saskatchewan Conference. Twenty-six years of ministry in that province followed.

In 1923, union of the churches took place and three years later, in 1926, he accepted a call to Thomasburg. Ont. He was not in good health at the time and felt that a change of altitude might prove beneficial. At Thomasburg for four years, he then moved to Norham where he stayed for five years.

"In 1937, he took the Bayside Charge which embraced Centenary, White's and Wesley United Churches. Two years later, he retired to Belleville. He remained active by supplying at churches in the Quinte area, and when time allowed, he followed his hobby, gardening. His first wife, Ida May passed away in 1942. She was buried at Tweed.

He and Mrs. Flatt (the former Clara Delyea of New York) quietly observed the 60th anniversary of his ordination when groups of relatives and friends, including United Church ministers from the area, called to extend congratulations June 3 and 6. Cards, letters and gifts were received from members of the Eastminster congregation and other well wishers. A daughter, Doris E. French, resides at San Rafael, California.

DAVID KEYES

NAPANEE — No news has yet been received of the recovery of the body of David Keyes, drowned last week in a lake 300 miles north of Red Deer Lake in Saskatchewan. Word reached his uncle, Edwin Fitz of the Switzerville Road last Saturday that David had been drowned "within the last two or three days," and because of the vagueness of the information, members of the family here believed he was on a field trip for the International Minerals and Chemical Corporation.

Further information has just been received. David was heading a party of geologists, and was ferrying them across the lake, when the boat began to leak. On a return trip the boat was overturned by a gust of wind. No one had been seen since. Search for the body is continuing.

David Keyes was born in Parham where his father, the Rev. Kerr Keyes, was then the minister of the then Methodist Church. His mother was Edna Fitz, and numerous relatives in the Napanee district and in Prince Edward, where her father, Albert Fitz was her uncle. He attended schools in Parham, Sharbot Lake and Prescott, and graduated from Queen's University in mining engineering in 1964. While attending Queen's, he spent his summers on the farm of his uncle, Edwin Fitz and made numerous friends in this area.

After his father's retirement Mr. Keyes' parents lived in Napanee, and when he had entered the employment of the International Nickle Co., moved to Sudbury to be with him. He had the pioneer spirit and was the first men to go in to open the uranium mines in Elliot Lake, and then the last nine mines at Lake Metagami in Quebec, where there to be in at the early days of the potash mines in Esterhazy.

Wherever he went, Mr. Keyes entered into church work, and when he built his settlement, was the Sunday school superintendent. He was chosen to represent the New Democratic Party in the last Federal election.

His brother, Mr. Gordon Keyes, is a member of the faculty of Victoria College of the University of Toronto. Within three hours of receiving the news he was on a plane for Saskatoon and is still there. His wife drove to Sudbury to break the news to Dave's mother, who is just out of hospital following surgery. Her brother, Earl Fitz and his daughter Miss Eleanor of Montreal are with her now.

Besides his mother and brother, Mr. Keyes is survived by his wife and four small children and by numerous cousins.

Douglas

"the administered prices by large corporations violating virtual monopolies" in their respective fields. He denounced the "greedy and unreasonable profiteering" of big business which he said more often leads to prices being "up" which over the traffic will bear" rather than by "the law of supply and demand."

Mr. Douglas disputed what he referred to as "the common myth" that increased wages are the prime cause of increases in the cost of living, saying that the time was past when we could "lay the blame for increased living costs at the door of labor."

"No corporation, or group of corporations have the right to exploit the public by increasing prices when unwarranted," he said.

It was for this reason, said Mr. Douglas, that he has been urging the government for the past year to set up a Department of Consumer Affairs which would include in its framework a "Prices Review Board," to which any 10 Canadians might issue a complaint regarding "unjustified and unwarranted price increases." This department would also look into problems of "misleading advertising and packaging," and set about attempts to establish some standardization in the system of weights.

Reminding his audience that the cost of living increases unnecessarily when companies "compete in advertising and quantity, but not in price," Douglas told his audience that for the past several years, the increases in corporation profits have exceeded wage and salary raises by substantial margins. "We've had increases in the cost of living," he said, "that have never been justified."

"The dollar which you have in your pocket has the purchasing power of less than 70 cents compared with that of 1949," said the speaker, and for every day the value of the dollar you save keeps shrinking; inflation has its greedy hand into everyone's pocket, bank account, and insurance policy and takes out 30, 40, 50 cents on every dollar."

Mr. Douglas said that the greatest cause of rising living costs and inflation are the edifice and those on fixed incomes.

As for those pensions as old age, Mr. Douglas said "they can only meet rising living costs in two ways—either by getting a salary increase or by lowering their standard of living."

Turning his attention to the Pearson administration, Mr. Douglas condemned "many" a government that for three years bas refused to do anything about the rising cost of living up, but will adjudicate what price a worker will get for his labor. You will a vessel that, on one hand, there's no limit to how high the cost of living can go, but you can't even hand place ceilings on his wages."

Discussing the part played by automation in the economy, Mr. Douglas said "technological change is a great blessing if it can give us a higher standard of living if it is used for the benefit of society as a whole." But when groups such as farmers and fishermen are exploited by the man market who run economy is run, he said, the situation calls for the type of economic planning that such nations as Sweden have set up.

The NDP leader urged Canadians to work towards "a partnership of economic groups in this country" so that the benefits of advanced technology might be "distributed fairly and equitably among all."

Prior to delivering his address, Mr. Douglas was presented by Mayor Jack Wilson with a copy of the recently published "History of Belleville" who also extended the city's welcome to the guest from Ottawa.

Mr. Douglas was also welcomed to the area by Hastings M.P. Lou Grills, and introduced by the president of the Quinte Riding NDP Association, Ian Reilly of Belleville, who acted as chairman for the dinner meeting.

Entire North Hastings District Now One Public School Area

Hastings county council Friday afternoon wound up its abbreviated two-day summer session.

During the session lengthy discussion was heard on larger areas for education of school transportation, while reports on plans for the new county home and Bancroft and the proposed new addition at Hastings Manor, and the proposed county regional detention centre at Napanee, were given.

Amended the by-laws passed was one setting up one public school area for the entire North Hastings district, and one for joining the Tweed and Hungerford areas.

Reports from the various standing committees were also heard.

The roads and bridges committee report read by Elsewir Brown, Clayton McMurray, reported that spring brought no damage on the county roads system had been quite severe.

SECOND PHASE

The biggest development road project this year is possibly the second phase of reconstruction for county road No. 4 through Glen Miller. The contract for reconstruction of the section of road to Harnden and King of Cobourg at $136,194 and it is expected work will commence around the 17th.

Municipal Highways engineer Glen French said it was expected that all of the new roadway between 401 highway and Frankford would be paved this fall.

He said the numerous patrols had previously existed in each been replaced with five patrols covering 40 to 50 miles each with full time patrol foremen for each area.

BY-LAW AMENDED

County assessment commissioner J. C. Jevons in his report said that a number of errors occurring in the recapitulation of assessment rolls following court of revision had been brought to his attention.

Later in the session the county equalized assessment by - law was amended to concur with adjusted assessments.

Mr. Jevons assured council that all assessment rolls and polices would be completed by the date processing file by September 20th.

Reeve Hubbin Shannon, reporting on the county health unit said it was expected the unit would be completed by mid-September 1st. Accommodation and equipment of the city of Bethel Public Health Inspector Pinnacle street was being leased as a unit headquarters.

HIGHWAYS RECOMMENDED

The county medical officer of health Dr. C. R. Lenk of Weyburn, Saskatchewan will come to Belleville about August 1st, and is highly recommended by the director of public health for the Province of Saskatchewan. The new MOH, of Polish origin is 55 years of age, and is married with two children.

No action was taken on a grant request for $1,000 from the town of Deseronto, to assist in the development of a park. It was pointed out that such grants could be considered early in the year before the county budget is struck.

Visitors at the Friday council session included pupils from Ivanhoe Public School, Clarke T. Rollins, MLA for Hastings East and Norman Patrick, district forester from Tweed.

SKYWAY

NEARLY COMPLETED

Mr. Rollins noted that construction of the Quinte Skyway in Deseronto was now in the final stages with tenders having been called for the bridge decking and lighting.

He said the Skyway, when completed, would be of great benefit to both Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

Mr. Rollins said he had been pleased to be able to help Hastings district farmers in assisting to secure an ARDA grant of approximately $50,000 towards the cost of the new addition to Eldorado cheese factory.

wedded to the principle of using heavy water as a moderator in nuclear reactors. As such, the rate form of water not only controls the nuclear fission process but also makes possible use of cheap natural uranium as fuel.

Most other nations are using expensive enriched uranium fuel which is made by concentrates the need for heavy water. While capital costs for a Canada-type heavy water plant are higher—due to heavy water operation costs are lower.

Canada is also considered early design refinements will make power produced by its plants cheaper in the long run.

OPENS OTHER SOURCES

The heavy water reactors also have a political advantage. Small nations purchasing the Canadian plants could buy the natural uranium fuel from a number of countries while only the United States and Russia produce enough enriched uranium for foreign sales.

Canada now imports heavy water from the U.S. at prices slightly above $25 a pound, but if the General Electric contract is signed and Deuterium expands its facilities, Canada will surpass the U.S. in heavy water production early in the 1970's.

Once the Douglas Point and Pickering nuclear power stations are completed by Ontario Hydro are in operation, Canada will have a heavy water surplus. But by the mid 1970's, nearly in the 1970s, the worldwide shortage of heavy water is expected to exceed this surplus.

Construction of the second plant has been delayed by problems ever since AECL announced it was calling tenders for the additional plant.

Western Deuterium Co. Ltd. submitted the lowest bid and planned a deep water plant at Glace Bay, Sask. but before a contract was signed the company discovered that it would be cheaper to process for manufacturing heavy water had too many drawbacks. Other plans have been put on the take over but they also withdrew.

Finally, AECL approached General Electric directly to see if it would build the plant. General Electric already is active in the nuclear field, building power stations for Canada and for export.

Early this year AECL announced it had been approached by the federal government to enter into a contract with General Electric on the basis of the firm's proposal for a plant producing a maximum of 500 tons of heavy water.

There were two conditions: General Electric had to select the site by June 15 and start production by mid-1969.

There has been considerable speculation about the choice of the site. Several communities in Western Canada have invited the plant to their area. Ontario Hydro announced Thursday it would not need additional power station north of Cochrane if the plant was built there.

Indications Quebec May Be Missing From List for Ottawa-Backed Medicare

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Indications that Quebec may be missing from the medicare plan as finally - supported medical care insurance programs gives new hope that the province of Quebec will be brought into federal government hasn't yet examined whether provisions of legislation will be made to provinces unwilling to participate in Ottawa's offer to pay half the medicare bill of provincial programs.

This has been the federal position since Prime Minister Pearson put forward the federal offer in July, 1965, aimed at starting payments by July 1, 1967.

From discussions with the provinces and the medical profession, Mr. MacEachen has said he was confident all provinces, except Alberta, would have plans in force by the target date and would qualify for federal payments.

With only Alberta an - apparent hold - out, Mr. MacEachen continued to express hopes of a change of heart by Premier Manning's Social Credit government.

WAS WAITING

His said he wasn't ready to cross the bridge of compensation to Alberta equivalent to medicare payments to the other provinces.

"We've never given any consideration to that," he told a press conference earlier this week.

For months, Quebec had been part of Mr. MacEachen's list of early-takers of the federal offer, along with Saskatchewan, New Brunswick, Newfoundland, Manitoba and British Columbia. Nova Scotia, Ontario, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia would be in too.

But when was while a follow-Liberal, Jean Lesage, headed the Quebec administration. Now the province is ruled by Union Nationale and the Union Nationale.

Mr. Johnson said Thursday the Liberals were trying to go it alone when they promised a general health insurance plan by July 1, 1967, Quebec will not be ready by today when we can afford it."

On the question of compensation if Quebec stays out, Mr. Johnson said "We won't let anyone become Quebec's toot." He added that there'll be no talk this with Ottawa and he won't "go hat in hand for a cut-to-leave-it attitude on the part of the federal government.

"Quebec puts a lot more on the Federal government.

Although the target date is still 12 months away, the federal government isn't likely to be ready by half that time to make up its mind.

The federal legislation is due to go before Parliament later this month. It it isn't debated immediately, it still will have to undergo discussion this fall, and a key question seems sure to be what treatment the federal government is prepared to give non-participants in the medicare payments.

Service Dropouts

Economics, scandals . . . good times and bad times on the national scene all look different, according to which side of the fence a fellow sits on.

Thus, the public believes the high cost of living is the result of wage demands and municipal and government spending on a grade scale. Ministers of the Crown on the other hand, like Labor Minister Nicholson, say it stems from "prosperity."

Consider another situation — the flight of personnel from the armed services since they were integrated into one organization. Defence Minister Hellyer, the originator of integration, attributes the drop to good economic conditions in Canada, while Douglas Harkness, former Conservative defence minister, says it is due to poor morale as a result of the merging of the three services into one.

Recently Mr. Hellyer raised the pay of pilots to counter the steady drain to commercial airlines. There is no doubt that the material inducements of commercial flying, particularly for experienced pilots, are very strong. Civilian occupations generally offer as good, if not better, rewards than does service life.

The matter of service morale is more difficult to pin down, but there have been frequent warnings on this theme. The streamlining of the services has resulted in enforced retirement of many from the officer ranks and among service personnel generally.

The statistics are not encouraging. The armed forces, according to an Ottawa report, suffered another net manpower loss in April which reduced their strength to 107,108, the lowest figure since 1953. This figure includes hundreds of men on retirement leave, resulting in an effective strength of perhaps 104,000 at the most.

The strength of the services has continued to drop despite re-engagement bonuses announced in February and the promise of a general pay increase in October.

It seems clear that integration has resulted in a sense of insecurity among personnel. Civilian life accordingly is all the more attractive. This situation likely will continue so long as the integration process does, and members of the services are left in a state of uncertainty about their future.

Kennedy's Tactics

Condemning apartheid before an audience of South African university students, U.S. Senator Robert Kennedy was careful not to hide the mote in his own country's collective eye.

In one of his few references to apartheid, he listed it among several current world evils. Others included racial discrimination in New York (but why only New York?), starvation in Indian streets and jailing of intellectuals in the Soviet Union.

"These are differing evils, but they are the common works of man," he said in a memorable passage. "They reflect the imperfection of human justice, the inadequacy of human compassion, the defectiveness of our sensibility toward the sufferings of our fellows. They are not the limit of our ability to use knowledge for the well-being of others."

While in the United States there is legislation which is supposed to ensure the rights of men, both black and white, in practice full equality is still only an ideal. Negroes who engage in civil rights marches and other forms of protest still go in fear of their lives at the hands of white assailants. The shooting of James Meredith, first Negro to graduate from the University of Mississippi, is a case in point.

Fortunately Meredith was not seriously hurt, but the incident illustrates how far the United States still must travel before the legislation on the statute book assumes any real meaning.

Yet the ideal remains, whether it has to do with race relations in the United States or in South Africa, and Mr. Kennedy has performed a useful service in reminding the world of this and other social evils in the world today.

Meredith's Ordeal

Hit in the back and head with birdshot, Meredith seemed badly hurt at the time. But even if his wounds proved only superficial there was surely no justification for releasing him a mere 48 hours after the shooting. It is small wonder he collapsed during a subsequent press conference in the hospital lounge.

Negro colleagues of the 33-year-old law student claim the hospital mistreated him, re-ering him to leave. What truth there is in this allegation is uncertain, but Meredith himself said nothing to this effect.

However, one is left with the impression (not for the first time) that signatures on dotted lines and payment in advance are often required before treatment is guaranteed in hospitals in the United States.

Use of Word Dietetic Principally Gimmick

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother-in-law has diabetes, and we would like to know the difference between diabetic and dietetic food. — M. A. L.

* * *

These are confusing terms and relatively meaningless to boot.

There really is no such thing as diabetic food. A diabetic eats the same food purchased for ordinary use, but the amount must be controlled.

Starchy foods may be strictly limited. Indeed calories may be limited, since the amount of food consumed must remain within the amount that can be utilized by the body. (Insulin, or diabetes medications taken by mouth, can increase the amount to some extent.)

As an example, some diabetics may be allowed three or four slices of bread a day. This means ordinary bread, not dietetic or special forms of bread.

Sugar must be kept very low in the diet, and eliminated entirely if possible. The natural desire for desserts can be met by making cookies, cake, or other sweets with artificial sweeteners, but these can be eaten by anyone. These are not necessarily diabetic or dietetic items. Many people use artificial sweeteners to reduce weight.

The word dietetic applied to foods is principally a gimmick. After all, anything in anyone's diet is dietetic, which is why I say the term is essentially meaningless. It means whatever anybody wants it to mean, whether low in sugar, starch, fat or roughage — or high. It is often applied to foods to which vitamins or minerals have been added. It is applied to almost anything that is added to eat-en when there is no attempt to imply that there is something special about the food. But food is food.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother, 82, suffers considerable discomfort from arthritis. For years she took aspirin, but she has discontinued it completely because she feels quite sure that she read in your column that frequent use of the drug could cause deafness. She has experienced some loss of hear i ng. Would you suggest that she delete from use of aspirin or might limited dosage be recommended without endangering her hearing? — E. S. G.

If she read such a thing, she must have read it elsewhere, because I do not know of any reason why aspirin will endanger hearing. However, my advice to say aspirin is responsible is not correct. I hope your mother went back to using whatever aspirin she needs for comfort.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Does albumin in the urine always mean kidney disease? — Mrs. S. C.

No, but it often does. In most circumstances it may, not indicate any trouble at all, but this is the exception. Presence of albumin always should warrant investigation.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Thirty years ago when I was in the hospital for removal of my tonsils, my blood was 4-plus. I am married now and my wife's blood is negative. I went to a doctor and took shots for two years but my blood did not change any. He told me to go home and forget about it. So I went to another doctor for two more years of shots but my blood is still the same. Should I forget about it? — Robert C.

Yes. You should have the first time you were told to. There are cases in which blood tests for syphilis remain positive no matter what you do. When you have been adequately treated — as you have — the disease is not active and you will not transmit it, no matter what the test shows.

* * *

Now for a chance on dietetic food. For those understanding of this disease, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 138, Dundee, Ill., for a copy of the booklet, "Diabetes — The Sugar Disease." Please enclose a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Legal Aid In Ontari

Ottawa Citizen

It was a long time in coming, but the Ontario government's plan to provide legal aid to persons who cannot afford to hire lawyers is very sound.

The legislation introduced at Queen's Park by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart would grant free legal aid in both criminal and civil cases. The Law Society of Upper Canada would administer the program, with the provincial government bearing the costs. Legal aid service would be provided by lawyers on a voluntary basis; they would receive 75 per cent of normal fees.

The government has rightly decided to give its new plan priority with politically sensitive cost, those who do not have the money to engage legal counsel must pass stringent tests in order to qualify for assistance. This situation virtually eliminates all persons except indigents. There is a growing awareness throughout Canada as a whole that steps must be taken to give substance to the principle of equality before the law. Quebec Justice Claude Wagner has expressed a desire to introduce a legal aid system in that province. He would do well to use the Ontario legislation as a model for his program.

The bill would not only provide free legal aid for persons accused of an indictable offence but also for those involved in summary — conviction cases where long jail terms might be imposed. In civil cases, the assistance would cover such areas as bankruptcy and proceedings before administrative tribunals. In appeal cases, it would apply as far as the Supreme Court of Canada. Provisions that would require recipients of legal aid to pay what portion of the fees they could are reasonable enough.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Wishart's prediction that the plan will be implemented in the fall will stand up. Every effort should now be made to encourage participation by Ontario's lawyers in the program.

Wants Tennis On Sundays

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In recent years, a growing enthusiasm for tennis has become prevalent in Belleville. With this in mind, the Belleville Recreation Commission consulted the authorities at Saint Andrew's Presbyterian Church and obtained permission to resurface the existing courts. For this tennis enthusiasts are most grateful.

The courts are used constantly. Whether it be physical education classes from the nearby high school, or would-be Pancho Gonzales, all who use the courts appreciate what the recreation commission has done.

However, come Sunday, all activity stops. A large black on white sign, nailed to the fence, states: "No tennis allowed on Sunday" — and there is none. An unfortunate waste.

Tennis is a relaxing game, requiring some physical effort. After a hard day's work, Mr. ordinary businessman or factory worker, is probably too bushed to take to the courts. Saturday he gets considerable leisure he is physically prepared to assault the court, and grabs his racket — only to find the large prohibiting sign on Church Street.

The only reasonable suggestion is to open the courts to the public on Sunday — with hours restricting play while services are being conducted.

Perhaps the Recreation Commission and church authorities could collaborate and remedy the existing situation.

Beach Debris Is a Hazard

Letter in Windsor Star

With the coming of summer (at long last) we are naturally looking forward to many trips to area beaches — and we are also hoping that both federal and provincial park authorities will do a bit of spraying this year.

Last year, at both Point Pelee and Holiday Beach, flies and mosquitoes got to be more than a minor nuisance.

We know that we have our problems with Lake Erie pollution, but could not these authorities find some way to rake up the dead, fly-covered fish, discarded beer cans and other garbage — and dangerous debris which is such a hazard to beach users?

I saw a bather cut his foot only from a broken bottle lying just below the surface of the sand. The revenue the parks are taking in could well be used to insure that sort of thing wouldn't happen.

We here in this area are blessed with many beach areas for our recreation and pleasure. Let's make them safe, too!

Poor Parliamentary Image Is Not Really Justified

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Don't laugh . . . but has Parliament become such a disaster, its come proud image so smeared that some Canadians believe they would be better off without its uncertain services?

And that to do away with it — even-by violence — would be in the public interest?

Well, there are some Conservatives who are worried that this just might be so.

Liberals, too, are concerned, and the New Democrats, Socreds and Creditistes wonder about Parliament's worsening reputation.

The inertia of four years of minority administration, one of them Conservative, the other three Liberal, the continuing crises, and most of all the scandals, have combined to make Ottawa look weaker and more ineffectual than it really is.

And as the Federal Government has seemed to lose momentum and impact on national life, the provincial administrations, moving into the vacuum of power, have so grown in self-proclaimed authority as to challenge Ottawa in a dozen different fields.

Making it, especially in the case of Quebec, stick.

CRISIS

Over recent years there have been unmistakable signs of public disenchantment with Parliament.

Not just letters to the editors. Editorials.

Critical columns.

Public speeches.

Nor even the warning words of an increasing number of introspective Parliamentarians.

But rather, signs of violence.

Leaflets of protest have been tossed from the House galleries onto the floor of the Commons — and those who dropped them have been dragged out.

There have been student sit-downs under the Peace Tower, shocking Parliamentarians by France — and the kids have been hauled off to the cells to cool down.

And there was that cartoon of beef blood buried onto the floor of Parliament by a self-proclaimed crusader — and he was jailed, then fined.

It was Wednesday, May 18, moments before 3 p.m. when the mad bomber Paul Chartier, in his way to the Commons to hurl his bomb onto Parliament's floor, miscalculated the timing of his fuse and blew himself up.

And by weird coincidence, it was that same Wednesday, May 18, but three hours earlier, in their weekly Caucus, that the Conservatives were talking about Parliament's increasingly shabby image.

"We thought hit me right then," says Warner Jorgenson, Conservative MP for Manitou's Provencher, "that some time, some day, some not might take all of Parliament-is-rotten talk seriously and try to blow the place up as a public service."

081 YEARS

You had to be there in the caucus, hear the drone of the lackluster discussion to believe Minister Nicholson was sounding out to understand the dread thud there was in that muffled boom as the bomb went off, 18 seconds and 18 feet from the House doors, and the blue cloud with its bitter smell of cordite seeped into the Commons.

The mad bomber was mad, no doubt of that, mad in both mentally and emotionally.

But even so, "Hit message" left, that he was doing to "kill as many of you as possible — because of the lousy way you are running the country," has shaken Parliamentarians. And they don't mind admitting it.

What worries them is that Parliament's not really all that bad.

In fact, they claim, and with some justice, Parliament's pretty good.

Been doing a fair job, too.

Look at the record, a piece of legislation passed for every day it has dealt with Governm ent business.

Time has been used — perhaps some might even say wasted — on other things. Estimates. Confidence debates. Throne Speech. Budget. Capital Punishment. Private Members Bills. Too much time spent on each bill? Maybe to say?

The Munsinger mess? Only three and a half days.

But people have been talking like that about Parliament ever since it began — and in Britain where it all started, it is celebrating its 601st anniversary as this year.

Is the Bible Neglected?

Letter in Brantford Expositor

So many times I have heard and read the lament by preachers that the Bible, in the average home, just lies around gathering dust. I wonder how many of these men whet the spiritual appetites of their congregations by going deep into the Scriptures in their sermons. If they served as much of the meat of the word they would eliminate spiritual malnutrition.

I have listened to hundreds of sermons, but rarely do I hear an expository sermon. I do get weary of hearing a man read a text, then launch into an oration. I have heard many listeners express the same opinion. I could write a sermon as good as some I have heard though I never saw the inside of a Bible college. Textual and thematic sermons have their place, but it is a minor one. The great need is for expository sermons.

If we had sermons that needed open Bibles among the congregation, preachers would see fewer dozed sleepers.

M.M.

Fish Story

Ontario angling licences for non-residents have increased from 171,000 in 1946 to 400,000 in 1965. The latest estimate of resident anglers, a million and a half, is the highest, according to Lands and Forests records.

Alexander, when 26 years old, had alienated popular opinion three years before by selecting a much older woman of dubious reputation as his consort. ## Ann Landers

How to Make Child Confident, Friendly

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I be you for just a few minutes? I have something to say to the parents of America and there is no better vehicle than your column.

Presume: Do you want your child to be tense, insecure, unable to make friends, defeated before he starts? Do you want him to be lonely and resentful and keep his feelings buried inside? If you do, follow these suggestions:

Criticize him several times every day — preferably before an audience. Belittle his efforts, tell him to shut up when he tries to ANN LANDERS speak, shrug off his comments as dumb and unimportant. Make fun of him for asking stupid questions.

If there is an older brother or sister who is exceptionally bright or talented, make frequent comparisons and ask him why he can't do as well. If there happens to be a prettier girl or a handsomer boy in the family, make a big fuss over his or her looks.

On the other hand, if you want your child to have self-confidence and enthusiasm, initiative and leadership qualities — if you want him to be co-operative and friendly, praise him a little every day. But be sure the praise is sincere because he will know if it isn't.

Listen to him when he speaks. If he does something wrong let him know you forgive him and find you have more faith in him after he's confessed. He will try his darnedest not to let you down if he feels you have faith in him.

Have you ever wondered why your child behaves differently from other children? Why he does things you don't like? Why others than he does with you? How many times have you heard a parent say, "He is so pleasant when he is with the Joneses, but at home we can't get a civil word out of him."

Children react the way they are treated. What your children are depending on is what you are willing to invest in terms of patience, time and love. — INDIANAPOLIS.

DEAR INDIANAPOLIS: You have condensed in a few paragraphs the fundamental principles for rearing children. Thank you for being me. I couldn't have said it so well.

*

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I enjoyed your answer to the young wife who was distressed because her husband was having difficult time finding a job but refused to shave his beard even though some employers offered to hire him if he shaved.

This item appeared in the Montreal Star recently:

"A few years ago one of the best criminal lawyers in town selected a bright young boy out of his graduating class at Underwright, to join his law firm when he had completed his year's study abroad. The young man returned with a beard. The attorney looked him over at some length the second time he saw him for work. 'Young man,' he said, at last, "I have no objection to that beard. Just don't wear it during office hours." — MRS. F.B.W.

DEAR MRS. F.B.W.: The attorney dealt with the situation wisely. It's amazing how a man can take the edge off what might be a cutting response. Thanks for sharing.

*

Confidential to NO MEDAL FOR ME: We're you expecting one? When you married the man you knew about his "crazy religion, limited education, poor health, terrible temper, and miserable ex-wife? If you've managed to get four wonderful children out of this marriage, consider yourself fortunate and make the best of it.

Church Groups

HONOR COUNCIL, CENTENNIAL F.M. CHURCH

On Sunday an impressive honor council was held at Avondale Free Methodist Church. The church attendance was excellent and included interested friends and parents of the Christian Youth Crusaders.

The Crusaders entered the church from the lower auditorium with their directors led by the color bearers, Terry Parks and Debbie Douglas. The director, Marie Douglas, led them in the salute to the National Flag and the Christian Flag. The "Herald" gave their "promise", the Cadets their "purpose" and the Crusader's their "pledge". Joyce Parks led in prayer after which Brenda Tweedy gave the Scripture lesson. Carolyn Weasel, one of the cadets, played an accordion solo. The offering was received by four ushers in uniform.

Rev. Edith Mainprize gave the address. She challenged the children and young people to make good use of their time and their talents. Miss Mainprize said that one child had asked his parent, "Is God dead?" The father replied "Certainly not." The child continued "I notes you haven't been talking to Him lately." Because of this conversation the parent was made to realize how much he had been laying aside his own faith and training his doubts to the child.

At the close of the message the awards were given for the year's work and salute pins were presented. The Heralds have been under the direction of Mrs. Gerald Ash, assistants Mrs. Reed and Mrs. Couch. Madelene Kemp won the prize for highest points. The Cadets have been directed by Mrs. Harsden with assistants Mrs. Abrams, Mrs. Smith and Terry Kemp. Kenneth Harsden won the prize for highest points. The Crusaders were under the direction of Mrs. Carwell, assisted by Max McCann. Connie Sweetman won the prize for highest points.

The Todd award was given to Paul Reed, Brent Babcock, Chris Parks and Penny Petherick.

The Fairbairn award, which is the highest award is the Cadets, was presented to Debbie Douglas.

Copenhagen's Tivoli Gardens Real "Danish Disneyland"

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

COPENHAGEN, Denmark — Everything must be in the old way, or we cannot understand it, but everything must also be new or it bores us."

So it was observed in 1916 on the occasion of the 75th anniversary of Copenhagen's landmark, heart, and soul, Tivoli Gardens, that Danish Disney of the Dane's whimsical personality. And, as the French say, the more it changes, the more it is the same.

Copenhagen has been changing in the 700 years since it's founding; it is doubt, stop by at the City Museum's courtyard for a look at the model of the city as it was about 1500 — a castle surrounded by a moat, and strung-out thatched - roof houses that still follow the same street lines of today, and look much like the houses that dot the farmlands of the country.

But visitors never will be understand it; Copenhagen is always new enough not to be boring.

Americans love the lively-Tivoli. They come in a bus-load. Danes (more than one quarter of whom live here), it is Denmark. It is almost impossible to get lost in. From the vast expanse of City Hall Square in the heart of the city, see the main street of Vesterbrogade, the twisting string of five alleys (Copenhagen's Fifth Avenue), most of the city's leading hotels and restaurants, the railroad station, SAS air terminal, and, of course, Tivoli Gardens.

HAS CHANGED

To the first-time visitor it would seem unchanged for centuries. The entrance is the old bricks that is the City Hall, the symmetrical complex of baroque buildings of the royal residence of Amelienborg Palace, the greened copper spires that poke at the sky everywhere, the twisted dragons' tails surmounting the world's oldest stock exchange, the spiral staircase delaying up the spire of Our Savior Church, and the equally spiral ramp inside the Round Tower observatory where a young Czar Peter once drove up a horse and buggy — all still fascinate the tourists, and were with the belief that there's less danger on the track than on the highway.

Molly Miles, wife of Kenneth Miles, No. 1 driver on Ford's racing team, talked about her feelings while her husband was here for the Western Canada championships.

"It's safer on the track than on the freeway and barring mechanical flukes there aren't that many accidents.

"I think racing is safer than playing football. This while it seems like such a terribly dangerous sport, if people took a survey I think they'd find there were fewer hurt than in other sports."

She says her husband has wrecked a couple of cars but she doesn't worry because he is racing with some one who knows pretty much what they are doing. Besides, "the devil takes care of his own."

Mrs. Miles, who lives in Hollywood, tried a bit of racing herself in California but gave it up.

She figures she's a good driver. "I've only banged one fender ever—I have to be on my toes or I'd never hear the last of it."

Upper Canada Village

It is 1784-1867. You are there. A time machine has drawn you back into the 19th century, back to the days before Canada's nationhood. All is peaceful and serene in this riverside village, nestled on the banks of the mighty St. Lawrence. You'll walk along the corduroy roads of yesterday, past the inviting door of Cook's Tavern. The Upper Canada mail coach clatters along the King's Highway. At the smithy's shop, you'll watch the Scottish shoeing of a horse; in the craft houses, see demonstrations of spinning and weaving. The irresistible aroma of fresh bread wafts from the bakeshop next to Willard's Hotel where you can enjoy home-cooked meals in 1850 surroundings. History comes magically to life at Upper Canada Village, located seven miles east of Morrisburg on Ontario's scenic route, highway 2. Open daily from May 14 through October 16.

170 miles of parks

The new 18-hole championship Upper Canada golf course, in Crysler Farm Battlefield Park, is open for play daily. Green fees are reasonable and season tickets are available. From Adolphustown, on the Bay of Quinte, to the Quebec border, 14 beautifully landscaped parks provide recreational facilities second to none on the continent. Many parks have sandy beaches, marinas, boat launching ramps, picnic and camping areas. The parks are open from May 13 to October 16. Don't miss the colourful displays by the Fort Henry Guards shortly after 10 a.m. For further information, write the Public Relations Officer, The St. Lawrence Parks Commission, P.O. ## How Did Such Fragile Glass Survive So Long?

C and E entwine to form the stem of this Swedish glass goblet of the seventeenth century. It was made at the Kungsholm Glass Works.

(Corning Museum of Glass, Corning, New York)

Glassware is so fragile it is always amazing that some of the intricate early pieces have managed to survive. A museum recently acquired one of five covered remaining goblets made in a special seventeenth century style.

The stem of the goblet is formed from the letters C and E. A crown surmounts the letters and the goblet cover. It must have been made before the Swedish king died in 1679. To letters are the initials of King Charles and Queen Eleonora of Sweden. The goblet was made in a style influenced by the Venetians and Germans.

Q. Is it proper to use allpurpose covers on antique furniture?

A. Slipcovers are not a modern idea. An English upholsterer made cases of yellow buckram for an escritoire in 1812. Another records describe chair covers in Boston as early as 1647. Many of the early slipcovers were just throws. Others were attached with eyelet holes or with a type of drawstring.

• • •

Q. Is a spring type rocker Victorian?

A. Most rocking chairs had curved rockers similar to those on a cradle. The American standard or plantation rocker was patented about 1870. It was a Hindle to rocker on a spring on a platform. The stationary platform did not wear out carpets like the other rockers.

Q. Is there an easy way to tell eighteenth century Worcestershire porcelain from the other porcelains of the period, such as Derby or Caughley?

A. The instant expert test for Dr. Wall Worcester is one of the nicest known to antique collectors. Hold the dish or bowl in front of a bright light. A plain white indoor light bulb is fine.

The body of porcelain will appear to be light green, light porcelain when held to a bright light, opposite to be white, blue white or pink. Only Dr. Wall period Worcester looks green. It is caused by the chemical composition of the china.

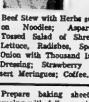
QUESTION: While strawberries are in season I want to make them into large meringues and fill them with berries. I had this in a hotel dining room and my husband raved about them. They had whipped cream on top . . . Kathy J.

ANSWER:



LARGE DESSERT MERINGUES

3 large egg whites
1½ cups granulated sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons vinegar
1½ teaspoons water
1½ teaspoons vanilla

(NOTE: Please notice that the rule is to allow for each egg white ½ teaspoon each vinegar, water and vanilla.)

Add sugar to whites and beat until stiff peaks will form and all sugar is dissolved. In electric beater this is no problem but with rotary or hand beater it takes 10 or 15 minutes. Beat in remaining ingredients.

Prepare baking sheets by covering with foil or moistened Silicone-coated parchment paper especially treated for baking meringues or macaroons. Spoon 12 meringues, 3½" in diameter, about ½" thick, on prepared pans. I use a berry spoon to make the "nests" by denting centre deeply with a maple sugar ladle first dipped in cold water.

Put in oven heated to 400 deg. Fahr. and immediately turn off heat and leave in oven until cold or overnight.

To serve, fill with sliced strawberries, topped with whipped cream OR fill with ice cream and top with sliced berries OR fill with fresh lemon filling and top with whipped cream. The lemon filling variation is very popular. Use Anglolish Lemon Butter OR Oils

Rich Lemon Filling: Three-quarters cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, dash of salt, one cup water, 1 egg, well beaten, 3 tablespoons butter, ½ cup lemon juice, ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind. Combine sugar, flour and salt in top of double boiler; add water and stir, mixing thoroughly. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 10 minutes, or until thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from boiling water; add butter, lemon juice and rind, and cool.

MR. AND MRS. PAUL DOUGLAS HUFFMAN

Huffman — Keitch

Holy Rosary Church, Belleville, was the setting on Saturday, June 4, 1966, when Sandra Theresa Keitch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Keitch, Belleville, became the bride of Paul Douglas Huffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Huffman, Belleville. Rev. Father Sullivan officiated at the ceremony and traditional wedding music was rendered by Sister Mary Rosaria at the organ who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Joan Wilson. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length sheath skirted gown of peau-de-soie, with matching overskirt falling into a chapel train from a bow at the back waistline. The lace fitting bodice had a deep scoop neckline and elbow-length sleeves of Dolpeau lace. Her elbow-length silk illusion veil was caught with a headdress of Dolpeau lace and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses with ivy.

Miss Janice Day of Toronto was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Bob Day, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Jeanette Keitch, sister of the bride, both of Belleville. All wore floor-length gowns of pale pink peau-de-soie with bell skirts, back buttoned jackets with fabric necklines, and contrasting bells of deep pink. Wedding ring headpieces held their short veils.

Colleen Keitch, sister of the bride, was flower girl. She was dressed in a full length Empress line gown of white peau-de-soie with short sleeves and a deep pink sash. She carried a basket of pink and white baby 'stanz.

Mr. Tony Wrings was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Bob Gray and Mr. Joe Stevens.

At the reception at St. Joseph's Parish Hall the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a two-piece beige knit suit with matching flower hat and beige and brown accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations. The bridegroom's mother was assisted, in a lone colored linen dress with matching jacket, bone colored and turquoise accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

On their return, the couple will live at 296 Victoria Avenue, Belleville.

1,633 Children Poisoned In Toronto Last Year

TORONTO (CP)—Glen Kellock, 19 months old, toddled behind his mother as she dusted and cleaned.

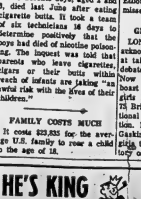
Mrs. Rose Kellock set down a bottle of furniture polish on a table in her sitting room and the cough bone and turned her back. From a corner of her eye, she saw Glen reach for the bottle. She turned and snatched it from him, but it was too late. Glen died in hospital three days later.

One quarter of a teaspoonful was enough of the polish to poison the boy, a doctor told the inquest into Glen's death. The damage was done within 30 seconds. There is no antidote and no emergency treatment could save him once the polish passed his lips.

The mother sobbed that she hadn't even known the polish, which she has used for years, was poisonous.

The bottle contained lemon oil furniture polish, one of hundreds of chemical substances common in household use that played a major role in poisoning 1,633 children in Toronto alone last year.

The law doesn't require lemon oil polish bottles to carry a warning label, yet it contains only a trace of lemon oil, and is 99.9 per cent a volatile hydrocarbon, a fatal poison, if ingested.



Of the 1,633 children treated for poisoning at the Hospital for Sick Children last year, 678 had swallowed bedache tablets, acetylsalicylic acid. Sedatives—sleeping pills, barbiturates and tranquilizers—had poisoned 96 and 41 children at 71 ingesting 64; household bleaches 36; insecticides 41; lye 36; furniture and floor polishes 30; cleaning fluid 29; gasoline lighter fluid, rat poisons and turpentine 9 to 18 each.

A new danger to children—birth control pills—came on the scene in recent years. They poisoned 25 Toronto children last year, but the hospital Poison Control Centre said they are harmful to children only in extremely large quantities.

Two Toronto boys, aged 2 and 3, died last June after eating cigarette butts. It took a team of six technicians 18 days to determine positively that the boys died of nicotine poisoning. The inquest was told that parents who leave cigarettes, cigars or their butts within reach of infants are playing a awful risk with the lives of their children."

Church Groups

WESLEYAN METHODIST W.M.S.

The June Women's Missionary Society meeting of the Wesleyan Methodist Church was held in the sanctuary with Mrs. Vivian Trotter leading the devotional period. Members of the ladies "when you cannot pray as you would; pray as you can". In connection with this she mentioned the need of yielded workers on the mission fields, and referred to Mr. Paul Dekker who has just visited the church on furlough from Ethiopia (Africa). This qualified scientist went out as a laboratory technician for a hospital, only he find he had to build the laboratory first.

It was decided to omit an August meeting; and also to change the regular rating of W.M.S. services, beginning in September.

A West Town Evangelines" was the topic led by Mrs. Ruth Babcock who was assisted by Mrs. Trotter, Mrs. Veteary and Mrs. Bert Locklin. In summation the speaker said "The church is overall forests we have been content to be small. When our church becomes really important to us, we shall stop apologizing for mentioning it and instead we shall go out —and help build the world in Christ through the Wesleyan Methodist Church".

A short review "Around the World in the Wesleyan Missionary" was given by Mrs. Nora Elliott and the service was dismissed by the president.

Now even that proud myth has been beaten teams from 75 British schools to win a national school debating competition. ## Lines on Life

Keep Sense of Wonder

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Suppose you tell a man a story of great adventure, how a friend walked one day in a forest, lost his way and then waited for nightfall to make flares to light up the way.

You describe two days and two nights of loneliness, of terror and fear. Finally, you dramatize the escape. Your friend is sighted by a helicopter, which lands in a clearing, lands and brings him back alive. And after this thrilling story, the man who has been listening all the while without a display of emotion, says:

"There's nothing so unusual about that!"

This man, like many others, is a "so-what-er" — a person who has lost all his sense of wonder and surprise. No matter what great or thrilling thing you tell him, his only reaction is one of "so what-ish".

It unhappily, a contagious, communicable disease and we concort with people who are afflicted by it, we may very well catch it. Yet, there are not a few cases on record that prove it is curable malady. One therapy consists of a very simple procedure: Just take a walk under the canopy of the skies, making certain all the time to get the fog out of your eyes so that you can see clearly what is really before you.

Unfortunately, there are cases which indicate that some people cannot see the forest because of the trees. Strange to say, there are many people like this — people who got up every morning dress hurriedly, eat the same breakfast, rush off to work, see the same people, do the same things, and never are aware of the world of beauty that immediately surrounds them.

DIFFERENT TYPE

In the Bible we have the record of a man of a different stripe. He said:

"The heavens declare glory of God, and the firma ment shows His handiwork. Day unto day utters His greatness, night unto night hides His knowledge."

This man knew the beauty and the mystery of life, because he knew and was close to the whole world of nature. But talk to him and he is a prisoner of canyons of steel and stone shows some of these things. His senses are of utter emptiness, emptiness that echoes the hollowness within him. He has lost the sense of wonder and surprise because he is out of touch with God's world and only in touch with himself.

Young people have a lot to teach their elders. More than a few elders realize. They still have a sense of excitement in their being, because they are filled with the joy of living alive and with the romance of growing and maturing.

But youth is an attitude of mind as well as a time of life. People grow older. But sometimes they grow down and not up. Growing up means holding on to and keeping alive the spirit of adventure and the thrill of living.

As long as you can still be amazed to your very core over the wonderful simplicities of God's world, you are young despite your years.

The adventurous and knows how to seek out new reasons for joy in living. The search itself is the adventure. And the sense of gratitude which follows is the fibre which encloses the deeper fulfillments of our spirit.

A Lift For Living

How Can We Recognize It, The Thing Called Happiness?

By REV. HAROLD. E. KOHN

Jan Struther, the British novelist who wrote the best-selling novel 'Mrs. Miniver' during World War Two, also composed a memorable poem which was recited at her funeral. It reads:

One day my life will end; and the best

Some prompt you to review it. Let her who knew the subject best

- Tell you the shortest way to do it.

Then say: 'Here lies one doubly blest.'

Say: 'She was happy.' Say: 'She knew it.'

That bit of verse reveals a good and great spirit, and a rare one. Many of us have the makings of real happiness and we don't know it. We overlook our reasons for real happiness here and now while we wishly pursue some imaginary joy that flees like the future.

We may suppose that we could be happy if we could, in carefree abandon, live a life of real pleasure. But Lord Byron tried that and later wrote in bitter disillusionment "The worm, conscience and the grief are mine alone."

If we could only acquire enough money to be free of all financial pressures we could be happy; so we think. But Jay Gould, the American multi-millionaire, when near death said, "I suppose I'm the most miserable man on earth."

Perhaps we could be happy with more power, prestige, fame and glory. Napoleon had all of these, about as much of them as could ever come to one man. Yet he confessed, "I have never known six happy days in my life."

If our health were better and our physical senses sharper, we would surely be much happier. Yet many splendid specimens of perfect health have wasted their health and dissipated their energies in a futile pursuit of happiness, while some unfortunates — deprived of health — have lived joyously.

Helen Keller, blind and deaf, after years of living in a world of physical darkness and complete silence, declared, "I have found life so beautiful!" And Fanny Crosby, the blind author of many Christian hymns, used to say, "Don't waste any sympathy on me, I am the happiest person alive."

What is this thing called "happiness"? To use Jan Struther's glad expression, how can we "know it" when we see it?

We are happy —

When we exercise power, talent and skill in a way that deserves and receives the approval of someone we highly esteem;

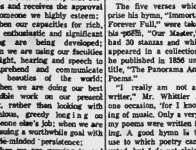
When our capacities for work, full, enthusiastic and significant living are being called forth, when we are using our faculties of sight, hearing and speech to comprehend and communicate the beauties of the world;

When we are doing our best possible work on our present task, rather than looking with covetous, greedy longing to someone else's job; when we are pursuing a worthwhile goal with single-minded persistence;

When we are growing toward the sort of persons we ought to be and long to be, learning to enjoy life more simply, think more charitably, feel more deeply about important matters, care for others more intensely, and take more glad risks for great causes;

When we are useful to our family, our employer, our church, our community and to society at large;

When our hearts are free from bitterness toward others and from guilt before God;



When we are giving so much attention to the needs of others that we forget about ourselves;

When we think of what we have, rather than of what we lack and of what we can do rather than what we cannot do;

When we love and are loved; when we know we count with someone and are sure we count with God.

Happiness like this is abiding, while mere pleasure is fleeting. Happiness is profound, while pleasure is shallow.

Happiness cannot be caught by frantically chasing after it. Like a wily, elusive butterfly it escapes our nets, but if we will sit down and reflect upon the goodness of God and the blessings of life, happiness will alight upon our shoulder.

Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE B. POWELL

"IMMORTAL LOVE, FOREVER FULL"

Immortal Love, forever full,
Forever flowing free,
Forever shared, forever whole,
A never - ebbing sea!

We may not climb the heavenly steeps
To bring the Lord Christ down;
In vain we search the lowest deeps,
For Him no depths can drown:

But warm, sweet, tender, even yet
A present help is He;
And faith has still its Olivet,
And love its Galilee.

The healing of His seamless dress
Is by our beds of pain;
We touch Him in life's throng and press
And we are whole again.

O Lord and Master of us all,
Whate'er our name or sign,
We own Thy sway, we hear Thy call,
We test our lives by Thine.

John Greenleaf Whittier, the American poet, had no idea when he penned the stanzas cited here that they would one day be sung in the churches of the world.

The five verses which comprise his hymn, "Immortal Love, Forever Full," were taken from his 1866 "Our Master," which had 30 stanzas and which first appeared in a collection which he published in 1856 under the title, "The Panorama And Other Poems."

"I really am not a hymn writer," the Quaker author said on one occasion, 'for I know nothing of music. Only a very few of my poems were written for singing. A good hymn is the best use to which poetry can be devoted, but I do not claim that I have succeeded in producing one."

Hymn lovers who long have sung and cherished the hymn, "Immortal Love," and some of his others including the ever-popular "Dear Lord And Father Of Mankind," will claim otherwise.

Lighting the Way

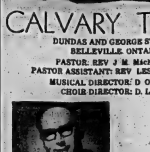
By Walter S. Cross

LINCOLN'S STATUE MOVES. In the latter part of 1954, it was obvious that old Abe Lincoln had shifted his position. The famed Springfield Lincoln statue had been keeping a brave, majestic vigil outside the Illinois Capitol in Springfield for more than half a century.

Posterity had been properly respectful of the Great Emancipator, but wind, rain, and snows of many seasons finally took their toll. The statue had moved slightly, because of a weakened foundation. Illinois Governor, Otto Kerner, immediately allocated funds to re-anchor the hollow bronze statue. Men are more fragile than a bronze statues. The winds of temptation, the pressures of modern life, and the storms of hardship and trial, take their toll upon us in much less time. If we want to be strong, steadfast, and reliable characters, we should avail ourselves of the strength God has given us for that purpose. A study of the Bible, a faithful attendance to prayer, and depending more upon God's providence and His grace, results in strengthening our spiritual and moral foundations, deepening our faith, and making us stead; and true.



TEXT FOR TODAY: "He that doeth these things shall never be moved." (Psalm 15:5)

Air Canada Says Flights To Continue

TORONTO (CP) — A federal labor department mediator has moved directly into a dispute between Air Canada and its 1,433 sales employees, attempting to prevent a strike set for midnight Wednesday night.

The "seriousness of this situation" was emphasized by Labor Minister Nicholson in Ottawa after Air Canada Airline Employees Association (Incl.) announced Friday it had voted 1,201 in favor of the strike.

Air Canada said it will operate its flights on schedule, using supervisory personnel, despite the strike called by workers handling tickets, reservations, airport counters, teletypes and public offices.

"We don't anticipate any bricket or sympathy strikes," said an airline spokesman. "We expect all other employee groups, of which we have 11 agreements with their unions, Transportation of air cargo and mail "should be unaffected."

Mr. Nicholson said it was unusual to appoint a senior labor department official as a mediator, but "I think the man we have is the best qualified for the job."

"The labor department and the department of transport realize the seriousness of this situation and are actively engaged in efforts to prevent this strike," Mr. Nicholson told reporters.

ONLY IN CANADA

Only workers in Canada would go affected. The federally-operated carrier has flights to the British Isles, Europe, the Caribbean and U.S. cities. It has 250 flights a day in Canada alone.

In a statement Air Canada said it "will maintain air service to the traveling public despite the unfortunate action of some members of its Sales Employees Association, unofficially termed the Canadian Airline Employees Association. . . ."

"Some deterioration in passenger handling on the ground may be expected in some of the centres which may be affected, however, this will in no way influence the safe operation of the airline."

The spokesman said it would be the first strike against the airline since it began operations more than 30 years ago, although there have been some slowdowns.

Robert Dye of Port Arthur, president of the union, said the strikers will picket at all airport gates. The union has no strike fund "but each member has volunteered to help if this fully aware he would be badly hit in the pocket."

The association is seeking a two-year contract with a 20-per-cent wage increase to match U.S. airlines' rates. Passenger agents now start at $64.70 a week, rising after 5½ years to $1.08.40; ticket agents' salaries start at $60.50, to a maximum $85.50; switchboard operators at $51.80, rising to $78.10.

Believe Plane Used to Stage Cafe Robbery

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP)— Two men accused of a flying robbery were in jail today after a search plane spotted their hiding place.

A bloodhound led a ground party to a jungle 3 miles north of here Friday where police found Larry Crews, 26, and James Johnson, 25, cold, rain-soaked and weary.

Officers said earlier Friday two men chartered a plane in Juneau and told pilot Ken Lockon they were on a business trip that included Sitka.

At Sitka, Locken was told to wait at the plane float. A short time later, Sitka police said two men held up the Pioneer Bar and escaped with $2,500.

Locken said his passengers returned, climbed back into the plane, pulled pistols and ordered a quick takeoff. He said the men offered him $1,000 to fly them to Seattle.

Locken appeared to play along with them, but flew slowly to use up fuel. After flying 130 miles he told them he would have to land because he was low on fuel.

He landed off a beach north of here and the two fled into the woods.

Crews and Harkenson, who said they were from Everett, Wash., were charged with armed robbery and bail was set at $10,000 each.

Good Start Important To Your Car

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

How it's operated during the first few minutes or so, every morning, has a lot to do with the wear and tear on your car. It also affects the engine's gas mileage.

To begin with, quick starts are a "must." But they're more likely a "can't" if the battery, plugs, points, timing, choke or carburetor are on the sickly side. Once the engine is started, don't race it, gun it or otherwise overwork the gas pedal for fast warm-up. This only speeds wear and really shrinks gas mileage.

Just let the engine warm up normally for a few minutes, but don't overdo it unless you're getting free gas from your own private pump.

When you accelerate, do so slowly and steadily. For the first few miles, hold your driving speeds to let the engine limber up gradually. This helps gas mileage, too. Don't "ride" with your pocketbook — by mistaking friction, resistance and wear.

From G.S.: "What causes an automatic transmission to get leaky?"

Any number of things. Low oil level, air leakage, clogged oil screen or many trouble could be to blame.

L.A. asks: "I use premium fuel and the ignition timing has been doubled checked. What else can cause our engine to knock or a spark ping? We only hear it when taking hills or speeding the throttle quickly."

Overheating can cause this. Also a very lean fuel mixture, or heavy carbon buildup.

H. T. writes: "One cold morning last month, our car stalled right after starting — then wouldn't restart. The spark was fat, but the carburetor seemed gas starved. I let the car sit and several hours later it started up and kept running perfectly. Oddly enough, the trouble never happened again."

Temporary fuel starvation seems likely. Condensation could have accumulated at the fuel pump inlet screen, which would cause pump failure. Or ice may have formed in the filter bowl or feed line.

From P. B.: "The hood on a '62 sedan I just bought is noisy and I can see it shake when the car is moving. Would you say the hood lock or safety catch, need replacing?"

Probably — although it's possible that the hood itself is slightly out of alignment.

Will Sentence Union Leaders June 27th

TORONTO (CP)—The penalty imposed on striking unionists was convicted Tuesday of contempt of court must be stiff enough to stop anybody else from disobeying a court order, Crown counsel Frank Callaghan told Chief Justice G. A. Gale of Ontario Friday.

The union men were convicted of picketing at Tilco Plastics Ltd., Peterborough, in the face of a court injunction limiting the number of pickets to 12. Chief Justice Gale said he would sentence the men June 27.

CPR's Dominion Passenger Train Will Not Be Revived This Summer Says Board

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons transport committee has decided, reluctantly, not to recommend a revival of the CPR's Dominion passenger train this summer, it was learned Friday.

Tuesday the committee was told by Ian Sinclair, president of the railway, that it would take four or five months to get the Dominion's equipment back in shape for an acceptable service.

An interim report by the committee, expected to be tabled in the Commons next week, will propose instead that immediate steps be taken to order the Dominion into service for the 1967 Centennial year.

Informants said several members of the committee were reluctant to accept Mr. Sinclair's version of the "lead time" required to restore the train on a Montreal-Vancouver transcontinental schedule.

However, committee member Norman Fawcett (NDP—Nickel Belt) told them it was doubtful whether enough support could be shaved off Mr. Sinclair's estimate to make possible the return of the Dominion this summer.

Mr. Fawcett is a veteran railway conductor.

The Dominion went out of service in January when the Board of Transport Commissioners, following public hearings, supported a CPR bid to get rid of the deficit-ridden train.

A deluge of protests prompted Parliament to order a special study of the adequacy of CPR passenger service which now is entering its 100th year.

The committee, headed by Joe Macaluso (L — Hamilton West) toured the country recently and heard dozens of requests for a revival of the service. A few told the committee to Ottawa the committee voted 16 to 2 in favor of issuing an interim report. The report still is in draft form.

Members said there was strong support in the committee for a recommendation that the Dominion be returned this summer for the peak holiday season. But that was before Mr. Sinclair's testimony stressed the physical impossibility of getting a full-fledged service ready in time.

The report is expected to reflect committee feeling that the CPR is not giving the west enough passenger service with the Canadian, now its only transcontinental train.

In ruling on the Dominion the board reserved decision on whether the train should be ordered back on the tracks for Centennial summer traffic. This will be decided next fall after a study of how travel needs are met this summer.

48 Witnesses To Stand Trial In Portugal

LISBON (AP)—Portugal will try a congregation of 48 Jehovah's Witnesses Tuesday on subversive activities against the state.

Members of the sect claim the case will set a precedent for general policy against Protestant and Jewish minorities in this country of 10,000,000 persons, 85 per cent of whom profess the Roman Catholic faith.

But the government of Premier Antonio Salazar thinks otherwise.

"The official accusation against the witnesses alleges that they are a political movement inciting disobedience, agitation and subversion of military age. The accusation specifically refers to the sect's refusal to salute any flag or submit to the draft.

FRIDAY, June 10, 1966

The Commons delayed a decision until next week on an amendment that would stipulate that the country's bilingual nature be observed in government appointments to the corporation to run the National Arts Centre.

Other clauses in the bill went through at second reading—approval in principle.

The House then debated the bill to set up the Company of Young Canadians, the Canadian equivalent of the U.S. Peace Corps.

It still was under discussion when the Commons adjourned for the weekend.

2,500

tion Minister Marchand said he wished the amendment hadn't been moved but he would find it hard to vote against it.

APPROVES MOST CLAUSES

The Commons approved all other clauses in the arts centre bill and allowed membership on the board to stand for further debate, likely next week.

On the new company, Mr. Hamilton urged that its directors consider the "desire of young people to take action and to belong to groups that are different from their seniors." This should not be used "for good purposes."

But he was not suggesting that the answer was in "teach them to wear tight pants, pointed shoes, long hair and beat guitars."

Heath Macquarrie (PC—Queens) liked both the "spirit of maturity" and the "conscientious adventure" inherent in the bill.

David MacDonald (PC—Prince) said he would be a tragedy if anything impinged on the company's independence. It would become the biggest political football.

The bill sets out the objects of the company in part as "to promote community development work in urban and rural Canadian areas; programs of training for people handicapped economically or socially and school dropouts; vocational training projects; recreation projects for young people; public health programs; home economics education, and" assistance programs to people in other countries to raise their standards of living.

TRAFFIC HALTED

MONTREAL (CP)—A wind-driven rainstorm caused traffic chaos in the Montreal area Friday and resulted in a closedown of a portion of the Montreal-Quebec City highway on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River.

RCMP Given Information On Bankrupts

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MP Erik Nielsen said Friday some of the information he has given the RCMP information on alleged bankruptcy frauds that local governments $150,000,000 in lost revenue.

An RCMP spokesman said the force is "reasonable" on the information and in the process of deciding which agency will investigate the complaints received.

Mr. Nielsen said he persuaded some of his contacts to provide the RCMP with information about 32 legitimate and dummy corporations or syndicates suspected of fraud.

Mr. Nielsen, the lawyer and MP for Yukon who was also Lucien Rivard bail affair in 1964, said in an interview that the forms involved were located in four provinces, mostly Quebec and Ontario.

Names of individuals also had been provided to the RCMP.

He said informants came to him after they had refused to talk with RCMP officers in his presence. Several such informants had taken place in the last few days.

OVERCAME FEAR

"Their fear had to be overcome," he said, referring to the sources' fear of underworld reprisals.

Mr. Nielsen said the suspected bankruptcy frauds are those connected and have deprived the federal and provincial governments of $150,000,000 in tax revenue.

"This is only a fraction of the real losses," he said, adding that the information supplied by his informants covers only a small portion of the bankruptcy fraud racket.

Racketeers used extremely complex methods to take over legitimate firms or set up fictitious ones, taking millions from creditors before abruptly declaring themselves bankrupt.

Mr. Nielsen said he was disappointed on the allegations supplied to the authorities. "I want to give every possible opportunity for the investigation to be conducted without prejudice."

He said he exchanged correspondence with Justice Minister Cardin on the matter.

In Sorel, Que., Justice Minister Cardin said his department is "looking into the allegations" brought up in the Commons by Mr. Nielsen.

Asked if the investigations would be carried out by the RCMP or turned over to the provincial police organizations involved, Mr. Cardin said: "That's all I can tell you. I have no further comment."

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

They were ex-Dodger fans from the banks of the fragrant Gowanus and the bistros of Flatbush. I could tell by their Brooklynese lingo and when in a mental lapse, they ordered "Schlitz" instead of a Canadian brand.

They retain fond memories of their beloved "Bums" and Ebbet's Field where high-rise apartment buildings have replaced "high-rise" baseballs.

It was a pleasant "mail session" until someone committed the unpardonable sin. He mentioned the Yankees.

That was the "red flag" to those baseball buffs.

"Those high-living dudes," snorted one. "They're the tail of the American League horse and five gets you ten they won't make the first division come flag time."

One of the troupe in an effort to be fair threw some oil on the troubled verbal waters. "You must remember," he said in a voice that was slightly tinged with sarcasm, "the poor Yankees were victims of the injury jinx, Lonkie Maris, Mario and other top-flight Bombers all laid low with hurts."

"Injuries, my eye," blurted another. "They were closer than a dowager and her girdle. They wore the chaps of clapes and t'hell with any manager who criticized shady baths off and on the diamond."

A greybeard who had sat silent in his corner broke into tonsilar print. "Injuries can hurt any team but there was a time when the Yankee club looked like an emergency ward in a city hospital after a train wreck."

"Oh Yeah?" came the chorus. "When?"

The greybeard stroked his chin foliage. "That was back in 1949 — and they won the pennant at that."

"The Yankees had a sick bay attendant who faithfully recorded all their hurts, pains and sicknesses. 'Twas said he even included nicks on the chin while shaving."

He went on. "The injury gremlin made the opening day look like the St. Valentine Day massacre. It Cluttered those Yanks like Sitting Bull at the Little Big Horn."

"We seem to diremember that year," mused one with a sly look at the ceiling. "But it's understandable a bunch of cracks could lick anything in the American League."

"I quote the records and the archives of the Bronx Bombers recording interne," the guy siphoned through his facial alfalfa.

"Seven men got purple hearts on the opening day of that year. DiMaggio got a spur on his heel, Charlie Keller with a torn muscle in his side, Yogi Berra with a cold, Bob Porterfield with his arm in cast, Spec Shea with a stiff neck, Don Marshall with a fever and Johnny Lindell with a sprained ankle."

"So what?" gurgled another of the Flatbush fusiliers. "I suppose they bran seven constant mothers out of the emoligency ward to accommodate those bums."

"No," murmured the Beard, "they hrung in more cots for the next day George Stirnweiss sprained his left hand, Phil Rizzuto was out with a cold, Charlie Silvera was struck in the mouth by a foul ball and Berra back in the lineup was hit by a pitch."

The Beard pointed a stained finger. "Listen, youse guys," he said dropping back in the Flatbush vernacular, "and that ain't all."

"Before the season ended, Gus Mauch, the trainer, walked into a parking meter and broke three ribs, Ralph Houck was hit in the eye by a pitched ball, and when the Yanks clinched the flag Bill Dickey leaped high in the air and knocked himself unconscious when his head crashed against the dugout roof."

"He was the 71st injury of the season for the Yankees. And they won the pennant."

Lefty Gomez was one of those famous Yanks. This agent recalls the story of Lefty after ten years in Yankee service had hit his first triple in history.

When he reached the hot sack he turned to the third-baseline coach and said, "Jees, the diamond looks different from here."

The coach never batted an eye.

Senior Baseball

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—London Pontiacs scored eight runs in the first inning and went on to defeat Galt Terriers 16-4 in senior inter-county Baseball action here Friday night.

Pontiacs' first six batters reached base as they chased Galt starter Kevin Burke for eight runs on seven hits in the opening inning.

Ed Petryshyn, making his first appearance with the Pontiacs, picked up the victory after walking 10 in seven innings.

London's third baseman Joe Nash led with four hits, including a double. He also drove in three runs and scored three times.

Indians' Siebert Tosses No-Hitter

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

A wife's heckling didn't hurt Sonny Siebert.

In fact, the Cleveland Indians's righthander thinks it might have given him the first no-hitter in the major leagues this season and Cleveland's first since Bob Feller's in 1951.

Siebert, 28, who said his wife was kidding him about his poor pitching in his season, came within two baserunners of a perfect game as the Indians defeated Washington Senators 2-0 in American League action Friday night.

"I told her if you don't get off my back, I'll go out and pitch a no-hitter," he said afterwards.

The Senators didn't get a man on base until the fifth when Dick Nen walked on a 3-2 pitch. Paul Casanova was the only other Senator to get on, reaching first on Chico Salmon's low throw in the eighth.

DIED ON FIRST

Neither runner went any farther than first, and Siebert permitted just three balls to leave the infield, the last of by ball by Fred Valentine to Chuck Hinton in left field for the final out of the game.

The victory was Siebert's fifth against three defeats. He was 16-13 last season, his second in the majors.

The no - hitter was the first since Dave Morehead of Boston Red Sox hurled one against Cleveland last Sept. 16.

In other games, Baltimore Orioles drubbed Boston 9-2, Detroit Tigers defeated New York Yankees 6-2, Minnesota Twins stopped Chicago White Sox 4-2 and Kansas City Athletics edged California Angels 3-2.

Baltimore's Wally Bunker had a no-hitter for six innings, but Rico Petrocelli led off the seventh by beating out a drag bunt for a single. Bunker wound up with a four - hitter and also drove in two runs with a double. Andy Etchebarren and Russ Snyder added two RBI each for the Orioles.

Jake Wood and Norm Cash hit successive homers in the first inning, triggering Detroit to its sixth straight victory. Hank Aguirre scattered eight hits, two of them New York singles by Clete Boyer and Tom Tresh.

Pepitone, in posting his first complete game of the season.

Dave Boswell pitched a four-hitter and stroked two singles as Minnesota coasted past Chicago. Boswell singled across a run and scored another in the Twins' four-run second inning, then scored again in the sixth.

Phil Roof rapped a two-run single in the fourth inning, breaking a 1-1 tie and sending California's Dean Chance to his sixth straight defeat and eighth in 11 decisions. Three Kansas City pitchers held the Angels to four hits, three by Jose Cardenal.

South Africa's Top Horse

Gunman Shoots Race Favorite

DURBAN, South Africa (AP)—Sea Cottage, South Africa's most valuable race horse and a heavily-backed favorite for the Durban Handicap July 2, was shot in the flank by an unidentified gunman Friday.

Betting on the $42,000 race, the richest in South Africa, was suspended immediately after news of the shooting and the injury became known.

Thousands of bettors, worried about their wagers on the 15-to-8 favorite, jammed telephone lines to the betting headquarters. No decision was made on what would happen to bets if Sea Cottage is withdrawn. More than $300,000 has been bet on the colt, one of the hottest favorites in years.

The South African Bookmakers Co-operative Society recommended that all bets on the colt be refunded if he does not start. It also offered a $2,500 reward for information on who shot Sea Cottage.

WON 11 OF 12

Sea Cottage has won 11 of 12 races. A recent offer of more than $132,000 for the colt by a syndicate from the United States was rejected.

The colt was shot by the gunman from a hidden position on a bridge shortly after dawn as he was being led with a string of other horses for exercise. The gunman fled.

Sea Cottage was lame when led back to the stable. Veterinary surgeons said first x-rays did not show the position of the bullet, believed to have been of .22 calibre and fired by a rifle from about 15 feet.

Surgeons said there was a chance he might be able to race again if the bullet being removed.

NEWMAN DISABLED

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP)—California Angels placed ailing pitcher Fred Newman had been troubled by tendonitis in the right shoulder all spring.

Bruce Kidd Queen's Runner

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Canadian distance runner Bruce Kidd has been chosen to carry the Queen's message to the British Empire Games in Kingston, Jamaica, in August.

The Queen's message is carried in the same manner as the Olympic torch.

"Kidd will take the message from the Queen (July 26, his 23rd birthday), trot out of her back yard and through the streets of London flanked by two escorts, one of whom will be Brian Kilby who won the marathon at the 1962 Games for Britain," the newspaper says.

"He will hand the message to Jamaica a hurdler Keith Gardner at the first checkpoint and Gardner will carry it with him on a flight to Jamaica, where it then will be carried by runners to the official opening of the Games."

Kidd was named to carry the message after New Zealand's Peter Snell declined the invitation. Kidd and Kilby were to have been his escorts.

Kidd is not entered in the BE Games. He has been working in India for 10 months.

Yesterday's Stars

Pitching — Sonny Siebert, Cleveland, pitched first no-hitter in the majors this season, allowing only two baserunners as the Indians defeated Washington Senators 2-0.

Batting—Ed Brinkman, New York, socked two homers, driving in four runs, as the Mets blanked Cincinnati Reds 5-0.

Bell, Ptashnick Win Ontario Best-Ball

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Bell of Brantford and Bob Ptashnick of Brampton teamed up to score a three-under-par 69 Friday and best 72 other teams in the Ontario best ball golf championship.

Playing over the 6,770-yard Oakdale course, Ptashnick's hot putter decided the title. He accounted for five of the team's six birdies, scoring three on the front nine for a 34.

Bell added another birdie on the back nine and Ptashnick scored two more. They were two shots better than four teams locked in second place.

The four at 71 were Brothers Dave and Bill Morland from North Bay, Tommy Woodall and Tom McAllister from Pine Valley, Nick Weslock and Leo (Bobby) Valentine of Mississauga, Norm Goldwin and Gus Blair of Bayview.

Chuvalo Or Bonavena

Patterson Offered Bout

NEW YORK (CP) — Floyd Patterson, former world heavyweight champion, has been offered a September date in Madison Square Garden to fight either Canadian champion George Chuvalo or Oscar Bonavena of Argentina, it was disclosed today.

Chuvalo, 26, of Toronto, and Bonavena, 24, meet in a 10-round bout in the Garden here June 22.

Harry Markson, managing director of boxing at the Garden, said Garden matchmaker Teddy Trenner made the offer to Patterson Thursday after getting the approval of Chuvalo and Bonavena.

Patterson, 31, only man ever to win and lose the world heavyweight crown twice, hasn't fought since the present champion, Clay, stopped him in 12 rounds last Nov. 22 in Las Vegas, Nev. He last lost the title in 1962 to Sonny Liston, who in turn was dethroned by Clay.

PATTERSON WON BEFORE

A Patterson - Chuvalo meeting would be their second. Patterson won a unanimous decision over the Canadian heavyweight Feb. 1, 1965, before a sellout crowd of 19,100 at Madison Square Garden.

Chuvalo was outpointed by Clay in a bid for the heavyweight crown in Toronto March 29, 1965.

The Bonavena fight will be Chuvalo's second start since his bout with Clay. He knocked out Levi Forte of Miami, Fla., in the second round in Glace Bay, N.S., last month.

Both Chuvalo and Bonavena, the South American champion, are rated among the heaviest punchers in boxing. Chuvalo has knocked out 28 of the 35 men he has beaten, while Bonavena has stopped 17 out of 20 opponents.

Koufax Breezes To 8th Straight Win

Now 11-1

Associated Press Sports Writer

Sandy Koufax, who numbers rolled pitchers among his favorite people, keeps giving them the cold shoulder.

The Los Angeles southpaw breezed to his eighth straight complete - game victory Friday night, subduing San Francisco on four hits as the Dodgers trimmed the Giants 6-1 and climbed past them into first place in the National League race.

Koufax hasn't needed any help from the bullpen since May 8 while leading a Dodger charge from sixth place and overtaking Juan Marichal of the Giants for the major league pitching lead. Koufax now is 11-1 with a 1.40 earned run average. Marichal is 10-2 with a 1.79 ERA.

Last year Koufax completed 27 starts, tops in the league for a left - hander since 1921.

Sandy, however, has the deepest respect for relievers.

They are his biggest argument against the likelihood of a 30-victory season—an achievement he appears to be courting again this season with his best getaway ever.

GIVES HIS REASON

"Those kind of records are all in the past," he has said. "The reason is simple. Relief pitchers are true specialists and you can't blame a manager for going to his bullpen."

Dizzy Dean was the last pitcher to win 30 or more games in a season, Hal Newhouser won 29 in 1944, Robin Roberts won 28 in 1952 and Don Newcombe captured 27 in 1956. Koufax captured 27 in 1963. Koufax was a 25-game winner last season.

He's 10 days ahead of his 1963 pace, having won No. 11 last June 30. He had 10 complete games at that time; this year he has gone the distance in 11 of his 14 starts—including the run of eight that began a month ago Friday.

Elsewhere Friday night, Atlanta Braves ran their winning streak to seven with an 8-5 romp over Pittsburgh Pirates, Houston Astros nipped Chicago Cubs 1-0 in 10 innings, St. Louis Cardinals outscored Philadelphia Phillies 5-4 and New York Mets blanked Cincinnati Reds 5-0.

John Rosebore's two - run homer in the fifth inning gave Koufax all the support he needed as the Dodgers lorded ahead of the Giants by four percentage points.

STRUCKOUT 11

The Giants, hitless until the fifth, scored in the ninth on a walk and singles by Willie Mays and Jim Hart. Koufax struck out 11 for a total of 111 in 108 1-3 innings while beating the Giants for the second time this year.

Bisons Win Over Suns, Chiefs Lose

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons and Jacksonville Suns kept their bullpens hopping, but there was no stopping the torrid International League batting attack by both clubs Friday night.

Both teams used four pitchers as the Bisons cut his Jacksonville 12-8.

Elsewhere, Columbus Jets defeated Syracuse Chiefs 5-1, while Toledo Mud Hens downed Rochester Red Wings 7-4 before losing the second game of a doubleheader 5-4. A game between Toronto Maple Leafs and Richmond Braves was rained out.

Rodgers Leads Buick

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) Phil Rodgers birdied three of the first four holes on the front side and tied Fred Marti and Jim Ferrier for the first round lead in the $100,000 Buick open golf tournament Friday.

Only six others—Kermit Zarley, Julius Boros, Sam Snead, Al Geiberger, Dave Marr and Roger Ginsberg—were able to break par. All had 71s.

Outdoor Tips And Tricks

BY BOB BLAND

The beaver, once an animal held in very high esteem in Ontario, is fast becoming a pest and nuisance to the farmer, woodsman and outdoorsman.

Within 25 miles of Belleville you will find many good trout streams turning to stagnant ponds because of the wandering beaver. He swims and crawls about until he finds a good spot to build a dam with a good water supply and ample saplings for a food supply.

He stops the flow of water by building this dam. When the flow stops in a creek a thick coating of moss covers the bottom, covering up the food supply of the fish living there. Also in back, the floating scum of week-like moss forms on the surface, abutting off the much needed dissolved nitrogen — a must in any good body of water. When all this forms, the water turns a stale from lack of oxygen and the fish either have to move out or die.

It is true these beaver ponds make good duck hunting areas in the fall and many ducks are raised in these places. It might be that Mr. Beaver is helping the duck hunter but he sure does not help the trout fisherman one bunch.

Many acres of good farmland and many acres of bushland are ruined each year by these dams and beaver ponds. The beaver is a protected animal and must not be harmed or dams molested, according to the authorities.

Who is protecting what?

Fish and Game Associations would be doing a good deed if they kept this little nuisance before it is too late and there are no good trout creeks left close to home.

The Belleville harbor with its new clean look, is teeming with pan fish, large perch, crappies and bluegills are being caught by the dozens off both sides of the harbor on worms or s m a l l minnows. Eel and mud cats are also big sheephead and carp are also being caught in numerous quantities around the government docks.

Pickerel and pike are still being caught in East and West Lake and at last Consecon Lake has started to produce some pickerel.

Pike in fair quantities at Carrying Place and Muscote Bay and behind Cow Island in the Bay of Quinte are being caught on Williams' and large minnows.

The Trent River is still one of the hot spots for pickerel, a very dark day all the way to Rice Lake.

Crowe Lake Trout tapered off a little last week but Algonquin Park area is producing and believers are taking limits on every trip.

Speckles have been poor the past couple of weeks in local creeks but in the northern regions some good catches have been reported.

National Football League

Expansion Plans Unchanged

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Football League still plans to go ahead with a 16th team in 1967 in originally outlined before peace came to professional football.

Now Orleans, Cincinnati, Seattle, Portland, Ore., and Phoenix are the leading possibilities, Unless some other cities move into the picture before 1970, four of this quartet could be in the league by that time.

Boston and Houston also made a pitch for an NFL franchise at the May meetings in Washington. Although the peace announcement did not rule out future two-club cities, it was believed that would be the case.

COULD NOT AGREE

The Houston Oilers, unable to agree on terms with Judge Roy Hofheins, principal owner of the Astrodome, played in Rice Stadium last year.

Owner Bud Adams of the Oilers looked to be in charge with that deal. Hofheins urged the NFL to move into the Astrodome during the recent Washington meetings.

Boston presumably will be left to the Patriots, who are hopeful that the recent presentation of a civic group before the NFL will spur the building of a new stadium.

New Orleans is regarded a strong possibility for 1967 along with Cincinnati. The NFL is committed to expanding to 16 clubs by 1967. The American Football League is reported willing to wait until 1968 before adding a 10th team.

When the two leagues start playing regular season interleague games in 1970, there probably will be 26 teams, 14 in each league. This could involve adding an 11th and 12th team in the present AFL and shifting two NFL clubs.

Wrestling

Intruder Swung Tide

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

A slam - bang wrestling feature and the weekly wrestling card before a slim crowd at Memorial Arena last night.

All told, it was a pretty dull evening with action - scheduled appearances by Don Juan in the first preliminary and the main bout saving the show.

The main bout contestants, Bobby Boy Dupree and Billy Cash on the hero team, Terry Garvin and Charlie Fox in the villain role, were even matched with a fall each when the exhibition took place.

Fox and Garvin were using the old two - on - one tactics well known to all tag - team combos, in the ring or beyond a rough time in the third and deciding fall. Referee Keith Tompkins had his hands full trying to count heads when Cash and Dupree decided to take matters into their own hands.

All of a sudden, the Golden One and Billy Boy belted the heavies from corner to corner, hurling them about like so much kitty on a hot tin roof. They each had a head tucked underarm and were lining them up for a noggin-to-noggin session when everybody's favorite, Ike Sate, Don Juan entered the ring.

Fully dressed, he leaped the ropes throwing punches left and right at the astonished cast guys. Tompkins was shoved aside, Juan threw Cash and Dupree out of the ring. In the meantime, the villains regained their poise and gave a helping hand.

The man in white joined the loosed-out grapplers and from the arena floor, raised their hands in sign of victory. Meanwhile the fans gathered near the ring. The inside trio continued to keep the opposition outside with the aid of kicks and tossed a few at several over - daring fans.

Dupree had cleaned up on Fox to take the opening heat while Garvin used knees in the stomach to lay Dupree low for the squalizer.

In the two-of-three semi-final, the swift and acrobatic Tito Montes easily disposed of Montreal's Dave LeDue in two consecutive falls.

In the first bout, Don Juan was disqualified after persuading the referee for trying to restrain him, thus losing the match to Bill Williams.

Juan, obviously headed for a main bout, needs some star attraction help if the local "tradition" fans are going to keep coming back.

Vince Edwards Can Smile Now He Is Free of Casey

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—For the first time in five years, Vince Edwards is not faced with a long season of portraying the stolen surgeon, Ben Casey, on television. He has performed his last lobotomy, and he's glad of it.

Said Edwards of Casey:

"We chose at the outset to play him somber, figuring it would give the character more depth. It seemed to work. But I'm happy to be smiling again."

And why not? Already enriched by Ben Casey, Edwards will collect on re-runs here and abroad for a long time. He also hopes to start his Columbia Pictures contract soon. And he opens this week at New York's Copacabana with a new act.

"I work with four girls and I give the folks some songs and some talk," he said. "No dancing, although I do dazzle 'em with fancy movements.

"It's the first time I've appeared in my own home town, except for playing a bit in High Button Shoes. I did play the Borscht circuit up in the Catskills; that's where I got my start.

"Playing New York is a big thrill. Places like Las Vegas and even here in Los Angeles are more relaxed; the patrons come informally and you don't have to hit them over the head. But in New York you gotta be good."

"A THOUSAND CLOWNS"

Balsam's 'Oscar' Has Him Worried!

Now that Martin Balsam is an "Oscar" winner, he's worried. Until he won the Academy Award for Best Supporting Actor for his performance in "A Thousand Clowns", opening Sunday at the Park Theatre for a four day engagement only, Martin Balsam, Artist, relaxed. Balsam had a highly successful and secure career as one of Hollywood's best-known and best identifiable actors. In demand by almost every producer and director, he had his pick of the juiciest parts and had a hell playing every kind of character in every kind of story. In recent years, however, Balsam's name has become as familiar as his face. Movies, motion picture and television screen, and he has grown increasingly concerned about being typed. The Academy Award, he feels, will restrict him to "important" role that will be continually measured against his performance as Jason Robard's brother in "A Thousand Clowns." Other actors — and his fans — consider this a "handicap" much to be envied.

Bronx born Balsam set his sights on acting early in life. He performed in every school play he could, joined community centre drama groups, played in revue skits and "did it cheap." His attended acting classes at the New School for Social Research and acted in summer stock, making his Broadway debut in "Ghost for Sale". A solid five year run followed on Broadway. Way off — China, in fact! With the Air Force. Upon his discharge from the service Balsam resumed his acting career in the then new medium of television, where he soon found himself in great demand. His success led to increasingly important roles on the Broadway stage and in films. His first big break came when he played Edward G. Robinson's brother-in-law in "Middle of the Night", repeating the same role later in the film. Recognition led to featured roles in other movies, including "On The Waterfront", "Time Limit," "Marjorie Morningstar," "Twelve Angry Men," "Psycho," "Cape Fear," "Breakfast at Tiffany's," "Seven Days in May" and "The Carpetbaggers."

Canadian Cyclist Injured

KEIGHLEY, England (CP)— Montreal bicycle racer Pierre Dandre, 27, was in satisfactory condition in hospital Friday night after suffering a broken collar bone in a pile-up of 39 riders on the second-last lap of the 35-day Tour of Britain.

Dandre was one of four riders injured on a steep, twisting descent of the Penigne Mountains in northern England, 40 miles northwest of Leeds. Shielding point of the day's stage.

The racers were travelling at 30 miles an hour down the steep road when they missed a corner and plunged down a slope.

The three remaining Canadians in the race finished the day's run. Gary De Jong, of Calgary, was involved in the spill, was the best of them at 30th, seven minutes and 36 seconds behind Yuri Timochenko of Russia who did the 85-mile stage in 4:33:10.

Alan Hickey of Toronto was 47th and Dominico Muro of Montreal 48th.

The Canadian team has no hope of moving out of last place in the 1,500-mile race, which winds up today in Blackpool where it started.

Crothers Runs at San Diego

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)— Ron Clarke of Australia will try to add the 5,000-metre title to his list of world records at the San Diego Invitational track meet Saturday.

Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., undefeated in major competition in the half-mile last year, tops the entries in that event.

Pat Clarke, 29, holds world records for two miles, three miles, six miles, 10,000 metres and the one-hour run.

Rocky Marciano

Says Boxing Needs Czar

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Boxing is a doomed sport in the United States unless a boxing czar is appointed in the near future, Rocky Marciano, former heavyweight champion of the world, said Friday night.

"I know of at least three states that will abolish the sport unless a czar is appointed," Marciano told an international sports celebrity dinner.

"You just have to look at our last two world title fights to see that boxing is dying in the United States.

"I had to go to Toronto to see one fight, I went to England to see the last one, and if I want to see the next championship fight, I'll have to go to Germany.

The former boxer said the present world heavyweight champion, Cassius Clay, is probably one of the fastest heavyweight champions of all time. But he criticized Clay on other grounds.

"Clay should be ready to fight any time in the ring, and he should fight any time his contract says he has. I call it my opinion of the present champion.

"George Chuvalo is probably the strongest fighter of all time and the most rugged of all time; and the second Clay-Sonny Liston fight was the biggest farce of all time."

Winner Armbro Flight

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—Canadian mare Armbro Flight, queen of the trotters, proved her class and equaled it capturing the $25,000 Yankey Trot at Roosevelt Raceway Friday night.

The four-year-old daughter of Star's Pride-Helicopter, owned by the Armstrong brothers of Brampton, Ont., stopped the mile in 2:01 1-5, breaking the track standard for a four-year-old mare previously held by Elma at 2:02 4-5.

With Joe O'Brien of Alberton, P.E.I., in the sulky, Armbro Flight took the lead approaching the three-quarter-mile mark and moved on to win by three lengths going away over Big John, who took the place position by a length and a half over Noble Victory.

Armbro Flight, solid favorite in the betting with the crowd of 34,014, paid off at $2.80 to win and $2.40 to place. Big John was $8 to place. There was no show betting in the race with betting the 180th anniversary of betting in the United States.

In winning $12,500 Armbro Flight jacked her lifetime earnings to $425,287.

Will Land Cuban Athletes

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Some 320 Cuban athletes will be landed here this morning in time to participate in the Central American and Caribbean Games, which open in the afternoon in this U.S. territory.

Gen. Jose Clark Flores, president of the Mexican Olympic Committee, said the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Dallas will bring the Cubans ashore from the cargo ship Covadonga, which arrived off San Juan Friday morning.

He said the Cubans decided to spend the night on the freighter, because of poor weather, and to avoid delays from efforts to get visas. Visas were provided by the games' organizing committee. The vessel is six miles offshore, in international waters.

The U.S. state department denied the team direct travel to Puerto Rico on the grounds that the Castro government is not receiving visas from other Latin countries for Americans in Cuba back to the U.S.

Brings Italian Team Here

TORONTO (CP) — Elio Masiello, 37, part owner of Toronto Roma of the Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League, said Friday he has completed arrangements to bring Bologna, one of Italy's leading soccer teams, to Toronto for an exhibition game Wednesday against Roma.

Masiello originally hoped to have Bologna play Victoria Sesquicentennial Portugal at Varsity Stadium but said the cost was prohibitive.

The sponsors of Bologna wanted $25,000. The Portugal team wanted $10,000 and the Ontario Soccer Association, $5,000. he said. That left the expense of renting the stadium made it impossible for the two teams to appear.

CRAIG RETURNS

Successful Living

Mother's Unladylike Behavior Upsetting

DEAR DORIS: My mother is older than most mothers — and she sure looks it. Her hair is salt and pepper and she wears no make-up. She is a secretary. We have an electric furnace but she insists on a wood zenex right in the kitchen. How can an intelligent person like her be so old-fashioned?

This morning in church she coughed continuously without once covering her mouth. Then she noisily cleared her throat. Why can't she be feminine like other mothers? I'm so ashamed of her I almost cried right out in church.

Is it wrong for a 15-year-old to notice these things? Also I say to make my mother realize that she mustn't do such things? — BOTHERED.

P.S.: I am not sorry we mother. Your views are so young and so do you look young.

* * *

DEAR BOTHERED: Can't say, I blame you. Little noisy habits, an uncovered mouth, — they aren't exactly ladylike, and even a little lipstick, lightly applied, could make a difference.

But 52 is not old! Your mother is showing pep and intelligence if she carries a job as well as raising a family. I doubt whether it occurs to her that her cough jars others.

Do four things: (1) Start admiring her good points and say so to her. (2) Shop for a nearly transparent lipstick and watch for a gift of it. (3) Learn all you can about make-up and grooming, and set a good example. (4) Show her this column.

P.S.: I am older than your mother. Keep her and prize her.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: What do you think of a woman who talks about people who were once her main help? She was in hospital and church members took in her children. One would do her washing, another her housecleaning. All the thanks they ever got was complaints.

Now she has moved. She goes around running down the people where she came from; says the church never helped her, etc. How can this second group be told that her statements are false, and that she is only out for their sympathy and possession? — MARIE.

* * *

DEAR MARIE: Your unrelated, backbiting friend is more to be pitied than punished. Must be a terribly unhappy person.

Why spend another minute on thinking about her? If her cold water takes fewer people in her neighborhood beds, you'll be the loser. Her new neighbors will get her number all too soon.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: My vision is 20-60. I have had failures with my eyes since about grade five which is three years ago. I told my father about it and he said I was making in bad too much.

He showed me how to exercise my eyes. My parents think that it isn't necessary to go to an eye specialist. What shall I do? — FOURTEEN.

* * *

DEAR FOURTEEN: No ambient of eye exercise can change the curve of your eyeball; which is the way nature made it. An eye specialist is your answer; not a letter to anybody.

Get the help the 20th century can give you and get your grades.

* * *

(Doris knows Canadian resources and can guide you to the help you need. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Mets Buy Giants' Bob Shaw

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Mets purchased right - handed pitcher Bob Shaw from National League San Francisco Giants Friday and manager Wes Westrum immediately named him to a regular starter.

It was a straight purchase but the price was not disclosed. The Mets spokesman said it was "well over the waiver price" of $20,000."

Shaw who will be 33 late this month, has been used both as a starter and in relief this year and had a 1-2 record in 13 games with the Giants.

Napanee Council Seeks Police Investigation

NAPANEE — Because the Napanee Town council voted unanimously to ask for an investigation of its police department does not mean it even suspects irregularities of any sort by any member of that department, Mayor Lorne A. Smart emphasized.

"It just means that both the council and Police Chief Bean and the men on his force, want help in improving the department in any possible way," he said. "The men themselves are happy that this step has been taken."

At present the police department is controlled by the town council. Should a police commission be set up, control will be in the hands of three men, the county judge, a magistrate, and one member of the council, usually the mayor. The investigation brought in the establishment of such a commission.

This step has been under considerations for a year, and in April council members visited Toronto and met with the Ontario Police Commission, asking for advice regarding bettering the Napanee department. The motion brought in by Deputy-Reeve W. R. Doughs, chairman of the police committee, is the outcome of that meeting.

Should the Ontario Police Commission not recommend the setting up of a local commission, it will at least make recommendations to help both the council and the department function more efficiently, Mayor Smart said. "We just want someone who knows, to look at things objectively," he concluded.

Deseronto's Park Project Shaping Up

DESERONTO — The rapid development of Deseronto's Centennial Park is the story of what wonders can be accomplished in a short time when everybody in a community gets behind a project and keeps it rolling.

Tuesday evening Chairman Albert Marks proposed that before the formal meeting opened the members should visit the site to see what had been accomplished in two weeks, and have the person responsible for each part of the project tell what he had done and what he proposed to do with the committee support. With the return to the town hall at 8.16 p.m. the wheels got into motion.

William Schell brought in a report regarding financial assistance which under certain conditions the committee could expect. Grants of 25 per cent of the total cost from the Department of Agriculture, and of 33 per cent from the Ontario Municipal Recreation Association of the cost of a swimming instructor and of 25 per cent of the cost of providing a playground instructor can be obtained eventually once organizations are set up.

Mr. Schell was requested to draw up a resolution to be presented to the Town Council to recommend that swimming instructors and playground supervisors be hired for the summer months, and advising the council that Centennial Parks Committee would pay for sending two persons to camp in June to take instructions.

DOCK WORK BEGUN

Plans for the washrooms will be ready for the next meeting, and tenders called for their construction. Preliminary work has already begun on the dock to be built near the train section, and Ralph Lawlor and Mr. Schell will give William Higgins a hand in ironing out some problems.

Two flood lights are already installed, and others will be ordered at the next meeting. The water supply will be considered further then, also. Reports from two of the springs were not favorable, but the third may be blasted and more samplings be taken.

The question of vandalism which plagues every parks committee is to be considered before it starts. A reward will be offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person damaging the park itself or its equipment. Also, the women on the committee were asked to draft a handbill to be distributed to all homes asking for the cooperation of parents in seeing that no damage will be done.

The White Elephant Store, suggested at the meeting only two weeks before, was to open Thursday, the committee learned from Mrs. Charles Griffiths, whose idea it was. Lifesaving equipment was offered by the Red Cross Society.

The committee is taking steps to avail itself of the top soil which will be stripped off Pearl St., a new street which is to be opened up soon. Also, the suggestion was made that gravel and sand might be available from the former CNR embankment which the town now owns.

It is hoped that a representative of the Community Program Division of the Department of Education will attend the meeting of Centennial Park Committee on June 21.

Card Party Will Send Pupils on Trip

DESERONTO — The bridge and euchre party organized by Principal Peter Roach and held at the Public School Wednesday was a success. Over $100 will be added to the fund being raised to give the graduating class a banquet and a trip at the close of the school year. The banquet will be held the evening of June 28, and the following day the 40 pupils and their teachers will tour Ottawa. Tentative plans for make the trip to Toronto have been changed this week.

It is expected that the school board will pay part of the expenses, but Wednesday's party was one way in which the children could help themselves by pushing ticket sales.

Mrs. Donald Reid and a committee of other mothers of the graduating class were in charge of refreshments and other practical details of the party.

In euchre, the prize winners were: ladies' Mrs. Gilbert and Mrs. Wright, both of Napanee. Two Deseronto men, Donald Reid and Tom Jackson were first and second for the men. The lone hand prize went to Mrs. Gilbert, and Bill Smith won the low. In bridge, Mrs. Ray Fowler and Mrs. May Stacey both of Napanee, were the winners. Mrs. Charles Gray of Deseronto won the low prize for bridge. The door prize went to Mrs. Jim Gaylord.

Five girls of the graduating class made themselves busy in various ways, including helping to serve refreshments. They were, Edith Law, Carolyn Carson, Ann Bond, Gail Fraser, and Brenda Graham.

The students are now busy writing their final examinations. June 17 is orientation day for them, when a bus will take them to Napanee to become acquainted with the Napanee District Secondary School, which most of them will attend next year.

CNE Expansion Renovation Plan Is Announced

TORONTO (CP)—A proposed $12,500,000 expansion and renovation plan for Toronto's Canadian National Exhibition area was announced Friday by the CNE Association.

The plan was contained in a 900-page report to the CNE directors by Dominion Consultants Associates Ltd.

The plan calls for expansion of the CNE grounds east to Bathurst Street, with demolition of Maple Leaf Stadium. Old Fort York would be moved from its present position in a "historic site" area near the waterfront.

New buildings would include a hotel on the stadium site, a $1,000,000 Olympic swimming pool, a new exhibition and convention building, and a $2,000,000 parking garage.

The consulting firm also told directors that although the CNE has the largest attendance records of any annual North American fair, its popularity is slipping because it's slanted too much toward Ontario.

Seventy-eight per cent of the exhibitors in the past came from a radius of 40 miles of Toronto. Eight per cent came from other provinces and 12 per cent came from elsewhere in Ontario.

EXHIBITS NOISY

Good exhibits have been in the minority, while most have been noisy without presenting a message, the consultants said.

Limited opening on Sundays, free shows, a longer exhibition period and improved content of exhibits may be necessary to boost the CNE's popularity and attendance, they said.

Eighty per cent of the exhibition's visitors came from communities within 60 miles of Metropolitan Toronto while only six per cent came from the United States. The average visitor spends $3.70 a day and six hours touring the grounds. The most popular attraction is the midway.

There were 2,962,000 visitors at the two-week exhibition last August and early September. The consultants predicted more than 4,000,000 visitors a year within 10 years.

BUS BURNS

TORONTO (CP)—A bus filled with school children caught fire on the Gardiner Expressway Friday, but no one was injured. The fire is believed to have started from a seized brake.

Police List 81 Presumed Dead In Downpour

Violent Street Fighting

CHICAGO (AP) — Violent street fighting erupted in a predominantly Puerto Rican neighborhood on Chicago's north side Sunday night after a policeman shot a Puerto Rican youth he said pulled a gun on him.

The surging, rock - throwing mobs numbered more than 1,000, police said.

The rioters tipped a police car on its side and burned it. Vandalism on many more were broken by rocks and buried pop bottles. Fire was started in another police car, but quickly extinguished.

By midnight at least two dozen persons had been injured and more than 20 jailed.

Police were pelted with rocks, bottles and debris as they tried to disperse the crowds in a 10-square-block area.

Sporadic gunfire could be heard and looting was reported in several shops.

STARTED IN ALLEY

Patrolman Thomas Munyon, 25, the officer who shot the youth, described the incident:

"My partner and I went into this alley to break up a fight . . . this guy started to pull a gun from under his shirt and I shot him. There were about 30 or 15 persons in the alley . . . so my partner and I put the wounded man into a car and got out of there."

The wounded man was identified as Cruz Arcelis, 20.

Munyon said he fired four times and didn't know how many shots hit Arcelis.

After the incident aroused crowds poured into the streets.

A police dog bit 20-year-old Juan Mejias, who was hoisted to the shoulders of friends, displayed to the crowd and then taken to a nearby hospital.

Rocks and bottles began to fall near policemen directing traffic away from the area.

PLEAD WITH CROWDS

Spanish-speaking police, youth workers and Roman Catholic priests used bullhorns to plead with the crowds to leave. They were ignored or shouted down.

A rock smashed a squad car windshield and screaming youths moved toward two nearby police cars. They smashed windows and tore the aerial off one, then moved to the other chanting.

The car was rocked back and forth, then turned on its side. Almost immediately flames shot from the gas tank and the car was quickly enveloped in fire.

Firemen, arriving to fight the flames, were pelted with stones as they wrestled with hoses among the crowds.

Police moved back into the area and charged the crowds.

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Normal activity in this teeming British colony came to a virtual standstill today amid warnings that a freak death-dealing downpour which broke out during the weekend might hit again.

The casualty toll mounted as rescue workers, helped by British troops, continued mopping up operations under an overcast and drizzling sky.

Latest police figures listed 44 dead, 15 presumed dead and 28 missing. Unofficial estimates put the toll higher.

Dozens were injured, and more than 2,500 persons lost their homes or had to be evacuated to safer ground.

The rainstorm, worst in the colony's history, turned hill streams into rushing torrents, swept rocks and boulders against shanty huts and flimsy wooden houses on the hillside.

BURIED ALIVE

Many people were buried alive in landslides or house collapses. Others were swept to their death in the swollen streams.

Property damage was estimated in millions of dollars as the rains battered city-centre tenement flats, cut off telephone communications and paralyzed traffic.

The British section of the railway to Canton, China, was blocked in several places and trains could no longer run to the border town of Lowu.

Hong Kong Island, with its hilly terrain, suffered more damage than the Kowloon mainland, where most of the colony's 4,000,000 population live.

Fifteen inches of rain fell in 18 hours Sunday.

At the height of the deluge, floodwaters tossed cars about the docks. Many streets were flooded knee-deep.

BROADCAST WARNINGS

Warnings to remain indoors were broadcast, and regularly over the colony's radio network. Schools closed for the day and many business offices were not open.

The city hall fronting the harbor was flooded and had to cancel all business for this week.

Among bodies recovered so far were those of a British boy and two journalists who worked for the English-language South China Morning Post.

Police believed the boy's body, found in the harbor, was that of 11-year-old Tommy Keehan, son of a British Army sergeant. The boy was swept away in a torrent in Kowloon.

The two journalists, a South African and an Australian, were believed to be returning home from work in a car when they were caught in the rains. Their bodies were found on a hillside.

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said Sunday a crippling economic crisis has thrust India into its most crucial period since independence 19 years ago.

May Sell Wheat to Russia

MOSCOW (CP)—A six-member Canadian trade delegation arrived here during the weekend and there was immediate speculation another wheat sale to the Soviet Union may be in prospect.

One of the members of the delegation is William McNamara, chief commissioner, of the Canadian wheat board. He and Commissioner Gerald Vogel arrived Sunday night. The rest of the delegation arrived Saturday night.

McNamara said a new wheat agreement is "not on the agenda at all." However, asked whether the wheat board is hopeful of selling wheat to Russia again this year he replied: "Yes, we have good hope. Western farmers are always hopeful of doing business."

Willard Pybus, director of the trade department's office of trade relations and head of the delegation, did not discourage speculation.

Asked whether McNamara's inclusion in the visiting group indicated a wheat deal might be in the offing, Pybus noted that the chief commissioner has in the past had "relations with the U.S.S.R. in the wheat area."

McNamara, he said, has "continuing interest" in development of Canadian wheat sales to the Soviet Union.

Another factor indicating that an agreement may be under negotiation is the expected visit here of Trade Minister Winters before the end of the week.

However, Winters may be coming simply to sign a new five-all trade agreement which the delegation, scheduled to stay in Moscow a week or more, is to work out with Soviet officials.

The agreement would renew the three year pact that expired in April providing most-favored - nation treatment in trade between the two countries.

Pybus said the delegation's purpose here is "normality" in discuss renewal of the trade agreement.

Pybus refused to be pinned down regarding prospects of a new wheat contract to replace last year's, under which Canada sold the Soviet Union $400,000,000 worth.

It was "probably true" that the possibility of a wheat sale could be excluded, but this would depend on a number of factors, including Soviet requirements and the size of this year's crop.

It is too early yet to say what kind of crop the U.S.S.R. will have this year, however, qualified observers say the U.S.S.R. is now in the position of requiring not just moderate exceptionally good crops to meet the growing domestic requirements and satisfy its commitments to other Communist countries.

They recall that two years ago the U.S.S.R. had a good crop but still ended up buying a considerable quantity of wheat on the world market, including more than 1,400,000,000 worth from Canada.

Pearson Plans Personal Bid To Settle Strike of Dockers

AFTER ALL-NIGHT BARGAINING SESSION — Government cabinet ministers appear grim-faced after all-night meeting between government, labor and management in the bitter longshoremen's strike of three Quebec ports. The meetings, held in the West Block of the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa, broke up shortly after 5 a.m. Sunday. Left to right are Labor Minister Nicholson, Privy Council President Favreau and Transport Minister Pickersgill. (CP Wirephoto)

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson will launch a personal mediation effort in a last-ditch bid to work out a settlement of the crippling Quebec longshoremen's strike, a reliable informant said today.

Pearson and a group of his top ministers met again today to discuss the government's next move in efforts to end the strike, now in its 36th day.

Despite mounting speculation that legislation will be used to force a reopening of the Montreal, Trois Rivieres and Quebec City ports, informants said such action is not imminent.

One high - level source said the government had not yet abandoned hope that a voluntary settlement would be reached.

Introduction of legislation requires 48 hours' notice and there was no mention of such legislation on the Commons notice paper distributed to MPs this morning.

This notice rule could only be waived by unanimous consent of the House and such consent is unlikely for a compulsory arbitration bill.

AWAIT FINAL REPORT

Legislative action also would have to await a final report from the federal mediator, Judge Rene Lippe. He returned to Montreal Sunday after an unsuccessful mediation effort here and was believed to be coming back to Ottawa today.

It is expected that Judge Lippe's report would contain recommendations on which compulsory arbitration could be based. But a report of this nature would only be filed if the various parties had confirmed that all chances of a voluntary settlement had vanished.

Mr. Pearson flies to Montreal when he returned Sunday night from a weekend trip to the United States to announce the cabinet's labor committee to his home for a full rundown on the weekend negotiations that broke down shortly after dawn Sunday.

One informant said a full cabinet session would be called before any final decision was made on legislative action and added that it was expected today.

At 12:30 p.m. there still had been no formal word of a cabinet meeting. Labor Minister Marcel Pepin, Works Minister Martineau and Immigration Minister Marchand had joined up to join the committee-level talks in Mr. Pearson's office.

Mr. Pearson's cabinet attended the 18-hour negotiations which started shortly before 3 p.m. Saturday when reports the Canadian Longshoremen's Union (CLC) and the Quebec Federation of Labor were close to agreement before

Teams Go Into Cotton Fields To Urge Negroes to Register

ENID, Miss. (AP)—Teams of Negroes fan out from the Meredith march into cotton plantations today to push voter registration among Negro workers in the fields.

"I'm sure we will meet with some opposition in view of the publicity on the Meredith march," said Charles Horwitz, a white staff worker for the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party. "But we will go anyway."

The main body of marchers will be on U.S. 51 again with a goal of making 20 miles to Greenada by nightfall, the largest jump so far.

March leaders are facing increasing difficulty in getting campsites. At Grenada, homes of Negroes will be open to the procession.

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., who rejoined the procession briefly Sunday, said they should be in Jackson—the state capital and their goal—by June 26. Their number "will rival the Alabama pilgrimage from Selma to Montgomery last year," King predicted. The Selma march ended with 25,000 pouring into Montgomery.

Civil rights groups around the U.S. held meetings and sympathetic marches Sunday in support of the Meredith march and to commemorate the third anniversary of the death of Medgar W. Evers, a state official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People who was shot by a sniper outside his home in Jackson.

The demonstrations generally were small, quiet, and without incidents.

Director Roy Wilkins of the NAACP told 1,000 Negroes at Jackson: "Don't misunderstand, I want you to fight every step of the way for what is due you. Only remember, when we win—and we will—we and the white people must live together."

In Jackson, the crowd retraced the 30-block route of Evers' funeral cortege. In 1963, the end of the funeral turned into a bloody affair as Negro youths turned on police. There were only isolated incidents Sunday.

REPORTS FLOODS

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Aderba River in the Caucasus burst its banks and "turned into a huge howling torrent," flooding two towns, the Soviet news agency Tass reported Monday. Tass said the torrent damaged buildings in Divnomorsk and Gelendzhik—on the Black Sea coast—tore down a bridge and washed away sections of road. No deaths were reported.

U.S. Navy Pilot Bags 13th MiG

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

SAIGON (AP)—A U.S. Navy pilot shot down the 13th MiG of the Viet Nam war and narrowly missed getting another in an air battle southwest of Hanoi, the American spokesman reported today.

Four F-8 Crusader jets from the U.S. carrier Hancock encountered four of the Soviet-designed planes outside the key North Vietnamese port, the spokesman said.

In the jungled central highlands of South Viet Nam, U.S. paratroops closed in on remnants of a North Vietnamese regiment on a mountainside after a massive, pinpoint attack on the position by high-flying B-52s from Guam.

52 Killed As Trains Collide

BOMBAY (Reuters) — Two packed rush - hour trains smashed head-on into each other here today, killing at least 52 persons and severely injuring 200.

The collision, near Matunga Station in north Bombay, came at the height of the morning rush to work.

Sixty-four persons had minor injuries.

The trains collided near a level crossing as the northbound train for Thana, 30 miles from Bombay, was being diverted from one track to another.

Cause of the crash was not known. Official said an enquiry would be started later today or Tuesday.

Local rail manager Ratan Lal said there were two theories—failure of an electrical or mechanical device or an error of human judgment.

ASKS FOR PRAYERS

LOURDES, France (Reuters) Pope Paul Sunday asked about 13,000 soldiers from 16 countries gathered here in pilgrimage to pray for those suffering from war and hunger.

British Storekeepers Urge Start of Food Rationing

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain's storekeepers today urged the government to start food rationing immediately to stop prices spiralling as the effects of the national seamen's strike begin hitting supplies.

Thomas Lynch, president of the 12,000-member National Federation of Small Shopkeepers, said at the union's annual conference that, as good stocks are depleted, small grocers could be held to ransom by wholesalers.

"Now is the time for the government to put into effect immediately its emergency powers, including food rationing and price-pegging," he said.

Meanwhile, stevedores in the world's biggest ports have voted to support the strikers by refusing to handle any British ship blacklisted by the National Union of Seamen.

Up to now, all British ships entering port and held there by the four-week-old strike have been unloaded normally. But today's decision could mean pellishable cargoes being left to rot in the holds.

Seamen's leaders meantime made final preparations for a meeting with the Trades Union Congress, which groups Britain's labor organizations, to discuss a plan for settling the strike.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Unsettled weather will persist today and Tuesday through the upper Great Lakes. Slightly cooler temperatures and partly cloudy skies are forecast for Tuesday over the lower Great Lakes area.

Pearson in Talks Critical Of U.S. Policy Toward NATO

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (CP)—His attention never far from labor strife at home, Prime Minister Pearson accepted honors and made speeches in Harvard and Massachusetts during the weekend.

The prime minister was kept constantly advised on Ottawa's talks in the Montreal longshoremen's strike. He considered flying back to Ottawa Saturday night and again Sunday morning but opted a hand.

In the end, subjected all engagements and returned as scheduled Sunday evening. He went straight from the Ottawa airport to a meeting with a cabinet committee on the dispute.

Mr. Pearson delivered a speech Saturday night in Springfield, Ill., critical of United States policy toward NATO.

He expressed sympathy with the aspirations of French President de Gaulle to shrug off U.S. domination of the alliance.

The address to the Federal Union Inc., followed within days the NATO foreign ministers' meeting in Brussels, where Canada took a position against the U.S. British demand for removal of the NATO council headquarters from Paris.

The prime minister said he did not approve France's decision to withdraw from the NATO defence organization. But he added:

"France is not, tax-not been, and will not be satisfied with an Atlantic organization, or an Atlantic Alliance of independent states, dominated by America. France, and not only France, feels that continental Europe is now strong enough—in large part because of the generous assistance of the U.S. — to be given its rightful share in the control of the policies of the Alliance.

"While France is not alone in this feeling, only de Gaulle has translated it into policy and action."

Canada long ago had asked, with little effect, for a reassessment of NATO to develop common, unifying political institutions providing collective foreign and economic policies.

To call at General de Gaulle, because he is demanding for France a position in the Atlantic Alliance equal to that of Great Britain and somewhat closer to that of the U.S., is to show a dangerous misunderstanding of the situation."

The forward march of NATO must be Atlantic in character, not merely European or North American. It must provide for Lawn bowling is in full swing around the district and some interesting tournaments have taken place. In some instances rain or threatened showers have kept the attendance down but generally the tourneys have been well patronized. On Wednesday at Brighton ten men's doubles rinks took part in a tournament and Fred Thorne and Sam Neilly of the host club were winners. Mr. Thorne an ardent bowler, has been in western Ontario for some years but has moved back to his native heath and will be a welcome addition to the Brighton Club. Lloyd Taylor and Charles Wickens of Campbellford won the two-game high while Ernie Lord and Charles Young, also of the host club won the one-game high count. Only one rink from Belleville, Claude Tice and "Ab" Wonnacott, was on hand but failed to make the money circuit.

On Saturday at the local greens the Belleville Club held a mixed rinks tournament and it was voted a fine success. Rink competition has gone into the discard in recent years but it is enjoying a welcome revival. There seems to be more companionship and fellowship in rink competition than in doubles and trebles. It is more relaxing game and gives more time for visiting with out-of-town bowlers. There were 14 rinks in competition on Saturday and a local rink of Mrs. Marg Watkin, Carl Fisher, Mrs. Millie Wright and Bill Wright as skip won the tournament. A Trenton rink of Mrs. Kay Pulford, Mr. and Mrs. Goldie Fitzgibbon with Bill Fuller as skip was in second place. The two-game high count was won by a rink of Mrs. Anne Avery, Bob Semple, Mrs. Lil Mascaro with W. R. "Skip" Vanderwoort as skip while the one-game high count was won by a Trenton rink of Mrs. Pearl Frost, Ossie Newton, Mrs. Pearl Carr and Clayton McClelland. The women's section of the club served light refreshments during the day.

Due to the rain on Thursday there was no bowling in the women's league but the members enjoyed an afternoon of bridge with Mrs. Laura Hyde winner of the special prize, Mrs. Pearl Legault and Mrs. Dorothy Price were the tea hostesses. The first tournament of the year on June 21st when a doubles tourney will be staged.

On Wednesday the district chairman's tournament will be held on the local greens. This is a men's doubles competition and the money derived from the tourney is used for expenses in publishing the schedules and other incidentals. This is a tournament that should be patronized by every club in the district. It is hoped to see one of the largest entries in years will be on hand. The draw will begin at one - thirty and three fifteen-end games will be played. Suitable prizes will be given to the winners.

Woman Killed In Accident Near Golf Club

A Glen Miller woman died Saturday in Belleville General Hospital of injuries sustained that afternoon in an accident on Highway 2 west of the Bay of Quinte Golf Club.

Dead is Mrs. Vlasta Savara, in her fifties, who was struck by a 1962 model car driven by Robert Lake of Manitoba as she was crossing the highway to her daughter's home.

Lake, attempting to avoid Mrs. Savara, smashed head-on into a second car driven by James Lassder of Exeter, Ont.

Three persons who were travelling in Lassder's 1966 car were taken to Belleville General Hospital and treated for minor injuries before being released.

The accident occurred about 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Canoe Racing Club Plans Shipwrecked

The hopes of forming a Belleville canoe racing club were dashed on the harbor rocks here Saturday.

Only a dozen persons turned out to view films and to watch demonstrations in the Belleville Harbor, off Victoria Park.

The demonstrations were arranged by the Belleville Recreation Committee through the Canadian Canoe Racing Association.

Assistant recreation director, Norm Carter, said: "The films and demonstrations were excellent but there was very little interest. I am afraid we will have to forget about forming a club here."

While only the dozen local people showed up, some 45 persons from Rideau, Gananoque, Cataraqui and Carleton Place clubs brought boats and other equipment for the demonstrations.

Had sufficient interest been shown, intentions were to leave equipment here to help get a Belleville club started. No equipment was left, due both to the lack of interest and to the fact that no suitable place could be obtained to keep the canoes.

GENERAL VIEW of the air show sees big Yukon and Search and Rescue plane trundling down the tarmac preparatory to taking it for the flypast. In the foreground (nearest camera) is the Tudor trainer, new "side-by-side" jet trainer being used by the airforce.

BIG YUKON TRANSPORT was focal point of interest for most people attending Saturday's Armed Forces Day show at Trenton RCAF. There was a continuous lineup all afternoon as visitors waited to inspect the big transport aircraft.

Thousands Attracted to Armed Forces Day

In spite of a cool breeze that whipped across the tarmac at Canadian Forces Base Trenton, Saturday, the Armed Forces Day open house attracted thousands of visitors and for most of them, the opportunity to inspect aircraft on display proved too good a chance to miss. Officially the base was open to the public for four hours and during that time, lines of spectators never seemed to diminish as visitors waited patiently for their turn to explore the inside of aircraft many of them had seen previously but never at ground level.

An interesting air show also caught the fancy of the large crowd. Twice during the afternoon, the show was viewed by rows of observers who were lined up two and three deep along a fence erected to restrain the eager but orderly public.

The No. 6 Repair Depot Brass and Reed Band combined with the 400 Auxiliary Pipe Band from Toronto, performed twice during the day and there were static displays that drew interested groups of visitors. A World War II Spitfire proved an extremely popular gathering point.

A well planned and executed stunt failed to come off as expected following the air show. All but a few spectators had moved off to other attractions when Flight Lieutenant John L. Kite of Belleville, posing as an elderly woman, who had accepted a courtesy flight in a light aircraft, did his stuff.

OLD LADY TAKES OFF

The pilot had just seated the "lady" in the aircraft and clapped back to talk with a member of the groundcrew, when the engine roared into life and the plane lurched across the grass and into the air in a wavering, wobbly take-off. With the pilot in pursuit, a voice on the public address system issued a stream of instructions to the airborne "grandmother".

A series of erratic aerial manoeuvres, designed to astound the crowd, went unnoticed by most. Finally, after coaching by the commentator, the aircraft was brought back to earth.

One of the features of the air show was a realistic demonstration by members of the 1st Battalion, Canadian Guards, who showed the procedure taken on a peace-keeping mission in a hostile area. The Platoon was airlifted to the attack area by a CH-113 Labrador Helicopter and quickly subdued an "attack by insurgents", rounding up prisoners and hustling aboard their aircraft for a fast trip out of the trouble zone.

Members of the RCAF Parachute team parachuted from an Otter aircraft during the show and the short take-off and landing capabilities of the Canadian designed and built deHavilland Caribou transport were demonstrated. To put the finishing touches to the display, a flypast by a Yukon Turbo-prop Transport of the Air Transport Command's Husky Squadron and a Turbojet Tutor Trainer took place. The Tutor has a total wing span just half the length of the Yukon's tail plane.

PLANE VANTAGE POINT is used by these young lads to better see the air show. Only a very few of the once popular Sabre jets are now used by the RCAF, most of them being in "storage" at Mountain View.

First Canadian Guards Parade for Picton Crowd

PICTON (Staff) — Picton's Armed Forces Day program started Saturday afternoon with the inspection of a 80-man guard of honor by Mayor H. J. McFarland. The troops were drawn up in front of the Main Street Armories, former home of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, where the Mayor, accompanied by the Commanding Officer of the First Battalion Canadian Guards, Lt. Col. J. G. W. Haynes, took the salute.

The troops, following the inspection, paraded down Picton's Main Street to the fair grounds where the balance of the Armed Forces Day exercises were performed. The exciting program provided much enjoyment for the young and old alike and many interesting displays were open to the public. Two RCAF helicopters arrived about 2.30, along with about 30 troops of the 1st Canadian Guards. The troops carried the latest in automatic weapons and demonstrated simulated battle tactics. The public was also allowed to inspect the 'copters after they landed.

Following demonstrations of army techniques in the field by the 1st. Bn. Corps of Drums performed a colorful retreat ceremony.

In fact the 36 cubic inch class of the race was a double win for the Publow family. George's brother Charles of Ottawa placed second. First place prize money was $300 with $150 going to the second place man. Both the Publow brothers also received plaques.

After Expo–What Then?

Winnipeg Mayor Stephen Juba's warning that Canadian political leaders must move to forestall an economic recession before 1970 is one of the most timely and significant statements of any public figure in recent times.

Mr. Juba told the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities meeting in Vancouver that the federal government has provided economic incentives for centennial year projects, but these are only temporary. "Everything is geared up for 1967, but what happens a year or two after that?" the mayor asked.

"As far as free enterprise goes, gentlemen, I want to warn you now. You are going to find yourselves in an economic slump."

Mayor Juba could not have put in clearer perspective this shadow which even now is (or should be) haunting government economists.

Some letdown is bound to occur following Expo 67 and the celebrations across Canada. With foresight and proper planning now, however, it should be possible to avoid a serious slump.

The danger is that with so much of the country's energies being directed toward fulfilment of this vast undertaking, there is nothing else on the horizon of other than routine significance.

Thousands of Canadians are engaged in the Expo project alone. Administrators, office staff, professional men and women, construction workers, greenskeeps in many spheres all have their sights on 1967.

When it is all over, what then? The words of an early philosopher come to mind. "It is not enough to set a business going, to give it direction, and a start. You must follow it up, and never take your hand off until the very end."

Mayor Juba's fears of a recession, perhaps a year or two after the conclusion of Expo, should be taken seriously. It is a matter which should be taken up at the next federal-provincial conference.

Brazilian Envoy

A man in his time may suffer worse fates than to arrive in Ottawa by train.

The city's aspect, as viewed from its approaches by rail, is not unattractive. There is a certain drowsiness about its environs which contrasts sharply with the awesome commercial clutter that assails the traveller entering say Toronto.

It is when stepping from the train into the sombre confines of Union Station that a sense of doubt intrudes. Is this a capital city, the visitor wonders? Then all of a sudden he is on the street and there is the formidable pile that is the Chateau Laurier and further away, Parliament Hill, and to the left the site of the National Arts Centre, and in the centre Confederation Square with its busy flow of traffic.

An interesting wide-range prospect it is for anyone seeing Ottawa for the first time, and particularly for one of the sensitivity of Dora Alencar de Vasconcellos, Brazil's new ambassador to Canada. It was by train that Mrs. Vasconcellos chose to arrive after relinquishing her former appointment as consul-general of Brazil in New York.

And the glow of praise which surrounded her coming and gave insight to her personality would surely brighten any station platform. A diplomatic colleague says she is "a beautiful woman who sometimes lights up a room with her smile."

A poet and linguist, Mrs. Vasconcellos has also been described as "a charming woman with an insatiable curiosity and boundless energy." Another former colleague says she has a "constant enthusiasm for people and is always interested in them."

Canada may count itself lucky to have a person of the charm and ability of Mrs. Vasconcellos representing her country. At 55 she has been in the diplomatic service for 28 years. Originally designated ambassador to Poland she declined the appointment because of illness in her family. Clearly, Poland's loss is Canada's gain.

Family Man

Daniel Johnson, leader of the Union Nationale party which has ousted the Liberals from power in Quebec, is a man who gives due attention to family life.

Since he is a Quebecker such leanings come as no surprise, for strong family life is rooted in the French tradition.

Still, it is good to be reminded of such qualities and benefit from them. In arranging a meeting with Premier Jean Lesage to fix a date for the transfer of power in the province, Mr. Johnson said: "the announcement will take into account the tradition that vacations are always more agreeable when one can take them with the children."

Eh bien!

Miscarriage Threat Calls for Bed Rest

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am four months pregnant and about every six weeks I have a period or threat of miscarriage.

My doctor recommends bed rest when this bleeding occurs. He tells me to stay off my feet and possibly I may be able to carry the child the full nine months. He also mentioned that the afterbirth seems to be first.

What effect can this periodic bleeding do to my unborn baby, and what if the afterbirth is first?

I have heard so many old wives' tales that I am quite upset — that the baby may not live, or if it does it will be a moron, or very small and sickly. What are the chances of my having a normal child? — Mrs. M. H. W.

* * *

From the description, there evidently is a threat of miscarriage, and the usual treatment is just what your doctor has advised — bed rest.

This complication is more likely in the last few months of pregnancy rather than at your stage. Admittedly it is a serious threat, endangering the life of the fetus.

However, if the baby is born successfully, neither condition— that is, early or late bleeding— affects the formation or intelligence of the child. Ignore the tales you hear. Some people delight in telling such distressing fabrications. Just pay attention to your doctor's counsel.

As to the afterbirth question, I assume this to mean that the placenta (which later becomes the afterbirth) is delivered at or near the opening of the womb, instead of higher up.

This is called placenta previa, that is, the placenta is so located to be in advance instead of behind the baby at the time of birth. It is an additional problem to be confronted with at the time of delivery, but your doctor has detected it already, and the old maxim holds true here: Forewarned is forearmed.

I will not minimize the fact that the chance of miscarriage is obviously present so you must follow your doctor's instructions very carefully. Clearly he is thoroughly alert. I am sorry you have had to be subjected to those scare stories besides.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has to count his calories carefully. Does one brand of cleomargarine have less calories than another? — Mrs. M.R.F.

They all have about the same calorie value — about the same as butter.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I seldom have a headache in the daytime but occasionally get quite a few very one at night. After I get up the headache gradually subsides. What could cause them? — W. A. H.

Muscle tension related to the position of your head while asleep is often a cause. A higher or lower pillow might be tried. Arthritic changes in the bones of the neck could be a factor. Allergy (such as to the feathers in a pillow) could be considered. However, muscle tension is the most likely.

Dear Dr. Molner: My sister got a wire deep in her foot, and my brother sucked on the wound to start it bleeding. Then he took her to the doctor. Does the sucking help or make it worse? — Mrs. V. W.

It helps, particularly in a deep puncture-type wound that does not bleed freely. Bleeding tends to wash out germs or dirt. This is particularly important if tetanus, or lockjaw, germs happen to be present, because they multiply in the absence of air. Hence tetanus constitutes a serious threat with puncture wounds.

* * *

Headaches! You can beat them. Write to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 136, Dundee, Ill., for a copy of the booklet, "How to Tame Headaches." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

June 13, 1966 . . .

The Yukon Territory was established 66 years ago today — in 1898 — two years after the Klondike gold discovery. The area had first been explored in 1842 by a Hudson's Bay Company agent and prospectors poured in with a song the Klard River in the 1870s. Gold in the Klondike was brought in enough population for the Yukon Territory to be set up, and self-government came a few years later. Dawson, with 25,000 people in the gold - rush days, now has fewer than 1,000 residents, and Whitehorse, the territory capital, about 5,000.

1962 — Columbus discovered Martinique.

1918—The Montreal Herald building burned down, killing 33 people.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916—the Canadian counter-attack at Mount Sorrel and Sanctuary Wood recaptured in an hour all the ground lost in 48 days; British naval forces sank a German auxiliary cruiser, and Lord Kitchener boats in the Baltic Sea.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941—Vichy French quits in Syria declared Dumascus an open city but objected the Allied advance at two points; an RAF torpedo aircraft hit a German pocket battleship off the Norwegian coast.

Nagging Wife Has Her Uses

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

The nagging wife never has been pictured as a character to be emulated. Rather, she has been looked upon as an unfortunate person whose attitudes and behaviour make her husband miserable and her children unhappy.

Now, however, the woman who nags has found a defender and has been cast in a new role by R. F. Aitken, director of New Zealand's National Safety Association.

Farm accidents, he suggested recently, could be greatly reduced if wives expressed concern every time their husbands did something unsafe.

Of course, the idea need not be confined to the farm. Hints gain to look as though the much-maligned back-seat driver may have a usefulness after all.

School Boss' Big Salary

Vancouver Sun

The days of the impoverished teacher in the little red school house are behind us, what with teachers joining the ranks of the two-car families, but we didn't realize until now just how far behind.

Who is the fourth highest-paid public official in the richest nation on earth? Behind President Johnson, $100,000; New York Governor Rockefeller and New York Mayor Lindsay ($50,000 each)?

It is one James F. Redmond of Syosset, N.Y. He has just been named superintendent of Chicago public schools at $48,500 a year.

If this disturbing trend is allowed to continue, we may soon find parents urging their sons to throw away those Little League bats and go for that big teaching bonus instead.

Wage Freeze In Holland

Vancouver Sun

Holland, though not plagued by trade difficulties to the extent Britain is, has already imposed a wage freeze. It, too, finds deadly danger in cost-of-living inflation induced by wage increases which are not justified by corresponding increases in productivity. These are two nations which depend heavily on exports to live. But Canada, too, lives to a large extent by its export trade. It cannot afford to ignore the lessons in Britain's labor troubles, as well as its own.

Fatal Fungus

Dutch Elm Disease is caused by a fungus which gets into the tree's sap stream and clogs the water-conducting tubes, cutting off the flow of sap, according to the Department of Lands and Forests.

Road Building–Then and Now

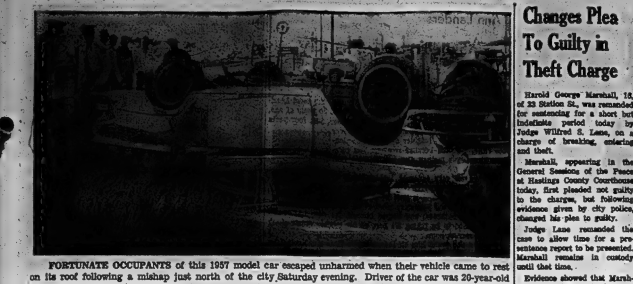
Dept. of Highways

The changes in the tools and types of equipment used to build roads in Ontario between the time of the earliest trails and today's modern highways are as great as the changes in the roads themselves.

The first equipment to be used for road building in pioneer days was an axe and a hanging chain. These were the simple tools used by the settlers and the soldiers in building the blazed trails and the corduroy roads. Later to turn these blazed trails into grades, roads, plows, picks and shovels and primitive scrapers were used. The basic source of power was then supplied by man's muscles. He was lightened to some degree by the use of animal power.



When the demand for an all weather road arose, gravel or broken stone was used for surfacing material. The stone was broken by hand, using a sledge hammer, or a rockcrusher or ball shaped trampling instrument.

Only a very small mileage of surfaced road could be built by these methods but, with the introduction of steam power, production was immensely increased. Instead of the small quantity of broken stone provided by hand labor, steam operated crushing plants, supplied the road material in large quantities at low cost. Steam shovels were built to dig the earth, which was then hauled by horse drawn earth scoops, wagons, or by steam locomotives on narrow gauge tracks with dump cars.

Steam powered equipment made it possible to make a start in building a highway system, which was necessitated by the introduction of the automobile. However, it was heavy, cumbersome, and a fire hazard. It was replaced by the gas driven equipment, which has the advantage of lower fuel cost, less fire risk, being less bulky, quicker starting and stopping. The emancipation of the work animal began when the horse and wagon were replaced by trucks with gas engines.

The next big improvement in road building machinery was the replacing of wheels with caterpillar tracks and the introduction of the crawler tractor.

These tracks were used on all types of equipment including steam and gas shovels, dump trucks, tractors, graders, etc. The tracks enabled earth moving machinery equipped with tracks, to operate where wheeled equipment would bog down or where slopes were too steep. During many succeeding years, the use of track type and the crawler tractor was pushing other equipment

FORTUNATE OCCUPANTS of this 1957 model car escaped unharmed when their vehicle came to rest on its roof following a mishap just north of the city Saturday evening. Driver of the car was 20-year-old Barry Runnals of Springbrook, Ont.

Changes Plea To Guilty in Theft Charge

Harold George Marshall, 18, of 33 Station St., was remanded for sentencing for a short but indefinite period today by Judge Wilfred S. Lane, on a charge of breaking, entering and theft.

Marshall, appearing in the General Sessions of the Peace at Hastings County Courthouse today, first pleaded not guilty to the charges, but following evidence given by city police, changed his plea to guilty.

Judge Lane remanded the case to allow time for a presentence report to be presented. Marshall remains in custody until that time.

Evidence showed that Marshall, along with a friend, broke into the Riverside Groceteria, at E. Moira and North Front, Sept. 3, 1965 and stole a quantity of cigarettes and lighters valued at $62.43.

Const. Barry Titterton, City Police, testified as a result of information received he picked Marshall up on Station St. September 24. He said he asked Marshall to get into the cruiser. Then he drove over to the Riverside Groceteria, had a conversation with the owner there, and took Marshall to the police station.

"He admitted to me he had broken into Riverside Groceteria. I immediately notified the inspector of this and a minute or two later, Detective Begbie entered the room.

"Det. Begbie asked Marshall if he'd like to give a statement. He said he would, so Det. Begbie read the warning to him from the top of the charge sheet and then wrote down Marshall's statement."

Chinese Army Chief, Lin Piao, Likely Successor to Mao

By KAY TATEISHI

TOKYO (AP)—Lin Piao, the Chinese Army chief who is considered the most likely successor to aging Mao Tse-Tung, is the product of a family that ran a textile mill in Hupei province for generations.

Lin now is 57, the leader of a 2,200,000-member army the youngest of the top five leaders in the Peking regime. The current purge of so-called Anti-Maoists in China has cast the spotlight upon him. The Peking newspaper Red Flag hailed him Saturday as the interpreter of Mao's thinking.

Lin, defence minister since 1959, has been associated with Mao since the Yenan days in the 1930s and 1940s. He is China's top military strategist and his exploits have served as the textbook for the Chinese forces.

Lin is a small stooped man with bushy eyebrows and a large nose.

He is described by admirers as "a humble, kind man far from being snobbish" and is said "to share the hardships and joys with his men . . . with unsurpassed energy."

His critics, however, say he resembles a village carpenter and displays a temper.

Lin was born in Huangkang, the son of a lower middle-class family. He attended middle school in Wuchang at 14. In 1925 he gained admission to Whampoa Military Academy and was graduated with honors a year later.

As a company commander Lin took part in the Nanchang uprising in 1927, but quit following discretionary charges. He joined the Communist insurgents and marched with Chu Teh in the long march in 1934 into Mao Tse-tung at Chingkangshan in May, 1928. He became party member in 1927.

Lin made his military reputation in 1937 when his troops trapped and annihilated a Japanese brigade at Pinghsing Pass in northeastern Shansi.

He was seriously wounded at Pinghsing Pass and went to Moscow for recuperation. According to information available in Tokyo he took part in the defence of Leningrad in 1941.

Back in China, Lin was one of the key men in 1942 helping Mao reorganize the party school at Yenan.

Lin's troops were the first Chinese to enter the Korean War in 1950.

In 1954 he was elected to the central committee and politburo. He was appointed vice-premier when the central committee was reorganized. He was also made vice-chairman of the national defence council.

Lin was named a marshal, one of 10, by Mao in 1955. But last year he discarded the title when he ordered the elimination of all military ranks.

Two Youths Shaken Up In Accident

A 1957 model car rolled over onto its roof in a one-car mishap near Belleville Saturday evening but the vehicle's two occupants escaped the incident virtually unscathed.

The accident occurred about 7 o'clock Saturday evening just north of the Macdonald - Cartier overpass on Highway 14.

City Ambulance Service rushed to the scene to find that the overturned car's occupants, Leonard Charles Cooper, 19, and Barry Barry Runnals, had sustained nothing more than a shaking up" and a scratched finger between them.

The youths told the O.P.P. officers investigating the accident that they skidded out of control after the driver, Cooper, had applied his brakes to avoid a car turning in front of them.

The vehicle, which has been extensively damaged, Belleville, came to rest on its roof directly on top of a concrete abutment on the highway's East shoulder.

Mayor Honored By Legion Here

The presentation of a "certificate of merit" to Belleville Mayor Jack Ellis by District "F", of the Royal Canadian Legion, highlighted the concluding ceremonies Saturday night of the Branch 99 annual Legion Week.

At a dance held in the local Legion Hall bringing the week's programme of activities to a close, Mayor Ellis was honored for his action in sending snow removal equipment to Downey, N.Y. this past winter. The certificate was awarded by District honors and awards chairman "Bi'lie" Kirby, Public Relations chairman Ed King, and Branch 99 president Dick Kirby.

In expressing his gratitude to the Legion, the Mayor remarked that he had received numerous letters of appreciation from Downey citizens thanking Belleville for the gesture.

During the afternoon's activities, 6 new members were initiated into Branch 99.

City Golfing Aldermen Win Over Kingston

Belleville's golfing aldermen, Carruthers and Joss playing the first of what is hoped will be several challenge matches with other Ontario municipal officials, have won their first match.

Actually they didn't complete the full 18 holes but when they tired at the end of the 14th, the Belleville duo were 13 up over their Kingston opponents.

After the visiting golfers, Aldermen D. Travers and Clerk Controller C. J. McMillan met Belleville Mayor J. R. Ellis, took a tour of the city and were taken on the yacht club sailpast on the Bay of Quinte.

Later in the season the Belleville aldermen expect to play Orillia Mayor Isabel D. Post and one of her staff.

Trenton town officials are too busy to accept the Belleville golfing challenge. Their duties are too onerous for them to indulge in golfing frivolities.

Girl Offenders to Get Psychiatric Treatment

GALT, Ont. (CP)—An experimental project for treatment of emotionally disturbed juveniles in Ontario training schools is to be introduced at the Ontario Training School for Girls here by the end of June.

The school will open an intensive psychiatric treatment centre in a house formerly occupied by the girls.

While some treatment of this kind has been available in training schools previously, this is the first concentrated approach where those requiring such treatment are located in one place.

At Toronto, Reform Institutions Minister Allan Grossmore said in an interview that a similar treatment centre for emotionally-disturbed boys is being considered.

Of the more than 1,400 juveniles in the province's training schools about 370 are girls. If the project proves successful there are plans to expand the service.

USE PROFESSIONAL AID

The new treatment centre will work closely with the psychology department of the University of Waterloo. Post-graduate students working on their doctorate degrees will conduct many of the research and testing programs at the centre.

Dr. Walter Wright, a psychiatrist at the school, will be in charge of both the reception and treatment centres and a professional staff of eight will work jointly with both centres. In addition the treatment centre will have a teaching staff of two and a supervisory staff of 10 to look after the 21 girls to be accepted.

Dr. Ronald Stokes, the reform institutions department's chief psychiatrist services, described the program as a "total living experience for the girls, with a psychiatrist, psychologists and social workers gearing treatment on a round-the-clock basis."

"This is not going to replace mental hospitals," he said. "But if girls need psychiatric treatment in a residential setting, it will be easier to provide it in one place rather than having it scattered around the schools."

Ann Landers
Aspirin Left Handy, So Little Boy Dies

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Today was one of the most heart-breaking days of my life — and I am well past 50 years of age. I attended the funeral of an adorable little boy, just four years old. He lived next door to us and I have never known a friendlier, brighter or more affectionate child. He died because someone was careless. It was his mother. Can you imagine how she feels?

It was a very innocent looking bottle — after all, aspirins aren't poison, or so his mother thought. And it isn't as if they taste very good. But the youngster climbed up on a chair in the bathroom and helped himself. He was supposed to be taking his nap, so his mother didn't check him for over an hour.

When she found him on the bathroom floor she thought he had fallen and stuck his head. By the time she got him to the hospital it was too late. The doctor said he had eaten about 20 aspirin tablets.

Please, Ann Landers, print this letter. Everyone knows that iodine and bleaches and gasoline and kerosene can kill children. But a great many people are ignorant about aspirin. Please, please use your tremendous influence to alert the public to this danger. Thank you. — HEARTBROKEN NEIGHBOR.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR NEIGHBOR: Here is your letter and now I would like to add a few words of my own.

Not only medicines but cleaning fluids, furniture polish, ammonia, drain cleaners, insecticides, paint thinners, hair dyes, nail polish remover, and cosmetics other items can kill a child. The best rule is this: Keep all such articles locked up and out of reach of your children.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What can I do about a mother who tricked me into getting a short haircut? I'm going to tell you exactly what happened and I want your advice.

My folks came home from a trip. When my mother saw me she flipped. I knew she would make me get a haircut right away, but I thought I had her talked into letting me wear my hair a little longer than usual. All I wanted was the sides trimmed and the back evened up.

Well, we went to the barber shop and my mother started to talk to the barber in Jewish. I thought she was asking him about his family or something personal so I didn't pay any attention. What she was really telling him was to cut my hair off very short!

How can a kid fight this sort of thing? — SKINNED RAT.

DEAR SKINNED: You'd better learn Jewish or switch to an Italian barber.

* * *

Confidential to WANT TO BUT I CAN'T: You can and you must. There are are very important people involved in this mess. And remember it is not enough to forgive and forget. You must be willing to forget what you forgive. This is the most difficult part.

* * *

Confidential to HELP WANTED BY A BIG MOUTH: You must change your pattern of behaviour and get your satisfactions out of achievement and acceptance. Your conduct is a hangover from early childhood — when you were punished for misbehaving. People who are hungry for attention prefer punishment to being ignored — and this is why you say and do things that get you into trouble.

* * *

Confidential to MOTHER OF TWO TEENS: A pajama party can be great fun, but if you allow your teens to have a pajama party, be sure you have rocks in your head, mother. Your daughters have a home, haven't they? Well — that's where the party should be.

Bleach Misuse Causes Waste Of Money

CALGARY (CP) — More money is wasted in the home through the misuse of bleach than from almost anything else, says the home service director of a laundry equipment manufacturing firm.

When household bleach is poured directly into a washing machine from the bottle, the homemaker has destroyed the bleach, the clothes, says Ruth Krutzer of Newton, Iowa, here to deliver a speech.

"Chlorine bleach must be diluted with at least four parts of water or you have immediately destroyed 1/5 th life of your clothes," she says.

Proper laundering will preserve the life and freshness of apparel, especially synthetic fibres, she says.

She maintains that all synthetic fibres can be cleaned at home with little trouble. The water temperature must be varied for different fabrics, as the length of wash, wash cycle and the agitator action of the machine.

For example, to wash brightly-colored synthetics, she says the water should be cold, the washer speed regular and a wash time of 10 minutes used. Use a liquid detergent, no bleach, fabric softener and a regular setting on the dryer.

LIVER PATE FOR SANDWICHES

Gentle persuasion is the tactic I am using. Liver is good for us and if our tactic-crazy men should be included in menus once per week. But a great number of Canadians say is be content and confined into preparing it and serving it to their families.

Frequently one wives offer a "special" on chicken livers at 89c per pound. When they do you should pounce on a package and take it home.

MONDAY
Dinner Menu

Mary
Moore

Spaghetti and Meat Balls; Parmesan Cheese; Tossed Leaf Lettuce, Spinach and Radish Salad with Italian French Dressing; Italian Bread Sticks; Cherry Upside Down Cake; Tea.

In May I gave a method of sauteing crumbled chicken livers. Last August I gave you a recipe for a Liver Pate notable for its exotic flavoring — Augostora Bitters. In February of 1960 I gave here my Liver Pate which was a reasonable facsimile of pate de foie gras.

Now I have another. This liver pate is a comfort to have on hand for sandwich makers, for catending cold luncheon plates and as a popular spread for canapes at a party. Use it any way that suits your purpose but make and serve it to your family.

KEEN'S LIVER PATE 1960

One pound frozen chicken livers slightly thawed (or baby beef or calves' liver), ½ pound side bacon, 1 tablespoon minced onion or bottled onion flakes, 1 teaspoon garlic salt (or clove of garlic), ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon thyme, ¼ teaspoon cinamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon black pepper, 2 slices stale bread, 2 eggs.

Force slightly thawed chicken livers (see note below) through fine knife of meat grinder along with the bacon and all seasonings. Put bread through machine last to clean it out and to extend pate and to give it body. If you do not have a blender put puree through fine knife of grinder again to make it smoother. If you have a blender turn half of the liver mixture in it at a time to make it perfectly smooth. Remember that the professional finish is making liver pate is its velvety texture. Beat eggs and stir into mixture thoroughly. Turn into small loaf pan (or 4 or 4 individual baking dishes) filling them 2/3 full. Cover tightly with lid or foil. Stand in shallow pan of hot water and bake at 375 deg. F.hr. 2 hours.

As excellent imitation of pate de fois gras and an epicure's delight.

NOTE:

Freezing livers gives them the necessary firmness to force through grinder.

92-Year-Old Enjoys Trip Across World

SYDNEY (Reuters — Ninety-two - year - old Granny Cole, bobbing 9,000 miles across the world from Kenya in a home-made sailing boat to start a new life in New Zealand, caught a small hammerhead shark on the first leg of the voyage.

Granny—Mrs. Emily Cole—sat in her deck chair knitting on all but the roughest days, her son said in a telephone interview Saturday. She caught the shark on a hand line.

Mrs. Cole is with her son, Cmdr. George Cole of the Royal Navy, his wife Jean and their two children on Christmas Island in the Indian Ocean.

They arrived there a week ago after setting out from Mombasa, Kenya, Jan. 8, in their 40-foot boat, the Galmale. They expect to set off again soon for Portuguese Timor on their way to Darwin, on the north coast of Australia.

Cmdr. Cole said they ran into bad weather between the Cocos Islands and Christmas Island. But it rarely prevented Granny from getting on the deck, spending her time dodging the spray, and revelling in the voyage.

Susanna's Family Fare

A TIME FOR TERRARIUMS

What is so rare as a day in June?

Then, if ever come perfect days

For boys and girls to explore

The wonder of woodlands' ways.

. . . and for those to whom it means so much that they yearn to bring home with them some of nature's magic, you will be putting the long on their cake if you help them with a terrarium project.

In it they can observe a great variety of plant life as well as numerous types of creepy crawlers — all during the long hot summer.

In contrast to an aquarium, a terrarium is quite easy to make as it need only hold moisture, not a quantity of water. A fine one can be constructed readily from 6 pieces of window glass cut to size and a roll of plastic electrical tape.

We have diagrams and instructions on hand, as well as information on what to place inside and how to arrange everything. You are most welcome to these directions.

Of course, a large goldfish bowl or other appropriately sized glass container with glass cover will do nicely.

HOW TO DO-IT-YOURSELF

For a starter, here is some idea of what will be involved:

On the very bottom, start with a layer of well washed pebbles or sand for drainage, then a few bits of broken charcoal — which may self-respecting beach and barbecue can provide.

On top, place a layer of leaf mold or topsoil in which to plant ferns and foliage, baby bushes, tiny trees and other greenery.

Lichens and fungi play an interesting part, but must be watched. Any molds they might produce should be removed — unless you are actually after a mold garden.

Add a pair of salamanders, small frogs or toads, crickets or tiny snakes or turtles are added to your garden of Eden, they will need food, a hiding place for shelter, and a sunken dish of water to act as a pool for them.

Oh, and do make the surface hilly and undulating to simulate actual woodsy terrain — just think of how much more interesting this will be for the companis!

If you do happen to be writing for further details, we would be delighted to learn your views on interesting summer fare in the way of projects and outdoor activities. — SUSANNA

HOW SALADS FAIL

Some of the common causes of salad failures are: excessive exposure of the ingredients to air, light, and room temperature; soaking of the ingredients and preparing the salad too soon.

Successful Living
Keeps Boy Friend To Avoid Lonliness

DEAR DORIS: I have been going out with Frank, a German boy, 24, who came to this country four years ago. I am 21. I met him on a blind date and we are both shy people.

DORIS CLARE

I work at a dull but secure job, where there are no eligible men available. I like Frank but don't think he is the type of person I want to marry. We date because we are both lonely and have fun together; and he likes me more than I like him.

We broke up several times because I felt it was unfair to him but eventually we got lonely by ourselves and came back together. My mother wants me to associate with boys who have more to offer; but the office is full of old men, and I'm sure I would worry about Frank being alone. (I know that feeling.)

Do you think I am "stringing him along," as my mother says, and should look for someone else? Frank has brought a lot of happiness into my drab life. I couldn't bear to go back to watching TV, and going to the show alone! — CONFUSED.

DEAR CONFUSED: "The time has come, the walrus said, to speak of many things" — and the time has come for you to take action. Do something. You are stringing yourself along, and settling for second best all along the line.

Why stay in a dull job? Can security be that important, at 21? Why stay glued to a TV screen?

You are not on the shelf yet but you soon will be. In your city where there are so many exciting things going on I wonder that you can miss them all. Shows, hobby groups, extension courses, badminton clubs — if you are ever going to enlarge your horizons it better be now.

Who knows? Frank may turn out to be your choice. You can only find out by giving yourself some basis for comparison.

Headhunter's Slave Wife Tells of Life

QUITO, Ecuador (Reuters) The dark-eyed daughter of a South American landowner Sunday described from her hospital bed how seven years of horror as the slave wife of an Indian member of a headhunting tribe.

Mariana Lana, 25, was kidnapped near Ecuador's wild western region by Naugrenz, a house servant.

A member of the Jibaro tribe, known for head shrinking, he was brought from the jungle by missionaries who attempted to civilize him.

Police searched in vain for the girl until it was not until Nangarne took a second wife, who became jealous and informed missionaries, that she was rescued.

Police and troops hacked their way through the jungle to Naugarne's home and after a fierce battle with the tribesmen, who were armed with spears and poisoned arrows, rescued the girl.

Mariana now is recovering in hospital. Nangarne, found with her, is in the local jail, where he refuses to say anything.

The once-beautiful girl, now worn and exhausted from her seven-year ordeal, said all she wants to do is return to her father's home with her three sons, fathered by Nangarne.

Cuban Exiles Accept Offer of Training Base

NEW YORK (AP)—An anti-Castro Cuban exile organization has accepted an offer by Dr. Rene Schick, president of Nicaragua, to use his country as a training centre for forces to invade Cuba.

The Central Liberation Board, a Cuban exile group formed a week ago by veterans of the Bay of Pigs invasion, said Sunday night it sent a formal note of gratitude to Schick for his stand against "the formal declaration of subversive war agreed to at Havana's tricontinental conference."

Schick's offer to let Nicaraguan territory be used for training anti-Castro forces was made in a press conference at the United Nations last Wednesday.

THIS BULL'S NOT FOR SHOOTING — Glenvue Crown Royal, one of the prize dairy bulls at the Belleville barns of Eastern Breeders' Inc., is admired by Nancy Moore, 10, daughter of the organization's president, Mr. W. Moore. Eastern Breeders Inc. use such bulls as this one, being held by Harold Hancock, in the artificial breeding of some 40 percent of cattle in this area of Ontario.

Eastern Breeders' Open House Attracts Farmers on Sunday

An "open house" held Sunday at the Belleville barns of Eastern Breeders' Inc. attracted a sizable crowd of local Association members and interested farmers.

The Belleville operation, located on the road to Wallbridge about a mile west of the city, is part of a 12,000-member strong organization of farmers with headquarters at Kemptville, Ont. This association artificially breeds about 40 per cent of all cattle in Central and Eastern Ontario.

Both dairy and beef type bulls, numbering some 24 in all, were on display in yesterday's open house, as they were at a similar event held Sunday, June 5th.

The open house program has proved highly successful with some 600 attending the events held at the Belleville barns last year.

Visitors were eligible for contests, draws and door prizes.

Position of Provincial Premier Ranks No. 1 in Occupational Prestige

By DAVID RAZAY

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—A national survey by two Carleton University sociologists indicates the position of provincial premier is ranked No. 1 in the scale of occupational prestige.

The sociologists, Peter C. Pineo and John Porter of Ottawa, reported initial findings of their 1961 survey Saturday at the annual meeting of the Canadian Sociology and Anthropology Association.

Federal politicians also ranked higher but Prof. Pineo noted that the study was made prior to the federal furore over the Munsinger affair with its allegation of sex and security.

Physicians, university professors, county court judges and lawyers also ranked high. Prestige plunges past bank managers, TV stars and pro athletes, down to garbage collectors and newspaper peddlers at the bottom.

SCORED HIGH

Out of a possible 100, provincial premier scored 89.9. In Quebec, French-speaking Canadians gave this occupation the extraordinarily high score of 93.6. During the survey the Quebec post was held by Jean Lesage, who lost his job to Daniel Johnson of the Union Nationale party in a recent election.

The survey shows that MPs, with 84.8, have more prestige than cabinet ministers with 83.3, but not as much as senators with 86.1.

Everyone knows it's tough to be a janitor (17.3), a garbage collector (14.8), or a newspaper peddler (14.8), but who would have thought that a ballet dancer (49.2) is the class of a policeman (51.6).

It's far better to be a TV star (56.6) than a disc jockey (36) or a TV repairman (37.2).

Cab drivers (25.4) have it all over bartenders (20.3), but play second fiddle to professional babysitters (25.9).

TOP ATHLETES

Catholic priests (72.8) top protestant ministers (67.8) and journalists (60.9) just edge public relations men (60.5). Authors (64.3) actually have more prestige than pro athletes (54.1).

It's great to be a physician (87.5), a university professor (84.6), a county court judge (82.3) or a lawyer (82.3). But it must hurt to be a waitress (19.9) or an elevator operator (20.1).

There's still hope for those who need it, though, since the sociologists say there are a couple of hitches in their findings, based on 793 cases in which each person canvassed was asked to rank 304 occupational titles.

Prof. Pineo and Prof. Porter said they encountered difficulties in their method of sampling, modeled on American studies. This means the prestige scores could be altered.

"It is clear . . . that we have just begun the long process of analyzing a set of very complex data. We felt that these initial findings would be of sufficient interest to present them at this time."

Length of Town Council Terms Discussed at Ratepayers' Meet

NAPANEE — At last week's meeting of the Napanee Town Council, a letter from the Ratepayers' Association proposed that at the next municipal election, the voters be given an opportunity to express their opinion on the length of time council should remain in office. At present elections are held every two years. The association would like to see a return of annual elections.

Council took no action in the matter, but several members spoke strongly against such a step, both during and after the meeting. Reeve Claude Knight seconded the opinion of J. W. Spooner, minister of municipal affairs, who advocates a three-year term:

"It takes at least six months for a new councilor to learn what it is all about," Deputy-Reeve W .R. Douglas stated.

The general opinion is that a councillor needs time to learn and adjust himself to town affairs before he can make any contribution himself. For the first few months he can only listen and learn; and it is not until this learning is past that he becomes valuable as a town councillor. In his second year he is part of a team, pulling with his fellow councillors, or disagreeing with them knowledgeably. A third year would make him much more of an asset, was the general opinion.

A second argument was put forward by Councillor Ernest Marshall. Most town projects take more than one year to complete and it would be a mistake to have a possible annual turnover of council, with men knowing nothing of what has gone before.

Hydro Control To Be Taken Over From PUC

NAPANEE — For 30 years the Napanee Public Utilities Commission has operated the 594 square miles of rural area in the vicinity of the Town, on behalf of the Hydro, in a short time this will come to an end.

A letter from A. M. Pedersen, manager of Hydro's Eastern Region recently notified the Napanee PUC of its intention and gave the reasons for the change: the introduction of centralized data processing, faster and more sophisticated work equipment, modernized automatic distribution equipment and better road arteries will all add up to better service and a substantial financial saving.

It was understood that the change was to have taken place by the end of this year but a delegation from Napanee succeeded in gaining a reprieve. They believed the change would be too abrupt, and should be made gradually. As it stands now, the gradual change will be the method followed, to be completed in December 1962.

There is uneasiness on the part of the residents in the rural district, especially in Richmond Township, whose houses are practically within the town. Help can reach them in a matter of minutes under the present system, but will take much longer from Picton. The present rural area is to be divided into three parts, to be merged with areas in Picton, Tweed or Kingston.

The change has been under study for some time, Mr. Pedersen's letter stated, but has now become possible because of the near completion of the bridge between Prince Edward County and Hastings County near Desoronto, only seven miles from Napanee.

Pupils Enjoy Weekend at Tamworth USA

NAPANEE — Pupils of the Tamworth Continuation School and their teachers are spending the weekend in Tamworth, New Hampshire, and have raised the money themselves for the trip.

Tamworth, N. H., is celebrating its bicentennial by staging an International Art Exhibition June 10 to 18 inclusive, and sent an invitation to its namesake in Ontario to join in the festivities. An estimate of the expenses entailed for the visit came to $1,200, and the young sters raised the money and an extra $100 This will pay for the buses for the 1,000 mile round trip for the 100 boys and girls in grade seven to twelve plus 14 adults, including the teachers.

All sorts of projects were undertaken to raise the necessary funds. A musical festival recently played to a packed house. A movie show in the school auditorium brought in a nice amount. A group of girls made and sold refreshments at an auction sale. Candy bars were sold from door to door. Raffles and a car-washing project all helped to build up the fund. The latest project brought them $138 from tickets sold on a baby pig donated by Bryden Young of Tamworth.

Tamworth Continuation School will be doors for secondary school work this month in September, 16 pupils will attend the Napanee District Secondary School 30 miles to the south.

POINTS TO TIES

QUEBEC (CP) — John Harney, a member of the Ontario New Democratic Party executive, said Sunday Ontario has a special responsibility toward Confederation because of its historical ties with Quebec. He told the annual congress of the Quebec Federation of St. Jean Baptiste Societies: "So far our fine wishy-washy (pris - pale) government (of Ontario ) has chosen to keep quiet and as a result, we lack in English Canada the will to take a position in the great debate which is moulding our country."

ne meetings broke up at 5:15 a.m. Sunday.

Transport Minister Pickersgill and External Affairs Minister Martin headed the government team of Labor Minister Nicholson, Health Minister MacEachen and Guy Favreau, president of the Privy Council.

MEDIATOR PRESENT

Mr. Nicholson called both sides to Ottawa for the second time for negotiations that included the federal mediator, Judge Rene Lippe of Montreal, and labor department officials. Actual negotiations were preceded by a two-hour conference in Mr. Nicholson's office involving Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress and Louis Laberge, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor.

Both sides admitted good progress after Sunday's break-up and a federation spokesman said a final offer had been made. Details were not spelled out, by T. W. R. Eakin, president of the federation, said they included acceptance of a special commission to study problems of productivity and automation.

The government would appoint the commissioner, with labor and management each naming an assistant. Findings and recommendations of the commission would be binding on management, Mr. Eakin added.

Less than 12 hours later, about 7,000 members in Montreal voted to reject the offer and continue the strike. About 4,350 men are involved at the three ports.

No Decision Made on New NATO Site

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Canada has been examining a number of sites for the relocation of its NATO forces in Europe but no decision has yet been reached, External Affairs Minister Martin said Sunday night.

At the conclusion of weekend discussions with Canada's NATO ambassador - designate, C. S. A. Ritchie, Mr. Martin said he had briefed Mr. Ritchie on the Canadian government's position and what had occurred at last week's NATO meetings in Brussels.

Mr. Martin said Canada will have to vacate its two French air stations by April 1, 1967, to comply with the French government's decision to withdraw from NATO commitments.

Plaque Will Commemorate Founders of Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD — The Department of Tourism and Information in conjunction with the archaeological and historic sites board of Ontario are erecting a plaque to commemorate the founding of Campbellford. The Campbellford Chamber of Commerce has arranged a ceremony in Campbellford on June 18 to mark the event.

Taking part in the ceremony from out of town will be Dr. J. M. S. Careless, chairman of the department of history of the University of Toronto and co-chairman of the archaeological and historic sites board; Russell Rowe, M.P.P.; George Hees, M.P.; K. Parr, Reeve of Seymour Township and Jesse Locke, a descendant of one of the pioneer families of the area, who will unveil the plaque.

The Campbell brothers, Robert and David, are the earliest reported pioneers and little is known of their early lives.

FOUNDERS CAME IN 1823

The brothers, both of whom held military rank, are presumed to have arrived in Canada in 1823. Both received government grants of land in the area, Robert 1200 acres and David 1000 acres.

David Campbell was appointed crown land agent for Seymour Township and held the post for seven years. He supervised land grants and sales of land and encouraged and assisted settlers in establishing themselves.

Robert Campbell, who suffered from the effects of wounds received in the Napoleonic wars, died in 1836 and was buried in Campbellford.

David Campbell is thought to have moved to Cobourg in 1832. In 1836 he sold his holdings in Campbellford to Nesbitt Kirchhoffer and James Cockburn of Cobourg for about $30,000. Later James Cockburn became one of the Fathers of Confederation.

One of the early pioneers has stated the name Campbellford came into being because a part of the Trent River was shallow enough to ford and the Campbell name being prominent, the settlement at that time became known as "Campbell's ford" and hence "Campbellford".

Lions' Club List Officers

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Lions Club held its annual meeting on Wednesday night and had as guest speaker Mr. Herb Wark, Governor of sub-district A3 of Brockville.

Queen Marks Birthday At Parade

Wearing the scarlet tunic of the Irish Guards and riding Doctor, a grey horse from the metropolitan police, the 60-year-old monarch took part in the colorful 210 - year - old military pageant in the huge Horse Guards Parade ground behind Whitehall.

American evangelist Billy Graham was among the thousands of onlookers.

Later, the Queen, whose actual birthday is April 21, attended a joint religious service emphasizing the links between Christianity, Buddhism, Hinduism and Islam.

The service was held at St. Martin in the Fields, Trafalgar Square, and also marked Commonwealth Day, for which the Queen received many private tributes from her realm.

CHARGE POLICE ATTACK

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain (AP) Two Czechs and a Canadian attending the San Sebastian International film festival said Sunday they were clubbed by police breaking up a Basque separatist demonstration. Leo Bonneville of Montreal, a member of the festival jury, sent a protest to the provincial civil governor.

Pearson

more control by Europe of its direction and its character.

"I realize that a united Europe would, in its political, economic and military decisions, be more independent of Washington than is the case now. But what is wrong about this?

"Finally, I believe that only the United States can give the effective lead required for Atlantic unity. Without her active participation and support, nothing can be done; at least on the broad front which is essential.

"Without her leadership we will be driven back to a national or continental solution for the organization of security and for progress."

The Federal Union, an international organization that promotes a federation of Atlantic countries, earlier Saturday gave Mr. Pearson its Atlantic Pioneer Award.

The presentation took place in New Salem, Ill., where Abraham Lincoln lived during the 1830s and split rails. Lincoln rode the 20 miles from New Salem to Springfield for his education in law.

Sunday, Mr. Pearson accepted and honorary doctor of laws degree and delivered the commencement address to 258 graduates of Williams College in Williamstown, Mass.

He told them most of the free world's political institutions were born in the 18th century and need changes to work in the 20th.

But when change is suggested someone always cries that "to alter them would be to tamper with sacred traditions."

Mr. Pearson said political institutions in the democracies are inadequate to meet the challenge of scientific and technical process.

BUFFY DEFAS

The pressures of this progress buffet ideas and organizations pervasively and often irresistibly.

"The political machinery in any democratic state is today as ill-equipped to deal with the problems of the new society as a horse and buggy would be to get me back to Ottawa for that seven o'clock cabinet meeting tonight.

"But we carry on, imbued with the belief that because our political traditions worked in the simpler and slower days of the 18th century, they ought to work in the same way today. . . ."

"It is only because of the hard work and ingenuity and patience of dedicated men that our political machinery, governmental and legislative, works as well as it does and accomplishes all that it does."

The degree's citation said that in "the lowly, exacting relentless role as head of a parliamentary state" Mr. Pearson has shown "tenacity and resourcefulness and idealistic realism . . . to see things as they are and as they can be."

99 Per Cent Favor Slate In Election

MOSCOW (AP) — The unopposed candidates for the Soviet Union's 1,517-member Supreme Soviet (parliament) piled up the expected tremendous majorities in Sunday's election.

The parliament consists of an upper house, the Soviet of Nationalities with 750 members, and a lower house, the Soviet of the Union, with 767 members. The upper house represents the various political divisions making up the Soviet Union and the lower house the people as such.

Soviet citizens, including most leaders as Communist party General Secretary, Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, duly went to the polls.

More than 140,000,000 people over 18 registered and nearly all cast ballots for the approved candidates.

The usual result shows a voter turnout of more than 99 per cent and more than 99 per cent in favor of the slate.

Bathing Area For Condors Is Threatened

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Fifteen hundred fire fighters were in virtual hand-to-hand combat today against a 20,000-acre brush and pine fire which threatened the bathing area of the nearly extinct California condors in Los Padres National Forest.

Towering clouds of smoke cast an orange-tinted pall over the seaside resort town of Santa Barbara, about 35 miles to the south.

Five hundred expert Indian fire fighters arrived on the lines during the night, airlifted from Achinos and New Mexico. Other fire fighters moved in from all over California by bus and plane.

Two airmen from nearby Vandenberg Air Force base were killed and two injured in the crash of the single - engine Cessna 180.

Running through the area is the Sisquoc River where California's 40 remaining giant condors fly from their nesting area 30 miles to the east to bathe. The black, vulture-like birds with white-tipped necks and 10 foot wingspreads live in the 53,000 acre sanctuary set aside for their preservation.

Name 'Bunnies' Belongs to Hefner But They Are Hopping About All Over

TORONTO (CP) — Chicago's Hugh Hefner still has legal ownership of the name but what else but "bunnies" can you call them?

They work in some of the better bars and dining lounges serving drinks and food.

They are hired on the basis of personality, charm, magnetism and, of course, appearance. They wear net stockings, scanty costumes resembling bathing suits and extremely high heels.

As a result they are overtipped, sometimes propositioned and often despised by women.

But now, 10 years after Bert Wilkes introduced them in his Gaslight restaurant here, they are a permanent fixture in Toronto.

Says Mr. Wilkes: "Once a girl is over her quite natural reluctance to be seen scantily clad by strangers, she can earn fantastic money over and above her $1-an-hour basic.

"At the same time, the girls definitely increase trade. Men linger longer."

SOME TOO ATTENTIVE

Lucille Morin, a pretty Quebec blonde, works amid the caverns of the Cave-A-Rob, also managed by Mr. Wilkes.

"I earn on average $125 a week in tips," she said. "The money compensates for the times I get mad at one or two of the customers. That happens when I'm tired.

"I get mad only if a customer out - stares his welcome and makes a pass. I appreciate that I dress to attract attention but some men—and women—make me squirm at times."

Uptown at the Golden Nugget, a gold crucible bounced on the bosom of Wendy Ross, the daughter of a retired English magistrate.

"I was horrified when they showed me what they wanted me to wear," she said. "I took the costume home and asked for a few days to think about it.

"Father was very angry when he saw me dressed like this. But I told him I'd take the job."

At the Caravan, Theresa Roks said her father, a Toronto barber, also objected at first. But the management there has a policy of inviting the objecting father down for an evening to see his girl on the job.

It worked, Theresa reported. "He drops in quite regularly now."

OFFERED MONEY

The law doesn't frown on bunnies. As Hugh Brown, Ontario Liquor Licensing board registrar, put it: "They're still watresses whether they're dressed as bunnies or Whistler's mother."

In her position, though, the bouncy girl is the object of the occasional customer's slyly whispered proposition.

"The tips are fabulous," says Golden Nugget manager Vern Lewis. "All the girls get spoiled."

At the King Edward Sheraton Hotel's oddly - named Golliwog Lounge, manager Gino Kaines said customers will occasionally offer a girl a $100 bill. Only once, he said, did he have to fire a girl because of this.

Golliwog girls are taught to be friendly with the customers, he added, but never to carry it as far as going out with them.

However, some managers are still opposed to the girls. At the Windsor Arms, manager George Minden said: "I'm sure they would do nothing for our business here, and they might attract business that we don't want. We're reasonably snobbish."

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

I don't know what magic power Dr. Harold Craig, commodore of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club possesses weather-wise, but Saturday's setting for the club's annual sailpast was "just what the doctor ordered."

And that fickle old blade the weatherman dished it up in perfect courses.

The wind and wave on the bay was a sailor man's dream. The sheet had been tossed some time that "all fish aboard" quarter. The sun shone down from a cloudless sky. The temperature rounded out a perfect day in June for the yachtsmen, and ladies and counterparts of the Bay of Quinte Power Squadron.

Even such landlubbers as Jack Carson, who swapped a baseball president's gavel for the secretarial pen of the yacht club, agreed with this agent that the day and everything connected with the annual parade of winged beauty left nothing to be desired.

The wind that freshened periodically sent the smaller craft on "crail aswash" with what the white wingers call the "right ripple."

Post sailpast clubhouse consensus paid Commodore Craig; past commodores Rogers Riedel; vice commodores Eraic Colebourne; fleet captain Ken Gayer; junior sailing chairman Cy Gardner and rear commodore Stuart MacDougall well-deserved tributes. Landsters' praises also were heard from visiting American craft owners in harbor for the weekend.

Some thirty-nine sail and power vessels took part in the sailpast. The sail ranged from the junior dinghies to the handsome schooner rigs. Trim cabin cruisers in varying sizes rounded out a perfect nautical picture.

A large number of other non-member yachtsmen and power boat operators had ringside seats, to a spook, on the ripples of the bay.

The sun sparkled the water and glinted off hull and sail as the little armada swung up the bay in order of sailpast.

"Landlubbers" who lined the government dock and Ivanhoe Park enjoyed a beautiful nautical picture. To this agent's knowledge there were no snowcord incidents.

Rendezvousing at 3:30 p.m., down bay east of the club, the sailpast swung past the reviewing craft sharply at four o'clock.

Commodore Craig took the salute from the craft stationed at a point midway between the southeast tip of Victoria Park and the Government Dock. A number of visiting dignitaries were aboard to view the ceremony.

Past Commodore Riedel aboard his handsome sailing craft led the sailpast past the reviewing point. Fleet captain Gayer was in charge of the smaller sailing vessels with junior chairman Gardner bringing his young sailors aboard their dinghies.

Vice commodore Colebourne led the trim motorized vessels of the Bay of Quinte Power Squadron.

A large number of the club's non-owner members and guests enjoyed the sailpast from the participating craft. We saw it from the comfortable aftdeck of an American power cruiser out of Rochester with those ardent anglers-turned-sailors Don and Dorothy MacKinnon.

Climaxing a perfect afternoon afloat, members and guests enjoyed a delightful post-sailpast buffet in the clubhouse.

The Power Squadrons takes over on June 19th when the annual rendezvous is slated for the Bay of Quinte. Power craft from all parts of Lake Ontario shoreline will augment the local flotilla.

R.I.P.

One of this city's finest sportsmen and a veteran of the bowling lanes, Walter Moore passed away over the weekend. Walt was one of the lowest earning bowlers who sponsored teams and took a keen interest not only in the game but in his fellow keglers. Sportsmen of the city, especially those of the bowling fraternity extend, with this department deepest sympathy to the family.

Plane's Tie Shannonville, Beat Acme

Canniffon Plane's scored four runs in the first inning but had to settle for a 4-4 deadlock with Shannonville, at Canniffon, in South Hastings Baseball Saturday night.

Plane's did much better yesterday whipping Belleville Acme 19-7 at the Fairgrounds. They hammered out 21 hits in the game and Butch Clapp hurled the win.

On Saturday, Shannonville fought back to get the tie with singletons in the third and fifth plus two in the sixth.

Bill Barberstock, Dave Lewis and Larry Lewis split the visitors' pitching allowing 10 hits, fanning three and walking eight. Pat O'Connor and Butch Clapp gave up nine hits, struck out four and passed six for Plane's.

Gerald Hill and Larry Anderson each got a double and single, John Tweedy two singles, Court Bratley, Pat O'Connor, Hugh Petrie and Don Forsythe a hit each for Canniffon.

Larry Lewis hit a two-run Shannonville homer, Dave Lewis got a triple and single and Wayne Brant two singles. Brad Hill, Carl Boomhower, Hipleman and Doug Dafoe also hit safely.

Giants Close In As Juan Beats Don

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Even With Koufax

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Drysdale and Sandy Koufax, who ran as an entry as contract-signing time in spring, are going in opposite directions today.

Juan Marichal is keeping Koufax company while Drysdale is chasing Sammy Ellis well off the pace.

Marichal outpitched Drysdale Sunday as San Francisco Giants edged Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 and pushed within four percentage points of the National League-leading Dodgers.

The Giants' ace tossed a four-hitter for his 11th victory of the season, tying the Dodgers' Koufax for the major league lead. Drysdale, knocked out in the sixth inning, suffered his third straight setback and is 4-7 for the year.

Meanwhile, Ellis, a 23-game winner for Cincinnati Reds last season, became this year's first 10-game loser when he yielded an 11th inning run that gave New York Mets a 3-2 victory over the Reds.

Pittsburgh Pirates outscored Atlanta Braves 14-6 and Philadelphia Phillies topped St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 and Houston Astros defeated Chicago Cubs 4-1 in other action.

Pittsburgh defeated Atlanta 5-3 Saturday while Los Angeles downed San Francisco 4-2, New York defeated Cincinnati 4-3 before losing the second game 5-2, St. Louis blanked Philadelphia 2-0, and Chicago walloped Houston 8-2.

Drysdale fell behind 1-0 in the fifth inning when Tom Haller homered. Then he was yanked in the sixth after yielding singles to Pete Fuentes and Len Gabrielson.

Jim Ledsbove homered off Marichal in the seventh and Len Johnson hit another bases-empty shot in the ninth.

PROVIDES WINNING HIT

Ellis walked Ed Bressoud with one out in the 11th and issued an intentional pass to Ron Swoboda after a grounder moved Bressoud to second. Jerry Grote then came through with the winning hit to left.

The Pirates exploded for five runs in the first inning and four more in the third, collapsing a pair of homers — including a grand slam—by Atlanta's Ed Mathews. Gene Alley touched off the first-inning burst with a homer and ignited a two-run rally in the eighth with a double.

Curtis Short checked St. Louis on five hits and Bill White slugged a two-run homer as the Phillies broke a 3-3 tie with the winning string at four. Short, beating the Cardinals for the third time in a row since May 20, 1965, ran his current record to 3-1.

Rusty Staub, Ron Hunt, Jim Beauchamp and Dave Nicholson connected in the Astros' pair of Cubs. Staub and Nicholson connected in the sixth inning, when Houston scored six runs to knock Ferguson Jenkins from the box.

Take League Lead

Trudeaus Spank Juniors

By GARY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Clustering their runs into three innings, Trudeau Juniors neatly disposed of Ameliasburg 92 at Alcmida Park Saturday night to take over sole possession of first place in Belleville and District Softball.

Ellis', having personal problems, held a brief 1-0 lead in the third inning. Trudeaus moved ahead with pairs in the fourth and fifth and clinched it with five in the seventh.

Aging Pat Marsolo checked the outclassed Ameliasburg batsmen and helped his own cause at the plate to boot. He struck out eight walked two, rapped a pair of base knocks and ran like a youngster on the base paths. He was also afforded excellent support.

Bob Ebbier, complaining of a sore elbow on his throwing arm, was tagged for nine safeties in a losing effort. He fanned only seven and issued four free passes. Ellis' gave him little in the line of support, charged with five errors and guilty of at least as many mental mistakes.

Rookie Terry Wellesley slammed the first pitch he ever faced in senior ball for a home run to give Ellis' the 1-0 lead. They scored again in the sixth, collecting the score to 4-2, on a walk, Bob Moon's single and a passed ball. Their only other hit was a first-inning single by Don Gardiner.

Muirhead ignited Trudeaus' scoring in the fourth with a double and stole third when it was not uncovered. Weston strolled and Plane's ground out netted one run. Soule slashed a base hit to plate another.

Marsolo's infield hit, an error, Drak's rbi single and another throwing error brought home two in the fifth.

Marsolo singled again and raced to second when the ball was bobbled to get his club rolling in the seventh. A hit batter kept it going and Drake's single led home a run. A walk, Weston's base hit and an error made it 9-2.

Roger Drake had a double and single, Pete Weston and Pat Marsolo two base hits and "Shaker" Baker's squad. Ralph Plane and Stu Muirhead, with doubles, and Larry Soule, with a single, completed the attack.

The Juniors and Madoc, tied in the cellar, meet in Madoc tonight, at 8:15.

Read Wins Over Acme 9-4

Read scored in each of the first six innings on their way to a 9-4 South Hastings Baseball League win over Belleville Acme Electric at Read Saturday evening.

All four Belleville runs came in the seventh inning. Read netted three in the first, singletons in the next four and two in the sixth to build the 9-0 lead.

Frank Farrell hurled four-hit ball on the Read rubber. He struck out five and walked three.

Gord Campbell started and gave way to Keith Dickey in the second inning for Belleville. They gave up nine hits, whiffed 13 and walked four.

Carm Milligan and Ted Abrams had a double and single each, and Chuck Steele two singles for Read. Gerald Brennan, Frank Farrell and Pat Steele had the others.

Wins Buick Open

Rodgers' Putter Worth $20,000

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — An unusually long putter and an unorthodox grip may have prompted a few snickers from the fans, but Phil Rodgers is $20,000 richer and leading the Professional Golfers Association money list today because of it.

Rodgers shot four birdies and was one over par only once in two rounds Sunday as he took a two-stroke victory in the ninth annual $100,000 Buick open golf tournament.

The cheque which matched the one he collected for winning the Doral Open earlier this year, upped his winnings $37,274.64.

Third - round leader Johnny Pott and Kermit Zarley settled for a tie for second place at 286. Another stroke back were Fred Marti and Tony Lema.

Rodgers qualified for this week's United States Open in San Francisco in a sectional qualifier at a Detroit area course Tuesday.

Cheesemen Lose 9-0, Win 4-3

Lightfoot Construction blanked Black Diamond Cheese 9-0 behind the three-hit hurling of George Young in a postponed Commercial Softball League tilt Saturday night.

Young struck out ten of the Cheesemen and walked three. His mates got him one run in the first and broke up the tight game with a pair in the third and trios in the fourth and sixth.

Sonny Holloway allowed six hits in defeat, fanning three and passing five.

Les Hall was the lone Lightfoot player with two hits. He cracked a triple and a single, driving in the first run with his three-bagger. Don Wood clouted a two-run circuit blast in the third inning and George Young singled across two more in the fourth. Ron Smith and Jack Gilby had the other base hits.

Bob Jones singled twice and Dale Archer once for Black Diamond.

Black Diamond also had a postponed game Sunday night, winning this one by a tight 4-3 score over the slumping City Hotel squad.

The winners scored all their runs in the last inning and held City to a trio in a stirring rally.

Don Holloway pitched the win, touched for five hits. He struck out six and walked five.

Dave Feeney stayed the route despite the bad opening frame. He gave up seven hits, fanned one and walked one.

Four hits and an error told the tale in the first inning. A pair of City hits and the Cheesemen's lone bobble made it close in the sixth.

Gene Francis, Jack Douglas and Pat O'Connor had Black Diamond doubles. Ron Pointer, Jack Francis, Dale Archer and Don Holloway hit singles.

Tigers, Tribe, Orioles Tighten Race

Birds Get Fisher

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The best's on in the American League but Baltimore Orioles hope to get some relief.

Baltimore was expected to breeze to the league pennant but a pitching staff that has managed only 13 complete games in 65 starts has left the Orioles in a three-way struggle with Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers.

Frank and Brooks Robinson continued their slugging in an 9-1 romp over Boston Red Sox Sunday before the Orioles announced, what they hope will be a solution to the pitching problem, acquiring relief ace Eddie Fisher from Chicago White Sox in exchange for infielder Jerry Adair.

Brooks Robinson drove in two runs against the Red Sox for a league-leading total of 48 and Frank Robinson connected for his 15th homer and took over first place in that department.

Meanwhile, front-running Cleveland remained 11 percentage points in front of the Orioles by downing Washington Senators 6-3. Third - place Detroit slipped two back off a split with New York Yankees, winding the opener 7-5 before the Yankees took the nightcap 12-10.

Elsewhere, Minnesota Twins climbed into fourth place and hit the .500 mark with a 2-1 victory over the White Sox and Kansas City Athletics defeated California Angels 4-1.

On Saturday, New York defeated Detroit 6-3, Cleveland downed Washington 6-4, Boston walloped Baltimore 8-2, Minnesota edged Chicago 4-3, and California defeated Kansas City 4-3.

The Indians trailed the Senators 2-1 going into the seventh but struck for three runs and their fourth straight victory. Joe Azcue drove in two of the runs with a single, and Chico Salmon capped the rally with another run-producing single, his third hit of the game.

The Yankees and Tigers split 36 hits in their twinbill. Gates Brown's three-run homer and a two-run eighth inning belt on Ray Oyler's triple and a single by pitcher Dennis McLain got the job done for Detroit in the opener. Five homers, including three-run shots by Elston Howard and Lee Clinton, turned the tables for the Yankees in the nightcap.

Floyd Robinson's blunder in the eighth inning sent the White Sox down to their eighth defeat in as many games with the Twins. Robinson failed to throw home quickly on Tony Oliva's single and Cesar Tovar scored from first base with what proved to be the deciding run.

Rollie Sheldon and Jack Aker collaborated on a four-hitter in the Athletics victory over the Angels. Phil Roof knocked in two Kansas City runs.

Sport Club Bows to Parsons 2-1

Bellefville Parsons improved their position in the Kingston District Soccer League on Saturday by edging the Kingston German Sport Club 2-1 in a hard-fought defensive battle.

Parsons next game is scheduled for Tuesday, June 21, against Estaws, at the Belleville Fairgrounds.

Both goalies stood out in Kingston Saturday with Herb Moeller's play contributing greatly to Bellefville's victory.

The Sport Club carried play in the first twenty minutes and the pressure paid off when Hans Warns booted a high drive over Mueller's head for a 1-0 lead.

Parsons tied it on a hotly disputed goal. Sothey Madieros let go a fierce drive when the Sport Club goalie managed to hold against the goal post. However the referee ruled that it had been held over the goal line and it was a 1-1 contest.

The winners had more of the play in the second half but it took 25 minutes before Parsons bagged the winner on a three-way play. Alan Brown sent Madieros away on the right wing and his high cross shot was headed home by Bob Rutherford.

Outstanding for Bellevifle were Joe Romanio on left wing until he was injured late in the game, and Gary Pirka, at right back.

Nip Bobcats In 11th Homer Wins For Madoc

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA

MADOC — A dramatic 11th inning home run by Larry Griffin broke up a tight ball game and gave Madoc a 3-2 win over Belleville Bobcats in a B. and D. league battle here Saturday evening. Griffin, who had been signed by the club only moments before the game, slammed the towering shot over the centre fielder's head.

The victory was the initial one of the season for Madoc, after losing three straight.

A steady pitching performance by Wayne Shaw of Madoc was another key note of the game. He was touched for only five hits in 11 innings, striking out 10 and walking two.

On the opposing mound, Joe Barrons worked for seven innings. He gave up five hits, while fed two and walked one. Bob Lott came in to relieve him, and gave up two hits, one of them the disastrous game - losing homer. Lott threw third strikes past three and did not walk a man.

Les Mowat scored both of the Bobcat runs. In the second he lined a double and scored on a similar smash by John McKibbon.

Two frames later, Mowat walked, went to third on Paul Zakos' single, and scored when the Madoc third baseman, Bill Hughes, muffed the ball.

Darryl Kramp led off the eighth with a lined triple for Madoc. Next batter, Harold Bailey, grounded to the infield, and Kramp dashed home. The run counted as the Bobcat catcher dropped the ball. Bailey went to third on two singles and came home when Griffin smashed a long fly ball in the outfield.

In the tenth Jim Whyte of Belleville led off with a triple. With none out, Shaw struck out the next two batters and got out of the trouble alive.

Bill Hughes hit two singles, and Griffin and Kramp had a homer and triple respectively to lead Madoc at the plate. With singles were Les Masters, Al Reid and Harold Bailey.

Trades, Trade Talks Missing

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League swings into its four-day annual meetings here today with the initial sessions occupied by the rules committee and owners' meetings.

The usual surge of trades and trade talks that precede these sessions has been lacking this year, with the strategy apparently being to hold as many players as possible in preparation for the 1967-68 expansion draft.

In contrast, last season's spring market saw four trades involving 16 players take place before the meetings got under way.

This year, each of the four playoff clubs — Montreal, Chicago, Detroit and Toronto — must protect 18 players plus three netminders in the internal draft. Boston and New York, fifth and sixth place finishers, will have 20 and 20 respectively, plus their trio of goalies.

A change in procedure this year will see any team losing a player in Wednesday's draft being allowed to pick up the man dropped by the drafting team and place him on its reserve list as regular 1967-68 draft price.

San Pellock, Canadiens' general-manager, is in charge of the committee that will decide the number of players allotted to each new club in 1967.

PAID $2,000,000

The six new clubs — Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Los Angeles, San Francisco-Oakland and Minnesota - St. Paul - each paid a $2,000,000 entrance fee which includes the rights of 20 players.

The current owners have agreed "in principle" to a formula for stocking the new clubs with only the number of "rookies" to be decided.

The magic number agreed on by the current governors is said to be between nine and 11. This figure would be the number of players each existing club will be allowed to protect with each new club drawing the 18th player, then the existing team protecting the next and alternating thereafter.

Toronto Driver

Wins At Peterborough

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Don MacDonald of Toronto won the grand prix class Sunday at the eighth annual Peterborough power boat races at nearby Lily Lake.

Driving his 280-cubic-inch inboard, Color Flame, MacDonald finished the 174-mile course ahead of Ken Herwig of Sarnia, Howie Brown of Buffalo, N.Y., was third.

In earlier events, Phil Smith of Clarkson, Ont., won the air-racing runabout class and MacDonald won the 130-cubic-inch hydro class.

Phillips Sets Whiff Record

HOUSTON (AP) — Centre fielder Adolfo Phillips of Chicago Cubs set a major league record for striking out when he fanned for the eighth and ninth straight times during a National League game Saturday night against Houston Astros.

Houston's Bob Bruce struck Phillips out in the first and third innings before the young Cubs outfielder broke the string by flying out in the fourth inning.

Phillips struck out twice against Los Angeles Wednesday and five times against Houston Friday night.

The old record for players other than a pitcher was seven, by Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell in 1966.

ESCAPES UNHURT

Second place went to Ray Lenk of Chicago, who was 22 seconds behind Allen. Laverne Moore of Picton, Ont., was fifth.

Class winners included George Pudlow of Picton, first in E class. Second in that class was Charles Pudlow of Ottawa.

J. Alou Sent To Minors

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Catcher - outfielder Dick Dietz has been brought up from Phoenix to play for San Francisco Giants, while Giants outfielder Jesus Alou has been demoted to the Pacific Coast League club.

Dietz, 24, who got a estimated $90,000 bonus, batted .346 for Phoenix Giants through Saturday night.

Alou, 23, youngest of three baseball - playing Alous, had been benched most of this season on account of minor injuries and was batting only .222. As the Giants' regular right-fielder last year, he hit .287.

British Amateur To Cole

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) Bobby Cole, an 18 - year - old South African, defeated Scotland's Ronnie Shade 3 and 1 in the 18-hole final of the British amateur golf championship Saturday over Carnoustie's links.

Cole is the reigning South African junior champion and that was his greatest claim to fame until he won Saturday.

In the morning's semi-final, Shade defeated Gordon Cosh, British Walker Cup player, 2 and 1, and Cole defeated Henri de Lamaza, 40-year-old Frenchman, 2 and 1.

ASK GREATER RIGHTS

ST. THOMAS (CP)—A resolution seeking greater rights for defendants in murder cases was passed Saturday at the annual convention of the Ontario Young Social Credit Association. The resolution said defendants should have access to all reports of law agencies as does the Crown prosecutor and also to all facilities such as the attorney-general's laboratory.

For Giants, '49ers

Merger Means Millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York Giants and San Francisco '49ers will be about $14,000,000 richer as a result of the merger of the American and National football leagues, Shirley Povich, Washington Post sports columnist, reported Sunday.

Povich said that of an $18,500,000 indemnity paid by the AFL to the 15-team NFL, about $14,000,000 "was wrangled for themselves by a select few NFL clubs, the Giants and the San Francisco '49ers."

He said they were "able to demand a high price for their consent to the merger because (1) their two votes were needed to meet the requirement of unanimous approval and (2) they could validly claim they were the only two NFL clubs being asked to share in some territory with AFL teams."

Povich said the Giants will get about $6,000,000 and the 49ers about $6,000,000. The other 13 clubs are taking shares of about $307,700 each.

Povich said that for several days the NFL vote for merger was 13 to 2, before the two owners could persuade the Giants' Wellington Mara and 49ers' Lou Spadia to capitulate.

Povich quotes a rankling NFL figure as describing stormy scenes at NFL meetings, at which a majority of owners willingly gave peace in the coveted talent war with the well-spending AFL, raged at Mara and Spadia."

Jackie Stewart Injured

Surtees Wins Belgian Prix

FRANCORCHAMPS, Belgium (AP)—John Surtees of Britain, driving a new three-liter Ferrari, won the Belgian Grand Prix Sunday in a drama-packed race on a rain-slicked course.

Surtees zoomed into the lead at the start as a fine rain fell on the 15-car field. Within minutes, eight of the 15 drivers were out of the race when they ran into a rain squall at Burneville Road.

Two cars collided and started off a chain - reaction pile - up down the track, an ordinary Belgian highway.

Scotsman Jackie Stewart was the only driver injured in the same type of a jam that interrupted the Indianapolis 500 on Memorial Day. Stewart spun off into a field and ended up trapped inside the cockpit of his overturned tree-liter BRM, his overalls soaked in gasoline.

HAS 112.9 AVERAGE

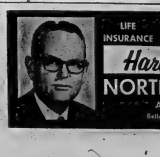
Surtees was time in 2 hours, 9 minutes, 11.3 seconds for the 245.3 miles, an average speed of 113.9 miles per hour.

Austria's Joachim Rindt in a Cooper - Maserati was second and Italian Lorenzo Bandini in a Ferrari was third, one and two laps respectively behind the winner.

Jack Brabham of Australia placed fourth in a Repco-Brabham and Ritchie Ginther of Granada Hills, Calif., was fifth in a Cooper-Maserati.

Guy Ligier of France, in a Cooper-Maserati, and Dan Gurney of Costa Mesa, Calif., in an Eagle Climax, did not complete the full 28 circuits and were not classed.



Surtees turned in the fastest lap, circling the 8.76 mile course in 4:18.7, for an average of 125.9 m.p.h.

Leafs Win Three Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs, who won only 12 games in their first 36 International League starts this season, recorded their 14th and 15th victories in the last 23 games Sunday.

The resurgent Leafs, after splitting a doubleheader with Richmond Braves Saturday, blanked both ends of a twin bill 8-4 and 3-2 to climb into sixth place.

Elsewhere Sunday, Columbus Jets walloped Syracuse Chiefs 20-3, buffalo Chiefs won the second game 5-2, Rochester Red Wings defeated Toledo Mud Hens 2-0 and 5-2, and Buffalo Bisons defeated Jacksonville Suns, 9-5.

Canada Finishes Ninth

BLACKPOOL, England (CP) Canada finished ninth and last Saturday as the Tour of Britain bicycle race, dominated by Poland and the Soviet Union, wound up after 15 days and 1,500 miles.

Poland's Joseph Gawlicrek won the over-all individual title and the U.S.S.R. won the team championship. Poland was second and Britain third.

Only three of the eight Canadians who started the tour here May 28 finished.

At the Belle

Remarkable Achievement of Lerner-Loewe demonstrated in Creation of "My Fair Lady"

When Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe encountered each other one day some 20 years ago, musical history was begun. The remarkable achievement of these two men was demonstrated in the words and music of Warner Bros. "My Fair Lady," showing Today and Tuesday at the Belle Theatre direct from its record-setting run.

The Lerner - Loewe union began with a show called "The Life of the Party," which was written in 13 days and ran for nine weeks in Detroit. Their first Broadway production was "What's Up?" in 1943. It was followed by "The Day Before Spring" two years later. "Brigadoon" appeared in 1947 and "Paint Your Wagon" in 1951. The tremendous success of "My Fair Lady," opening in 1956 and running six and one half years, followed.

In their collaborative work, Lerner usually came up with the song title and the first line, after which Loewe took over and started to write the music. Lerner's lyrics have been described as being like sterling cut glass, while Loewe thinks of music in terms of color.

"Gigi," in Technicolor and Panavision, the motion picture was directed by George Cukor and produced by Jack L. Warner. Cecil Beaton designed the sets and costumes for the movie and Audrey Previn supervised the music.

"My Fair Lady," showing Today and Tuesday at the Belle Theatre is winner of eight Academy Awards, including best picture, best actor, best director.

Gleason's Replacement For Summer Entertaining

By CYNTHIA LOWERY

NEW YORK (AP)—Summer replacements of variety shows with other variety shows on network television usually have the unimaginative look and sound of low-budget programs.

CBS' Continental Showcase, which took over Jackie Gleason's Saturday night spot this weekend, seemed to have all the characteristics of the typical summer replacement. It was a program of assorted vaudeville and night club acts tied together with a vague overall title. It was made in Europe—production costs are lower there—and it was held together by an American host, in this case Jim Backus of Gilligan's Island.

As it turned out, Continental Showcase was a happy surprise—an entertaining hour with good talent, interesting and offbeat backgrounds and good camera work.

The Buckingham Palace guard band played a zippy Sousa march.

In addition to the British acts featuring in their hour, there was an effective folk-singing team from Israel, France's popular singing star Gilbert Becaud and Germany's Kessler Twins — who have been seen often on American television before. And there was a most interesting and unusual version of a West Side Story dance.

CBS will follow its Death of a Salesman with two dramatic treats next season—the Tennessee Williams' The Glass Menagerie and Arthur Miller's The Crucible. Both will be two-hour treatments.

NBC has signed up the same production team to present a two-hour adaptation of Odbello with Sidney Poitier in the title role.

— PARACHUTES OFF —

TRACONA, Man. (CP) — Rain, high winds and low clouds Sunday washed out the start of the Canadian parachuting championships for the second consecutive day. Twelve Ontario jumpers are entered.

Beatrice Lillie to Play First Role in 26 Years

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —That irrepressible sprite from Britain, Beatrice Lillie, is here to play her first Hollywood role in 26 years.

Her last film here was Dr. Rythm with Bing Crosby in 1938.

She was having a day off from Thoroughly Modern Millie, and she didn't like it one bit.

"I would much rather be working with all those darlings at Universal," she said. Besides, she hinted, they might be doing things behind her back.

She expressed admiration for the star of Millie, Julie Andrews.

"What a lively, lovely girl, and what a great talent. I shall have to do something about those girls. Toomuch talent."

MUFFS MURDER

Miss Lillie plays a talent agent for an Oriental white slavery ring and throughout the movie she tries to do in Mary Tyler Moore. But she turns out to be a maladroit murderess and all her schemes—poison darts, lethal gas, etc.—go awry.

Miss Lillie's adventures into the cinema have been sporadic. After she had established herself as a superb comedienne in Charlot's revues, she made only a silent, Exit Smiling. She did routines in an early talkie or two, then Dr. Rythm in 1938.

Still fondly remembered by comedy buffs is On Approval, which she made in 1943 with Clive Brook. Except for a cameo in Around the World in 80 Days, that has been the extent of her movie career.

How does she manage to remain ever youthful?

"Clean living and clean thinking," she replied.

AT THE PARK — Barry Gordon, who pictured above from the screen for his performances in the stage version of "A Thousand Clowns" repeats his role and the associated Tony Award winning role of Nick in the Jason Robards, Barbara Harris and Academy Award Best Supporting Actor Martin Balsam, "A Thousand Clowns" is being released by United Artists and is currently playing at the Park Theatre. Continuous shows are at 7.00 and 9.10 p.m.

AT THE PARK — Jason Robards reminds Barbara Harris of the little red car in the circus that throws open its doors to emit a thousand clowns, whooping and hollering. It's a key scene from "A Thousand Clowns," now at the Park Theatre, through United Artists release. The comedy introduces Barry Gordon as Robards' nephew, and was written by Herb Gardner, author of the original Broadway hit. Academy Award Best Supporting Actor Martin Balsam also stars. Complete shows are at 7.00 and 9.10 p.m.

AT THE BELLE — Wednesday — Pilot Jimmy Stewart, Navigator Richard Attenborough and Passenger Hardy Kruger try to make an emergency landing during a sandstorm in the Sahara Desert in Robert Aldrich's production of "The Flight of the Phoenix", a 20th Century-Fox release in DeLuxe Color, opening Wednesday at the Belle Theatre in Belleville. Also in the cast are Peter Finch and Ernest Borgnine.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Witnessing an age-old tribal rain dance in this scene from Joseph E. Levine's exciting adventure-drama, "Dingaka," are Stanley Baker and Juliet Prowse, who co-star in the Embassy Pictures release which opens tonight at the Belleville Drive-In theatre in color and wide screen. Also featuring the picture, also in color and wide screen "The Skull" features Peter Cushing, Patrick Wymark and Christopher Lee.

Blistering Letter Fulton's Answer To Spence's Offer

Second Night of Violence

By JERRY KUC

CHICAGO (AP) — Police fought with more than 1,000 rioting Puerto Ricans Monday night in the second straight night of violence on Chicago's northwest side.

Seven Puerto Ricans were shot and wounded and 37 more were arrested before the rioting was brought under control early today, police said.

Police said one of the men was shot when he threw a firebomb and the other shot apparently were hit by stray bullets.

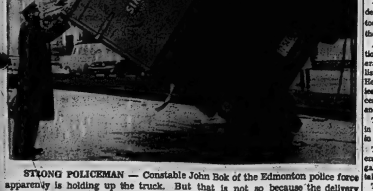
Hospital authorities had no count of the injured treated.

Looting was reported in some stores in the area. Glass from broken store windows littered the streets where Puerto Rican youths walked until signs cleared police brutality.

Puerto Rican spokesmen said they planned a protest march today to city hall in downtown Chicago.

KIKE SHOTS

Police opened at an intersection some four blocks from the rally and fired warning shots as a crowd threw stones and bottles at police cars.



Police closed the rioting back beside a tavern after firebombs were thrown—lighting up the street as gasoline exploded.

Blue-helmeted officers, with guns drawn and wielding heavy wooden night sticks, chased the group, which included the seven men wounded.

More than 200 policemen finally put down the riot after sealing downs who refused to leave when given an ultimatum to go home or be arrested.

The area where the two nights of rioting occurred contains some 40,000 Spanish - speaking persons.

The violence began Sunday after a policeman shot a Puerto Rican youth. Police said the youth was armed and was trying to escape. On both nights, more than 1,000 persons clashed with police.

OTTAWA (CP) — Davie Fulton Monday accused Mr. Justice Wishart Spence of flouting his own legal ruling and of non-judicial and improper attitudes and actions in the Gerda Munsinger inquiry.

The former Conservative justice minister fired off 2,700 blistering words in a letter sharply rejecting an invitation to be heard again before Mr. Justice Spence submits a report on the security investigation to the federal cabinet.

Mr. Fulton said he bases his decision "on the obvious fact that you are prepared to make a finding without specifying charges and that my appearance would therefore be pointless" and "on the conclusion that the whole proceeding is wrong in principle, and is a waste of time, money and effort."

"Insofar as I am accountable for my judgments and actions, it is not to this commission or its counsel, but to the Parliament and people of Canada."

"... nothing in the world could or should induce me to appear before you again as it is obvious that on useful purpose could be served thereby," Mr. Fulton wrote.

RELEASES TEXTS

Mr. Fulton made public a text of his letter and of a letter to him from Mr. Justice Spence, the Supreme Court of Canada justice appointed by the Liberal cabinet to inquire into allegations by Justice Minister Cardin last March.

Mr. Cardin had said Mrs. Munsinger, a German who lived in Canada from 1955 until 1961, had been active in espionage for the Soviet Union, was a security risk and had been involved with two or more Conservative cabinet ministers.

The inquiry under Mr. Justice Spence ended hearings last month into the relationship of the blonde Mrs. Munsinger with the cabinet colleagues of former prime minister John Diefenbaker.

Pierre Sevigny, former associate defence minister, admitted to the inquiry that he had a physical relationship with Mrs. Munsinger.

Mr. Cardin sparked the inquiry with a question in the Commons about the "Monseignor" affair and a later press conference outside the Commons in which he said two

Hoffa To Retain Control

By NEIL GILBRIDE

WASHINGTON (AP) — James R. Hoffa confirmed today that if he goes to prison he intends to resume the presidency of the Teamsters Union, the world's largest, when he gets out.

Without commenting directly on his two federal convictions, Hoffa said he plans to rewrite the union's constitution to restore himself to power if he becomes "unavailable" for a while.

Hoffa chatted amiably and frankly, despite 13 years in pending prison sentences, in an interview outlining plans for the Teamsters' July 4 convention in Miami Beach.

Hoffa is expected to be re-elected to a new five-year term by a declaration when the approximately 2,220 convention delegates meet.

He spelled out fully for the first time the proposed constitutional change to create a new post of general vice-president, or executive vice-president.

WOULD SUCCEED

The general vice - president would automatically succeed Hoffa if he lost his appeals and went to prison, or became unavailable for any other reason.

If Hoffa again became "available" before the end of his regular five-year term as president, the vice-president automatically would step back down for Hoffa to resume his post as union chief—all without a spe-

Warn Mississippi Marchers Foes on Watch for Scandal

GRENADA, Miss. (AP)—Men and women of the Mississippi march, warned that hostile eyes are alert for scandalous behavior, spent another night on a grassy campsite. Nine miles of walking and another voter registration demonstration are on today's schedule.

They bedded down in two bags tents, in sleeping bags or on blankets spread on grass after Floyd B. McKissick, a march leader, admonished them:

"Remember Selma? A man got up in Congress after that and said civil rights people are immoral, that they were doing very personal things in the presence of each other."

McKissick, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, referred to accusations by segregationist groups after the Alabama march from Selma to Montgomery last year.

The ragged column, moving along the freshly-moved shoulder of U.S. 51, added nearly 14 miles to the total Monday. It stopped nine miles out of Grenada. The number of marchers fluctuates daily as some join, others leave. There have been as many as 600 and as few as 125.

The KKK signature of the Ku Klux Klan, the fiercely segregationist secret organization, was written with spray paint on U.S. 51, on trash barrels and on road signs.

Strike of Service Stations Started in South Waterloo

PRESTON, Ont. (CP) — Despite warnings by oil companies that they would lose their leases, 24 South Waterloo service station dealers closed their pumps at 7 a.m. today.

The Preston, Galt and Hespeler dealers are trying to get a "fair price" for gasoline which they said is sold at cut-rate prices to unbranded dealers by the major gasoline companies.

A shutdown vote was taken at a meeting of the South Waterloo branch of the Canadian Superior Auto Services Association Monday night. Three of the 60 members voted not to shut down by and several of the 24 who voted for the 24-hour closing said they had been threatened with the loss of their lease if they took part.

A committee of shut - down dealers is visiting open stations today to persuade them to join the protest.

A spokesman said the association wants a provincial or federal royal commission established to look into the situation. He said major gasoline companies are selling gas seven to eight cents cheaper to trucking firms and unbranded dealers.

There is one unbranded dealer in Galt, one in Preston and none in Hespeler.

The spokesman said the dealers now make 6.8 cents on a gallon from regular gasoline retailing at 48.5 cents.

The dealers said they will visit one community a day across Ontario asking service station operators to join their protest. They will be in Barrie Wednesday and Sarnia Thursday.

A 24-hour shut-down started in Orangeville Monday continues today.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Another area of low cloud drizzle and rain with cool temperatures just north of Lake Superior will push slowly eastward across the upper Great Lakes today and tonight. ## Dockers Given Wage Increase, Same Work Gangs

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiators for Quebec's 4,250 striking longshoremen and their employers reached agreement early today on a two-year contract involving a wage increase of 80 cents per hour.

The dockworkers, whose walkout has crippled shipping on the St. Lawrence since May 9, also won a guarantee that work gangs will not be reduced for the duration of the contract.

The agreement was announced by Prime Minister Pearson at 2:14 a.m. EDT after he mediated the labor dispute in late-night talks lasting 3½ hours.

The agreement must be ratified by the striking workers in Montreal, Trois - Rivieres and Quebec and by the full membership of the Shipping Federation of Canada.

But negotiators on both sides agreed to recommend ratification and they expressed confidence that this will be done.

WILL VOTE WEDNESDAY

Members of the International Longshoremen's Association (CLC) were expected to meet Wednesday to vote on the agreement. Union spokesmen predicted a return to work late Wednesday or Thursday.

Terms of the agreement were not announced by Mr. Pearson, but ILA public relations adviser Norman Olson told reporters that it will run from Jan. 1, 1966, to Dec. 31, 1967. Main provisions:

—A 40-cent hourly wage increase retroactive to last Jan. 1, when the last contract expired. The boost will apply to overtime as well as to regular time worked since then.

—A 20-cent boost Jan. 1, 1967, and another 20-cent increase the following June 1.

—The shipping firms' plan to reduce work gangs to 16 men from 18 will be shelved at least until Dec. 31, 1967. This result of automation on the docks will have wiped out about 600 jobs.

Other terms of the agreement were to be announced by Labor Minister Nicholson at the opening of the Commons sitting at 2:30 p.m. EDT. He was expected to propose an industrial inquiry into automation and its effects on the work force.

TROUBLES NOT OVER

The agreement in Mr. Pearson's office ended a long day of crisis and suspense on Parliament hill. The government's labor troubles are not over, however.

Ground employees of Air Canada have vowed to strike Wednesday and employees of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority are threatening to walk out Friday to back up wage demands. Federal mediators are working for settlements in both disputes.

Mr. Pearson thanked the following for working hard to reach an agreement:

W. R. Eakin, president of the Shipping Federation; Judge

Financial Measures Criticized

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — Government measures covering student loans, civil service pension rights, a Bank of Canada amendments and bankruptcy drew opposition criticism in the Commons Monday.

Revenue Minister Benson bowed to opposition demands and agreed to send a complex pension bill to a Senate-Commons joint committee for detailed study.

Richard A. Bell (PC—Carleton) said it needed this kind of examination because only an actuary could understand it.

The bill was given second reading, approval in principle. Its aim is to merge the pension plans of diplomats, soldiers, the RCMP, and civil servants generally with the national plan. It also improves portability and death benefits for some.

Earlier approval was given to a resolution to increase to $35,000,000 from $42,000,000 the federal contribution for loans to university students in the current academic year. Legislation based on the resolution was given first reading.

GIVEN SECOND READING

Amendments to the Bank of Canada Act got second reading. The key change authorizes the government to give the central bank first option on money in tory policy in the event of any cabinet-bank conflict. The bill was sent to the standing committee on finance and economic affairs for detailed scrutiny.

Solicitor - General Pennell gained second reading for a bill to tighten the laws governing fraudulent bankruptcies.

Erik Nielsen (PC — Yukon), who has been pushing hard for full-scale investigation into fraudulent bankruptcies, consented to fast passage when assured of promises of intensive examination and debate later. Mr. Pennell said this bill is an in-

Court Ruling on Questioning Of Suspects Irks U.S. Police

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. law enforcement officials fired a salvo of protests today at the Supreme Court's new decision on strict rules on the questioning of suspects.

The ruling by the U.S. high court Monday covers every police station and sheriff's office in the land.

What the court did in a 5-to-4 decision announced by Chief Justice Earl Warren was rule out of bounds in trials all incriminating statements made by a suspect who is not cautioned that against possible self-incrimination are a set safeguarded by the police.

The court laid down these rules which police must follow scrupulously before attempting to question an arrested suspect:

1. He must be told he has the right to stay silent.

2. He must be told anything he says may be used against him in court.

3. He must be told he has the right to have a lawyer with him during questioning.

4. He must be told that, if he wants a lawyer but can't afford one, one will be provided for him free.

5. If, after being told all this, a convicted suspect says he does not want a lawyer and is willing to be questioned, he may be provided he reached his decision "knowingly and intelligently."

6. If, after being told all his rights, a suspect agrees to be questioned, he can shut off the questions any time after they have started, whether or not he has a lawyer with him.

An obvious byproduct of the decision is that confessions will have to meet a stiff test of voluntariness to be of any use in court. This may mean police will have to put greater stress on investigations to solve crimes.

Several police officials across the U.S. said their work will be hindered by the ruling, but Police Chief Harold Dill of Denver said: "They make a big thing of confessions, but if you don't have any evidence you can't convict anyone anyway."

To Rush Grain To Reds

By ROSEMARY SPIERS

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian importers and exporters hope Ottawa negotiators have found the cure to a gigantic headache — the Quebec longshoremen's strike now 37 days old.

Union spokesmen predicted a return to work at Montreal, Quebec City and Trois-Rivieres as early as Wednesday.

Deaconbo whose officials are eager to see the strike settled so they can ship the last of a $450,000,000 wheat order to Russia.

About 57 ships are reported strike-bound in Montreal Harbor alone—some unable to load for foreign ports, others carrying building materials, textiles, feed grain, French perfumes and other processed products.

A National Harbors Board official said grain elevators in Montreal are filled to capacity with 22,000,000 bushels of wheat.

MAY CATCH UP

But Canadian wheat board spokesmen said if the strike ends in the next few days, the board may be able to complete Canada's grain deal with Russia.

But he wondered if wheat board negotiators travelling to Russia this month will find the U.S.S.R. anxious to place an order for 1967. He was worried about the effect of a planned 22,000,000 bushel shipment to Iran. It is due to be loaded in July and August.

Quebec City port authorities said the number of bushels of grain being handled there each day has dropped to 125,000 from 1,100,000.

G. L. Harrold, president of the Alberta Wheat Pool, estimates the strike in the three ports has already cut Canadian wheat shipments by 30,000,000 to 35,000,000 bushels "which will be difficult if not impossible to make up in the future."

Foreign buyers have made no offers for Canadian grain since the strike began May 9 because of the uncertainty of delivery, he said.

A shut-down of work on pipelines at the 1967 Montreal world's fair due to lack of supplies has been creating what one

Beatle Bandit Was Referred To Psychiatrists

KINGSTON (CP) — Matthew Kerry Smith, the Beatle bandit who bled to death in a Kingston penitentiary cell Monday, had twice been referred to psychiatrists for fits of depression, Deputy Warden Edgar Babcock said in an interview.

Smith, serving a life term for the gun-slaying of a Toronto man who tried to intervene in a July, 1964, bank robbery, was found dead about 5:45 a.m. Monday with his left wrist slashed to the bone. A razor blade was found by his side.

He had been alive at 4:45 when a guard made a routine check.

In both referrals to a psychiatrist, Smith was pronounced fit for normal association with other prisoners, Mr. Babcock said. He described Smith as a quiet prisoner.

Land Dispute In Township Still Boiling

TRENTON — About the most un-peaceful spot in the area is the New York Road area in Murray Township. Events there threaten to put the Viet Nam war in the shade.

No word has been received of the delayed decision of County Judge J. C. Carruthy of Cobourg regarding a dispute between the Trenton Public Utilities Commission and the Township of Murray over a right-of-way across of land in the township. The PUC claims it needs the land for construction of a water storage pond and Mr. Alyea says he won't sell the land because it would cut his farm in two. Expropriation proceedings were instituted by the town and the PUC but Mr. Alyea said he would forcibly remove any workmen who set foot on the land and is reported to be patrolling the area with a shotgun under his arm.

Meanwhile, the township council of Murray is attempting to buy up 17 feet of land either side of the new development road, between Alyea's and Sharpes Bridge and Highway 33.

One owner, Van Lange, is reported to have told surveyors employed by the town "pull out my stakes put on his hoods" The surveyor phoned township clerk, Anne Gomber for direction and Mr. Gomber told him to proceed with his work, and that action on the part of council would be taken at any action on the part of Mr. Van Lange.

Other owners in the area, G. Little, Jr. Little and Dr. L. Little, and Blacks have not yet reached an agreement with council as to the sale of the land, but Mr. Gunter said today he was sure some agreement could be worked out.

Both cars were found on the west bank of the river, behind the Bata Shoe Company warehouse in the Quinte Mall.

Many New Classes Will Be Added to Trade Unions Prediction of Labor Leader

A prediction that bank clerks, nurses, draftsmen, professional engineers, school teachers, civil servants and plumbers will soon be entering the trade union movement was made by Bernt Welabach, executive secretary, Ontario Federation of Labor, at the Belleville and District Labor Council last night.

"This will mean that people with new outlooks, opinions, ideas and a whole new philosophy will enter our unions," he told the 20 people gathered at Club Carsera for the Labor Council's last meeting of the season. "This will also mean we will have to adopt new policies and in some cases make some rather startling departures from past practices and established trade union traditions."

He said it is even possible the use of the strike weapon will have to be carefully looked at.

"If we are too proud, too stubborn, or just plain too stupid to change, then unions will slowly diminish as a force in this community."

Mr. Welabach listed injunctions in labor disputes as one of the most serious problems being faced by unions today. He said, "injunctions are being sought to enable the employer to hire strikebreakers and keep a strike-bound plant running.

"If we are unable to fight the use of injunctions in courts, then this fight must be carried into the political arena. Laws governing our members must realize that since the strength of the unions is growing constantly, the employers will fight us at every level. We must hit back with increased political action."

HURT BE INFORMED

Mr. Welabach said unions will have to develop people who are much better informed on a variety of subjects than ever before.

"The great array of problems that today confront our modern society are almost beyond comprehension. Automation, technological change, space exploration, the constant threat of atomic war, are but a few.

"In their wake they leave problems of unemployment, job dislocation, forced leisure, early retirement, juvenile delinquency, race hatred, increased mental illness, alcoholism, drug addiction, ulcers, heart conditions and so forth."

He said it is not surprising that unions have become more active in the political arena.

"Only by assuring that people with knowledge and understanding of our unions and needs of their members are elected to government at every level, can we hope to have a voice in such matters as medicare, pensions and others."

Robert L. Pearce, executive director, United Community Services, also addressed the dinner meeting briefly, outlining the work of the Belleville United Community Social Service Area Planning Council. D. G. Bishshaw, international representative, Steel Workers Organizing and Lime Workers, also addressed the labor council. Labor Council president George Dalidard chaired the meeting.

4-Way Stop Soon at Pine And Bleecker

That two-way stop at the corner of Pine and Bleecker is very soon to become a 4-way stop.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said today that the sign posts are in and on Wednesday, June 22nd, the present orange flasher light will be changed to red and the four-way stop signs will be erected.

The four-way stop at the above intersection was voted earlier this year by city council in an effort to ease a traffic hazard problem caused by increasing vehicular traffic in the area.

Hog Producers Will Stage Barrow Class at Fair Here

One of three such shows to be held this year in Ontario, a special barrow class competition sponsored by the Ontario Hog Producers' Association will be featured at Belleville Fair.

The show will be open to any boy or girl 25 years or under and only 3 entries will be accepted.

There will be three divisions to the class — Yorkshire, Landrace-Lacombe, and Grand Cross. To be eligible hogs must be of market weight, between 190 and 220 pounds.

The special hog show will be a first-day feature of the fair, with all entries to be on the grounds not later than 11 a.m. the day of the show — August 15th.

Prize money for each of the three divisions will be: champion — $25; reserve — $15; 3rd and 4th — $10 and 5th, $5.

Hogs placing either as champion or reserve champion in each of the three divisions in the special barrow class may be entered in the Hog Producers' special carcass class, with the awards for this all-Ontario class to be made at the Ontario Hog Producers' annual meeting to be held in Toronto next March.

Cash prizes for the special carcass class are: grand champion $30; reserve champion $20; with two $15 prizes and eight prizes of $10.

In Belleville yesterday arranging for the show were R. D. Kohler, assistant general manager of the Ontario Hog Producers' Marketing Board. With local fair officials, Mr. Kohler inspected show facilities at the fairgrounds.

Old Town Bylaw Found In Tower of City Hall

It's been quite a few years since most by the quarter has been offered for sale on the Belleville market, but the practice is an old one, dating back for more than 100 years.

The original by-law No. 104 — was passed in February, 1864, and was amended a short time later.

Two years ago Ford Chick, Magill Street, Trenton, found the amending by-law in the city hall tower, while he was working for a local TV retailer. The by-law was handwritten in ink and with a quill.

City Clerk Adam Stalker is at a loss to say how the old by-law got into the city hall tower. In any event, it has little but historic value as all the by-laws were consolidated about a quarter of a century ago.

Following is the wording of the old amending by-law:

BYE LAW NO. 131

A Bye Law to amend Bye Law No 104 passed 19th February 1864

Whereas it is expedient to amend that part of Bye Law number one hundred and four respecting the sale of meat by the quarters in the market.

Be it therefore enacted by the Council of the Corporation of the Town of Belleville and it is hereby enacted

That the whole of section No 27 of the said Bye Law No 104 together with the proviso thereto annexed be and the same is hereby repealed and the following section substituted therefor (that is to say) That all butchers meat that shall and may be offered for sale or disposed of in the market or on the market grounds by any other than a lessee, or occupants of a Butchers Stall in the market shall be subject to the following charges in addition to the charges on the Waggon, Sleigh or Vehicles in which the same may be brought (namely) for every Quarter of Beef — 10 cents, For every Quarter of Veal, Mutton or Lamb — 5 cents, For every Carcas or part of a Carcas not less than a quarter of pork not exceeding one hundred pounds in weight — 3 cents, The same exceeding one hundred pounds — 5 cents."

That this Bye Law shall take effect from and after the first day of March next.

Czech Shows Rotary Scenes Of Native Land

The youngest alderman ever elected in the city of Zlin, Czechoslovakia, addressed yesterday's Rotary Luncheon meeting. Dorarian Stan Kvarda held the post before coming to Canada 26 years ago. He accompanied the showing of the slides he took behind the Iron Curtain last year with a commentary on his trip.

Mr. Kvarda's journey began at Copenhagen and he passed through East Berlin on his way to Prague. Zlin was the pre-war headquarters of the Bata Shoe Company, now under state control. Slides of the city ranged from crumbling buildings to a modern theatre.

The speaker noted that when purchasing a car in Czechoslovakia a down payment of half the purchase price was necessary to place the buyer on a waiting list for five or six years. He also discovered that there were five motels in the entire country. However, slides of the alpine regions of Czechoslovakia depicted breathtaking scenery as a contrast to the sometimes depressing city street scenes.

Rotarian Nick Mika introduced Mr. Kvarda and he was thanked by past president Stan Reston.

House Will Proceed With Consumer Bill

TORONTO (CP)—The government intends to proceed at this session of the legislature with a bill to protect consumers that also calls for the fair disclosure of the cost of credit.

Earlier in the session Attorney - General Arthur Wishart said the bill would only be debated this year but confirmed Monday published reports the government had changed its mind.

Mr. Wishart was replying to a question before the orders of the day from Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party.

He did not say why there had been a change in plans and was not available immediately outside the house for comment.

A companion bill also presented in April provides for the establishment of a consumer protection bureau. It would be given broad powers by legislation to wipe out consumer frauds, especially by door-to-door salesmen.

The consumer-protection bill also proposes the registration of door-to-door salesmen and the setting up of a two-day "cooling off" period during which householders could repudiate a contract signed with a door-to-door salesman.

Hopes Changes to Improve Traffic Movement at Fair

Something new is being added at the Belleville Fair Grounds and fair officials feel a big improvement will be noticed for "in-ground" traffic, when fair time rolls around in August.

Possibly the biggest change noticeable from the grandstand is the new fence which has been constructed around the outside perimeter of the racetrack.

Currently the new wood of the fence posts and horizontal planking is showing, but Fair president Dr. Harry Burns says the fence will be sporting a coat of paint before the fair opens.

Included among the changes it will be a new south-side gateway to the grounds and towage fair infield. The present gate-way between the curling club building and the grandstand is being closed and new gateways opened west of the curling club building.

Also this year a new roadway will pass completely around the fairgrounds outside the race-track. This will allow cars to pass completely around the grounds and outside the sheep and swine pens west and north of the track.

There will also be a marked change at the Sidney and Cathcrine street entrance.

Here the small building which formerly housed the fire department truck will be moved. The west end of one of the open air cattle barns will also be moved to allow opening of Sidney Street through the fair grounds.

The fire truck barn will be moved to another location, while the end of the cattle barn will be moved to the other end of the barn. This retaining the same number of cattle stalls.

The city public works department says the Sidney entrance will be opened through the grounds well before fair time.

During the four days of the fair, however, the "through" Sidney street route across the fairgrounds will be closed.

Parlez Vous Francais?

Staid old Toronto is not so staid anymore. Indeed, the word no longer fits.

Nor is Toronto the bastion of Anglo-Saxon conformity it once was. Its city hall — the brainchild of a Finnish architect — its continental restaurants, lively theatre-going public and interest in the creative arts, betokens a new awakening in this swift-moving community.

The acquisition of an expensive piece of sculpture by British sculptor Henry Moore, for display in the city hall, is another straw in the cultural wind. So too is the selling of flowers from street stalls.

Now another interesting trend has been set in motion in the city with Marc Foisy's one-man campaign to make French magazines and books available to Torontonians, as well as to visiting French-Canadians. Surprising as it may seem, three-quarters of his customers are English-speaking Torontonians, many of them learning French.

Mr. Foisy is also providing another, peculiarly Gallic, touch by selling French perfumes as well soap, cigarets and candles.

French is catching on in Canada in a manner which must be cause for satisfaction among French Canadians, not to mention those who can turn bilingual skills to good use, as interpreters, in business dealings or simply while vacationing overseas.

For example, a salary bonus for some bilingual typists and secretaries in the civil service will be introduced in a few weeks, according to Ottawa reports.

A new bicultural program involving top-level officials will be launched in September. Some 60 English-speaking officials and their families will be transferred to Montreal and other French-speaking cities for 12 months. French families will spend a year in English-speaking centres.

Those who cast doubt on the value of French should realize it is one of the major languages of international diplomacy and of day-to-day social and business dealings. With English and French, there are few places in which the traveller cannot make himself understood.

Quite apart from that, how much more interesting life can be for the vacationer if he is lucky enough to find himself in such exotic isles as Martinique and Guadeloupe in the Caribbean, or further afield in Tahiti or New Caledonia, or in France itself, or even in foggy St. Pierre and Miquelon and can converse in French.

Ghana Spy Ring

The long-held suspicion that deposed President Nkrumah of Ghana was rushing headlong toward the establishment of an African Cuba which would be the base for centres of Communist subversive activities on that continent is confirmed by a report from Accra.

In a copyright story, New York Times writer Lloyd Garrison says Ghana's military government has uncovered a spy network linked with Moscow, East Berlin and Peking.

Ghanaian agents infiltrated the Accra summit conference of the Organization of African Unity last November, posing as stenographers, clerks and the like. Delegates' hotel rooms were bugged in the James Bond style.

High on Nkrumah's subversion list were Tanzania and Zambia — each government in fact which stood in the way of Nkrumah's dream of Pan Africanism. Nkrumah saw himself as a sort of Messiah at the head of a vast Marxist-style African socialist republic.

The new military government still has only part of this incredible tale of African intrigue. Intelligence officers are only half way through the 30,000 secret documents which came to light following the coup.

But the spy organization itself has been broken up, and the East German advisors sent home, not to mention the huge Chinese "mission," whose task had included training Ghanaian saboteurs.

As for Nkrumah — leader of the first African nation to acquire independence from Britain, a Commonwealth privy councillor and Marxist, agent provocateur and would-be African James Bond, in fact a man of many parts — he remains in exile in neighboring Guinea, pledging to return but probably reflecting mainly on what might have been.

Juliette

Amid storm and controversy in other spheres of television programming and administration, there is one personality whose charm and brashness will long endure in the hearts of Canadian viewers.

Juliette has taped her last regular television network show, and there was a touch of sadness in the occasion. A regular feature for years after the Saturday night hockey game, her show is being dropped by the CBC next season.

But Juliette, of the sweet nature and pleasant uncomplicated style of singing, will still be around. Plans such as hers is not to be denied and we may expect to see her again in other programs, perhaps as a freelance.

King Charles I of England suffered the final crushing defeat at the hands of the Parliamentary army that year, was today, 1646 — at the battle of Naseby. The battle was decided by the superior discipline of Cromwell's New Model Army, which did not break when attacked and was able to allow itself to thin out when in pursuit of the royalists. The Parliamentarians captured 100 standards and all the king's mortars and cannon — thus ending Charles' resistance.

Stratford Festival

Montreal Gazette

The Stratford Festival is now a firmly established institution, providing some of the best legitimate theatre anywhere in the world. It is a good time to remind ourselves of this fact during the week when the Festival opens its 14th season.

It certainly doesn't seem like 14 years ago that Mr. Tom Patterson saw a dream become a reality in the tiny town in Ontario. The first theatre was a tent; the reaction was Canadian and Americans was an unknown quantity.

If there was some doubt about the wisdom of this daring venture in the early nineteen-fifties, there is not much doubt about it now. Stratford, Ontario, is firmly entrenched as a theatrical centre of considerable reputation throughout the world. It is an outstanding Canadian achievement, if in fact it isn't. Canadian achievements have not been many.

Strictly Personal

Weather Hits Farm Economy

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In the Wisconsin county where I spend my summers, about half of the cherry crop was ruined by the May freeze. Since fruit farming, along with shipbuilding, is the main source of incomes there, the natives face a bleak year.

One of the things that has most astonished me in the modern world is our apparent inability to control the conditions of agriculture, in terms of weather and climate. Little of our magnificent technology has been applied to protecting the crops from the ravages of temperature and precipitation.

Nearly every other aspect of our social and economic life has been improved and controlled by many ingenious devices. While it is true that advances in agronomy have enabled us to grow larger and better crops with much less labor than in the past, it remains that the farmer is still mainly at the mercy of too much heat, too much cold, too much rain, or too much drought.

Our failure to solve, or even ameliorate, this problem may account for the fact that farmers are still pretty much the same the world over, whereas urban dwellers tend to differ from one another in many important respects. The British and French farmers are quite alike, for instance, while Londoners and Parisians are quite different.

For the many thousands of years of human history, the farmer has had to learn to resign himself to the vagaries of the weather. He never knows from year to year, or from month to month, how the crop will fare; and he must remain largely helpless before this uncertainty. Living and working under such conditions has bred in the farmer — the world over — a kind of fatalism nearly unique anywhere else in modern society. It is difficult for him to plan ahead, or prepare for contingencies, since one week of capricious climate at the wrong time can upset his most careful calculations.

What have long been vicious, blind as "rural" characteristics are the result not of ruralism as much (for the American farmer today is nearly as well-informed and well-equipped as his urban neighbor), but of a state of mind and temperament produced by this fatalism. The spirit of "progressivism" which has imbued for infected, if you will most modern people runs directly contrary to his life experience.

If a man never knows when the rain will hurt the rhubarb, or if a late frost will kill the cherries, this basic uncertainty is bound to affect his general view of life — making him cliquecunspect, conservative, skeptical of the benefits of change, and frugal financially, intellectually, and verbally as well. Farmers, like their crops, are the products of the climate in which they live out their lives.

To Your Good Health

Child Who Eats Paper Needs Change in Diet

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a four-year-old grandson who eats paper when he thinks no one is looking. He drinks too much milk and consumes candy or ice cream every day. He doesn't eat many vegetables. He weighs 70 pounds.— Mrs. C. W.

This youngster needs help and discipline in his eating habits, but let's start with that weight problem. Seventy pounds is far too much for a child of his age. Too much candy and ice cream will put on the pounds while not giving him some other things he needs.

If he is served balanced meals starting now and has the candy and ice cream cut off, he'll be able to develop healthful eating habits. If he doesn't do so, he will probably have a weight problem all his life.

He needs vegetables for minerals and vitamins and bulk. What about fruit and citrus juice for Vitamin C? Does he get them?

You say he drinks too much milk. Milk's a good food, and you don't say how much he drinks. (A quart a day is a reasonable amount for a growing child.) But if he fills up on milk instead of other things he needs — vegetables and protein foods like bean meat, eggs, cheese, fish — then it is "too much."

His habit of eating paper may be an unconscious reaction to missing something in his diet, perhaps protein. People acquire all sorts of odd tastes and very often ask, "Does it mean something missing in the diet?" usually it doesn't mean any such thing. It's just a quirk.

But with a child of four, already known to have an unsatisfactory diet, it can be more than a quirk. It can be Nature trying, in blundering fashion, to find a correction.

Or it may be an odd reaction to some emotional turmoil, friction, in the family, competition with another child for affection, or whatever. In any event, your pediatrician should be informed of the quirk.

Dear Dr. Molner: I was a bicycle exerciser. Will it really firm muscles? I need some padding than soft my rear and hips. Just how long will I have to pedal each day? — Mrs. P. M.

Any exercise, with or without a machine, will help tone up whatever muscles you use. Don't expect me or anyone else to say how long you should pedal each day. It depends on how much extra padding you have, whether you like the "muscle ache" following exercise.

Just 15,685,000 worth of them. There may be some variation of loot, but this is all that showed in the Finance Department's Estimates of the last three years of External Affairs.

Who's on the staff payroll?

Mark it down as $16,542,000, and if you add those allowances, $17,800,000.

Total cost of running the department — $130,808,000.

Just 25 years ago it was $43,77,000.

What is it like to be a Foreign Service Officer abroad — and that 227 of the total 609 are posted around the world?

Well, to have to learn talk in the embassies and chanceries, to think of coming home to Canada is next thing to the prospect of being sent into Siberian exile.

And why not, when you have to give up the family home, sell and come home bringing your Mercedes Benz with you, and actually "be home" for the first time that dreadful wilderness of boredom little known even to the natives, as one distinguished diplomat put it with a civilized little shudder.

But shucks, maybe they do need their union.

Some misunderstanding purposes have been swiping at them, asking why, for example, Canada needs a permanent representation in the Republic of Panama.

The Diplomatic Front in Canberon cost the Canadian taxpayer $197,000 last year, this year the bill will be $200,000.

They were worth $23,702.

The facts and figures — they are authentic, straight out of the Government's own Estimates — cause you to wonder?

Take it up with your MP, why don't you?

Canada's Foreign Service Has Formed Its Own Union

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa:

OTTAWA — This is a statement of fact. Not a matter of opinion.

Just the facts. And the figures.

You form your own opinion.

Months ago, for "immediate release," this press statement emerged the other day from the External Affairs Department, reading, in part:

"Mr. H. Bauer announced today the formation of the Professional Association of Foreign Service Officers (PAFSO.) Mr. Bauer, who is president, said he has so informed the Prime Minister.

"The Association came into being earlier this year, following study and research by Canadian diplomats to determine how they could best participate in collective bargaining.

"The Association proposes to apply for certification as the bargaining agent for the Foreign Service group . . ."

In short, Canada's diplomats from Ambassador on down to the striped pants line to Senior Officer Grade One are forming a union. Like the longshoremen, the bricklayers, the plumbers.

Well, how urgently do the Foreign Service Officers require a union?

Has the Federal Government been giving them a hard time, payroll-wise?

Are they underprivileged?

You should worry. Paul Gerin-Lajoie, these and others added more lustre to Quebec front benches when he was boosted by other provinces.

But Mr. Lesage forgot that high principles and lofty goals are not enough to insure election unless the people can be convinced that these principles and goals are theirs. Especially when they are costly. He forgot the old law of the political world — what's in it for me? — is still quite revolution, is always the work of the few and the reformation of the many. Where the military cannot be used to keep the people in line, the people must be kept in the idea that the revolution belongs to them. Mr. Lesage forgot to sell.

He lectured the voters about their duties in the new Quebec, insisting that they must pay higher taxes; but he did not convince enough of them that the prize was worth the price. He alienated many key individuals with his often arbitrary and arrogant manners and methods. He believed that his program was in the best interests of Quebec — and he was probably right — but he did not convince the farmers that their children should bus 20 miles or more to school. Over such relatively minor matters do governments fall.

Australian's Boost Trade

Department of Trade and Commerce

The prospects for Australian economy offers many opportunities to Canadian exporters, says J. A. Roberts, commercial counsellor in Sydney, writing in "Foreign Trade" magazine. As Australia's industries develop they will need more machinery and raw materials which Canada should be able to supply competitively. Commodities with at least a 75 per cent, or in some cases 50 per cent, Canadian content enjoy the advantages of British preferential tariff rates. There are also many opportunities in the growth patterns of Canada and Australia, in some instances, similar, in some chemicals: Said, Canada has started production of new products before Australia, and has been able to export them to Australia until local production has begun. Canadian experience in the oil and gas industry could be useful in this country which seems to be approaching a break-through in finding commercially important quantities of oil and gas.

Power generation in Australia will be expanding rapidly in the future and there are careful study by exporters of thermal and nuclear power machinery and equipment.

The coming years will probably see expansion in Australia's fertilizer industry, with good prospects of increasing local interest in Canadian supply and potash.

Defence equipment purchases have also been mounting and this holds fair to continue in the immediate future, says Mr. Silles. In addition, there has been a growing demand for consumer goods, such as mink's sportswear, hosiery, cutlery and toys.

Our trade offices in Australia have also been receiving inquiries for frozen and canned fish, as well as for various chemical products, steel pipe, drydock machinery and wheat flour, which could be of interest to Canadian suppliers.

Lesage Loses In Quebec

The Globe and Mail

A curious sort of arrogance, both personal and public seems, indeed, to have cut the ground from under Mr. Lesage. His Liberal Government had a bill of goods it sought to have been able to sell. There can be little doubt that Quebec progressed more rapidly under his Administration than under any other in its history. There can be no doubt that he surrounded himself with capable ministers — Rene Levesque, Eric Kierans, Claude Wagner, Paul Gerin-Lajoie, these and others added more lustre to Quebec front benches than can be boasted by other provinces.

But Mr. Lesage forgot that high principles and lofty goals are not enough to insure election unless the people can be convinced that these principles and goals are theirs. Especially when they are costly. He forgot the old law of the political world — what's in it for me? — is still quiet revolution, is always the work of the few and the reformation of the many. Where the military cannot be used to keep the people in line, the people must be kept in the idea that the revolution belongs to them. Mr. Lesage forgot to sell.

London Gets Preview of Que. Clothes

LONDON (CP)—Two leading Quebec couturiers put their wares before British fashion journalists Monday in what they described as a "trial balloon" floating into the British market.

Marielle Fluery and Michel Robichaud, both of Montreal, showed co - ordinated "travel wardrobes" designed to appeal to the woman planning to visit the 1967 Montreal world's fair. The clothes in both collections, shown at London's Quebec House, were made entirely of Quebec fabrics, richly colored wool-and-silk or wool-and-linen mixtures and light - textured wool tweeds resembling the Irish fabrics that have recently made a big impact in Britain.

Michel Robichaud, who worked in Paris with the top couture houses of Miss Rieel and Guy Laroche, featured the high-waisted empire line in his collection, which ranged through a gamut of pink and beige shades. Marielle Fluery's collection, covering a similar range of clothes from coats and suits to beach ensembles, sparkled with vivid orange and peacock colors.

Ottawa Women Talking In Two Languages About Beautification of City

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—Face - lifts are traditionally a feminine preoccupation. A group of Ottawa women have been talking in two languages about taking the plunge, not for their own sakes but for their city's.

They are the members of the Centennial Committee for the Beautification of Ottawa, appointed jointly by the predominantly English-speaking Local Council of Women and the French-speaking Federation des Femmes Canadiennes Francaises.

The committees, organized last November, has already persuaded the city government to send out clean-up leaflets with all water bills. The leaflets, urging citizens to "be a busy bee" and "increase your attache," tell what home improvements can be made without raising property taxes.

Committee chairman is Mrs. H. C. L. Ransom, a past-president of the local council. She says about 50 of the Ottawa council's 30 member organizations are supporting the drive, and individual participation is also encouraged.

"No matter what they do, no matter how little or how large, we can't lose."

The French-speaking federation joined the committee in its second month, after some internal representatives who were also federation members took up the cause. It organized a 12-member organization, the federation has 30 of its 67 sections in the Ottawa area.

AIDS UNDERSTANDING

National President Mrs. R. A. Sauve Bouit of neighboring Hull, Que., says the federation will promote good relations between the two cultures.

"We don't like division. We are happy to prove that we can help them and do our share too."

The committee has dispatched members to seek out and report areas of the city that need to do with some changing. These fact-finders are instructed to pinpoint spots where improvements are needed and houses and businesses that could wear a better face.

The women aren't all out for changes. They want historic city houses to look just as they did decades ago.

"We do want beautiful buildings of the 1860s and 1870s," Mrs. Ransom says. "Now we find we have very many things in common."

URGED JUNE WEDDINGS

The early Christians encouraged May and June weddings, because the clergy frowned on marriages during Lent and other periods of fasting and penitence.

In spite of the rainy afternoon the members turned out in good numbers for this last meeting of the year and enjoyed to the fullest the hospitality of Mrs. Smith.

Church Groups

MARMORA COUNCIL C.W.L.

At the June meeting of Marmora Council, Catholic Women's League, members heard a most informative address by Mrs. Charles Brady, Marmora High School teacher on the subject of guidance. She defined it as the assistance given to individuals in making intelligent choices and adjustments in their lives, based on the democratic principle that it is the duty and right of the individual to choose his own way of life, provided it does not interfere with the rights of others. Guidance helps the individual to make his own choices, in such a way as to stimulate gradual development of the ability to make choices independently.

Other aspects of guidance which is of current interest," she said, "is the statistical information gathered through a testing program in the school. It must be emphasized that at best, tests are imperfect measuring instruments, and are only one predictor, valuable only when used in conjunction with other indicators, and when interpreted wisely. The most reliable predictors of success are still the experienced teacher's opinion, and the student's school record 'in academic work'."

She gave an account of the history of testing and explained the interpretation of test results.

The president, Mrs. Breen O'Connor, conducted the meeting following a pot-luck dinner in the parish hall on Monday evening. She reported on the Social Life Conference in Ottawa on May 21-22 which she had attended as a delegate from the parish. The workshop discussions were on current topics and special feature of the conference was an address by Baroness Catherine de Hueck Doherty of Madonna House, Combermere on the subject of "Love of God and Our Neighbour". Mrs. O'Connor also remarked on the highlights of the recent C.W.L. Convention held in Perth and outlined the talk given there by Mrs. Raymond Labarge, Ottawa, on "Women in the Community."

In other business, plans were made for Laundry Day, Wednesday on July 16, and for a bake sale on Friday afternoon, August 12. Members were thanked for their co-operation in making the bake sale held in May a splendid success.

A donation will be forwarded to the School for Retarded Children at Campbellford.

Members were provided with improved lists of C.W.L. groups and suggestion was made that high school girls be asked to assist with serving future banquets.

Prayer was read by Miss Gertrude Maloney on "Canada's Immigration Policy". Disapproval of recent CBC programs will be forwarded to the local M.P. For missions, it was noted that 43 boxes of used clothing had been shipped to Combermere in May.

Spiritual Director, Rev. Father F. J. Ryan, conducted his assistance in organizing future group discussions. He also expressed the thanks of the C.W.L. for their gift of dishes for the rectory.

Dear Susanna: Because old rheumatism has got to me, I can't get down to scrub my floors the way I would really like to, but I have a remarkable alternate way of getting them clean.

Fasten at least two thicknesses of nylon net to the sponge part of the mop before fetching it in place. This does the best scrubbing job imaginable.

Use the sponge only, with clear water, for rinsing and drying off. Almost too good to be true. — J. E. Borthwich

A-PEEL-ING FLAVOR!

Dear Susanna: When making a milk rice pudding, add a nice slice of fresh orange peel. Leave the peel out when the pudding is done.

This gives it a delicious flavor.

My aunt who is 86 years old in the Old Country gave me this recipe which I have used for about 50 years. Does not need any other flavoring at all.

Mrs. James Hoard and Mrs. Herbert Smith gave the financial reports of the recent banquets. It was noted that the annual Messengers meeting will be held July 18 with the U.C.W. providing the lunch.

Mrs. Carleton Potts spoke re a membership in the National Film Council and a delegate was appointed to attend a meeting next week.

In course of the program were Mrs. Robert H. Hoard and Mrs. Dave Potts who gave a devotional based on Psalm 24. Assisting in the program were Mrs. Marguerite McMullen Mrs. C. Potts and Mrs. Garth Joslin. Mrs. Thomas Sarles contributed a vocal solo and Mrs. G. Hobbie read a poem.

A Bible contest was conducted after which Mrs. E. Weaver read a paper on the theme "The Church in Today's World."

Mrs. B Sharpe and Mrs. I. Potts served lunch for which Mrs. J. Smith voiced appreciation.

Ann Landers
Nazi Adherent Blasts Ann For Bigotry

DEAR ANN LANDERS: No bigotry allowed — unless it is yours, right? Usually I don't look at your daily drivel but my eye happened to fall on your column about the Nazi flag and I found it nauseating.

I am not saying Buchenwald and Auschwitz were good, but I am sick of anti-Nazi propaganda which is cleverly kept going by international troublemakers who want to see the world in constant turmoil.

If it weren't for two or three stupid blunders, you would be speaking German now. Anyone who has any knowledge of history and military tactics will admit that the Allies very nearly lost World War II. There was never a more courageous, effective or beautiful military machine than the Nazi machine.

I respect the Nazi Philosophy and the whole world ought to respect it, as they respect other philosophies. Your lack of objectivity is shocking, Ann Landers. You sound like a hysterical woman. Wipe the foam off your mouth and stop giving advice. — A.H.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR A.H.: Your initials are almost as interesting as your letter. Was your real name Schicklgruber, too?

The Nazi philosophy you ask the world to respect is based on the theory that the Aryan is superman — and by virtue of that superiority, he has the right to rule the world and eliminate, at will, all inferior breeds of mankind.

Moreover, the Nazi philosophy which you admire so greatly, does not tolerate any religious beliefs. The state is god, and dedication to the state must be total. Consequently many Lutherans and Catholics died along with millions of Jews because they refused to forsake their religion.

Under Nazism the individual counts for nothing. It is the State that rules. Allies, all forms of business and professional people — physicians, lawyers, engineers, scientists and artists — were under the thumb of Der Fuhrer.

If the Nazi philosophy is your idea of perfection you must find life in the United States intolerable. But cheer up, A.H., I have a heartening note for you. You are not alone in your beliefs. I was surprised (and chilled) to discover that hundreds of others in this country share your barbarous ideas. We Americans who believe in the dignity of man and a free society had best not be complacent. We could be taken by surprise.

Thank you for writing. You have given me a great deal to think about.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell us what to do about our 18-year-old daughter. She is a nervous wreck. Elsie (not her real name) has gained about 30 pounds in the last few months. She was too thin and the doctor put her on a special diet. Someone at her school started a rumor that she is pregnant. The girl doesn't want to show her face.

The big problem is that Elsie says she is not going back to her high school in the fall. She wants to go and live with her mother in Canada and graduate from high school there.

Please give us some of your sound advice. We need it. — M AND D.

* * *

DEAR M AND D.: Please tell Elsie that the best way to explode the lie is to stay in town and go back to her school in the fall. If she runs away from the problem and situation, her absence will give credulity to the gossip and she will never be comfortable with her friends and classmates again. Don't let her do it.

* * *

Confidential to FIRST TIME TO BE CALLED MOTHER: Your life is certainly no parfdise in dreamland, but whose is? My advice is to keep your home together and manage as best you can. Don't exchange one set of problems for another.

And now, Lady, about that piece of yours — do you believe her? A girl who has such shoddy morals could also be a liar.

CHEESECAKE PIE WITH STRAWBERRIES

The Cheesecake Pie I am giving you is easy to make and a beauty. My original idea was to feature it as a base for holding up a beautiful mound of strawberries. I carried out that idea. After serving and tasting the pie I decided it would be lovely underneath many of our coming summer fruits. So I made more pies and topped one with blueberries and another with canned sliced Australian apricots. You could use cherries and peaches too.

So stop the recipe for this cheesecake pie and file it for use with the fruit variations below.

EASY CHEESECAKE PIE WITH STRAWBERRIES (and other fruit variations) (serves 8 - 10):

NOTE:

This Cheesecake Pie must be made in advance to give it plenty of cooling time.

CRUST:

1 1/3 cups fine graham cracker crumbs, 1/3 cup maple syrup or brown sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 1/3 cup melted butter or margarine.

FILLING:

12 oz. (one 8-oz. and one 4-oz. package) white cream cheese, room temperature, ½ cup white sugar, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup dairy sour cream.

Early in the day make the crust by mixing together the crumbs, maple syrup or brown sugar, cinnamon and melted butter. Set aside. Then spread evenly against bottom and sides of standard-sized pie plate, making thin smooth. Chill.

To make Filling, in beater bowl beat cheese with sugar until creamy and there are no lumps in it. Add eggs and vanilla and beat until smooth. Pour into crumb-lined pie plate and bake at 350 deg. F. for about 30 minutes or until just set. Remove from oven and cool. Cover evenly with sour cream. Cover with one of these Fruit Variations: 1) Cover entire top with slightly sweetened halves of perfect strawberries. Chill 2) Cover entire top with Blueberry Topping: Mix together 1 tablespoon arrowroot flour (or cornstarch) and ½ cup sugar very well, then stir in 1 cup cold water, 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind (or boiled peel) and 2½ cups fresh or fresh frozen blueberries. Stir over heat until thick and clear. Soak 2 teaspoons gelatin in 2 tablespoons cold water and stir into hot blueberry mixture to dissolve. Cool. Spoon evenly over cooled cheesecake pie. 3) Cover entire surface of pie with canned drained, sliced apricots (I used Australian) or cover half of pie with sweetened sliced strawberries and cover other half with sliced drained apricots. This last made a pretty picture and was a conversation piece.

Soft-Speaker System Announces Prayers

Abbey Updated

LONDON (CP)—Wardens at Westminster Abbey, overwhelmed by thousands of tourists coming to see the historic church celebrate its 900th anniversary this year, are resorting to modern technology to silence the pilgrims. An nearby Big Ben chimes on the Parliament clock tower, a warden announces hourly prayers by whispering reverently into a public address system.

Contemptibles Retire

LONDON (CP) — The "Old Contemptibles" marched for the last time to the strains of Tipperary in their annual memorial parade through London. Veterans of the original British Expeditionary Force in the early months of the First World War—the army Kaiser Wilhelm dubbed "contemptibly small"—the old soldiers are nearly all more than 70 and the parade organizers think future marches would be too much for them.

Nun Broadens Interests

LONDON (CP) — A London girl wrote to an Irish model school asking for a place but signed her name Sister Margaret Quinn. The school discovered she was a nun. Sister Margaret explained she wanted to teach modelling to her class at a London convent school.

Wolf Warned

OXFORD, England (CP)—A storeman at an Oxford car plant may lose his job if he sees a pretty girl walking through the factory. John Owen, 21, finds it hard to resist whistling at office girls employed in the plant, but he has been warned he will be sacked if he breaks the rule banning whistling.

Reds Seek Youth

LONDON (CP)—The British Communist Party is launching a campaign to attract more young members to its ranks. The executive plans to spend more than £2,000 on a recruiting drive to double the present strength of 5,188 by next spring.

Seeks Fudgy Worker

BOURNEMOUTH, England (CP)—A laundry-owner in this Hampshire coastal resort is looking for a girl to operate a fabric dryer but she must be fat. Charles Williams says the job entails plenty of hard work and a thin girl couldn't manage it. He offers a good salary and a perfect opportunity to shed excess weight.

Bans Dogs From Dinner

READING, England (CP)—Dogs will not be invited to a Berkshire dog-training school's annual dinner this year. "We think dog owners should be let off the leash for one evening," explained secretary Kathleen Pipett.

Steamer Now Is Club

NEWPORT, England (CP)—The 43-year-old steamer Medway Queen, which rescued more than 7,000 Allied troops from the beleaguered beaches of Dunkerque in 1940, has been turned into a floating restaurant and club off the south coast Isle of Wight. The conversion followed a 3½-year tussle to save the historic ship from the breaker's yard.

CITIES POLLUTE

The World Health Organization says that the negative impact of cities on man includes pollution of air, water and soil, and "mental pollution."

Poles Use Catholic Church to Air Dislike of Communism

A great conflict between church and state is being fought in Poland as the nation marks the 1,000th anniversary of its conversion to Christianity. The dispute between the Roman Catholic Church and the Communist government is explored in this story by a Canadian Press reporter.

By JOHN BEST

WARSAW (CP)—It's a classic struggle between a state and a church, between the things that are Caesar's and the things that are God's.

But it is being waged on a grander scale, and with more publicity, than perhaps any comparable church - state struggle of modern times.

Official sources here call the conflict between Poland's Roman Catholic Church and the Communist government the worst crisis in church-state relations since the Communists took power 20 years ago.

Many observers wonder how the church here manages to stand up to state power whereas in many other countries the state has won similar conflicts hands down.

In Cuba, for instance, Fidel Castro was able to bring the church to heel with relative ease.

Some diplomats in Warsaw believe it's simply a case of large masses of people rallying to the side of the church. The Polish church was able to gain widespread support not entirely on its merits but because many people are disillusioned with communism.

Unable to express their disillusionment in other ways, they have got behind an institution that dares defy the regime.

POPE PAUL BARRED

Competition between the church and government sometimes seems like a game.

The church stages a great demonstration as part of celebrations marking the 1,000th anniversary of Poland's conversion to Christianity.

The government stages a competing one to celebrate 1,000 years of Polish nationhood and does its best to draw bigger crowds.

The government refuses to let Pope Paul come to Poland to take part in the festivities. The church sets up a throne for him at the keynote celebration in Czestochowa and leaves it empty, knowing the crowd will get the idea.

Wladyslaw Gomulka, the Communist party chief, personally attacks Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski as "like irresponsible shepherd of shepherds," setting a vituperative example for other Communists.

Cardinal Wyszynski fights back from the pulpit and platform and although he doesn't answer in kind he refuses to budge an inch on the issues involved.

One of the cardinal's most successful moves was a walk through the streets of ancient Cracow, a solemn procession honoring a venerated religious object. Most of Cracow's half million people walked with him or acclaimed him.

INVITED GERMANS

The dispute is intimately involved with grievances that have been building up on both sides since the Communists came to power.

But its immediate issue was a letter of reconciliation that the Polish episcopate sent last fall to the Catholic bishops of West Germany inviting them to participate in the millennium celebrations.

The letter proposed a dialogue between the two episcopates based on a willingness to let bygones be bygones in relations between Poland and Germany, arch-enemies of the past.

The Polish government accused the church of meddling in foreign affairs, of trying to drive a wedge between Poland and the Soviet Union and of conducting "holy war" against the interests of the Polish state.

One thing that helped condition the government's responses was the cordial reception in the West German press to the reconciliation offer.

Another was that, in the Warsaw view, the message seemed to equate the sufferings of Poland during the Second World War with those of Germans expelled from the Oder-Neisse territories when these were handed to Poland at the end of the war.

REFUSED VISA

An early indication of government displeasure was its refusal to grant Cardinal Wyszynski a visa to go to Rome this year.

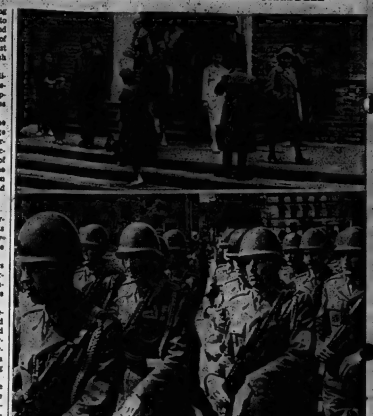
Later Poland's borders were closed to the Pope, foreign bishops and pilgrims intending to take part in the Czestochowa celebrations.

There is talk now that despite all that has happened the Pope may come to Poland later this year. Many moderates on both sides of the quarrel would like to see such a trip as a means of helping dispel the bitterness.

Cardinal Wyszynski, the doughty 64-year-old primate of Poland, is the central figure in the controversy, apparently convinced of the utter rectitude of his moral position and believing the issues are on his side, he speaks with a quiet defiance seldom seen in a Communist country.

"After 10 centuries of Catholicism we have a right to be a Catholic nation and we do not resign that right," he says, adding that if the church-state balance is upset "we do not take responsibility for the future."

Ninety per cent of Poland's 30,000,000 people are Catholic although many do not practise their faith openly.



Independent observers say that, whatever the reason, the people have been solidly behind the cardinal and bishops, thus encouraging them to more confident defiance in government attacks.

SHAKY GROUND

But they say the church was on shaky ground in unilaterally proposing a reconciliation to the German episcopate; that such a move impinged on the authority of the state.

Besides, they're not sure the Poles are ready to forgive so easily the ghastly things done to them by Germany in the war.

They also believe the government blundered by overreacting to the provocation, especially in mounting a series of direct attacks on the cardinal.

GOD AND CAESAR BATTLE IN POLAND—The Polish government stages a military parade (below) in Warsaw in direct competition with a Roman Catholic Church service. But many refuse to be enticed, as indicated by the crowd (above) leaving the church. This sort of competition is a reflection of one of the great church-state struggles of modern times. Some believe that many Poles support the church as an expression of disillusionment with the Communist regime. (CP Photo)

One government grievance concerns a single phrase in the clergy often use in referring to Poland—"bulwark of Christianity." The inference is drawn is that Poland is supposed to stand as a forward redoubt in the church's struggle against atheistic communism spreading from Moscow.

The government feels the concept of Poland as a bulwark of Christianity embarrasses it in its relations with the U.S.S.R.

Other old antagonisms reawakened by the present controversy include the question of churches and schools. Cardinal Wyszynski in a May 6 sermon complained that when expansion is sought to build new churches "we meet with closed doors nobody is able to open."

Church supporters accuse the government of chipping away at a 1956 church-state agreement providing for the teaching of religion in state schools.

OUSTED FROM SCHOOLS

In 1961, by an act of parliament, religious instruction was taken out of state schools and switched to churches or other buildings designated for the purpose.

Now there are said to be 13,000 such places of instruction with children attending after regular classes in the public schools.

The government maintains the Catholic Church and all other religions enjoy "full and unhampered development." It notes there are 16,908 Catholic clergy now compared with 11,230 in 1937 and that the number of nuns has risen even more.

However, the anti - clerical position of the government seems evident from a visit to the office for religious affairs. This office, ranked just below a ministry, is supposed to be a liaison office but responding observers say it's really a control organ.

I sat for two hours in the office, having come for an objective appraisal of recent events but hearing instead a long, bitter harangue against the church and episcopate.

It was carried on by two officials who accused the church of seeking an "extra-privileged position," of interfering in all phases of national life, of endlessly criticizing state policies, of opposing social reform, of seeking to deny the government any control over education and of endangering public health through mass hiring of venereated objects.

Mom Being Pigheaded, Pressuring Daughter

DEAR DORIS: I am 18 years old. My mother insists I finish high school. I am in grade 10 now.

My problem is, I have no ambition whatsoever to continue school. I want to quit now and take a hairdresser's course. My mother won't allow this. I didn't get my credits this year, although I really tried. I feel this problem is driving me to mental insanity. I have had a nervous breakdown over this, but haven't told my mother.

My parents are divorced and it would break my mother's heart if I went to live with him. I feel I will resort to this if my mother forces me into another three years of school. She also plans on having me go through some kind of secretarial school or nursing aide course later. This I do not want.

DORIS CLARE

Please, Doris, tell me what is wrong with a hairdresser's course! — CAN'T STAND IT.

DEAR CAN'T: Not a single thing.

Some people are just not cut out for higher education, and that's that. If you have tried your level best and can't make it, your mother is wasting your time; besides being unkind and pigheaded.

She has a dream for you, complete with what she considers a ladylike, high class career. Perhaps the school counsellor could persuade her that a hairdresser also does God's work in this world. My leaflet entitled "The Hairdresser Has Beauty at Her Fingertips" might help. It is on its way to you.

P.S.: Next time you "have a nervous breakdown" be sure you let her know about it.

Pharmacists' Charges For Services Said Justifiable, Proper

OTTAWA (CP) — Replacement for the corner druggist said Tuesday that pharmacists' charges for services "are consistent, justifiable and proper."

"Drug costs—by the vast majority of Canadians—are not neither high nor exorbitant," the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association said in a brief to the Commons drug price inquiry.

The association said statistics show that Canadians spend an average of only $3 annually on prescribed drugs.

The association's brief was presented to a special Commons committee on behalf of 8,000 registered pharmacists in all provinces except Quebec. The committee has been instructed to find ways to lower drug prices.

The impact of the federal 11 per-cent sales tax was nine cents on the retail dollar, the brief said.

This contention conflicted with evidence given the inquiry last week by Ottawa druggist Jason Nu, who maintained the tax, levied on the manufacturers' selling price, represents between 1.8 and three cents on the dollar.

CALLS TAX IMPROPER

The association described the tax as a "highly improper tax on illness."

The association contended that the private patient bears a disproportionate share of the cost of prescriptions and substantially subsidizes the prices available to doctors, hospitals, governments and similar agencies.

The brief said "multi-pricing policies of manufacturers . . . force the retail pharmacist to purchase his drug supplies at prices which far exceed those paid for the same quality, strength and quantity by others" such as hospitals and similar institutions and government agencies.

"We repeat our often-stated, firm belief that this gap should not exist."

The association said that persons of very limited means or those requiring vast amounts of medication over long periods deserve special consideration.

This could be done through a "professionally - oriented, low-cost prescription services plan to protect against above-average expenditures and catastrophic situations."

Comparing drug price increases with other health care components, the association said the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported in 1964 that the price of drugs increased 20.7 per cent between 1949 and 1964.

It listed other increases as 80.5 per cent for total health care, 208.6 per cent for public health care, 84 per cent for dentists fees, 87.5 per cent for doctors fees and 318.5 per cent for hospital rates.

On patents, the association said current laws for compulsory licensing of manufacturers by a patent-holder should continue. "Patent protection should be extended from 17 years or "some other suitable period made necessary by the particular circumstances of producing it as produced in Canadian plants."

Other association suggestions and comments:

1. A qualitative analysis of the heading of either single drugs, whether under their chemical or brand names.

2. Prescribing drugs by their chemical name permits the druggist to use his professional training and experience to dispense known, reliable brand or non-brand drugs and to carry a smaller inventory.

3. A drug information service bringing together all available information on every known drug merits attention by foundations and governments, industry and health practitioners.

New Treatment For Alcoholics Is Outlined

WATERLOO (CP)—An Indian psychologist Monday recommended treating alcoholics by conditioning them to be sick even at the odor of a drink.

Dr. Santosh S. Anand, chief clinical psychologist at Saskatchewan's Weyburn Hospital, said in an interview that the treatment falls into air classes the first four designed to create aversion for alcohol and the last two reinforce the patient's confidence in handling the problems that drove him to drink in the first place.

Dr. Anand is attending a two-week course on alcohol and addiction at the University of Waterloo.

The psychologist said he uses suggestion alone in his treatment, and therefore it requires the patient's full co-operation.

He began his form of therapy after observing a similar form where drugs or electric shocks were used to condition the patient against alcohol, he said.

Australians to Operate As Independent Unit

By MICHAEL NEALE

VUNG TAU, South Viet Nam (Reuters) — Australia's troops will shortly begin operating as an independent unit for the first time since they were committed to the Viet Nam war a year ago.

The new Australian task force of 4,500 men, nearly four times larger than the 1st Battalion of the Royal Australian Regiment, which it replaced last month, now is establishing bases in coastal Phuoc Tuy province. Phuoc Tuy is a Viet Cong stronghold southeast of Saigon.

The Australian contingent, while remaining under overall American command, is assigned independently to seven and clear Viet Cong-held areas, following up with its own pacification program.

Until now the Australians have been little more than an adjunct of the U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade, taking part in 33 military operations during their first year in Viet Nam. A New Zealand artillery battery of about 150 men is attached to the Australian task force.

By the end of this month, when the last replacements have arrived, 15 per cent of Australia's 30,000 - man army will be in Viet Nam.

The force includes a unit of eight helicopters and a special air services team, a commando-type reconnaissance outfit of 100 men.

Except for scattered skirmishes and a Viet Cong mortar attack, the troops of the new task force, one-third of them conscripts, have seen little action since their arrival in Viet Nam three weeks ago.

Expecting bloody fighting for virtually every foot of the ground to Phuoc Tuy province, the Australians now find themselves masters of hundreds of acres of rubber, bananas and pepper plantations.

Their predecessors, the 1st Battalion of the Royal Australian Regiment, operating from Bien Hoe, 22 miles north of Saigon, won the admiration of the American military command for their tough "counter-insurgency" techniques, developed in the jungles of Malaya and Borneo.

The Australians quickly found their fighting techniques were different from those of the Americans, who put more faith in the devastating firepower and helicopter mobility. Australian tactics, based on stealth and reconnaissance, were more akin to those of the Viet Cong guerrillas.

or more former conservative cabinet ministers had been involved with the wechan. He described as a security risk.

Following release of the letters, Mr. Justice Spence decided comment.

GIVES NOTICE

The judge's letter dated June 7 says "I wish to give you notice that I will have to consider all of the allegations" made at the hearing's public and secret sessions by commission counsel J. L. O'Brien and by Jack Campbell, lawyer for Justice Minister Cardin.

His letter, even longer than Mr. Fulton's reply dated June 13, consisted mostly of extensive quotations from the final legal arguments of Mr. O'Brien and Mr. Campbell.

"I must now consider the evidence that was introduced before the commission, and any charges of misconduct found in the proceedings before the commission, before preparing my report," Mr. Justice Spence's letter says.

It quotes section 30 of the Inquiries Act:

"No report shall be made against any person until reasonable notice has been given to him of the charges of misconduct alleged against him and he has been allowed full opportunity to be heard in person or by counsel."

COLLECTS 'OPINION'

Mr. Fulton said on Mr. Justice Spence has done "is collect an agglomeration of opinion as to how any function or discretion as a minister might have been otherwise exercised 5½ years ago."

"The opinions you record are those brought in argument—not as evidence—by Mr. O'Brien or Mr. Campbell, neither of whom has ever had any responsibility for the administration of government and both of whom have shown themselves to be partisan in the extreme in their respective summations. How on earth can those be regarded as charges of misconduct?"

Mr. Fulton says "it is astounding that a judicial commissioner could have adopted such an extraordinarily nonjudicial attitude and written such an extraordinarily nonjudicial letter.

"Second, it is equally astounding that any commissioner could have written a letter that so completely disregards the ruling which he himself made in the course of the proceedings before him."

He quotes an April 25 ruling by Mr. Justice Spence that before he can report to the cabinet notice must be given to persons involved "setting out the detail of the charges of misconduct which, not the minister of justice or the counsel for the commission, but the commissioner is about to find against them."

Mr. Fulton says "I find nowhere in your letter any statement that specifies your finding, or ruling, as to what constitutes proper conduct, or departure from proper conduct amounting to misconduct, or any specification whatsoever, of a charge of misconduct in any sense that would enable any person to meet what would be regarding in an judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings as a charge."

THIRD ATTACK MADE

Mr. Fulton's letter, and the statement which accompanied it, was the third time in which Mr. Justice Spence has been taken to task publicly over the inquiry.

Mr. Fulton and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker sharply criticized the commissioner for holding initial hearings in secret without notice to them or their lawyers being present. Later, they boycotted further hearings, after Mr. Justice Spence authorized release to reporters of a summary of RCMP reports on him. Monsinger prepared for the commission by Mr. O'Brien. The summary was described by the judge as a "handy document" but not evidence in the inquiry.

Dockers

Basil Legge, federal mediator in the 1956 dispute since May 30th. Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, Mr. Nicholson and three other mediators who had been helping to mediate since Saturday.

The 200-member general council and chief negotiator, said he had every reason to believe that the union rank-and-file would accept the recommendation of their 19-man negotiating committee.

Mr. Hahn said it will take a month at least before the three Quebec ports go back to normal operations. He expressed the hope that productivity on the docks will increase.

"We will try to conciliate the union's enormous demands with an increase in productivity," he told reporters.

'TON MANY POINTS'

He said the Shipping Federation won many points it had argued, but did not list them.

It was learned that the central issues of wages and job security were largely settled in 18 hours of bargaining Saturday and Sunday morning.

When the talks resumed at 4:40 p.m. Monday between ILA leaders and the four-man cabinet team, three main issues remained unresolved:

1. A union demand that the retroactive pay increase apply to overtime.

2. A demand that dockers be guaranteed four hours of work every time they are called out by their employers.

3. A demand that dockers would for work on Saturdays be notified by 1 p.m. Saturday to free them for weekend leisure activities.

Disagreement persisted after four hours of conferences and the four ministers asked the prime minister to look into the dispute for the first time.

TWO SIDES MEET

Top negotiators from the Shipping Federation and the union shuttled in and out of Mr. Pearson's office from 10:26 p.m. until 1:57 a.m. when the two parties met face-to-face for the first time in weeks.

Both sides approved a compromise formula put forward by Mr. Pearson. The formula reported granted the union's first and third demands and involved a modified version of the second demand.

Mr. Nicholson said he would draft a formal agreement this morning and submit it to the negotiators for initialing. The negotiators for both sides would then returning to Montreal and Quebec to report to their colleagues.

Members of the cabinet team beside Mr. Nicholson were Transport Minister Pickersgill, Health Minister MacEachen, and Privy Council President Favreau. George Haythorne, deputy labor minister, also took part in the talks.

Mr. Jodoin attended as adviser to the ILA negotiators.

The long day began at 11 a.m. with a meeting of ministers and Mr. Pearson. They reviewed the weekend talks and decided to summon both parties to Ottawa for fresh discussions.

To Rush

Expo spokesman described as "a desperate situation."

NEED EXPO OBJECTS

Streams of materials, objects for exhibits, and even the prefabricated parts of whole pavilions, are lying in the docks or ships idle in Montreal Harbor, he said.

No exhibitors will abandon their displays but major changes may have to be made in the form some exhibits will take, the spokesman said.

Officials for the Russian pavilion beat the strike by landing their goods at Saint John Harbor and shipping them over land from New Brunswick to Montreal.

An official of the Empire Stevedoring Co. here estimates at least 100 vessels at Montreal have given up and sailed to unload here. Some returned home and others unloaded in other ports.

Small ocean-going freighters and coasting vessels are able to take cargos destined for the three Quebec ports to harbors anywhere, he said.

No Action Taken by Supreme Court

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada decided Monday not to interfere with the conviction and death penalty of Roger Fulton, 25, of Vancouver.

Fulton is to be hanged Aug. 9 for killing Assistant Manager Jan Kelderman of a Vancouver trust company during a robbery in May, 1965. The jury did not recommend clemency.

Chief Justice Robert Taschereau, delivering the court's judgment, said the court saw no merit in Fulton's appeal in which it was argued that trial judge Mr. Justice T. W. Brown did not properly instruct the jury as to what it could consider in deciding whether to recommend clemency.

12 Filipino Nurses to Join Hospital Staff

NAPANEE — In the not too distant future, the Lenox and Addington County General Hospital will add 12 new nurses to its staff, each with a degree of B. Sc. in nursing.

The nurses are coming from the Philippines, and may be of pure Asiatic or of mixed origin, Chinese and white or Maori. Several are on the staff in the Kingston General Hospital, and are not only most efficient, but also are well liked both by other members of the staff and by the patients.

Mr. Romero C. Ramos, a member of a firm which places such nurses in hospitals in Canada and the United States visited here recently and arrangements were made through him. Before being accepted the nurses are screened for such things as their knowledge of English, character, and personality. Only those who show that they can adapt readily to new conditions are considered. After the four candidates asked by the agency, the nurse must have a medical examination at her own expense, and then also pay for her own transportation.

The nurses come by plane and on their arrival with them and see that each reaches the hospital to which she is assigned safely. Their travels with them to these hospitals, both to keep the nurses in touch with their homeland, and to settle any problems that may have arisen.

The qualifications of these nurses are so high, that they are immediately eligible as nurses in Canada without writing any further examinations.

Planning Board Gives Approval for Housing Subdivision

NAPANEE — Plans for the Rollins subdivision were given approval by the Napanee Planning Board last week. The plans have been under study since last fall, when they were submitted by the Ontario land surveyor Construction of roads and services will probably begin in the near future, as they must be finished before building begins. The firm has indicated that it will have houses ready for occupancy by fall. Thirty homes are planned for the area.

The Board also gave approval to the Lakeland Gas Co. for the installation of a control station behind Dr. Burke's office building. Plans submitted were found to be satisfactory. Gas pressure in that area has been too low, and the control station will remedy this.

Plans drawn up by W. Stuart Eadon and submitted by Ernest Turner were examined and approved. Mr. Turned has property with over 300 feet of frontage on East William St., on which he wishes to build a house. This was approved, with the provise that the property must be laid out as a subdivision before any further building is done. The property extends to the river.

Approval was also given to Clarence Milligan to purchase land from Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Martin adjacent to land previously purchased from her. The property is on the original Selby Road, an extension of what is now called the Camden Road. Frontage of the road involved here, one arm going to Newburgh, and the other to Selby. This road now is closed off by Highway 401.

Permission to build a house on Robert St. was refused to Orvis Dellenbeck, as there is 50 feet from the number of seven feet of land in the lot demanded by the town by-law.

Members of the Planning Board are Wesley Allen, chairman; Alvin Wartman, assessor; and building inspector; Mayor Lorne A. Smart, Gordon MacGregor, Ralph Bell, Ernest Marshall, Donald Holmes, and David Roffey. All were present but Mr. Roffey who was out of town on business.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

It is regatta time in this section of the nautical banana belt and the boys who have a distinct yen for the wave-splitting hellions of the power boat family are sparking interest in Picton's world champion classic slated for July 1, 2 and 3.

There is no cheat-hustling brigadiedom about the boast of the Prince Edward Yacht Club—buddies with the Canadian Boating Federation in the sponsoring barge—that in Hayward Reach they have one of the world's fastest and finest nautical race courses in the world.

Any lover of Nature's artistry will agree that the view from the road that ribbons the north shore of the Reach reveals a "painting" of charm and beauty.

The Reach itself, placid in its laziness, ripples gently, purging the tree-sentinelled slopes that rise slowly from shorelines.

It is expected that some 25,000 people will view the classic from the shorelines and other vantage places. Back in the Harmsworth days of the early 60's the area contended a large crowd, greased with spectators crowding and freckling both shorelines.

Roads channelling into the area were jammed with motor traffic before and after the events. However a more organizational program with assistance of the various police departments will eliminate much of the highway choking this year, according to yacht club officials.

I understand the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Ontario Provincial Police as well as the town department will be out in force to maintain traffic control both ashore and afloat.

The successful defence of the Harmsworth Trophy on two different occasions provided breath-taking spectacularx. The mighty unlimited with rooster-tails spewing 200 feet to the rear and 60 feet in arcing height drew gasps from landlubbers as well as veteran boatmen.

However, much of the excitement was dissipated due to the lengthy laterims between heats. This, yacht club officials say, will not occur this year at the classic.

The seven-litre boats and other classified entries in the world championship events will assure "a race every half hour" during the three-day racing cycle.

"The power and majesty of the unlimiteds may not be apparent," a veteran driver told me, "but I'll guarantee you there'll be three times the thrills and spills that you saw when the big boys were out there."

"The seven litres, the .266's, the .290's and other vying craft will provide a spectacle that will be just one thrill after another. Any and all of these craft can exceed 100 miles per hour. This world record created by Art Asbury is 153.7 mph."

"This record was set by a Quebec-owned seven litre boat, Royal Canadian—and a lot of people like myself are hoping she will be able to equal or better the mark. After all a world champion is an attraction in itself and would draw a lot of people."

"However," he said, "I understand there are twelve entries ready for the classic and more are expected even from Belgium and Italy"

Among the entries are Brian Bruton, Whitby, with "Tabor"; Cyril Smith of Clarkson with "Widow Maker"; Douglas Fells, Palmerston with "Ka-Do"; Ed "Bud" Schroeder, Niagara Falls, N.Y. with "Sodbasily"; Mike Thomas, New Jersey with "Miss Washington"; Mike Thomas, Collingwood with "Slo-Kun"; Fred Brouse, Brockville with a .280 and Don MacDonald, Toronto with "Color Flame".

The events in four classes will start Friday, July 1 with the world championship being run off Sunday, July 2. The winner will be presented with the beautiful "Maple Leaf Trophy" emblematic of the world's limited power boat championship. This is the first year of competition.

May Quit Baseball

Astros Demote Gentile

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros assigned Jim Gentile to Oklahoma City of the Pacific Coast League Monday but the veteran first baseman with the exploding temper indicated he might quit baseball rather than report to the minor league club.

Astro manager Grady Hatton said Gentile is "a bad influence" on the club.

"He's not going to play for me."

Gentile, 32, was informed of the decision Sunday night shortly after he was kicked out of the game between Houston and Chicago Cubs for tossing his bat toward plate umpire Ed Vargo.

Hatton said if any major league club wants him Houston is ready to make a deal.

Chuck Harrison has been recalled from Oklahoma City to take Gentile's place.

NHL Outs Draft, Names 10 To Hall

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, announced Monday night that today's scheduled inter - league draft was cancelled because the league governors, "didn't want to steal from one another."

Mr. Campbell made the announcement at the end of the opening day of the four-day annual NHL convention being held in Montreal.

The inter-league draft is the system under which NHL-owned players from the minor leagues may be drafted for the standard $20,000 price.

"The prime concern of the clubs is not to loan any players and try to pick up more," Mr. Campbell said in reference to the 1967-68 expansion program when players will be let demand. Six new clubs will form a second NHL division in 1967-68.

Mr. Campbell said the decision was reached late Monday after the league governors figured they had nothing to gain by the draft.

"They called it off because they weren't sure what would happen," the league president said.

ENTER HICKEY HALL

Mr. Campbell was one of 10 persons selected to hockey's Hall of Fame. The Rhodes scholar was elected in the builders' category. He was elected league president Sept. 4, 1946.

The others were goaltender Frank Brimsek, defencemen Babe Pratt, Kenny Reardon and Butch Bouchard, along with forwards Ted Kennedy, Max Bentley, Elmer Lach, Hector (Toe) Blake and Ted Lindsay.

Blake has coached Montreal Canadiens to a record nine championships and six Stanley Cups since taking over the coaching duties in 1955.

A Detroit Red Wings' spokesman noted that Lindsay, who leads all left wingers in NHL history in goal-scoring, was also elected to Michigan's sports HAE of Fame recently.

Pratt recorded 17 goals and 40 assists for an NHL record of 57 points during 1943-44, topped ever by a defenceman. The record was not broken until 21 years later, when Pierre Pilote of Chicago Black Hawks had 59 points.

Reardon and Bouchard were defence mates with the Canadiens. Reardon made four all-star teams in four years beginning in 1945-46, while Bouchard crystallized for five all-star spreads in his 14 years with Montreal.

Kennedy sparked Toronto Maple Leafs to five Stanley Cup victories and was the first winner of the Toronto team's Most Valuable Player award — the J. P. Bickel Memorial Cup.

WON HART TROPHY

Bentley played with Chicago and Toronto and won the Lady Byng Trophy for clean play in 1942-43. He had his greatest season in 1945-46 when he won the scoring championship, was picked as the all-star centre and won the Hart Trophy on the strength of his 31 goals and 30 assists.

Lach, another centre, played with the Canadiens for 14 years and ran up an impressive record of achievements, appearing in 664 regular season games and another 76 playoff contests.

He accounted for 215 goals and 408 assists in regular season play and added 19 more goals and 45 assists in playoffs.

Earlier in the day, the league committee decided that players getting simultaneous major penalties from opposite teams will get out their five-minute infractions but substitutions will be allowed.

In an effort to curb players on the bench and in the penalty box, leaving over the ice surface to take part in a brawl, an automatic $50 fine will be handed out. Previously, a player had to leave the bench to be fined.

The committee also laid down a regulation whereby a player who persists in fighting after he has been awarded a penalty will be given a $20 fine.

Success Dulls Player's Desire

BY BOB GREEN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gary Player, preparing to defend his U.S. Open golf title, says his desire is dulled by his spectacular successes in 1965.

"I have achieved my ambition and the desire isn't theoretically isn't so intense," the South African said Monday after a practice round over the Olympic Country Club course.

"I'm not playing well because I'm not playing enough," he added. "There's so many other things I have to do now. There was this department store tour —five cities in five days. Try that some time."

Player, whose last U.S. tournament was the Memphis Open last year became the third man in history to win golf's big four — the Open, the Masters, the British Open and the Professional Golfers' Association title. The others were Gene Sarazen and Ben Hogan.

Says Boxing Headed For TV Revival

NEW YORK (AP)—Boxing is headed for a revival on television, says Bob Leder, who plans to bring it about.

Leder is executive vice-president of NBC General Broadcasting, which operates five of its own television stations and has a partnership with Madison Square Garden for the production of five sports events.

"We feel there is still a great audience for leading fights," said Leder in an interview Monday.

"We'd like to do about six fights a year if we have the attractions."

All three of the major U.S. networks carried weekly boxing shows until about two years ago.

Leder said he won't bid for any fights involving heavyweight champion Cassius Clay. "I don't like what he stands for."

"Just so so," said Jack Nicklaus, the Ohio strongboy who may be the favorite.

"I can't keep it out of the rough," said Ben Hogan, 53, the four-time winner who has extended a special invitation for the tournament.

"I'm still get tired after a couple of rounds," said Arnold Palmer, plagued with a back injury. "It's feeling better, though."

Withdrawal Decision Appealed

NEW YORK (AP) — Gil Clancy, manager of Emile Griffith, said Monday he has appealed the World Boxing Association decisions to withdraw recognition of Griffith's welterweight title.

Clancy has court action pending in New York where the State Athletic Commission maintained that Griffith automatically gave up his welterweight crown when he beat Dick Tiger for the middleweight championship.

Griffith is defending his middleweight title against Joey Archer in New York July 12.

CLAY MAY DEFEND

FRANKFURT (Reuters) — World heavyweight champion Cassius Clay will probably defend his boxing title here in September against European champion Karl Mildenberger of West Germany, German boxing sources said Monday. Clay's managers have agreed to a bout sometime between Sept. 3 and 10, they said.

Important news for the Canadian flying public:

Air Canada will maintain services despite strike announced by sales employees

As one of this nation's major public utilities, Air Canada recognizes fully its obligations to the citizens it serves. Consequently, the airline will do everything possible to ensure continuation of all flights, despite the announced strike by the members of its Sales Employees' Association, scheduled for midnight Wednesday.

FLIGHT OPERATIONS CONTINUE

Supervisory staff and other Air Canada personnel have already joined forces to serve the public at every centre where the regular sales personnel may go on strike.

Flying operations of the airline will not be affected, though there may be some unavoidable delays or inconveniences in passenger handling on the ground. The transportation of mail and air cargo will continue as usual.

UNION TWICE REJECTS AGREEMENT

Air Canada has twice achieved agreement with the Sales Employees' Association's negotiators. The first agreement was reached shortly after expiration of the previous contract on Dec. 1, 1965, but was refused ratification by the membership.

A second agreement based on a unanimous recommendation by a conciliation board and endorsed by both the Company's and the Association's representatives, called for a wage increase totalling 15 per cent over 30 months, a $150 per month retirement and other tangible benefits. This, too, was apparently rejected by a majority of that portion of the membership which voted.

Even as late as Friday, June 3, the Company agreed to increase its attractive benefits on a sliding scale, depending upon seniority, to a maximum of $250, in the interests of achieving a settlement — as this appeared to be a major point of contention.

Despite this attempt by the Company to meet the Association's demands, representatives of the employee group refused to negotiate further at that time.

In short, the Company has negotiated in good faith from the outset, and has made continuing efforts to explore every possible avenue in the hope of achieving a settlement. It is ready to continue discussions with the SEA at any time.

NOW, A STRIKE

The SEA represents 1,600 Air Canada employees within Canada, principally passenger agents at the airline's airport and city ticket offices and in telephone reservations offices. While anticipating some disruption in the efficient handling of passengers on the ground, Air Canada expects to be able to ensure that passengers and shippers receive the service to which they are entitled in the event of a walkout by these employees.

The Company sincerely regrets any inconvenience which may be caused by this threatened strike — the first in the airline's 29-year history — and trusts that the public will understand the circumstances.

Further newspaper and radio announcements will notify the public of arrangements made in each centre affected by the strike, to ensure the continuation of the best possible standards of service to all who wish to travel or ship by air.

Minnie Rojas' come out and get it" pitch has American League hitters biting off more than they can chew.

The rookie California pitcher blanked Chicago for six innings Monday night as the Angels salvaged a doubleheader split by edging the White Sox 2-1.

Rojas has started two games and won both since his call-up from the Angels' Seattle farm club last month while compiling a 1.26 earned run average in seven appearances over-all.

"He's got three pitches — slower and 'come out and get it,'" one frustrated skipper has said of the 21-year-old righthander.

The Angels purchased Rojas from a Mexican League club earlier in the year for the bargain price of $2,500.

The White Sox, who had won the rain-delayed first game 5-3, reached Rojas for only four hits and no runs until the seventh inning. Then, after making J. C. Martin his sixth strikeout victim, Rojas gave up a single to Sox second baseman Jerry Adair, by Floyd Robinson with a pitch and walked Smoky Burgess, filling the bases.

Bob Lee then replaced Rojas and got Jack of the farm when left fielder Willie Smith grabbed John Romano's liner and doubled Adair at the plate with a rifle throw.

Elsewhere, Frank Robinson's three-run homer and a two-run shot by Brooks Robinson led Baltimore Orioles past New York Yankees 5-0. Detroit Tigers nipped Washington Senators 4-3 and Minnesota Twins divided a twin bill with Kansas City Athletics, dropping the opener 5-2 before rebounding in the second game 6-1. The Boston-Cleveland game was rained out.

Minor Softball Week

Commercials Meet Cuties

Minor Softball in this city will receive the proceeds but local softball fans will have the enjoyment when the California Cuties appear in one of their unique performances here tomorrow (Wednesday) night.

The Cuties, a 7½-man team dressed in women's attire, will tangle with the Belleville Commercial League Stars starting at 8:15, at Alexandria Park.

All proceeds will go to Belleville minor softball. This fits right in with the theme of things since Minor Softball Week is being held from this Saturday June 18, to June 25.

The Cuties performed here a couple of years back and kept the crowd in stitches. But it is not all clowning. They are superb ball players.

Members of the team include Beulah, (that's where the ½ - man comes in) a midget who stands 32 in. high; Speedee Princess Ramona; a hot-shot pitcher who fires bullets, known as Sleeping Sheila; the owner and originator of the team, Lisa Jane, who has taken part in every game played by the Cuties over the past 17 seasons; Dumpy Dora, who slugged 16 home runs last season; six-foot-eight inch Dinah Sore; Main Street Sally, who batted .450 batting average and last but not least Hesky Helen.

Meanwhile the Commercial Stars have selected 21 players to go against the Cuties. Five of the six Commercial clubs are represented. Point Anne did not wish to participate.

Nip Madoc In 13th

Juniors Win In Overtime

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

MADOC — Art Baker's second two-run triple of the game, in the 13th inning, gave Ellis Juniors a 4-3 triumph over Madoc here last night in Belleville and District Softball League action.

The win boosted Ellis' into a tie with the Bobcats for third place, each with two wins and three defeats. The loss came on top of an 11-inning win for Madoc on Saturday and left the village crew in the cellar.

The Juniors scored two in the first and Madoc tied it in the fantastic fashion in the bottom of the ninth. Madoc missed three chances to win it in the over time.

In the 13th, St. Denis received a one-out double and Boomhower rapped a bad-bounce single to short. Barker slumped a ball to right-centre which right fielder Murray Blinch was able to knock down but could not catch.

The triple plated both runs. Bob Ekkier retired the side in order in the bottom of the inning.

Hughes singled to centre to lead off the Madoc 9th. E. Gray hit a double and a throwing error from the outfield allowed Hughes to go all the way for the initial Madoc run. Shaw hit a fly to left and Gray raced home after the catch to tie it 3-3.

St. Denis' base hit got the Juniors batting in the third. Boomhower also singled and Barker delivered his first triple. He was run down at home in an inning-ending double play seconds later.

Ekkier gave up 9 hits in the pitching battle against Madoc's Elden Gray. Both went the route and Gray allowed nine safeties.

Gray struck out 14 and walked three while Ekkier whiffed 13 and dished out two free tickets. Several superb fielding plays highlighted the game.

Art Barker had a single to go with his brace to triples on the winners' behalf. Chet Boomhower, had a double and two singles, and Jerry St. Denis, one each. Wayne Woods' single was the only other Junior safety.

For Madoc, Murray Blinch had a double and single, while Bill Hughes and Ab Reid got two singles each. Gray Brothers, Darryl Kramp, Garry Geer and Les Masters hit singles.

City Hotel Beaten By Cheesemen

City Hotel broke Ky "one - run Dugout" last night, but not in exactly the manner hoped for.

Black Diamond Cheese clipped the tall - end Hotelmen 5-1.

The loss was City's seventh in eight trys and the other six were by a single run, as was the loss victory.

The Cheesemen potted four in the second and three in the sixth while playing errorless ball afield.

Ken Leveque buried six - bit ball on the Black Diamond pitcher. He nipped seven on third strikes and walked three.

Manager Genereaux was tagged for ten hits in defeat. He whiffed only one and walked five.

Leveque's triple, Leveque's single and Empey's homer got the winners away to a flying start in the second.

Ron Pointer paced the victors with three base knocks. Ross Empey had the home run. Ken Leveque two singles, Jack Douglas a triple, Bob Cruickshank, Pat O'Connor and Bob Jones a safety each.

Mac Hawkins got three, Tom Cooley, Bucky Ebbier and Gerry Genereaux the others for City Hotel.

S. Warner Clobbers Lightfoots

Stewart Warner gave a good demonstration of why the club is leading the Commercial Softball League, at Alemite Park last night.

The Warnerz flattened Lightfoot Construction 13-0 for the club's sixth victory in seven starts.

With pitcher Doug Ellis stopping Lightfoots on two singles and the only runners scoring three in the first and a big seven in the third, it was no contest right from the start.

Ellis gave up a first-inning single to Don Wood and a seventh-inning safety to Ron Smith. That was it. He struck out five and walked one.

Johnny French started and lost for Lightfoots with George Young taking over in the third. They gave up 13 hits, issued seven and walked nine, six by Young. Eight errors added to the misfortune.

The game's first batter, Claude Carr, belted a home run to set the Stewart Warner pace. He later added a single to pace the hit attack. Pat Glancy and Chuck Provochan each singled twice, Fiori Goegan doubled, Lyle Wannamaker, Robb Burney, Gary Gee, Keith Bertrim, Garry Gee and Doug Ellis added single.

Clemente Heads For Top Slugging Year

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that National League pitchers have turned Dong Clemente's power off, they've turned Roberto Clemente's on.

And it's proved a shocking experience for them.

Billy McCool was the latest victim of the Clemente treatment as the Pittsburgh star blasted a three-run homer that gave the Pirates a 5-4 victory over Cincinnati Reds Monday night.

The homer was the ninth for the flashy right fielder this season, just one short of his total last year, and the runs batted in gave him 36 for the season. He had 65 RBI in 1965.

Clemente who has built three batting championships on hits that stay inside the park, is headed for his best slugging year. In 31 major league seasons he's averaged 14 homers and 68 RBI while batting .300.

This season is just slightly more than one-third gone, and he's rapidly approaching those figures as well as hitting .330, the second best average in the league.

Clemente was the Pirates' second leading slugger last year but has moved into a slow start with only four homers and 22 runs driven in.

GIANTS CAUSE CUBS

Elsewhere, San Francisco Giants crushed Chicago Cubs 9-0, Houston Astros trounced Los Angeles Dodgers 9-4 in 11 innings, Philadelphia Phillies swept Atlanta Braves 6-2 and 6-4 and New York Mets defeated St. Louis Cardinals 5-2 before homefolks.

Before Clemente's homer, the Reds had built their 4-2 lead on Vada Pinson's three-run double in the fourth inning and his run-scoring single in the fifth.

Gaylord Perry, making his first start in 17 days, allowed the Cubs only three hits in seven innings. He was supported by Bob Tolan's three-run homer in the fourth.

Larry Jackson pitched a four-hitter in Philadelphia's opening game victory over Atlanta. Clay Dalrymple sparked the Phillies' attack with a homer and a single, driving in three runs.

Jack Brandt triggered the Phillies in the second game, hitting a homer in the third and tripling across the first run in a five-run fifth. Rich Allen added a two-run double in the fifth. Bob Tyrlor belted Bob Shaw's five-hit New York debut with a three-run homer in the ninth inning. Bill Murphy also homered for the Mets.

St. Louis won the slugfest, getting two singles and a triple from Lou Brock, who also stole two bases and scored twice. Three Cardinal pitchers shared seven hits, including Ken Boyer's homer.

Three-Run Homer Gives Latta Win

A three-run homer by Larry Mervis in the fifth inning gave Latta a hard-fought 5-2 South Hastings Baseball League victory over Read, at Latta, last night.

The homer snapped a 3-2 deadlock and came when Read pitcher Phil Dillon made an attempting to issue the third intentional walk to Mervey.

Dillon, a fireballer, checked Latta's only extra-base hit of the game. Doug Rollins and Bob Smith pounded seven strikeouts each, Garry Ray, Doug Geen and Howard Reeds one.

"THE FLIGHT OF THE PHOENIX"

Through an ironic set of circumstances, one of the world's leading actors found themselves starring in parts which virtually parallel the roles they played in the 1940's.

The stars are James Stewart and Richard Attenborough, and the film is Robert Aldrich's "The Flight of the Phoenix," a 20th Century-Fox release opening tomorrow — Wednesday, at the Belle Theatre.

Stewart portrays the pilot of a cargo-passenger plane and Attenborough his navigator in the dramatic story of a desperate struggle for survival in the Sahara Desert.

In July of 1943, Stewart was in England as a captain in command of a heavy bomber combat squadron with the 8th Air Force. He had enlisted in the Army Air Force as a private in 1941, after graduating from the Academy Award for "The Philadelphia Story."

By the time he was discharged in 1945, Stewart had attained the rank of full colonel and had earned the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters and the Croix de Guerre.

Attenborough, voted Best Actor of the Year by the critics' poll by the British Film Academy, was seeing air combat in 1943 with the Royal Air Force. In 1945, he was transferred to the R.A.F. Film Unit for six months to make "Journey Together," a documentary feature, with Edward G. Robinson. The film augment completed, he was assigned to the film unit as an airgunner-cameraman.

Both Stewart and Attenborough have maintained a lifelong interest in aviation since World War II. Stewart has remained active in the Air Force Reserve and today holds the rank of Brigadier General, while Attenborough is the president of the Guild of Air Pilots and Air Navigators.

Roberts Hits Pair For Jets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two home runs by Dave Roberts that sent six runs over the plate led first-place Columbus Jets to a 9-3 victory over Rochester Red Wings in International League baseball Monday night.

Syracuse Chiefs, meanwhile, had relief pitcher John Hiller to thank for a 7-6 victory over Toledo Mud Hens. Hiller took over from starter Lacey West after the Chiefs had a 6-0 lead in the first two innings narrow to 6-5 in the sixth.

Buffalo Bisons jumped two places to fifth on the strength of their 4-3 10-inning victory over Richmond Braves in a rainstorm in Toronto which postponed the Maple Leafs' game with Jacksonville Suns.

Sanders Leads Golf Gold Rush

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—Doug Sanders and Arnold Palmer still led golf's money winning race Monday, while Phil Rodgers moved into third place with his $20,000 victory in the Buick Open.

Sanders and Palmer each won $2,950 by tying for eighth in the tournament. Sanders now has compiled $77,642 for the year, Palmer $69,152, and Rodgers $63,054.

Batman Given a Boost By Producer in New York

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Don't believe that story about millionaire Bruce Wayne's father being murdered by vicious criminals. Everybody in television knows that Batman's real father is a veteran theatrical television executive who put the show on the air.

His name is William Dozier and he is fiercely and patriarchally protective about the seasons-old television phenomenon. But he does find it isn't all laughing on the way to the bank.

"I know now how Joan Fontaine, to whom I was once married, felt when she was invariably told by new acquaintances how much they had loved her in Rebecca as if it were the only thing she ever made," he said. "Nobody remembers anything else I've done, either."

He was in New York on a quick visit to talk about some of his other projects, including two new ones for next season, The Tammy Grimes Show and Captain Nice, starring William Shatner. But the ell-versetion kept jumping over to Batman.

"Yes, Batman does drive fast," he said, "but he usually abides by the rules of the road except in pursuit of criminals or hurrying to the scene of a crime, then he handles as a law officer and must cut corners and occasionally cross the white line. But he has spoken to Robin about the importance of fastening seat belts."

HAS NO COMPLAINTS

As for the Gotham City police department, Dozier says that he has no complaint has been lodged about the hand-wringing police chief who apparently never leaves the side of his commissioner.

"And besides, the caped crusader's fan mail is such they wonder to respect the police and uphold the law."

The Batman Hornet will be taken from an old radio series instead of a comic book.

"He comes from an ordinary person," said Dozier, "except that at the peak of a caper he will be wearing a midnight green topcoat and a very small mask."

Aside from that, each week's dastardly villain will be sniffed out at each episode's end.

In addition to a fee from the profits of Batman merchandise — totalling a record $40,000,000 this year and expected to go to $75,000,000 next—Dozier has an extra bonanza of $200 a week from the show.

His voice is heard at the end of each caper making how Batman will escape the current trap and urging us to tune in next time. Dozier estimates a number of actors but "none did it right because they couldn't stand to be that bad." Now he draws the minimum — $100, a show—and is a member of Screen Actors Guild.

Catherine Spaak Signed For New 5-Year Contract

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "My mommy flm. I went along with her. At the end of the interview, the director said, 'I want you to play Cathy today.' 'People don't know what I am.'"

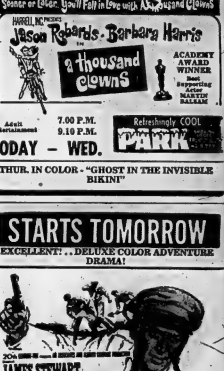
End of friendship. Beginning of career.

Catherine continued in French films through her 'teens, later switched to Italy, where she married Fabrizio Capucci and became the mother of a girl, now 3. The actress now is separated.

She is best known to American audiences by The Empty Canvas, which was notable for a scene she played with Bette Davis. Miss Spaak was reclining in bed covered only by a few pieces of paper currency.

Miss Spaak arrived in the U.S. accurately able to string together a sentence in English. Now she can converse with ease. She speaks better than better than native french. She is also a recording star in Europe, plays a skilled guitar and writes her own songs.

Barely 21, she seems to have nowhere to go but up.



ACTOR IS HANDYMAN

Actor Gale Gordon does all the painting, repairing, fencing roofing and gardening at his California ranch.

AT THE PARK — Quinn O'Hara stars in American International's "The Ghost in the Invisible Bikini", in colour opening next at the Park Theatre for its third Belleville showings.

Bailey Gold Medal Prospect

TORONTO (CP) — Dave Bailey, 21, Canada's one-eyed miler, has emerged as a top prospect for a gold medal in the British Empire Games in Jamaica this summer.

And if he sticks to his school site, he'll pick up the Games record along the way.

Bailey, a Toronto pharmacy student, has run in the shadow of such great runners as Bruce Kidd of Toronto and Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., for the last five years.

Saturday he became the first Canadian to break the four-minute mile, pounding out a 3:59.4 mile at the San Diego Invitation track meet.

It was good for only third place — behind Jim Grelle's 3:55.9 and Neil Duggan's 3:56.1, NOT AT PEAK YET

But both Bailey and his coach, Fred Foot, agree that Bailey hasn't hit his peak.

"He's not sharp yet," Foot says. "I figure he'll reach his peak somewhere between July 30 and the middle of August."

Bailey figures "I'm sure to improve and I expect there's a good chance of hitting 3:75 by this summer."

Bailey still has to compete in the Canadian track championships—which double as the B.E. Games trials — in Edmonton next month. But what selector would fail to nominate a coach's only four-minute miler for the Canadian squad?

If Bailey hits the 3:57 mark it would be good enough to erase the Games record of 3:58.3 set by Roger Bannister in England in 1954 at Vancouver. The world record of 3:53.6 was set by Michel Jazy of France June 9, 1965.

The previous Canadian native mark was 4:01.1 set by Ernie Lega of Toronto at Kingston, Jamaica in 1961. Bailey's previous best was 4:02.9.

ENDORSE CANDIDATE

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) —The 36-nation African group met privately Monday to endorse Abdul Rahman Pazhwak of Afghanistan as a candidate for president of the General Assembly opening in September. It has been generally agreed that the president this year will come from an Asian country.

MP Asks Probe Into Pro Sport

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal backbencher Ken Basford asked in the Commons Monday night for a full-scale parliamentary inquiry into professional sport in Canada.

He said he is most concerned about hockey.

Mr. Basford, member for Vancouver-Burrard, is sponsoring a private members bill to bring professional leagues under the purview of the Combines Investigation Act.

He asked that his bill be referred to a committee named two weeks ago to study amateur hockey in Canada.

Owners of National Hockey League clubs are licensed by only in their own welfare, he said. The public interest had been disregarded when the league left Vancouver out of its plans for a six-team expansion in 1967-68.

Margaret Rideout, parliamentary secretary to Health Minister MacEachen who ordered the hockey inquiry, said she could not answer the Basford question as one would discuss the bill but she would gladly suggest that copies be given to the members.

Fighters Clown With Press

Wants No 'Stuttering' Referee

By ROD CURRIE

NEW YORK (CP)—Chuvalo and Bonavena, behaving more like a travelling vaudeville team than a pair of boxing champions, roiled into town Monday for serious work with the state athletic commissioner and hilarious luncheon with the press.

Georges Chuvalo of Toronto, Canadian heavyweight champion, and Oscar Bonavena, South American champ, allegedly made their trip from their modern New York training camps to register their beefs with commissioner Edmund Dooley prior to their Madison Square Garden match June 23.

Dooley was out of town so they registered a brief session with deputy commissioner Frank Morris and then joined the press at the Safe Lee Champs for a session of high shenanigans.

The only hard news was the announcement that Floyd Patterson, former world heavyweight champion, has not yet accepted the invitation to meet the winner of the Chuvalo-Bonavena battle.

Garden matchmaker Ted Brown quoted Patterson as saying he wants a couple warmup fights to test his ailing back before taking on any stiff competition.

Chuvalo said he thought he could knock out Oscar in four or five rounds.

Oscar didn't bother with predictions about rounds except to say he expects to be the next heavyweight champion of the world.

During the session with Morris, Bonavena explained he wasted a sentence there would be a 10 minute referee handling the fight.

The reason he was worried, he explained after apologizing for his rather bit-and-miss English, was an experience he had recently against Jose Girogetti. Bonavena claims he put Giragetti down with a left hook and it took the referee almost 15 minutes to count to eight. Oscar's version:

"When I knock Giragetti down the referee he come over to me, take me by elbow and walk me to corner. When he get there he say, 'Are you all right?' I say sure I'm all right, but look at him. Why you no start count? Then the referee he walk over to Giragetti who is asleep on canvas and he start to count 1-2-3, 3-2-2, 3-2-1 ... all the way up to eight when bell ring.

"Next round Giragetti come out holding back. Referee stop fight and give it to him. He say to me, 'you disqualified for hitting low'.

"Then I found out referee come from Mar del Plata, where Giragetti come from and I begin to think maybe something funny."

Bosox, KC Deal Six Players

BOSTON (AP) — The lowly Boston Red Sox and Kansas City Athletics, striving to trade their way up in American League standings, have completed a six-player swap which involves an outfielder and two pitchers from each team.

The Red Sox, seeking a starting pitcher, acquired right-hander Dick Sheldon, relief pitcher John Wyatt and outfielder Jose Tartabull in Monday night's trade which came just 48 hours before the Wednesday midnight trading deadline.

The Athletics received outfielder Jim Gosger and a pair of relief pitchers—Dan Sanders, drafted from Kansas City last year, and Galdo Griffi, a left-hander who hooks a 9-0 record with Boston's Toronto farm team in the International League.

SOUVENIR OF STRANGE MEETING — F. Gordon Agnew holds piece of the Messerschmitt fighter of Rudolph Hess which crashed in Scotland in 1941 after Hitler's deputy had flown from Germany on abortive mission to arrange a truce with Britain. Mr. Agnew, now retired and living in a Toronto suburb, commanded the platoon that picked up Hess after he landed by parachute. (CP Photo)

'Incredible' Says Toronto Man Of 800-Mile Flight by Hess

By GEOFFREY BINTCLIFFE

TORONTO (CP)—F. Gordon Agnew's blue eyes flashed as he fondled the two fragments of aluminum.

He shook his head in amazement as he told in his soft Ayrshire accent of a May night 25 years ago that shook both Nazi Germany and Britain as they grappled in the Second World War.

"It was an incredible feat, just incredible," he said. "—

The feat he spoke of was the 800-mile solo flight in 1941 by Rudolph Hess, Adolf Hitler's deputy. Mr. Agnew met Hess minutes after the Nazi official parachuted into Scotland on an abortive mission of peace.

Hess hoped that he could arrange some sort of peace between the two powers, a naive hope that was rewarded by incarceration in the Tower of London.

Today Hess, 76, is serving a life sentence for war crimes. His lawyers recently renewed appeals for his release on humane grounds from West Berlin's grim Spandau prison where he's been since 1946.

LANDED NEAR CASTLE

Mr. Agnew was a lieutenant of the Argyll and Sutherland Home Guard on duty on the perimeter of Glasgow the night of May 10, 1941, when Hess dropped from his Messerschmitt fighter plane.

"How he flew all that way alone without being spotted by our observer corps or planes, I'll never know. He went unchallenged; there were no sirens.

"He crossed from the middle of Germany and landed within 30 miles of where he wanted to go—the castle of the Mirquis of Clydesdale and Douglas."

Hess had met the marquis in peacetime and hoped that through him he could negotiate with the British government.

Mr. Agnew was on duty in company headquarters when the Messerschmitt was spotted about 9 p.m. As he watched, something fell from it, presumably Hess bailing out, but the object dropped from view behind hills.

Seconds later he heard the fighter plane crash. Hess was captured in a plowed field by a farmhand with a pitchfork. A home guard second-lieutenant drove Hess to company HQ.

Hess was searched but had "neither a coin, a piece of paper or pill" on him, said Mr. Agnew. "He refused to say who he was, how he had got there or what he wanted other than 'I want to see the Marquis of Douglas.'"

A young guard at the door of the company HQ saw the prisoner and said he was sure he was Hess—he recognized him from seeing his picture in Germany before the war. But it wasn't until the next evening that Mr. Agnew learned the guard, a butcher's boy, was correct.

Hess had broken ankle and was treated before being taken to London.

Mr. Agnew kept two fragments of aluminum from the Messerschmitt's engine as souvenirs.

Now almost 70, Mr. Agnew, a retired insurance company executive, lives in an apartment in suburban North York. He and his wife came to Canada in 1952.

He believes that Hess should be released. "I see no good reason why he shouldn't get out. I've fought them (the Germans) twice but I've no animosity. Even a biter gets out after 30 years."

Four new tents had been purchased.

Plans are being made for the Scout Troop to take a camping trip to Algonquin Park, during the latter part of July. Mrs. Howell reminded everyone of the Church Parade, to take place at Medoc Ball Field at 3 p.m. on Sunday, June 19.

French Approve Transplanting Organs Even Though Man's Heart Still Beating

PARIS (Reuters) — France's highest medical authority has decided that a man whose heart is still beating may be ruled dead if it can be proved that his brain will never again be able to resume control of his vital functions.

The effect of the National Academy of Medicine's decision will be to permit French surgeons in certain clearly-defined cases to remove living organs for transplanting from men with no hope of life.

Doctors specializing in such grafting operations had been faced with a moral dilemma in deciding whether they were justified in removing vital organs —heart, lungs or liver—from a "dead" man who might technically be still alive.

Modern medical apparatus enables such organs to be kept going by artificial means even when a patient's cerebral functions are totally extinguished.

The uncertainty was ended when the academy accepted the report of a special commission set up in January to define the symptoms of death in such special cases.

Prof. Francois de Gaudart d'Allaines, head of the commission, told the academy there are two ways of establishing the patient's death.

"In certain cases, for example during the course of an operation, one has objective evidence of the definitive and irremediable loss of the functioning of organs indispensable to life.

"Or there appear in the patient symptoms of progressive decay of a vital organ ending in signs of the patient's definitive physiological death."

The most useful of such symptoms were those revealed by study of the functions of the brain, a fragile organ indispensable to life and impossible to replace, the report said.

Manning Says Politics Rules Medicare Plan

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta Premier E. C. Manning said Tuesday government operation of medical care insurance plans throws medical services into the political arena.

He told about 2,000 doctors at the annual convention of the Canadian Medical Association that all government programs are subject to political pressures.

For example, the premier said, a government might have to make a choice between expanding the range of services insured under its medical care scheme and expending medical research.

Medical research would be almost sure to suffer, he said, because its benefits are long-range.

"When the rests and file of society have a choice between expansion of immediate care facilities and research programs, the program providing immediate results will take priority."

OUTLINE CMA AIMS

In addresses by other speakers, the convention was told the CMA wants:

—Independent group to study how the quality of medical care in Canada may have been affected by that province's compulsory medical insurance.

—Doctors to be paid 100 per cent of their standard fees when all patients are insured instead of 80 or 90 per cent of the fee as at present.

—More financial assistance for people who have heavy drug bills because of chronic illness.

—More aid extended by Canada to develop medical manpower and facilities in new nations.

MAKE HELP AVAILABLE

Mr. Manning said it is not the duty of the state to make medical insurance on all people. The state "must only make available assistance necessary to bring medical services within the reach of everyone."

Alberta's medical insurance scheme apparently would not qualify for federal aid under the proposed federal program because it is not operated by an agency responsible to the provincial government.

The federal government proposes to pay half the cost of an insurance scheme operated by an agency responsible to the provincial government.

In addition, a provincial scheme would have to be "universal" — providing insurance

Common Market Clears Decks For Tariff-Reduction Talks

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The Common Market's council of ministers reached agreement Tuesday on important industrial and agricultural issues that will enable the stalled Kennedy round of tariff-cutting talks in Geneva to go ahead.

The Geneva negotiation have been held up for the last year because of lack of agreement among the six Common Market countries and because of their serving a month internal crisis which ended last January.

The negotiations must succeed before July, 1967—the date on which President Johnson's authority to make 50-per-cent tariff cuts expires.

The Common Market now will offer the following plan at the Geneva negotiations, informed sources said.

—A world reference price for wheat should be fixed at a level equal to the present Canadian price plus $2.50 to $3.50 a ton. The Canadian price is $76.75 a ton.

—Support for grain production should be kept at the present levels in all major producer countries.

—Set sufficient levels for grain production should be fixed for all producer countries. Any production above these levels would be considered as surplus.

In the case of the Common Market, this level would be equal to 10 per cent of total consumption, plus net commercial sales and an acceptable amount of stocks.

Surplus production above this level would be sold at low prices or given away to developing countries in need of food aid, such as India.

Every producing country or economic unit would be responsible for financing its own donations to developing countries.

The Common Market's disposal of surpluses would be financed by the community's agricultural fund according to a system yet to be worked out.

Observers said the 50-per-cent cut-off level level for grains left the door open to imports from other countries such as Canada and the United States.

It was a compromise between France, the community's major grain-producer which did not want production limited, and the main importing countries such as West Germany and Holland which did not want Canadian and American grains shut out.

Other Common Market countries are Luxembourg, Italy and The Netherlands.

Wilson's Far East Policy Supported by Labor Party

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Wilson today won a four-to-one vote of confidence from his parliamentary supporters for his government's Far East military policy.

A private meeting of Labor members of Parliament rejected by 235 votes to 84 a proposal that Britain should withdraw from Malaysia, Singapore and the Persian gulf by 1970.

The motion was sponsored by a left-wing group which was associated with the left- and right-wings of the Labor party.

Officially these party meetings are private but Wilson was given permission to circulate the text of his speech in view of its importance overseas.

He said members if they wanted "to pull out of all influence in Asia except the very limited one of membership of the Seato to exert in UN debates, telling other people what they ought to do."

Wilson said such a policy would prevent Britain intervening "in a United Nations or Commonwealth context to stop the civil conflagration becoming a big one."

He said it would also leave it to Communist China, the United States and the Soviet Union, "with a small peripheral influence exerted by Australia and New Zealand—but Japan coming up fast on the rails."

"Through history, through geography and Commonwealth connections (Britain) has a vital contribution to make—I believe a socialist Britain has even more."

Wilson said the world was too small to "have it to the Americans and Chinese, eyeball to eyeball, to face this thing out."

"It is the surest prescription for a nuclear holocaust I could think of. 'World go home' is not the posture for this party," he declared.

Back Delay In Switch Of Rulers

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam's ruling junta today endorsed Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's timetable to delay transfer of power to a civilian regime until next year.

The 20-man military-civilian junta said it would prolong its life by limiting the role of the constituent assembly to be elected Sept. 11 to writing a constitution.

The electoral commission named by the junta to formulate the rules for the election has said campaigning for the assembly live on as a legislative body which would elect a civilian government and make laws for it to administer.

The junta's decision seemed certain to cause new outbursts of defiance from the militant Buddhists, who have been campaigning for the immediate relinquishment of power by the ruling generals.

CBRT Endorses Railway Strike Before Talks Open

Six Killed In Crash Near Lindsay

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — A mother and daughter from Pigeon Lake, Ont., Thomas and Victoria family of four were killed Tuesday in a two-car, head-on collision on Highway 35 about 12 miles south of here.

Two other children are in critical condition in Ross Memorial Hospital here suffering lacerations and head injuries.

Police identified the dead as Donald Walter Thomas, 40, of Toronto, his wife, Juliette Elaine, 41, and their children, Madeleine Rose, 12, and Michael Charles, 11, Evelyn A. Anderson, 36, of Fingal and her daughter, Laurie Evelyn, 6.

Two other Anderson children, Douglas, 12, and Karen, 10, were taken to hospital.

Police said Mrs. Thomas was alive when she was removed from her car but died later in hospital.

Mrs. Thomas car, southbound on the rain- and wind-swept highway, was headed home from a weekend at the family cottage at Canning Lake, 60 miles north of Peterborough.

Police said the two cars collided near the crest of a hill after the Thomas vehicle came through a dip in the road between two banks of the highway.

Mrs. Anderson was believed to have been visiting relatives in the Lindsay area with her three children. Mr. Thomas had last contacted a year's study at the University of Toronto while on sabbatical leave from Forest Hill Collegiate Institute.

Editor's note

Formerly a resident of Belleville, Mr. Thomas was head of the English Department at Quinte Secondary School here from September 1961 until June 1962. He came to Belleville from England, where he had received his M.A. from Cambridge and had been head of the English Department at St. Christopher co - educational school.

OTTAWA (CP)—Underlining a growing militancy among its 22,000 rank - and - file railway members, the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) has voted heavily in favor of a strike if current contract demands on the CNR are not met.

They are seeking a 90 - cent hourly wage increase spread over a two-year contract plus job security.

A union source said today the secret mail ballot was counted at CBRT headquarters here Tuesday and is overwhelmingly in favor of strike action if necessary. President W. J. Smith is to announce details of the count Thursday.

The vote was ordered by the CBRT negotiating committee a month ago to protest what Mr. Smith called an intolerable delay in the appointment of a chairman for the federal conciliation board that is to hear both sides in the dispute and present proposals for settlement.

STRIKE WAIT

Although Labor Minister Nicholson named the board chairman only a day later, the union went ahead with the strike vote process. Under federal labor law, there is a 30-day legal wait after the conciliation board report is filed with the minister. The board probably will not conduct a quick telegraphic poll of its locals to obtain a legal vote after the report is made. The current vote was arranged to satisfy a provision in the CBRT constitution that calls for the lengthy mailed-ballot process.

The CBRT is one of three groups of non-operating unions negotiating with the two major railways. All three ask for a conciliation stage, expected to take another month.

During earlier bargaining talks the CNR and CPR rejected the various wage demands. The first group is ranging to more than $1 an hour in the case of shop crafts. Average wage of non-operating rail workers now is $2.21 an hour.

The CBRT represents 21,000 CNR employees and another 1,000 of the Ontario Northland Railway. Northern Alberta Railway and at joint CNR - CPR terminals.

Additionally, the contract worked out with the CNR is matched by the other railways involved.

Fund Claimed Paltry

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition members Tuesday criticized as paltry the government's $500,000,000 health resources fund, designed to help build and improve medical schools, teaching hospitals, research units and other facilities.

The House passed a resolution approving the fund and gave first reading to legislation that will set it up.

The Commons today considered the 1966-67 spending estimates of several government departments, starting with veterans affairs.

Dr. Lewis Brand (PC—Saskatoon), a physician, said the Association of Canadian Medical Colleges believes $954,200,000 is needed within five years just to maintain present standards.

Medical research alone needs $600,000,000 in Canada within the next 10 years according to the commission on education, said R. William Howe (NDP—Hamilton South), also a physician.

Squad of 500 Chicago Police Clear Streets 'With a Smile'

CHICAGO (AP) — Five hundred policemen removed more than 2,000 persons from riot-torn streets in a predominantly Puerto Rican area Tuesday night and arrested 31.

Told to "clear the streets and do it with a smile," police held disturbances to a minimum after two nights of rioting.

The arrests brought to 112 the number of persons taken into custody since the rioting began Saturday after a Puerto Rican youth was shot and wounded by a policeman. The policeman said the youth pulled a gun as the officer tried to break up a fight.

Eleven of the arrests were made 13 blocks from the scene of the riot Monday night when two homemade bombs were thrown at a police car. The car was not hit.

Police strategy Tuesday night was to stop trouble before it could materialize. Groups were not allowed to form and the arrests were made during brief sidewalks were filled with patrolmen. Priests and nuns rallied with the crowd, pleading with them to go home.

The rioting prompted Wilson to shake up his department after eight persons were shot and wounded and scores injured Monday night.

Holzman, only recently made commander of the Chicago Avenue police district to clean up vice and gambling in the North Side district, which has been given the touchy, special assignment by Wilson.

Wilson ordered that only officers holding the rank of district commander or higher could call for the use of riot-trained police dogs. The rioting was stimulated Sunday night, Wilson felt, by the presence of police dogs.

In another pacifying move, Wilson ordered immediate integration of two-man police patrols. Wilson said that Negroes, Latin Americans, Jews and members of other minority groups will work together wherever possible.

A lack of communication between the residents and police has been blamed by community leaders for the rioting.

The area, settled in Chicago's early history by Polish and German immigrants, gradually has been taken over by Puerto Ricans since the Second World War.

Social workers describe the inhabitants as mostly transients shuttling back and forth to Puerto Rico and having little love for the American English or growing accustomed to the city life.

Capt. James Holzman, directed by police Superintendent O. W. Wilson Tuesday to end the rioting, moved down the streets with his men as they repeatedly shouted at residents to stay indoors and keep windows closed.

Police helicopters hugged rooftops overhead as a dozen police stood at each intersection and

Canada One of Eight Nations Checking on Drug Reactions

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is playing a leading role in preparations for a world warning system on adverse reactions to drugs, an informed said today.

The systematic an extension of the kind of reporting of operation in Canada for more than a year.

If successful, the world warning system may provide a rapid recognition of serious drug reactions such as the kind that deformities associated a few years ago with use of thalidomide by pregnant women.

Participating countries are designing a system under World Health Organization sponsorship aimed at early warning of such reactions. They also hope to spot chronic effects of prolonged drug use and reactions from combinations of two or more drugs.

At a Washington conference last week, Dr. Edward Lapla of the federal food and drug directorate represented Canada in discussions which took to establish the principles and techniques to be employed.

He said in an interview he expected there will be several further conferences before such vital matters are settled as common definitions of types of reaction.

Will Study Pill Effects

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government researchers say they hope to learn the effects of birth pills on perhaps 20,000 U.S. women for at least 10 years to try and find out if there are any long-term dangers in the prolonged use of oral birth-control pills or mechanical contraceptives.

The pills are being used by an estimated 2,500,000 women in the United States alone, a eight pioneer countries hope a world warning system can be worked on a trial basis by next year. Besides Canada, the pioneers are the U.S., Australia, Britain, Czechoslovakia, The Netherlands, Sweden and West Germany.

The kind of information to be collected and eventually exchanged among participating countries now is gathered from various Canada's 6,000 active drug directorate with the help of doctors, hospitals, coroners, dentists, pharmacists and nurses. Efforts are being made to improve the reporting system.

In the year it has been in operation, the Canadian system has produced about 3,500 reports. At Ottawa, they are checked and, if a trend is apparent, special studies to make a scientific evaluation are coordinated at one of 16 university teaching hospitals. Four such studies now are under way.

Last-Ditch Effort to Avert Seaway Workers' Strike Made

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiations shifted to the capital this morning from Cornwall, Ont., in a last-ditch effort to avert a strike at noon Friday by St. Lawrence Seaway workers that could tie up traffic throughout the international waterway.

Senator Norman Mackenzie was scheduled to start talks this morning with representatives of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority and the Brotherhood of Railway, Transport, and General Workers Union (CLC), bargaining agent for 1,200 workers on the Canadian side of the seaway.

The big problem of wages still remains.

The union demanded a one-year 35-per-cent pay increase to bring wages on the Canadian side more in line with those paid U.S. workers.

The Seaway Authority offered increases of three per cent in each year of a three-year contract, but later agreed to accept a one-plus-two request recommendation of seven per cent each year in a two-year contract.

Court Clerk Faces Charge Of Theft

The jury trial of Marjorie Mary Labey, 44, of Madoc, began in the General Sessions of the Peace in Hastings County Court this morning before Judge Wilfred S. Lane of Picton.

Miss Labey, court reporter and court clerk in Madoc from 1961 until this year, is charged with theft of a sum of money in excess of $50 from magistrate's court account between December, 31, 1963 and November 1, 1965.

The jury retired four times during the course of the morning, while defence counsel R. E. Nourse of Picton and Crown Attorney Bruce Affleck of Oshawa discussed various technical points.

Only witness to be called was Stewart E. Neundorf, chief auditor, Attorney General's Department, accounts' branch, Toronto. Mr. Neundorf said he was called to the Madoc magistrate's office November 8, 1965.

He said he checked the deposit books available, copies of receipts and stubs for the period from January 1, 1964 to July 31, 1965, informations, court dockets, cancelled cheques and bank statements.

He said that as a result of his findings in this office to the Madoc office he "attempted the reconstruction of the records to try to determine the financial position of this office.

"I reviewed the court dockets and informations and sorted them into numerical sequences based on monthly returns submitted from this office to the Attorney General's Department."

SHORTAGE £81

Mr. Neundorf said his investigations showed that, "according to Miss Labey's report, the deficiency is $4,951.

"We made confirmation by letter to people who had been fined in court that there was an indebtedness in their name at the office and asked them to confirm or deny this indebtedness.

"Information received showed that many of these people indicated they had indeed paid their fines. They presented receipts in support of this."

The witness said he found cases where moneys had not been deposited in the bank."

Mr. Neundorf presented a series of informations which he found in the Madoc office, which list the defendant's name, the date of the offence and the fine he was ordered to pay.

One of these informations was in the name of John Edward Lowry. Mr. Neundorf said it was processed Feb. 1, 1965, and Lowry was fined $100 and $5.50 costs, and given until April 30 to pay. "The receipt for payment of $105.50 by John Lowry is dated March 2, 1965 and the signature attached to that receipt reads Marjorie Lowry."

Mr. Neundorf said the information appeared on the monthly returns sent from Madoc to the Attorney General's Office as a time case, (i.e. a case in which time has been allowed to pay the fine and subsequently the money would be forthcoming), and he said the record of the payment never appeared on subsequent monthly returns.

Mr. Neundorf was still presenting a number of informations at the noon recess.

The trial continues.

Two Promoters Of Recreation Centre Fined

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — Two promoters who used newspaper advertisements to induce potential investors to put $68,000 into a recreation centre that went sour, were fined $1,500 Tuesday when convicted on charges of improperly trading in securities.

Magistrate K. M. Langdon said Maurice Therrien, 30, of Cooksville, Ont., and Fred Oliver, 49, of Milton, had deliberately attempted to flout the Ontario Securities Act.

He fined Therrien $1,000 and Oliver $500.

The magistrate described as "subterfuges to bring them within the Securities Act" the contracts the men made with 12 investors. The contracts offered profits, a share of the profits and an option to invest in a company to be incorporated.

Under the Alberta plan, the government would subsidize private insurance packages offered by a variety of private and doctor-operated plans in which premiums and sets maximum insurance fees.

The Liberal government proposes financial aid for low-income people who want to purchase the Alberta plan.

The Saskatchewan scheme, introduced four years ago over harsh protests from doctors before the province, compels all citizens to purchase medical insurance. The plan also is hedged financially from two sources.

Dr. Goldbloom said that when doctor-operated medical insurance plans began, doctors agreed to accept less than 100 per cent of scheduled fees to ensure the plans would remain solvent.

WANT SANE REDUCTIONS

B. E. Freamo of Toronto, CMA medical economics secretary, said governments wanted doctors to take the same reductions as other governments sponsored plans. Doctors in Saskatchewan accepted 85 per cent of the scheduled fees as full payment.

He said because doctor-operated plans no longer need extra income to build up financial reserves, the 15 per - cent reimbursement principle now should be applied both to the doctor-operated and government schemes.

Increased government assistance to the CMA's proposal who have heavy drug bills will be sought in a CMA brief to the parliamentary committee on food and drugs June 28.

Dr. R. W. Gunton of Toronto, CMA president - elect committee chairman, said the brief also will ask that:

1. The 15 per - cent federal sales tax be removed from all prescription drugs.

2. Insurance against drug costs be included in medical insurance plans on a co-insurance basis, whereby people would pay a certain percentage out of their own pockets, thus preventing abuse of the system.

3. Pharmacists sell prescriptions on a fixed fee-for-service basis.

4. Canada maintain patent and tariff protection for Canadian drug manufacturers in order to enable them to invest in research and development.

Ombudsman Advocated by Robert Temple

Robert Temple, Belleville lawyer and former Liberal Member of Parliament for Hastings West yesterday told members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club that Canada needs an ombudsman assisted by trained personnel with offices throughout the country, so that the people might learn exactly what their rights are. He suggested that the ombudsman should be responsible to Parliament. It is his belief that many Canadians do not know what their rights are.

He observed that Canadian law protects society and at the same time provides for the satisfaction of the individual and his rights, with emphasis on the dignity of the individual. Describing defects that have grown up in legislature - tapping and make blood feuds, he breathlessly noted compulsory, he warned that in 20 or 30 years, Canadians may find that they are giving up certain rights in order that "a more active criminal element and the courts may prosper."

Commenting on a device that allows a person to overhear a conversation taking place over a half mile away "without the use of wires", he asked: "What's to be the end of it?"

He is also in favor of a law that would require a person who has been found guilty of a criminal offence before entering a plea, in his experience, he has seen young people plead guilty "to get it over with" and later find that a criminal record bars them from professions they might choose.

He advocates a fund set up for compensation for victims of crime, admitting that details of such a scheme would have to be worked out.

"The family of a person killed by a criminal should receive compensation as should a person who is injured under like circumstances," he said.

"We have Workmen's compensation and an Unsatisfied Judgement Fund but compensation for victims of crime is another thing, too. It should be done."

Turning to legislation, he recalled presenting a bill for the abolition of capital punishment while he was an M.P.

"I got dozens of letters on the subject, some supporting my stand and others definitely opposed to it. One letter from British Columbia, the writer suggested that such views usually come from agnostics, atheists or heretics 'but' he said, 'I see that you are a lawyer and I have to take that into account.' Another writer favored execution before the crime because afterwards, it's too late."

The speaker illustrated his talk with scenes of cases he has handled during his career in law.

A plaque commemorating the gift of the Kiwanis Centre to the local club was presented to president Fred Bellstedt, who accepted on behalf of the club. Making the presentation was C. E. McElligot, chairman of the public and business affairs committee. The building was the gift of the late Colonel P. Willis who turned it over to the club in 1942.

Members of the Belleville, Michigan, Club will be guests of local Kiwanians at the meeting Tuesday, June 21. Plans for the big day have been completed and the event is described by Kiwanians as "a real chance to promote our city and the area."

Judge Anderson One-Man Board To Hear Dispute

MONTREAL (CP)—Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville has been named the one-man arbitration-board in the dispute between the CBC and some 300 technicians. A CBC spokesman said Tuesday.

The dispute involves the interpretation of the labor contract between the union of technicians, NABET (Local 62), and the CBC.

The CBC wants to hire freelance technicians for a series of 26 French-language variety shows, but the union says the contract does not allow the hiring of outside technicians.

Hearings on the interpretation are to begin Thursday, in the judge's chambers in Belleville. The decision will be automatically binding on both parties.

New Car Sales In Early June Behind 1965

DETROIT (AP) —New car sales in early June ran behind the 1965 pace with many General Motors topping its sales mark of a year ago.

Preliminary sales reports from the four U.S. auto makers Tuesday listed sales of 230,214 cars in the June 1-10 period. This trailed both the 251,477 cars sold in the comparable period last year and the 256,499 sold in the first 10 days of May.

It was the fourth straight 10-day period in which industry sales trailed those of a year ago.

On a calendar-year basis to date, however, sales are still well ahead of 1965.

General Motors had the strongest sales report. Its sales of 125,985 cars were a high for the early-June period. The old mark of 134,157 cars was set last year.

REGAINS LEAD

Chevrolet, which trailed Ford division by about 10,000 cars last month, regained its sales lead. It reported 60,655 passenger car sales in the opening 10 days of June while Ford notched 59,525 sales.

Chrysler Corp. listed sales of 35,786 cars in the 10-day period compared with 43,924 for the comparable 10 days last year.

Ford Motor Co. listed 59,912 car sales compared with 65,525 a year ago. Lincoln-Mercury division had 9,588 sales, just about 100 ahead of last year's sales effort, but Ford division was off.

American Motors sold 8,570 cars compared with 8,824 in the June 1-10, 1965 period.

More Farmers Turning Tractors Onto Roads

LAKESIDE, Ont. (CP) — A hastily-organized farmers' protest in southwestern Ontario is expected to gain momentum today as more and more farmers turn their tractors from the fields onto the roads to emphasize their demands for better milk prices.

Bill Langdon, president of Local 361, Ontario Farmers Union, said at his home here that about 40 dairymen are expected to parade on Highway 7 east and west of St. Marys. Another 65 to 70 members in Lambton County may also participate in a separate tractor parade on Highway 22, he said.

Complaints about milk prices started with the establishment recently of a $4 a hundredweight price for milk.

The farmers are demanding negotiations with the provincial government to discuss the problem.

"Some of the guys are getting pretty mad," Mr. Langdon said. Increased transportation costs have further annoyed the farmers, he said.

FARMERS NOT CONSULTED

Tuesday, cheques from Canadian Co. in St. Marys showed an increase to 30 cents a hundredweight from about 22 cents. This is taken off payments to farmers.

"What burns the farmers is that they didn't consult us first," Mr. Langdon said.

"We are going to see what the provincial government has to offer and then we will go back to the farmers and see if they want to accept."

The demonstration got off to a slow start Monday when about 20 members of Local 361 showed up to parade 12 miles from Bancroft to Uniondale.

CONFLICTS WITH CHORES

Most of the 100 members weren't notified in time and there was also the problem of conflict with farm chores.

The parade was carried out Tuesday.

In Napanee, eight miles southeast of Owen Sound, about 22 members of local 12 of the OFU indicated they would stage a tractor blockade in their area if no action is taken by the government.

A meeting is to be held tonight to decide what action the Grey County area of the OFU will take.

Longshoremen Will Likely Endorse Pact

MONTREAL (CP) — Longshoremen in Montreal, Trois-Rivieres and Quebec City are expected to endorse at meetings today an agreement to end a 36-day-old strike, thus clearing the way for a resumption of work Thursday.

The 4,200 longshoremen have been on strike over a contract dispute with the Shipping Federation of Canada, whose members also are expected to approve the agreement today.

The agreement was signed in Ottawa Tuesday by union and management negotiators.

The two big items on the list for clearing once work is resumed are materials for the 1967 Montreal world's fair and grain for Russia.

Andrew Kniewasser, regional manager of Expo 67, said work on several pavilions has been affected by the strike.

The overseas exports of grain is estimated to be some 37,000,000 bushels behind schedule. Montreal elevators alone have 22,000,000 bushels awaiting shipment.

While details of the settlement were withheld pending endorsement by the members of both sides of the dispute, it was known to contain an 80-cent hourly pay boost, half of it retroactive and the rest applying next year.

Construction Workers Riot In Dutch City

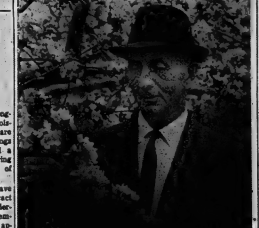
AMSTERDAM (Reuters) City police reinforced by elite royal constabulary and state police patrolled Amsterdam to calm today after two days of violent clashes which made a battlefield of the centre of the Dutch capital.

Parliament was called for an emergency session Thursday at the request of 10 members of the opposition Liberal party.

The Liberals want to question the government on the "crisis of authority" and police behavior in the city.



Construction workers who overturned cars and set them on fire at the beginning of the violence Monday were told that their protests have been refused by union officials.

The workers were demonstrating against a two-per-cent reduction from their vacation bonus for administrative costs. The unions said their bonuses will be mailed to them, minus the two-per-cent costs.

The two days of disturbances brought a warning from Prime Minister Joseph Cals that the violence would not be allowed to continue. "If it does, strong action will be necessary," he said.

Fourteen Days Coming Up For Accused

TRENTON —Percy Childerhose will appear before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in Belleville tomorrow to decide just when he can take time out to spend 14 days in jail on an impaired driving conviction.

Childerhose, who has had two previous convictions for drunk driving, told the magistrate in Trenton court yesterday he "could get an afternoon off from work anytime."

"Well, you'll need 14 days off," said the magistrate.

Gens Barclay Wood, 22, of Colborne, told the magistrate he had "not been feeling well . . . had had a few drinks . . . and besides, was very absentminded" when he walked out of Tripp's Cigar Store with two unpaid-for magazines under his arm on May 28.

Magistrate Wills suggested that if Wood intended to lay the "theft" to "absent-mindedness" his plea of guilty be rejected and Wood secure the services of a lawyer. However, Wood decided to pay the $10 fine.

Peter MacInnes was convicted of speeding on March 21, despite the efforts of a Mr. Chung, who neither spoke or understood English very well, to convince the court MacInnes had not been driving 40 mph on the day in question. MacInnes paid $10 and $8 court costs.

Blood Clinic

Belleville needs more blood donors. They are needed to replace donors who for one reason or another drop out each year. Most important, they are needed to fulfill the city's quota toward the Red Cross blood pool and the increasing needs of hospitals.

At tomorrow's clinic in the Kiwanis Centre the people of Belleville will be afforded an opportunity to volunteer their services as donors.

Currently, the city is supplying only half as much as the hospital is using, and too few replacements are coming forward for donors who drop out each year.

Belleville's quota toward the Red Cross blood pool is 1,800 bottles annually. Last year, according to Mr. Archie Lewis, chairman of the Belleville branch of the Ontario Red Cross Society, the city fell 200 bottles short of this target.

Meanwhile, the hospital uses 3,300 bottles each year and consumption everywhere is increasing all the time.

Quite apart from transfusions needed in accident cases, there are the daily requirements of surgery. Open heart surgery, for example, is now practised regularly in the larger hospitals. In such an operation 20 bottles of blood are required.

The need is urgent and Belleville citizens in good health are urged to volunteer as blood donors. The clinic hours tomorrow are from 2 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., and from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Seeking Answers

Five Dallas, Texas, clergymen, Protestant and Roman Catholic, have taken the modern theme of bringing Christianity to the people a step further by holding a question-and-answer session in a modern apartment complex.

They are working together, says an observer in the southern city, trying to find a means of maintaining religious values among the young adults for whom the modern apartment complex, with its bar and pool and relentless gaiety, has become a way of life.

And apparently the clergy have found an intelligent response from the sophisticated young people. For instance, questions like "How can I know that God exists?" from a young man, and "How do you find God —how do you make contact?" from a coiffured redhead in suit and gloves, and "What is the God in each theory? from a blonde in a blue dress and pearl necklace.

A tall, 23-year-old dental hygienist was in the group, but she asked no questions. "I used to go to church regularly even through college," she said later, "But I haven't been since I started living here.

"I don't know whether this evening has made me want to start church again, but I would like to go to another one of these."

The young woman's comments lends credence to the feeling that going to church, for many young married couples as well as single people, has become unfashionable in the increasingly complicated and living-for-the-moment existence prevailing today.

Nevertheless, the understanding and intelligent approach of the Dallas clergymen could well result in a renewed interest and understanding of the value of Christianity and the religious life among members of the younger generation seeking answers to the problems of life in perplexing times.

Children's Aid Home

The Children's Aid Society's operation of a "group" home, starting in the fall, will be watched with interest. Many offers, the most satisfactory living for a high percentage of the older children of both sexes coming into care.

Within a few years it is expected the Society will have to purchase up to five or six such homes.

The teenager is subject perhaps to keener psychological pressures than most people. He or she is at a vital stage of the growing-up process, and where parental control is lacking or withdrawn needs guidance and understanding from mature adults.

It is in homes such as these that such control may be exercised, while at the same time providing some degree of freedom for the young people to develop their own personalities in what is essentially a home atmosphere.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES—OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 19th, 1926

Lieut. Col. Donald G. Ketchenson of Toronto, brother of D. S. Ketchenson of this city, has been awarded the Order of the British Empire and was among the 201 Canadian army personnel to receive honors on the King's birthday.

Hastings County Council, at its closing session, passed a by-law authorizing the establishment of a High School District in the northern section of the county which will be known as the North Hastings High School District.

30 YEARS AGO

June 18th, 1926

From our file copy at this time in 1896: "There are 26 log school houses in North Hastings and the highest salary paid to a teacher is $750 per year, and the lowest salary paid is $230 a year."

Miss Frances Evans of St. Hilda's College, Toronto, has passed the second year examinations in Arts at Toronto University.

Miss Olive Delaney, Yeomans St., and Miss Patricia Wilkes, Cherbrise St., spent yester day in Toronto.

Harry Green, Gordon St., visited Toronto.

40 YEARS AGO

June 15th, 1926

The maximum temperature yesterday was 86, being 12 degrees lower than at 2 o'clock date last year when the thermometer registered 81 degrees. The minimum yesterday was 50, compared with 60 a year ago.

Richard D. Arnott of this city has successfully completed his third year at the Osgoode Hall Law School, Toronto.

Mrs. S. M. Jones, Yeomans St., has left to visit friends at Welland and Niagara Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lowry have returned from Montreal where they attended the Kiwanis convention.

50 YEARS AGO

June 15th, 1916

The Hollandia Mine at Bancroft which ceased operations about 10 years ago, is being reopened and it is expected that operations will be commenced in two weeks.

Extensive building operations are in progress at the plant of the Deloro Mining and Reduction Company. Six large double houses, 4 store and a school are being built. The company is also installing a sprinkler system for fire protection. A big tank or standpipe will be erected with a capacity of 70,000 gallons.

Family Life Is in Peril

Hamilton Spectator

The main, and often unmentioned, target of the whole moral dialogue today is the family unit. If chastity is ludicrous and even harmful and if — well, old monogamy is no longer a virtue, then the family as a microcosm of social order in the Christian world is in peril, if it disintegrates, like rotting fruit, it lapse will fan steadily out and no device, no artifact, of the apparatus we have erected in order that we may live at relative peace with one another will remain operative.

If the family unit spedas to meaninglessness then something must take its place. The Communist, the Communist Chinese think they have found the answer with communes and collectivization. We reject this in our part of the world as undue repression of the human spirit, yet at the same time we are not embarking on a course which will result in all individuals quite isolated from one another and, eventually, in a state of war with one another?

Perhaps there is hope, though, in some of the very things the confused moralist of today decries. We hear much of the woe and tragedy of teenage marriage but not all are disasters and even many of those that fail were born of a desire to end isolation, to be a member of a family.

Blunderingly, and often with sad results, it may be that many young people grope for a groping for that which we as adults have failed to give them.

Kenyan Bribes

Charlottetown Guardian

President Kenyatta of Kenya says that foreign money is being used in an effort to bribe voters to oppose him in the coming elections. He advises: "Accept it and vote for us." That couldn't happen here, of course! It's immoral. As the old political axiom puts it, "an honest man is one who, when he is bought, stays bought."

Today in History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

June 15, 1906 . . .

The massacre of the Janissaries began 140 years ago today—in 1826—a few days after these elite troops of the Turkish empire had begun a revolution in Constantinople. The government declared war against the rioting soldiers and within days the corps was destroyed after nearly 500 years of continuous history. It is not known how many of the 135,000 soldiers were massacred and how many escaped. The Janissaries were originally recruited from kidnapped Christian children and became a strong but disorderly influence in the Turkish powerstructure.

1615 — Quebec's first church was opened at Cul de Sac.

First World War

The Handyman's Nightmare

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Some years ago, an enterprising chap wrote "The Poor Speller's Dictionary," in which the most commonly misspelled words were given, and then their correct spellings but under the most common misspellings as well. For, obviously, if you don't know how to spell a word properly, you can't look it up in the proper place in an ordinary dictionary.

Pursuing this sensible line of reasoning, Harper and Bros., the book publishers, include in their fall list of new books something called "The Awful Handyman's Book," by George Daniels, which is exactly what I have been looking for vainly all these years.

This is a guide for the inept home repairman, like me, who is absolutely floored by the average do-it-yourself handyman book. Distant ogue, we are told, "assumes both ignorance and incompetence on the reader's part" — an assumption I humbly accept, and even embrace.

When I bought a house in the country some years ago, I thought it was time to overpower my vast ineptitude in the matter of repairs, and I ambled down to the local hardware store to buy a tool-chest. I examined one on display, and returned home empty-handed.

Asked by my family why I hadn't bought one, I hedged and stalled, and finally admitted in some embarrassment that I hadn't even looked inside the tool-chest — because I couldn't figure out how to get it open, and was too ashamed to ask the clerk to open it for me. I then decided that a man who could not even work the catch on the outside of a tool-chest had no business fooling around with the possibly fatal instruments inside.

Most books on the subject of home repairs are filled with a kind of masculine brag and sell that, after two pages, makes me feel like a flutiery schoolgirl. They describe a job as "simple" that would take me seven years to finish, and then would be recognizable only as the construct of a somewhat retarded chimpanzee.

Moreover, they never bother to explain the purposes and names of a lot of tools, simply saying, "Now you take the No. 2 flammerin and grasping a coupling with an involuted bevel, you proceed to drill precisely 3¼ inches through the A-Beam (fine-tread in Plate B." By that time, I'm at the infirmary with two smashed fingers and the children have been exposed to a richer and more colorful vocabulary than a Marine recruit.

"The Awful Handyman's Book" may be just the thing millions of us are looking for, an easy primer saying "This is a Hammer," NO "Here is a Screw." The trouble is, these other books never start with the fundamentals — beginning, of course, with How to Open the Catch on a Tool-Chest.

To Your Good Health

Co-operation Needed During Menopause

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can you suggest a book for a husband to read in order to understand his wife who is going through menopause? I am fine except quite often I feel sorry for others and cry for no reason at all. If my husband doesn't react the way I think he should, I either cry or stop talking and act mad for several hours. I can't seem to control my actions.

I have been told to get shots from my doctor but I don't want to start them as I am not that bad, but my husband gets very disgusted when I have these spells. — Mrs. S. S.

* * *

I suggest my booklet, "Make Menopause Easier," which you can obtain by sending 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Both of you should read it.

The booklet points out that menopause is a trying time for many women (a few go through it very easily, but the majority have at least some symptoms) and an understanding husband can help his wife over the rough spots.

But when a woman doesn't do anything to help herself — you refuse to see your doctor — then it is understandable that a husband might well resent it.

Going into a pout or a cry that lasts several hours certainly can't make life very happy for either of you. While some nervous tension is expected, menopause alone is not adequate excuse for making family life miserable.

A fuller understanding of what menopause does and doesn't mean may help you sort out your thoughts and stop expecting your husband to "react the way you think he ought to" whenever you have a black mood.

Do your part; then you will have reason to expect your husband to do his.

Dear Dr. Molner: I recently gave birth to a baby girl (eight ehild) and she had two teeth. A nurse claims that this is a sign of syphilis. I have had an obstetrician with all the children. If this were true, wouldn't he have told me?

The nurse has told several people, including my mother.— Mrs. O. M.

There is no truth in what the nurse says. She doesn't stop such talk, I suggest that you consult an attorney.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Our son has Perthes disease in his hip, and he wore a brace for nearly two years. Friends and relatives say "Why not take him to another doctor?" There isn't anything to do except keep pressure off the hip, is there? We took him to a specialist and are continuing with our family doctor. — Mrs. D. H.

There is no way to speed up the healing process, so don't let your friends and relatives pressure you into shopping around for other doctors. Your boy will be all right, but it takes time. A lot of time.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have two sons, aged 18 and 11, and would like your advice on having them circumcised. Is it too late now? Would it be painful? — E. J.

Circumcision at this age isn't necessary unless there are symptoms indicating that it ought to be done.

There is increasing opinion that routinely circumcising every boy baby may mean that a good many times it is being done when not really necessary.

It can't help being painful for a time for boys of your son's years, but doing it now is better than to find themselves harassed and delayed, with their plans disturbed, when they are more mightily appeal to the Government of Canada to take action. The best cannot, even in common courtesy, see his guests not only inconvenienced but disregarded.

Bail System in Ontario

Toronto Star

Is the province of Ontario so down at heels that we must rely on gifts to study whether justice is being served by our bail system.

The other by the Ford Foundation of a $20,000 grant — to be matched by an equal amount raised locally — to finance an experimental bail project in Toronto is a handsome gesture, worthy of the Fund's progressive policies.

But the government of Ontario ought to be shamefaced at being offered charity for a job we should be doing ourselves.

The project is certainly a worthy one. The fund will be used mainly to pay the salaries of a staff of interviewers who will talk to prisoners before they first appearance in court. They will then advise the magistrate whether they are a good risk to be released on their promise to appear on the day of the trial. The system is based on one which has worked successfully in New York city.

Something of this sort has certainly been long overdue. In the courts of Ontario, the medieval institution of bail has often been applied in a blind, mechanical fashion that has produced injustice and hardship.

Magistrates tend to set bail at a standardized amount for a particular offence; the accused either puts up money or security for it, or he stays in jail until the case comes to trial. Little or no inquiry is made whether the prisoner can raise the amount or whether or not he is likely to abscond rather than face trial. The system puts no restraint on the professional criminal, who can usually find bail quickly. But it results in the imprisonment of large numbers of poor and weak men who are provided criminal record who would most willingly to flee the jurisdiction.

In Britain and some of the American states the practice is growing of releasing prisoners on their own recognizance, that is their promise to appear for trial without requiring cash or property bail.

The trend is to replace bail in the case of individuals who have no previous criminal record, who have jobs and homes and who are, therefore, unlikely to abscond. The Ford Foundation scheme is an effort to apply this system to conditions in Canada.

But why should this plan be dependent on private funds and American funds at that? Improving the administration of justice in Ontario is surely the function of the provincial government. The attorney-general's department has the staff and the whole costs of the Toronto experiment. If the scheme succeeds, as it undoubtedly will, it comes a permanent thing, the department will presumably budget for a salaries of the investigating staff; why should it pay them from the start?

Trade Prospects in Bermuda

Canadians know Bermuda as a tourist resort, but this vacationland offers much more to see, says J. D. Welsh, Canadian Trade Commissioner in New York, writing in "Foreign Trade."

Bermuda's imports total $60 million a year because its islands produce only a small part of the products they use. The combination of a high and fairly uniform standard of living (wages are among the highest in the world) and over 250,000 tourists a year provides a very attractive consumer market.

Canada is in a preferred position in this market because it enjoys a substantial tariff preference in Bermuda as a member of the British Commonwealth. In addition, Canadian businessmen, many of whom went to school in Canada, have a friendly interest in Canada. They are also many former Canadians living in Bermuda.

In spite of these built-in advantages the United States, without a preference, supplies nearly one half of Bermuda's $60 million worth of imports and Canada only one tenth. We supply only one sixth of a $12 million carrot a year market for clothing, and one fifth of a $200,000 a year market for furniture. The story is the same or worse for most other items of which Canada is a competitive supplier — radio appliances, souvenirs and jewellery, stationery, toys, office supplies and equipment, photographic apparatus, electric generating machinery, etc.

The transport of Bermudian trade is conducted by importer-distributors who will buy either for their own account or on commissionsin service the retail and institutional trade. Manufacturers prefer to deal with well-established lines and are not looking for many new ones. The medium and small firms are aggressive and eager for new business.

Advertising methods are similar to ours. Consumers, however, prefer some differences; tradition and resistance to change are important factors. Bermudians prefer good workmanship and traditional style to novelty and gadgetry. Exporters should also consider the big racial aspect of the market and the differences in demand in each group.

Dockers' Strike Hits Expo

Montreal Gazette

The lassitude of the federal government amidst the longshoremen's strike is unbelievable for many reasons. But not the least of them is the apparent indifference of the Government to what the strike is doing to Expo 67.

No fewer than 15 of the pavilions at Expo have been affected by the strike. Three rows at work on a hundred of the sites have been reduced, to wait for the needed materials to be landed.

The countries affected are making their presence known, politely and in anger. But as one spokesman for Expo says "There's nothing either we can do but ask the federal Government for help."

Those frustrated nations are perfectly right when they say that they came to take part in Expo because hay were invited. They came here as guests, because Expo is their show, too. Their position is not like that of the nations who took part in the 1939 New York Fair. That was a private, unofficial fair, organized by various financial interests. Expo is a government-to-government affair, with strikes and many disappointments. But at least the United States as a nation was not involved.

But the situation with regard to Expo is very different. These nations have come here as the guests of Canada. They have come now to find themselves harassed and delayed, with their plans disturbed. And they are not mightily appeal to the Government of Canada to take action. The best cannot, even in common courtesy, see his guests not only inconvenienced but disregarded.

Major Shortt Given Post

PICTON (Staff) — Major E. A. Shortt of West Lake has been appointed Business Administrator at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

He replaces Gilbert Platt, who resigned recently to take a similar position with Prescott High School.

Board chairman Euston Martin said Mr. Shortt was chosen from about 30 applicants, 6 of whom were interviewed.

Meanwhile, the board is looking for a new office manager to replace Richard Parker, who has accepted a position in Ottawa.

The board, which held its regular monthly meeting Monday night, plans to insert a notice in the newspaper stating why it believes an addition to the collegiate is imperative.

The board has so far been unable to get a majority of municipalities to vote in favor of the proposed addition.

If it were approved, each municipality except Ameliasburg Township would have to assume a share of the cost to the County. (Ameliasburg belongs to the Bay of Quinte District High School Area.)

The county's share of the total estimated $2,000,000 cost of the addition is $500,000 which would be issued in debentures.

Wellington Given Leave to Appeal

PICTON (Staff) — An assessment commission racing against time to catch up, and a municipality too suspicious to wait, caused a temporary impasse at County Council Monday night.

At issue was Assessment Commissioner S. G. Manley's proposed equalized assessment of the county, based on the last revised assessment roles of each municipality.

Wellington objected that its proposed assessment, on which the county will base its 1967 tax rate, was out of proportion.

Council finally resolved the impasse by deciding not to pass the by-law at this time, rather than have Wellington carry out its threat to appeal before a County Judge.

The village may still appeal; Reeve Robert Boyce indicated that it will depend on whether a new standard for assessment can be agreed upon.

Agrees to Serve

PICTON (Staff) — County Council passed a by-law appointing Gordon Parks and Alva Collier to the Prince Edward Court of Revision. Warden Hyrold Bonter said that William Tatham, court chairman, who earlier had tendered his resignation, has agreed to serve for another year.

Tourist Assoc. Seeking More Attractions

PICTON (Staff) — The need for more man-made attractions to complement the natural assets of the area was discussed at the annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte Regional Tourist Association.

William West was re-elected president for another term at the meeting in the Picton Tourist Office May 31.

Mr. West reported that the association spent $6,700 on publication last year, and it has applied again for the annual $5,000 grant from the Ontario Department of Tourism and Information.

The association has long been conscious of the need for additional attractions, but the idea has gained momentum recently when a Deseronto area couple decided to open a Mohawk Indian village on the Lennox and Addington side of the new Quinte Skyway Bridge. Mr. West said the association has wrote to the department for advice on how to go about setting up such a tourist service centre which would include a restaurant, gift shop, Indian crafts and man-made attractions.

They received a letter from J. G. Reid, district representative for the department, who said the potential for a thriving visitor industry in Tyendinaga Indian Reservation is "extremely high."

"With careful planning, efficient organization, and adequate financing, the resources of the reservation could be developed into one of the most prosperous areas in the province," he said.

MILLION DOLLAR IDEA

He suggested work in four main fields: development of major attractions; development of supplementary attractions; provision of visitor accomodatio; a large scale arts, craft and souvenir manufacturing centre, perhaps in a vacant hangar at the airport. He called this last suggestion "a million dollar idea."

As major attractions, Mr. Reid suggested that thought be given to establishing a living Indian village, where visitors can see community life of an Indian settlement as it was in historical times; an amphitheatre for daily performances of Indian horseback riding, archery displays, dances, races, etc.; an arts and crafts centre, and a museum depicting the story of the founding of the Iroquois Confederacy, an event of "tremendous historical interest and significance."

Mr. Reid also referred the couple to Mr. West and Jay. Bowen Squire of R.2 Consecon, who has unearthed many artifacts on his property which he claims is the site of the original Kente Indian Settlement.

George Shipman gave a report on the proposed signs at the Macdonald-Cartier exits to Highways 33 and 14, directing travellers to Prince Edward County.

The Rural Scene

PICTON — A recent announcement indicates that plans are being finalized to expand the production testing in Ontario's Dairy herds through an Owner-Sampler testing program. As the name suggests this is a program in which the member plays a more active part than in the case of the regular Dairy Herd Improvement testing. Members will be required to weigh and record the weights of milk produced by each cow in the herd on successive evening and morning milkings once each month and at the same time take a sample from each cow's milk for butterfat testing. The D.H.I.A. supervisor will collect the samples and conduct the test for butterfat. From the weights taken by the members and the butterfat test made by the Supervisor the milk and fat produced for each cow is then calculated. A cost of production program is also available on an optional basis at no extra cost. Members are required to supply a satisfactory set of scales to weigh the milk and pay a fee of $1.00 per cow per year. It is hoped to be able to provide a testing service on an owner-sampler basis to approximately 400 dairymen in Ontario this year. It should be pointed out however, that it may be possible to accept all applications that are received. Anyone interested in applying for membership in the Dairy Herd Improvement Association program on an Owner - Sampler basis should do so as soon as possible. Application forms and information can be obtained at your local Department of Agriculture Office.

PESTICIDES

During the next couple of months, fruit growers, canning crop growers and home gardeners will be applying fairly toxic insecticides in their fruit and vegetables. Insecticides as a group are important and necessary but we should make sure that we are using the right material to do the job. We should use these materials only at the recommended rates and at the proper time.

Commercial growers of fruits and vegetables in particular should take special precautions to prevent possible contamination of other crops. Growers should consider the crop next to the fence whether it belongs to them or is their neighbor.

Even in the home garden many a tomato plant or other crop has curled up and produced nothing because of the misapplication of a chemical herbicide such as 2,4-D.

Chemicals for control of insect, diseases and weeds have much to offer if they are used in the way intended.

STUDY FERTILITY

ST. MICHAEL'S CWL

On Monday evening, Mrs. G. F. O'Brien, president of the Catholic Women's League, welcomed all to the final meeting before the summer recess.

Mrs. Al Purcell reported on the success of the membership drive and that it was well under way.

All arrangements are being made for the CWL annual tea and bake sale to be held at the home of Mrs. S. Kvarda, 190 Dundas Street West, in the near future.

Volunteers are needed to staff the Sunday morning nursery, which will be open only for the 8.30 and 10 o'clock Masses during the summer months, beginning Sunday, June 26. There is need, also, for someone to convene the "Messenger Magazine."

At this point, the meeting broke up into three lively discussion groups. The topics were "Sex Education", "Day Nursery", "Ecumenism and Education" and "The Role of Women In the World". The members felt that the discussions had been of benefit to them, and heard their approval.

Mrs. C. F. O'Brien congratulated Mrs. A. Scrosati, Mrs. E. Logan and Mrs. L. Smith on the success of the reception and tea in honor of Father Mary Andrew and Mother Mary Carthagh.

The CWL meetings will resume in the fall and the September meeting will follow the same program as that of last year, beginning with Mass in the church, followed by a buffet supper and meeting in the junior school.

Refreshments were enjoyed after the close of the meeting.

The Experts Say
Spot Cleaning Fluid Can Be Deadly Poison

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—Carbon tetrachloride can kill. Its four times as poisonous as carbon monoxide.

But thousands of Canadians are using it at home for spot cleaning. They may not even know what they've got on their hands because some cleaning products don't include a list of ingredients on their labels.

A Canadian scientist, who calls carbon tetrachloride "a deadly vicious poison," says a report on it that death can come from drinking about a thimbleful.

Breathing the concentrated fumes can cause nausea, vomiting and dizziness. Larger quantities cause stupor, convulsions, coma and death. After two or three days, a non-fatal poisoning, signs of damage to liver and kidneys may show up.

Alcohol intensifies the effects. If you drink either before, during, or after using it, you are more susceptible.

Children are especially sensitive. The smaller the child, the more the potential danger. Some adults are more sensitive than others.

"I don't think carbon tetrachloride has any place in household use," says Dr. T. H. Patterson, chief of the occupational health division of the department of national health and welfare.

Industries using the chemical take "quite elaborate precautions."

"But people using it at home often don't read the label. They think if they have used it once they can use it safely again."

If they must use carbon tetrachloride — "unfortunately it's a very good cleaner" — they should be aware of the hazard and take the same care as industry.

It should be used only in open, well-ventilated spaces. Clothes should be completely dry before they are used again. Carbon tetrachloride on your skin can cause a painful rash.

Ironing still - damp clothes is dangerous because the fumes are given off more quickly. Heavy materials like rugs will probably retain the cleaner for a long time before they are completely dry and safe.

"I wouldn't want any rugs cleaned with it and left in the house," Dr. Patterson says.

The department is looking into possible regulation of labelling of household chemicals that may have health hazards. Some labels say reassuringly "positively will not explode," but give no warning of the possible sickening effects of breathing the fumes.

"But I really don't think there is any place for carbon tetrachloride in household use at all," Dr. Patterson says.

U.C.W. Meetings
